VOL. XLIX No. PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

NOTICE H. LeBRUN & CO'S., ENTRANCE FROM THIS DAY WILL BE 396 GEORGE ST. TORONTO BANK BUILDING

FIRST UNIT AT FLOODED PLANT TO RUN MONDAY

OFFICIALS EXPECT REPAIRS WILL BE COMPLETED THEN, ADDING 4,000 H.P. TO SUPPLY.

MAY INCREASE FLOW

The local Utilities Commission is about 40 per cent short of its normal power supply, H. O. Fiske, manager of the Commission, told The Examiner to-day. Gradual improvement in the situation, however, is looked for and it is expected that one of the three units at the disabled Healey Falls plant will be dried out and in operation Monday. This will add 4,000 horse power to the supply available. Further alleviation of the shortage may also be effected by arranging for an increased flow of water in the Crowe river.

Yesterday the Commission was able to supply the power demand fairly adequately, but to-day it was necessary to shut off power for short periods. The situation, however, due to assistance from the private generating plants of the Quaker Oats and Canadian General Electric companies and other private power producers in Central Ontario, is not as serious a one as might have been expected to result from the loss of 10,000 horse power to the Central Ontario system.

Contrary to the belief of the blueruin predicters of industrial slackness the fact has been brought to light by the shortage that Peterboro's power demand at present is very heavy.

BOY LIFTED FROM NARROW LEDGE HALF WAY DOWN NIAGARA CLIFFS

NIAGARA FALLS, June 14 (Canadian Press).—Earl Parnell, eight years old, was lifted from a narrow ledge half way down the River Gorge bank last night, in one of the most thrilling rescues ever witnessed here.

Had the boy moved a few inches as he lay there stunned by the fall, he would have been dashed to death.

The boy had been playing on the edge, and had fallen over.

A man named Radford, formerly a British sailor, attached a rope to a telegraph pole, and with the boy's father, clambered down the precipitous cliff with a hammock, in which they placed the injured lad.

After what seemed hours, the two men slowly climbed up the cliff to safety, cheered by a large crowd.

The boy will recover.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

T. Tooms, M.P.P.: As one travels through the city and the county of Peterborough, one realises that Peterborough's possibilities are unsurpassed; and that is in no way a misnomer. The geographical situation is good, placed in a splendid district of rural scenery, lakes, and tourist resorts of the highest order, well supplied with train service, surrounded with splendid fertile land, suitable for all classes of farming, and the city as a manufacturing centre, with its natural water power, should be second to none in the Province of Ontario. It does not require the eyes or mind of a prophet to foresee an ever-growing and prosperous outlook to this beautiful city of ours. Therefore, the one thing that should be considered is a proper town-planning scheme, having our streets wide enough and healthy, easily accessible. Try to avoid congestion in our housing scheme, as it does seem deplorable to think of the present popularity of apartment dwellings, which, if not properly attended to, in time may become a system of unhealthy and undesirable tenement dwelling.

I think a municipal building scheme is of paramount importance, with an eye to the future and healthy living conditions for all classes of the people.

While anxious for a normal and healthy growth, I do not believe it to be in the public interest to have the city too large. I do not believe in booms which give inflated values. A sound growth to a population of 50,000 forms an ideal city—a larger city becomes unwieldy, and brings its own economic disaster.

Good citizenship is the object of all loyal citizens, whether they be rich or poor, and the best way to obtain this is to base all our actions upon the principle of equal rights. We are trustees of a great heritage, the love of justice, and righteousness, and human liberty. The point in public affairs never lies along the lines of expediency. It always rests in the field of principle, a profound principle of human liberty and humanity, and wherever we base our action on any other foundation than those, it is built but upon the sand. The principle of public right must henceforth take precedence over individual interests. Practical questions should be settled by practical means. Phrases will not accomplish results. Our problems should be dealt with in a spirit of unselfishness and unbiased justice, remembering people's right to live on equal terms of liberty and safety one with another, whether they be strong or weak.

I mention these things because a city is what the people themselves make it. If men cannot now, after the long years of war, come to their self-possession, and see how to regulate their affairs of life, we will sink back into a period of struggle, in which there will be no hope. We must stand for no selfish purpose, but in the general service of civilisation and humanity. All must co-operate in this grand work—take pains to eliminate from the future cause for disturbance and instability.

Our public utilities should consider the equal rights of the citizens on the borders of our city with regard to water and fire protection. Cases were apparent last week in East City. These districts have equal claim for water, fire protection, oil on the streets; also as an improved public convenience I would suggest a three-cent street car service, without transfers, or a straight five cent car fare, which would be according to statute. A rivalry in newspaper service would, I believe, be appreciated by a great number of citizens.

Peterborough's growth of 63 per cent. since the last census was taken is sufficient guarantee of its soundness and of its successful future.

FOLLOW PETES AT RIVERSIDE PARK

SCORING AT PORT HOPE WILL BE REPORTED AT DOURO-ZION GAME THIS EVENING

The progress of the Petes at Port Hope this evening will be announced to the fans at Riverside Park during the Douro-Zion East Peterborough League game. The game at Port Hope will start at five o'clock and it should be possible to report the final result of the contest before the "U.F.O." game is over.

The Douro and Zion teams will be here to start their game at six o'clock.

To-morrow evening at Riverside Park, the reorganized Barrie's team will meet the Cressman's in a Mercantile League fixture. Galbraith and Dugan will do the battery work for the fur-trimmers.

The City League and Mercantile League have called off the games scheduled for Saturday afternoon, when the lacrosse season will be opened with an intermediate game between Campbellford and Peterborough.

It is suggested in the Lindsay Post that boys be given ten cents for the recovery and return of baseballs going over the fence at the ball yard. At Riverside the retrievers get five times that amount, with a bath thrown in.

Canadian Generals of the City League, and Cressman's of the Mercantilers, are the only teams to escape a blow-up. Barrie's are hoping Cressman's will take their's in the twilight hours of to-morrow.

A PUBLIC MEETING IS TO BE HELD IN THE BOARD OF TRADE ROOM, PETERBORO, ON MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 20TH, AT 8 P. M., UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE NATIONAL SANITARIUM ASSOCIATION. MAYOR A. A. McINTYRE WILL PRESIDE. A WELL-KNOWN SPEAKER FROM TORONTO WILL EXPLAIN THE AIMS AND PLANS OF THE SANITARIUM ASSOCIATION FOR THE ERADICATION OF THE GREAT WHITE PLAGUE. ALL ARE CORDIALLY INVITED. ADMISSION FREE. WATCH FOR FURTHER ANNOUNCEMENTS. R. E. IVES, PROVINCIAL ORGANIZER. 2d141

OPPONENTS OF MINISTRY SAY REVOLT BEGUN

RESIGNATION OF DR. ADDISON INTERPRETED BY ANTI-GOVERNMENT FORCES AS DANGER TO LLOYD GEORGE CABINET.

PROTEST EXPENDITURE

LONDON, June 15. — (Canadian Press.)— Dr. Christopher Addison, formerly Minister of Health, and since last April Minister without portfolio in the British Cabinet, has resigned his post, it was declared by the Daily Mail to-day. This latest development is described in anti-Government quarters the newspaper said, as "a revolt of the government's followers."

It was declared that this alleged revolt is likely to endanger the stability and even the existence of the Lloyd George Cabinet and cause a general election. A manifesto signed by about 150 coalition members of the House was presented to the government yesterday protesting against the expenditure of public money without the previous sanction of Parliament. It was asserted that this protest was made because of the appointment of Dr. Addison at a salary of five thousand pounds annually without submitting the matter to the Commons.

Addison Denies Report.

LONDON, June 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister without portfolio in the British Cabinet, has denied the report printed this morning that he had resigned his post.

CHAUTAUQUA WILL PLEASE THE MASSES

PETERBORO PROGRAMME THE BEST THAT HAS EVER BEEN GIVEN.

The committee in charge of Peterborough Chautauqua programme knows that entertainment is needed to please the masses of people to whom Chautauqua appeals and this summer ample provision has been made to make the programme the best that has thus far been given.

The play has for three summers been the most talked of feature among the Chautauqua entertainments. This is because of the uniformly fine cast of actors under the management of that sterling English actor-producer, Mr. Percival Vivian, and the close attention that has been given to the production of the play—results having been secured under the tent that compare favorably with productions in the finest theatres.

Vivian, Himself.

This summer an unusually strong comedy has been selected, and, better still, the management has induced Mr. Vivian himself to appear in the leading role. To accomplish this, it has been necessary to pay much more for this summer's company and play than ever before. The play secured is none other than George M. Cohan's greatest comedy success, "It Pays to Advertise," that enjoyed a run of more than two years in New York City, and nearly as long in other cities like Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. There are at least three laughs in every minute of the action of the play; furthermore, the play teaches many a lesson to business men.

It is interesting to note that the leading female role will be played by the excellent English actress, Irene Beavins. A cast of competent actors who have been playing in Broadway successes this season will appear in the six other roles.

BRITISH GOVT. INTERVENTION OPENS PARLEY

NEGOTIATIONS THIS MORNING LED TO STEPS TO AVERT GREAT ENGINEERING CRISIS AFFECTING 1,500,000.

LOCK-OUT POSTPONED

LONDON, June 15.— (Canadian Press.)— Steps toward averting a great engineering stoppage, affecting a million and a half men, were taken this morning when Minister of Labor MacMara held a conference with representatives of the employees and employers. The result of the conference was that the employers agreed to postpone issuing the lock-out notice from to-morrow until the end of June in order to enable the Union to submit the employers' latest proposals to ballot. Government intervention was decided upon after negotiations between employers and employees on the proposed wage reductions became known yesterday.

WEEKLY EDITORS SEE BEAUTIES OF ROCKY MOUNTAINS

150 MEMBERS OF WEEKLY NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION TRAVEL BY COURTESY OF C.P.R.

CHATEAU, Lake Lousie, Alta., June 15.—The C.P.R. special train, carrying about 150 representatives of the Canadian weekly newspapers, under the auspices of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, arrived at Lake Louise this morning. The train was somewhat delayed on account of a stop-over being made at Field in order that the party should see the beauties of the Yoho Valley en route to Lake Louise.

During their stop at Field an impromptu dance was arranged at the Y.M.C.A., which was formerly one of the famous hotel along the system of the C.P.R., and according to the general opinions of the party they had a most enjoyable time. During their stop at the coast they visited Butchards Gardens, Victoria, in addition to the Gorge, and while in Vancouver they paid a visit to Stanley Park, Jericho Beach and took in the famous Marine Drive. The party is exceptionally well representative of the whole of Canada, representaives being present from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. Mr. W. R. Davis, President of the Association during the past year, was very enthusiastic in his impression on the trip along the C.P.R. from Vancouver, and eulogized the services which the company have placed at the disposal of the party. Everybody, he said, was perfectly happy and comfortable and the scenery was the most magnificent he had ever seen. Every facility was afforded in order that they might enjoy the beauties of the Canadian Pacific Rockies and it was a great surprise when a specialobservation car was placed on the train from Revilstoke to Field.

On arrival at Lake Louise the party enjoyed breakfast aboard the special train and were conveyed to the Chateau by electric cars. Here they broke into parties, some taking the Brewsters ponies to Lake Agnes and Mirror Lake, where they enjoyed the delightful company of Miss Dodds, who for many years has conducted a tea house at this particular spot some 7,000 feet above sea level, amdist the beauties and under the shadow of St. Piran, the Big Beehive and Mount White.

Some of the editors and their wives took the drive to Moraine Lake, passing under the gigantic cliffs of Mount Temple and Saddle Back and opening into the glorious scenery of Moraine Lake and the Valley of the Ten Peaks, where Miss Danks runs a camp at which visitors may stay overnight and enjoy very fine local fishing. The party left for Banff, about four o'clock in the afternoon, thoroughly delighted with their day's visit.

Mr. A. B. Calder, representing the C.P.R., is in charge of the party, and at Vancouver was joined by Mr. H. W. Brodie, general passenger agent, Vancouver, who accompanied him to Lake Louise, where Mr. F. W. Fox, editor of the Press Bureau, joined them.

STRIKING BRITISH MINERS ARE VOTING TO-DAY ON ACCEPTANCE OF COAL OPERATORS' PROPOSALS

OWNERS TERMS INCLUDE 20 PER CENT. INCREASE ON 1914 SCALE AND PROPORTIONATE SURRENDER OF PROFITS.

ANNOUNCE VOTE FRIDAY

LONDON, June 15. — (Canadian Press.)—The British miners to-day voted on the proposals of the mine owners for settlement of the coal diggers' strike, which has been in progress since April 1. All coal fields in the United Kingdom were affected by the decision to ballot on the acceptance or rejection of the mine owners terms and the question was placed before the miners without recommendations from the conference of delegates which met here June 16. The result of the vote will be announced Friday.

The owners' final proposals included the establishment of a new standard minimum wage by raising the 1914 scale by twenty per cent. It was provided that this percentage would be calculated on the output for March last and would continue in effect for a year. The owners offered to surrender their profits proportionately to the assistance received by the various districts, and the new District Boards would, if proposals should be accepted, redistribute the districts on an economic, instead of a geographical basis. The National Wage Board would then determine the ratio of profits to wages in each district. The owners suggested as an alternative that the new wage standard be settled by the National Wage Board or by arbitration.

It is announced that the Dills beat the time of Jack and Clifford Behan, who arrived at Vancouver Saturday, by five days. Charles Burkman, fifth contestant, has yet to reach the Pacific coast.

LASTING QUALITIES IN A PIANO

A purchase that counts only in a few dollars need not be expected to give great endurance. But a piano is something that runs into money—even a poorly constructed instrument. How important it is when buying a piano that one should select that of a known high-class manufacturer. With a record of 70 years behind them, Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter Streets, Peterborough, make a piano that practically lasts a lifetime.

SPANISH ELITE SPEND TOPSY TURVY HOURS.

Duke of Alba Sets His Face Against Unhealthy Practice.

MADRID, June 14.—Leaders of Spanish society are making a valiant attempt to introduce a social day which shall end at midnight instead of at dawn of the following day.

At present the tendency in Madrid is to force to-day into to-morrow, and society functions gradually are becoming later and later.

Afternoon tea now begins at 6 and lasts until 8 o'clock. Theatre matinees start at 6.30 or 7 and continue until 9.30 or 10.

Dinner is taken anywhere between 10 and 11.30.

The "evening" performance at the theatres and opera have opened in the meantime, but the "smart set" never think of entering their stalls or boxes until the second act is well on its way. The performance is over at 1 or 1.30, when the supper dance following, ending at dawn.

The Duke of Alba has set his face against this topsy-turvydom and decreed that his palace, which is a rendezvous for gatherings of diplomats, scientists, artists and politicians, shall never remain open after midnight.

NEW STYLE FURNITURE ASKED BY FRENCHMEN

PARIS, June 15.—A new style in furniture was demanded by representatives of the French furniture industry at the Furniture Congress held here.

Architects are blamed by the President of the Furniture Makers' Association for the continued production of false Louis XV. Louis XVI and other styles of antiques. They design interiors to go with such furniture and naturally the manufacturers have to meet the demand, he says.

The President proposed that the teachers in the fine arts school should begin the campaign for a modern, original style by inspiring original ideas under the general direction of a committee composed of artists, architects and furniture makers.

He hopes this method will produce an entirely new style that will mark the epoch as did the styles of the two Louis, of the Empire and the Renaissance.

GOMPERS PUTS BLAME OF WAR ON HUN LABOR

J. H. THOMAS, BRITISH LABOR LEADER, TELLS A.F.L. CONVENTION IT CANNOT SOLVE THE IRISH PROBLEM.

CANADA HOLDS ITS OWN

DENVER, June 15.—(Canadian Press).—Blame for the recent world-war was placed squarely on the shoulders of organized labor in Germany by President Samuel Gompers in address to the American Federation of Labor convention yesterday, which was a response to those of fraternal delegates from Great Britain and Canada. "I hold and I accept full responsibility for what I am about to say," said President Gompers "that the organized labor movement of Germany failed dismally at the critical hour. If it had taken the situation in hand it might have meant the destruction of a few thousands, but it would have stopped the war. The failure of the men to act at the time of crisis is faithlessness to the common cause."

W. F. Brush, fraternal delegate representating the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, told the assembled delegates that despite difficulties organized labor in Canada was at least holding its own. He reviewed the incipiency of the 'one Big Union" movement and predicted "its early death."

Warning against any agitation that might disrupt the United States Labor movement, James H. Thomas British Labor leader, told the Convention that it could not solve the Irish problem. "For a hundred years we in England have been confronted with the problem of Ireland and if we at home cannot solve that problem let me ask how you three thous and expect to solve it?" he said.

HUNDRED CANADIAN BOATS SHOW PROFIT

C.G.M.M. DOING WELL DURING HARD TIMES.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries issued recently the following statement as to the Canadian Merchant Marine:

"Notwithstanding the continued depression in shipping, the vessels of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are succeeding in finding useful and profitable occupation. Since January 1 there have been 52 vessels in commission. The returns from the operation of these from January 1 to April 30 have recently been completed, and, contrary to the general expectation, they show a substantial profit after deducting operating costs. When it is considered that millions of tons of shipping are lying idle, both in the United Kingdom and in the United States, this result may well be regarded as satisfactory.

"During the period referred to voyages have been made to the United Kingdom, South America, Australia, West Indies, Newfoundland, India and European ports. All of these services have yielded a profit to the vessels operating thereon, with the single exception of that to the West Indies, where a comparatively small loss has been made. Officials of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine also intimate that the outlook for the immediate future is fairly promising."

GOOD WOULD SINK FLEET OF U. S. WOODEN SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—Sinking of the wooden ships now held by the Shipping Board, was recommended in the House by Chairman Good of the Appropriations Commitee. The Board has 275 of these vessels on which it has been unable to obtain a bid, and which cost $440,000 a year to guard, he said.

"I would sink those ships to-morrow rather than continue the wasteful practice of paying $440,000 a year simply to guard them when you canno get a man to bid on them," said Mr. Good. "It is doubtful if you will ever get a man to bid on them.

"If we are building breakwaters anywhere in the United States, it seems to me that it would be a good thing to take those ships, fill them with stones and use them in the construction of breakwaters."

LAWN SOCIAL AT CAMPBELLFORD A GREAT SUCCESS

PROCEEDS FROM ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH AFFAIR $300—HYDRO RUSHING REPAIRS.

CAMPBELLORD, June 15.—The ideal weather and the reputation St. Andrew's church has attained in previous years for the success of their annual garden parties, drew an unusually large crowd on Monday evening. The programme, which was of a very excellent nature, was varied and lengthy. The 40th Regimental band, under the competent leadership of Mr. R. T. Cowell, dispensed excellent music which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The May pole dance which was so cleverly given by several little tots, was a most interesting feature. A duet by Messrs. Lucy and Lowe was heartily encored. A mixed choir rendered a chorus, "Come where the lilies bloom," which was much enjoyed. A male quartette sang, "The anvil chorus." Several ministers from the neighboring towns gave brief addresses which were appreciated.

A unique item on the programme was the old curiosity shop some of the relics being over one hundred years old. As a climax to a most pleasant evening was the display of beautiful fireworks. The proceeds of the evening's performance amounted to over $300. The nationalistic contest advocated by Revs. Bennnett, Simpson and Thompson was won by the Irish.

Strawberries are becoming quite plentiful in town now and yesterday were selling at 25c. per box. It is predicted, however, they will decline considerably in price before the end of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Walker, of Toronto, are visiting Mrs. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Morton.

Miss Alderice, Booth street, who spent a month in Toronto visiting her friend, Mrs. William Barnett, formerly of town, has returned home.

Messrs. Geo. Stephens and Elgie Thomas spent Sunday at Healey Falls.

The I.O.D.E. "Fete de Nuit" to be held on Dr. Macoun's spacious grounds to-night, promies to be a huge success. Side shows, May-pole dances, etc., and no stone is being left unturned to make the evening the best ever.

The work of repairing the damage done by the flood at the Healey Falls power house is being rushed as speedily as possible and it is thought that perhaps in a week part of the plant might be able to resume operations. In the meantime the Hydro are drawing power from their power house nearer town and from the town power housee, in order to supply the various industries and towns served by the Healey Falls plant.

PROBABILITIES.

MEIGHEN LANDS AFTER A QUIET 7 DAYS' VOYAGE

REFUSED TO BE SHIELDED FROM ORDINARY PASSENGERS ON SHIP AND PLAYED ENTHUSIASTICALLY.

PLAYS BRIDGE POORLY

LIVERPOOL, June 15.—(Canadian Press).—After a voyage of seven days Premier Meighen landed at Liverpool yesterday and shortly afterwards boarded a train for London. The trip across was uneventful except for one day's delay by fog and icebergs and the Prime Minister proved himself an excellent sailor.

When President Wilson crossed to Europe to attend the Peace Conference he was shielded from ordinary passengers by an impenetrable barrier of secretaries and officials Mr. Meighen, however, refused to be hedged about by any like divinity and from the first day out he entered into the various activities of ship board with avidity. Among the first on deck in the morning he spent a great deal of his time playing shuttle cock, a game at which he exhibited considerable skill. In the evening he was among the most enthusiastic of the dancers and later in the night would disclose his puritanical upbringing by playing the second worst game of bridge on the boat.

HEALTH TEACHING METHODS FEATURE OF MEET TO-DAY

NATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION DEMONSTRATES SYSTEM.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(Associated Press).—Up-to-the-minute methods of teaching health principles to children will be shown in the 17th annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association, which will open here to-day. Every State in the Union, and many parts of Canada, will be represented at the convention by men and women prominent in the campaign to stamp out tuberculosis.

Marionette shows, a cardboard theatre, motion pictures and pageants are some of the novel schemes to be advanced for inculcating in the minds of the children the value of strict adherence to health principles.

As a means of teaching the proper use of foods, 'Tiny Tim's Theatre" will be introduced for the first time to tuberculosis and health workers. The characters who play the principal parts in the little theatre are Mistress Bread, Mickey Potato, Crybaby Onion and Fluffy Spinach.

The Modern Health Crusade, a system of health teaching in the Public schools, through which children are taught to perform certain health chores daily, will be demonstrated at several of the sessions.

The history of the National Tuberculosis Association will be presented before the convention Thursday night through the medium of a pageant, entitled "The Crusade of the Double Barred Cross."

"Humpty-Dumpty," the clown employed by the Association, will, by clever clowning, show how to teach children the proper rules of health and hygiene.

Poster exhibits, newspaper publicity, moving picture schemes and various others ways of teaching health principles will be subjects for discussion throughout the meeting.

Dr. Gerald B. Webb of Colorado Springs, President of the Association, will open the meeting to-morrow afternoon with his annual address to the 1,500 representatives who will attend the sessions.

Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, Managing Director of the Association, will report upon the work of the organization in various parts of the country during the past year.

To-morrow night's meeting of the Advisory Council will include a symposium of federal provision for tuberculous former soldiers and sailors. The speakers will be: Dr. Haven Emerson of New York, Medical Advisor to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance; Dr. F. C. Smith of the United States Public Health Service; Uel W. Lamkin, Director of the Federal Board of Vocational Education; Colonel F. W. Galbraith, Jr., National Commander of the American Legion, and Dr. David Lyman, former President of the National Tuberculosis Association.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES IN MOTOR ACCIDENT BEFORE COUNTY COURT

LOUIS FLORENCE CLAIMS $218.60 FROM A. C. COLE OF BAILLIEBORO—USUAL QUESTIONS OF SPEED AND OTHER CONTRIBUTING CAUSES OCCUPIED LARGE PART OF HEARING.

After the Grand Jury had left to consider the two criminal cases of theft before the general sessions of the County Court, Judge Huycke proceeded with the case of Florence vs. Cole.

This is a jury hearing, and has arisen, as do many of the cases nowadays, out of a motor accident. Louis Florence is suing Archie C. Cole, general merchant, of Bailieboro, for $218.60, and costs, for damages to his automobile on 22nd June, 1920, when he and Cole collided at the corner of Charlotte and Park Streets.

Defendant makes a counter claim of $75.00 for damages to his car.

R. R. Hall represented plaintiff, and G. N. Gordon, defendant.

William Blackwell, architect, testified to drawing a map of the corner for the Court, and the evidence of plaintiff was then taken.

Plaintiff's Evidence.

Mr. Florence told Mr. Hall he was in the metal business. In June last year he was driving an Overland Country Club car, weighing about 2,200 pounds, he stated.

Mr. Hall asked him to tell his story of the accident.

He said: "I was going south on Park Street around 11 a.m. Just when I was coming to the corner of Park and Charlotte Streets, I slackened off a little and turned my head to the right to see if there was any traffic coming from the west. Then I turned to the east, and all of a sudden saw a car approaching from the east at a very high rate of speed. I tried to turn up more to the east. I saw an accident was going to happen. I couldn't turn any more to the right on Charlotte Street, because I was close to the curb. I would have turned over. If I had turned to the right I couldn't have gone ahead of him. I kept on going south across Charlotte Street."

"What did Mr. Cole's car do?"

"Just as soon as I turned a little more to the right Mr. Cole's car struck me on the left running board about the centre."

"How many wheels of Mr. Cole's car struck your car?" Mr. Hall asked.

"I don't know."

Mr. Hall asked what happened when he was struck.

Mr. Florence said his car was driven over the road against a hydrant, the hind wheels right over the curb. The car was turned around. Instead of facing south, it was facing east. The hydrant was at the right front of the car. The left hand part of the car, Mr. Florence said, was thrown right over the curb.

Mr. Cole's car was stopped on the south rail facing the south-west.

On the plan of th corner, Mr. Florence pointed out the positions of both cars after the accident had occurred.

Mr. Florence told Mr. Hall that the hind wheels of his car was just over the south car rail when the smash-up took place.

Faster Than 25 Miles.

"In my judgment it was faster than 25 miles an hour," said witness when he was asked how fast Mr. Cole's car was going. He could not amplify this opinion. When he first saw the approaching car, he was just past the corner, while Cole was just in the centre of the road in front of the two-storey brick store on the corner. A car like Cole's in the centre of the road, he said, could see up Park Street.

When asked what he did to avoid the accident, Mr. Florence said he swayed to the west as far as he could. If Mr. Cole had chosen, he could have kept to the north curb or he could have turned into Park Street if he had not been going so fast.

Mr. Florence said it looked as if defendant wanted to go south on Park Street or got excited and kept to the centre of the road.

When approaching the corner he was going about 20 miles an hour. At the corner he slackened it up to 16 miles an hour.

Mr. Florence said he did not give any alarm and did not hear Cole give any.

'What damage was done to your car?"

"The right hand rear wheel was completely broken, the right front wheel was broken, and the body was broken in at the left front side where he was sitting," he said.

Plaintiff said he was uninjured.

Mr. Florence said he paid $218.60 to the Universal Garage, Charlotte Street, for repairs.

Mr. Cole Testifies.

Archie R. Cole, general merchant, of Bailieboro, in his defence, said he and Harry Clements were returning to Bailieboro with 500 or 600 pounds of salt in the Ford runabout which he had converted into a truck by putting a box on it.

Mr. Cole said he was travelling west on the north side of Charlotte Street. He blew his horn as he approached the corner, he said. He saw plaintiff's car when he passed the corner. He stopped his car just east of aPrk street in the centre of the car tracks. It wasn't up to the manhole, witness said.

Cole stated his car was just at a standstill when he was struck by Florence.

Cole said he was going about 8 or 10 miles an hour. His engine stalled, said witness. The cost to repair his car, Cole said, was $30.00 or $40.00 an hour. Beyond judging, Florence was going 25 miles an hour.

Cole could give no opinion of the speed of the other car. If Florence had gone straight south he could have avoided the collision, said Cole.

Defendant did not go past the middle line of Park Street.

Explaining to Mr. Hall how Florence's car jumped 42 feet to the curb, Cole said it was because of the deflection when his front wheel struck Florence's running board.

"How do you account for his door being broken in?"

"My fender would do it."

Mr. Hall questioned how various damage took place to Florence's car.

"Don't you think a more reasonable explanation of that is that you yourself were going at a high rate of speed, and struck Florence?"

"No, I do not."

The speed at which Florence was going, Cole said, was responsible for him slewing over to the curb, a distance of 40 feet.

Cole said he could stop his car when going 8 or 10 miles an hour, in 10 feet. He replied to a question by Mr. Hall that he was not in a hurry when going home, but he had been hurrying about town.

Harry Clements, living near Bailieboro, the other occupant in Cole's car, said he thought they were going about 8 miles an hour.

Mr. Clements said the car slowed up to allow a lady to cross the street. Florenie's car cut the corner and struck them just when Cole's car was stopping.

Clements' evidence concluded the defence. It was then about six o'clock.

His Honour adjourned the case till 10 a.m. on Wednesday.

At his suggestion the scene of the accident will be visited by the jury at 9.15 a.m. P. C. Thomas and P. C. Thompson will escort the jury.

Judge Huycke warned the jury against discussing the case, even amongst themselves.

SENATOR DUPLATIER CAUSES SENSATION IN FRENCH SENATE WHEN HE PUTS INTERPELLATION BEFORE IT.

WON'T SET A DATE

PARIS, June 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Senator Duplantier put before the French Senate yesterday an interpellationof "what measures the French government intends to take concerning the execution of the Treaty of Versailles relative to bringmg William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, to trial for his crimes against humanity."

The Senator asked that a date for discussion of his interpellation be fixed immediately. Amid tremendous tumult, Alexandre Berard, who was presiding over the Senate owing to the illness of Leon Bourgeois, the Senate's President, ruled that the date for interpellation could not be decided until Premier Briand, who did not attend the session, was present. Senator Duplantier's demand for interpellation caused a sensation in the Senate.

IRISH DEBATE CONCLUDED IN WILD UPROAR

LABOR MEMBER GIVES THREE CHEERS FOR ASSASSINS AND HOUSE TURNS HIM OUT WITH DIFFICULTY.

SHOUTED ASSASSINS

LONDON, June 15.— (Canadain Press.)— A scene occurred in the Commons last night. Joseph Devlin, who represents the Falls division of Belfast, voted adjournment to call attention to the lack of discipline of the Crown forces in Belfast Sunday morning. Mr. Devlin described what he termed "the cowardly crimes of innocent men," and accused the government of setting up tribunals to cloak these crimes. He charged that the Crown forces, acting in concert by pre-arranged plans, were dragging men from their homes and assassinating them, and he further charged that the government was doing nothing to bring the assassins to justice.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, was replying, repudiating Mr. Devlin's accusations after a somewhat stormy debate, when John Jones, Labor member, shouted "three cheers for the assassins."

This provoked an uproar, Coalition members crying "turn him out." Mr. Jones, refusing to withdraw his expressions, was ordered to withdraw. As he left the House he shouted, "Good-night all you assassins."

HUNGARIAN WOMEN AFTER SISTERS IN SHORT SKIRTS.

VIENNA, June 14.—The union of Hungarian Women's Associations, at a meeting in Budapest recently, resolved to urge upon the government the necessity of taking rigorous steps against short skirts. It was proposed to equip all policemen with sticks with a metric scale, in order to measure the distance of the skirts from the ground, if necessary. In all cases where this distance is found to be more than 25 centimeters (10 inches) the wearer of the skirt shall be prosecuted for having sinned against the public decency. Men who are found in the society of such women will be boycotted.

Equipping the Blind to Earn a Living

IN the past few years much has been done to turn the pathetic idleness of our Canadian blind to a real and tangible usefulness.

Broomshops for Canadian Blind Men have been established and are operating in Halifax, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg. They are all working to capacity, filled with busy, and sincerely cheerful stone-blind workmen.

Some were blinded by accident or sickness, a few were blinded in the war, while others have been blind from birth. These men are earning their livelihood through their own honest effort. They have realized the dignity of self-support. They take great pride in the fact that they are an asset, not a liability, to the nation.

This noble work must be broadened out. It is within your power to help equip the blind of Canada to earn a living. Subscribe liberally to the fund of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and let us build up on a foundation well-laid.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

The Examiner is glad to commend to the people the appeal on behalf of the blinded soldiers and other blinded people and to endorse the work of the Canadian National Institute for the blind. If there was ever a cause that merited support it seems to us that the work on behalf of the blind is such a cause.

The work of the Institute is not here to-day and gone to-morrow, but it is of such a permanent nature that the foundation now laid, or being established, will be for the lasting benefit of those for whom it is intended. Whatever efforts are made at the moment it may be taken as a fact that those who come after will have to make further sustained efforts to maintain the prestige. The policy laid down by the Directors of the Institute necessitates a revenue which will require constant energy to produce. Every dollar finds its 100 cents worth of goods in the splendid results as shown by the progress made by the Blinded Soldiers as well as that made by the Blind and the success attained, proving how much the value any help from subscribers, donors, or monthly authority is to the Institute.

THE WATER RATES.

A meeting of the ratepayers has been called for Friday evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall in order to investigate the heavy increase in the local water rates and possibly to decide upon a strong protest against the new charges, which are 80 per cent. above the present rates. The public has received very little enlightenment as to the reasons for the big increase. It was understood, of course, that the erection of a filtration plant would result in higher charges, bu no one was prepared to hear of an eighty per cent. jump. Under the circumstances it is not to wondered at that many citizens are at a loss to understand the situation or that it is has been considered necessary to hold a public meeting to discuss the matter. The commissioners should see that Friday's meeting is informed of all the circumstances and is put in possession of the facts upon which the decision to increase the rates 80 per cent. were based. There would be nothing lost in laying all the necessary information before the citizens who have a right to know why their water bills are to be nearly twice as big as before.

ABOUT BETTING.

Hon. W. E. Raney's campaign against race track gambling would be much more effective if the department of which he is the head would show more activity in running down the illegal betting that is going on in the province. By Federal legislation, betting by means of the par mutuel machines is permitted at licensed tracks, and Mr. Raney is concentrating all his fire on this authorized gambling. But the handbook men who operate in every part of the province, and against whom the Attorney-General's Department should be waging an increased warfare, seem to be uniformly successful in avoiding detection. All the betting is not done at the track. In the cities of Ontario, and in many of the larger towns, there are handbook men who take bets on the races at the different tracks and the total of this illegal gambling must run into many thousands of dollars. A Provincial Department that can show so little success in dealing with this evil might better be occupied with dealing with what comes under its own jurisdiction than with attempting to influence the Federal government to wipe out another form of gambling.

A TIMELY REMINDER.

His Honour Judge Huycke's remarks at the opening of the County Court yesterday afternoon in connection with the crime wave were timely and to the point. It is an injustice, as His Honour pointed out, to the record of Canada's overseas forces to atempt to lay the blame for the prevalence of so much crime upon the returned soldiers. All the veterans are not perfect, of course; they have the same failings as any other body of citizens, and among them are men who have been tempted to embark upon a course of crime. But while this is so it seems most unfair to the general body of ex-service men to attribute the present outbreak of robberies and hold-ups to those who fought for Canada overseas. There is too great a tendency to advertise the veteran who does get into trouble; the newspapers generally are perhaps to blame for that condition of affairs, because it seems the prevaling custom, if a prisoner happens to be a returned soldier, to call attention to that fact. Judge Huycke's defence of the ex-service men is, therefore, of importance, because the mind of the public should be disabused of the idea that the veterans are responsible for the crime wave. The causes given by His Honour are much nearer the mark, but at all events there is no logical reason for the attempt to foist the blame upon the shoulders of the laddies who fought and won.

GOLF'S GLORIOUS UNCERTAINTY.

"Is theree any other game in the world—a real game, that is—where 'form' is so incalculable as in golf?" says the Manchester Guardian, referring to the collapse of the American players at Hoylake. "The royal and ancient game" is certainly not only an infallible test of the patience of the players—and tell it not in Gath—the "foozling" of a ball or the miscalculation of a putt has, it is said, caused more than one wearer of the "cloth" to give vent to expressions not found in the ritual of any known denomination. "What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world if he lose the last hole?" is a reflection which a depressed clerical player is alleged to have made.

Undoubtedly golf is a fascinating form of recreation, but "this cold game of meadow billiards," as a German paper described it during the war, is full of glorious uncertainties. The play in last week's ladies' championship on the local course demonstrated this, and if betting were by law transferred from the race track to the golf course, it would soon die a natural death, because to foretell the results of a match is, as a rule, far more baffling than spotting the winner where horses are the contestants.

Probably some of the International Rotarians from this side of the Atlantic who are now convening in Edinburgh may find time to visit the splendid golf course in the historic town of St. Andrew's. The Scot, as a rule, takes his golf seriously, and old and young, rich and poor, mechanic and millionaire, have a go at the game wherever there is a golf links to be found. All around the coast, where the green turf borders the sea, and the heather and whins scent the air, and the skylark sings blithely overhead, there the player derives health and vigor and patience and self-control from the grand old game, providing he goes about it in the right way.

In Canada, unfortunately, this game is at present too much the privilege of the few, but there is no reason why it should continue to be so. Surely we are democratic enough to find ways and means for providing golf courses in the vicinity of every town where all and sundry may enjoy the game, if so disposed. True it may not be "caviare to the general" for a time, and for high-strung excitement and genuine thrills does not compare with baseball, but are we not overdoing the thrill business these days? Besides, in baseball the players are few, while the lookers-on are many. In golf it is just the opposite. Many can play the game on the same course at the same time, and thus get all the good that this form of exercise affords.—London Advertizer.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A Chicago despatch, referring to the number of chorus girls at present unemployed, characterises them as "that army of curved and dimpled pulchritude." Evidently the author of that despatch has done time and the public as a musical comedy press agent.

"Johnny did you see pape?"

"Yes, dearie; I seen him."

"And did he agree to let me marry you?"

"I guess so, Maudie; he's unreasonable. He made a condition. He said he'd see me hanged first."

"Exactly," retorted the lecturer, "and if one lies a great deal, one's standing is lost completly."

"And what a little beauty he is, to be sure," replied Johnson, inadvertently, as he tenderly stroked Dido's head and pulled his ears.

GOOD OLD JOHN ROBINSON'S BIG CIRCUS TO-MORROW

"Ain't it great, fellas? Circus comin' to-morrow."

And you can bet it is. And it's the good old John Robinson Circus at that—which means, according to those who have seen it, three rings and two stages chock full of everything that goes to make up a rapid-fire, quick action, up-to-date, regular, top-notch circus, with all that goes with it, from peanuts to clowns.

The show will arrive during the early hours of the morning, and as rapidly as possible the horses, and the elephants, and the camels, and the animal cages, and the band wagons, and all the other paraphernalia of the big show will be unloaded and hurried out to the grounds, where the tented city will be erected and preparations made for the long preliminary street parade and the two huge and lively performances that are scheduled to follow.

The first performance takes place at two o'clock, and the final one at eight p.m. The doors will be opened an hour earlier to afford visitors an opportunity to visit the circus zoo and to hear the band concert by the John Robinson Concert Band. The performance will open with a new and attractive spectacle, which is picturesquely impressive. The kalaidoscopic coloring and beauty of costuming which will be on view in the pageant makes the display a positive delight to the eye, it is said.

The three-ring, two-stage arenic performance that follows, offers, it is declared, a constant succession of circus thrills, interspersed with wholesome comedy by a big company of happy-go-lucky clowns. There are acrobats and gymnasts and aerialists in generous numbers; there are twenty-five cleverly trained elephants and other acting animals; there are bucking bronchos and whirlwind riders; there is posturing in the rings and on the stages, with a great company of aerial butterfly dancers and noted troupes of flying folks, and perilous feats on swaying wires, and a children's circus, with almost human monkeys and dogs and ponies, and baby elephants to set the hearts of the kiddies fluttering, and scores of other displays.

The parade is scheduled to leave the grounds at 10.00 sharp.

LOVE!

REALIZATION.

Chapter 76.

A few hours afterward I awoke and lay happily looking out at the sunshine and peacefulness of a beautiful day. Only a very few hours had elapsed since Leonard and I had finally parted and tried to get a little and much needed sleep. Yet I felt refreshed and invigorated. It was the first morning in many long, weary months that I had not opened my eyes to pain and sadness. What did physical fatigue compare to a deadly, heartbreaking soul exhaustion!

I threw the past from me like a black cloak and sprang out of bed with renewed spirit. It was already past 8 o'clock and I knew Leonard would miss his train. But what did trains matter after all? He needed the rest and comfort of undisturbed sleep.

I called him at last, and as I hurried downstairs to see that everything was right for breakfast, I wondered what were the thoughts and feelings Leonard had opened his eyes to this morning. I prayed that his mental release had been as happy and complete as mine.

When he came down and stood a moment looking across the table at me before he took his place opposite to mine, I knew that the pain had not quite all gone, but the wan look of hidden suffering had gone and his gaze was clear and steady. After I would not want him to slip back too easily.

A sweet self-conscious embarrasment hung over us. Leonard was shy as a bashful boy, and I loved it in him. It was as if we had slipped back four years to those first wonderful days when every thought and feeling were beautifully sensitized. It wasn't thru words that we spoke this morning, but through the touch of our souls.

I followed Leonard out into the hall and sttood silently while he went to the hall closet to get his hat.

I tried to speak, but I could not.

He laid his hat on the table and took me in his strong arms, pressing his lips against mine and then releasing me a little and touching my forehead ever so slightly with a kiss.

The tears rushed to my eyes, but I forced them back. He needed my smile, and I gave it to him honestly and with all the love I bore him in my eyes.

"Noreen—Noreen!" he breathed, holding me off at arms length and reading what he longed to see in the expression of my face.

"Leonard—oh Leonard," I cried happily, burying my face in his shoulder and, reaching up with loving arms about his neck.

I did not have to ask if he would be home early and to dinner, I knew—knew with every bit of me. And I stood and watched him as he went down the long, tree l ned street and knew that today my love went safely with him and would bring him back surely and quickly to me.

Happiness was so much better and easier to live with and the day sped by on golden wings. I did not feel tired. I never thought for a minute of the scant three hours sleep that I had had the night before. I thought only of my happiness. My love had been brought back to me at last. Love gives the strength and vitality of Hercules.

I hurried down town, eager to do my shopping. I wondered if Mrs. Russell was watching me from her window and if she would notice the new vigor and spring in my step. Perhaps she could read the love and joy emblazoned on my countenance! I felt that every one must see it. I did not want to see her or have her come near to me, but I wouldn't mind if she were perhaps watching me from the window.

At the florist's I bought a half dozen red roses. They were horribly expensive, but nothing would quite do for the table tonight like blood red roses. They were symbolic of what would always be between us now—always and forever.

At the butcher's I hesitated a minute and wondered what would be the best thing for dinner. Then my mind rushed back to that dear, wonderful night when we had our anniversary dinner—that night just before other terrible things had happened.

"I want a wonderful thick, fine steak," I told the butcher smilingly. "And I must try to get sweet potatoes," I said to myself reminiscently.

Tomorrow—Introspection.

REAL THINGS

By George Matthew Adams

The people who make us unhappy, the things that make us discontented and out of tune with everybody and everything, are in their last analysis unreal.

The real man is he who is able to look you in the face instantly and give honest reply—not the one who has to run around a block or two or three times and consult a dictionary, or ask Bill or Pete.

And the real things in life are the spontaneous, bubbling things that give joy and gladness at first touch.

Fame, money, great attainment—all are very unreal and vapory unless a MAN stands behind them.

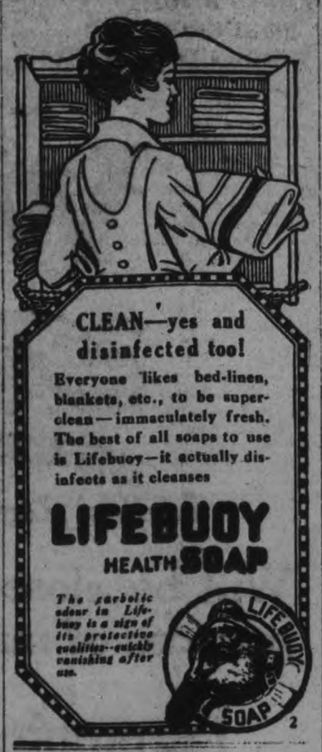
If many people were paraded at their actual accumulation, you would see igns all over them, each one reading the same: Unreal—unreal—unreal!

Wouldn't it be wonderful if such people left their signs at home? But I guess we all forget more or less.

The real things are few and primary. The beauties of nature and the loveliness IN human nature. And there are enough of the real things to go al around—ev n should there be a hundred billion more people added to the world—tomorrow!

The main thing is just to keep the real things in circulation. That's all.

Let's try! First—by being real ourselves.



CLEAN—yes and disinfected too!

Everyone likes bed-linen, blankets, etc., to be super-clean—immaculately fresh. The best of all soaps to use is Lifebuoy—it actually disinfects as it cleanses

TORONTO WOMAN FORCED TO QUIT

MRS. DALLIDAY WAS IN WRETCHED HEALTH BEFORE TAKING TANLAC—BACK AT WORK NOW.

"When I started on Tanlac I was in wretched health; but now I am a well and happy woman," said Mrs. C. Dalliday, 57 Hastings avenue, Toronto, Ont., a well known employee of the Regalia Co.

"For two years or more I was in a general rundown condition. I had no appetite and what I ate disagreed with me caused gas which pressed around my heart, so that I could hardly get my breath. I was so nervous that the least unusual noise almost drove me frantic. I hardly ever got a good night's sleep and in the mornings felt dull and all tired out. Finally I had a nervous breakdown and had to give up my work and stay at home. I was so weak that I could not even do a little work around the house.

"Other medicines only seemed to make me worse, but Tanlac helped me right from the start, and by the time that I had finished my first bottle I was so much better I went to work again. I never felt better in my life than I do now. My appetite is splendid; everything that I eat agrees with me perfectly; my nerves are steady, and I sleep like a child every night, and wake up in the mornings feeling thoroughly rested and refreshed. Tanlac is my 'stand-by' from now on."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and leading druggists.

MANY A DREAMER HAS BEEN JOKED BY FRIENDS FOR LIVING IN THE CLOUDS

But Those Who Deride the D eamer, Are Deriding Progress!—Says Fern Howard.

Most people believe that building air is merely a time-wasting pursuit; that they have no part to play in life; hat they h ve nothing whatever to do with the material affairs of our everyday existence. When the truth of the matter is that there never was a new invention, a splendid dea, that was not directly the result of a dream.

Not long ago I heard a man who is a great success, make the statement that he owed everything he had in the world to the fact that he had spent most of his early youth in building air castles.

"The reason that I am where I am today," declares this man, "is because I refused to believe that dreams are nothing but stuff and nonsense—that they were the most unimportant things on earth. I went on dreaming and trying to put foundation under my dreams. I imagined myself a power in the world. I saw visions of great achievement. And finally I originated the idea of a business enterprise that would be practical and would at the same time be of benefit to humanity.

I manufacture an article that is substantial and of use in the home. And all this is the result of what my family termed 'moonshine.' It is the man of imagination who makes the world revolve. He is the originator of every bit of progress in civilized life. Nothing has even been accomplished without him. I thank God for my imagination. Without it, I would have been a miserable failure."

It was because Edison dreamed of a better way of lighting the world, that he was enabled to flood it with a blaze of electric light. It was because Morse dreamed of a better means of communication, that w have the telegraph.

Never before in the history of the world has the dreamer, the man of imagination, been in such demand as he is today. The problem of forming a world democracy is to be solved. There are improvements to be made in very walk of life. And it is the men and women who are capable of dreaming wonderful dreams, who will make all this come to pass.

To all who are inclined to scoff at dreams, I would say that the greatest inventions are, "Such stuff as dreams are made of." A little, wee bit of a dream will sometimes develop into a wonderful reality. And so if you are miserably unhappy, or wretchedly disappointed, begin today to build air castles. Then put foundations under them, and you will find that life is worth living. And that visions are not as unsubstantial as they seem.

THE VALUE OF DAILY PRODUCTS

By THE COUNTRYMAN.

The home gardener is advised not to gauge his results by the dollar standard, but by the superior quality of the food which he produces, in addition to which there are such credits as exercise, pastime and satisfaction.

The beet is one of the richest of the root crops in sugar and more of a food than most people realize. Usually they have the best flavor when they do not exceed two inches in diameter, and when they have been made to make a rapid growth. Very large beets and those which have made a slow growth are likely to be fibrous—woody, and not so sweet. Make a number of sowings, about two weeks apart, so that you can enjoy the beets while they are young and tender. They can be planted uhtil the first week in August.

Oriental Plant.

Okra is a subtropical plant and quite ornamental, having a heavy spreading foliage. Though cultivated as an annual, it is really a perennial, surviving year after year in locations where there is no killing frost. It has been most popular in the Southern states, but is now coming into favor in the north, where it may be started outdoors the last of May. Sow in rows two or three feet apart, to allow for the luxuriant foliage; plant the seed one inch deep; thin out the seedlings to 18 inches apart in the row.

The seed pods of okra are used in soups and stews, while the pods are young and tender; later they are liced and hung up to dry, for winter use. The easiest method is to string them on a thin cord.

Reset Seedlings.

Beets transplant readily, therefore in thinning them out, to about three inches in the rows, th extra seedlings may be set out in unfilled or "patchy" places, or a new started. Be careful not to in roots, and shade and water t nsplanted seedlings for a few days.

Swiss chard is a most prolific plant; it can be transplanted successfully; feed the surplus leaves to the chickens; they will eat it with the greatest relish.

In setting out plants in dry weather, if they do not carry a ball of earth with the roots, it is a good plan to "puddle" the roots. Mix some soil and water in a bucket, dip the roots of the plants in this mixture as soon as the palnts are taken up; keep them in the puddle until they are set out, losing as little time as possible in all of the operations. Always firm the soil around the roots of a plant, and don't set them so deep that the heart or crown is covered.

Shade Plants.

The plants are almost sure to wilt. Shading them with baskets or paper cones for a day or two helps during extremely hot weather. If you water them, do so after the sun goes down, and give them enough water to soak through to the lowest roots. Surrounding the plants with a dust mulch will conserve this moisture.

Spinach is not a success when started in warm weather; it goes quickly to seed. It is an early spring crop, when the plants have a cool soil and abundant moisture. In the late summer it may be planted again for a full crop. It will grow in a great variety of oils, but thrives best on rich land with plenty of moisture. Applications of nitrate of soda are beneficial, in addition to the regular manuring of the soil.

Following is a list of herbs, both annuals and perennials, which can be used as decorative borders to the garden: Anise, basil, borage, caraway, catnip, coriander, horehound, lavender, rosemary, sage, summer savory, sweet marjoram, tansy and thyme.

Some people never stop to count the cost, realizing that they haven't the price, anyway.

Some men are like some horses, they will stand without hitching, but tie them to a post and they will proceed to knick over the traces.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything or go any place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it, and it surely put new life into me. Now I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."—Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 272 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

TRADE AGREEMENT

RIGA, June 15.—(Associated Press).—The text of the trade agreement recently negotiated between the German Government and the Russian Socialist Federative Soviet Republic has been made public here. Its provisions are significant in view of the fact that this is one of a series of similar agreements already negotiated or in process of negotiation between Russia and other nations, such as Great Britain, Italy and Czecho-Slovaka.

One of the most interesting provisions of the Russo-German agreement is that the representatives of both Germany and Russia are bound by it to refrain from every form of agitation or propaganda against the Government or the State institutions of the country in which the delegation is located.

These delegations will be composed, under the new agreement, to missions already existing for the purpose of looking after the affairs of war prisoners in both countries. The scope of the activities of these delegations is extended so that they are authorized to protect the interests of citizens of both Germany and Russia. The membership of the missions is increased by attaching to them additional delegates whose duties are to develop economic relations.

It is expressly provided that the representation of the Russian Republic in Germany "must be regarded as the only representation of the Russian State in Germany."

The respective missions are to be authorized to perform the work usually done by consuls, such as the issuance of passports.

The Russian Government agees to allow persons who were formerly German subjects but who have lost that nationality to leave Russia and to take with them their wives and children, provided they give proof of an intention to settle down in Germany.

Both Governments guarantee freedom of traffic to ships according to the stipulations of international law. Both promise to take steps to resume communication between the two countries by post, telegraph and wireless.

The agreement is described in its text as "provisional" intended to serve as a basis of economic relations pending the conclusion of a future trade treaty.

At Sunday School, little June had just repeated the text, "Love one another."

"Do you know what that means, June?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," answered the small miss. "It means that I must love you and you must love me; I'm one, and you're another."

EXCELLENT BANKING LAWS OF CANADA

"Thanks to our admirable Bank Act, our banks have been able to meet the vicissitudes of the times and to keep in a strong cash position. Dnring the war we gave our customers all advances applied for for legitimate purposes, and during the whole period the rate of interest to borrowers was maintained at 6 per cent., with the exception of trifling loans in isolated districts.

"The nationalization of railways has added and will continue to add large sums to the public debt, but I feel that the pressure of public opinion will sooner or later bring out normal conditions more uickly than ownership.

"The finances of the Dominion during the war and since, have been most capably managed. All unnecessary expenditure has been cut, and if this policy is continued, as I have confidence it will be, I am sanguine that with Canada's unlimited natural resources we shall return to normal conditions dore quickly than many other countries which, through participation in the war, are now burdened with heavy debts."

PARK STREET MOONLIGHT HAD LARGE ATTENDANCE

The moonlight excursion under the auspices of the Park street Baptist Sunday school last night was a success in every way. While the evening was a little cool, yet there was a large crowd present. The S. S. orchestra, under the able leadership of Mr. Wm. Ford, provided music for the entire evening, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Much credit is due to those in charge for the evening's enjoyment, some of those present remarking that it was the best moonlight they ever attended.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 15.— (Canadian Press.)—Oil shares registered sensational declines in early trading on the Stock Exchange to-day as a result of the latest developments in the Mexican Oil situation. A block of two thousand shares of Mexican Petroleum changed hands at the opening at 120, representing an overnight lossof seven points. Pan-American Petroleum, which controls Mexican Petroleum, opened at a moderate loss, but this was immediately extended to three points. Royal Dutch, General Asphalt and Atlantic Gulf featured the other reactionary shares of that group.

Heaviness marked the early dealings in Baldwin Locomotive, Pullman, American Sugar, Crucible Steel and numerous other industrials and specialties. Rails were only moderately changed but mainly downward.

Oils overshadowed the market during the active forenoon. Mexican Petroleum made an extreme loss of 7 3-8 points, and Pan-American "B" fell 5 1-2. Most other oils increased their early losses, especially Atlantic Gulf Common and Preferred and Royal Dutch.

Steels, equipments, sugar, and numerous miscellaneous issues continued to lose ground. The weakness was most pronounced in Crucible Steel, Baldwin and American Locomotives. American Sugar, United States Rubber, Sumatra Tobacco and International Paper. These and sundry shares were two to four points down. Virginia, Carolina Chemical Preferred lost 8 points.

Rallies of one to three points occurred before the noon short covering.

The declaration of the regular dividends by the New York Central and several subsidiaries and the strength of Hill shares effected substantial rallies in the early afternoon. Great Northern and Northern Pacific rose 1⅝ and 1 3-4 points respectively, and Mexican Petroleum recovered almost four points.

TORONTO, June 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Cattle receipts medium, trade slow. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $8.50 to $9.00. Butcher steers, choice, $8.50 to $9.00. Butcher cows, medium, $4.00 to $6.00. Calves, $10 to $10.50. Lambs, $11.00 to $14.00. Hogs, selects, $10.00 to $10.50.

STRAWBERRIES DOWN.

TORONTO, June 15.—(Canadian Press.) — Receipts of strawberries were very heavy to-day, at most equalling yesterday's record. Early prices were from five to eight cents under the prevailing quotations yesterday noon. In fair-size d lots, wholesalers were getting 8 to 9 cents with small lots ranging up to 12 cents per box.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 15. Canadian Press.—Fresh breaks in the price of wheat accounted for general selling to-day on the part of commission houses.

Much of the bearish sentiment prevailing was ascribed to the fact that the Illinois growers were offering wheat freely for shipment in time to be delivered here on July contracts. Besides export cattle appeared to be lacking. Initial quotations which ranged from 1-4 to 3 3-4 lower were followed by material further setbacks.

Favorable weather and large stocks on hand had a bearish effect on corn. After opening 1-4 off to 1-8 up the market sagged all around. Oats were depressed in line with other grains, starting to slide to 3-8 lower and then continuing to descend. Higher prices on hogs tended to strengthen provisions.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 15. — Canadian Press.—Sterling Exchange strong; demand $3.77 3-4; Canadian dollars, 10 7-8 per cent. discount.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 15.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was very quiet on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, Toronto Railway being the only stock in which transactions were at all heavy. Toronto Railway moved up one point to 77, while Bell Telephone was fractionally higher at 109. Canada S. S. sold at 47½, ex-dividend, and General Electric 108, ex-dividend.

SUSPENSIONS ARE REDUCED

The penalties inflicted upon Calder and McMillan, of the Caledonians, as a result of their actions in the final Gordon Cup-tie with the C.G.E. were reduced at a meeting of the Executive Monday night. McMillan, who had been suspended uptil the 30th of June, had his suspension changed to read two weeks from the date of the Cup final, while Calder, who was at first out until the end of the year, will now be eligible at the end of the present schedule.

JOTTINGS ABROAD

Students of the English School of Archaeology have discovered at Mykalosson, in the Greek Province of Boeotia, 35 tombs dating from the fifth and sixth centuries before Christ.

The State Council of Prussia, composed of representatives elected by the various Provinces, held its opening meeting in Berlin, thus completing the organization of the State Legislatures provided for in the new Prussian Diet. Dr. Adenauer, of Cologne, was elected President.

An attempt to form an Australian Legion of young men who will carry into Federal politics high ideals of citizenship has met with success, and it is probable that a new Federal party may arise from the movement.

Mexican aviators patrolling the Rio Grande are declared to be doing good work in the apprehension of smugglers. Most of their captures have been persons bringing tobacco into Mexico.

The Prussian State budget for 1921 was balanced at 16,766,716,736 marks, showing a deficit of 2,300,000,000 marks, which is to be covered by new taxes.

While all men may be born equal but few of them die that way.

It never pays to sow wild oats, young man; there is no market for them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Sir: There is a demand for economy in the public service of Canada, and I have just read from the Globe's Ottawa correspondent that nine hundred Civil Servants are to be retired from the post office and customs departments, making a saving of about $2,000,000 per annum.

This might be followed by reducing Parliamentary representation.

An editorial in a recent issue of the Globe, under the heading "Too Many Provinces," said that Canada is overgoverned, referring more particularly to British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces. Many people will be surprised to learn that we have in Canada between 800 and 900 Members of Parliament, counting the Legislatures and the Federal Parliament. While the Province of Ontario should be best able to bear the expense, we could be as well served by half the number of members. In nearly every county we have four members.—who will give any good reason why we could not be as well represented by two members—one for each Parliament? And take the cities, Toronto for instance could be quite as efficiently represented by half the number of members. The country is in dire need of economy in the public service, and if civil servants to the number of nine hundred are to be retired from two Government departments, could not a much larger sum be saved as above indicated—even if we have to amend the B.N.A. Act?

Yours, etc.,
J. F. LILLICRAP.

The semi-annual meeting of District L. O. L. No. 1, West Peterborough, was held at the hall of L.O.L. No. 2440, North Monaghan, Tuesday evening.

At the close of the meeting Bro. Chas. Kitney, who has been treasurer for 21 years, was called to the platform, and Bro. J. J. "Dear Sir and Brother,—This being the semi-annual meeting of L.O.L. An Interesting SALE OF LACE

Interesting Because of the Fineness of the Goods and the Lowness of the Prices

The other day we discovered it was a long time since we held a Sale of Lace. Right then we decided to prepare a sale and make it a real one, with all manner of kinds, prices and widths.

We went through our stocks and found some odd lots, others we shaved the prices down—to less than cost in some instances—and while we were in the midst of our preparations along came some shipments that we purchased a long time ago at very special prices. These shipments have greatly augmented our sale assortments and make this A SALE OF GREAT MAGNITUDE.

A FINE NEW LOT

Val Laces and Insertions to Match, 10c Yard

Val Laces with Insertions to match are very scarce for immediate shipment. We were fortunate to procure these.

The regular prices run from 12½c in the narrow width to 25c in the 2-inch width. The reduction is considerable for Lace of this quality.

1000 Yards of Val Lace Insertions, 3 Yards for 10c

They vary in width from ½ inch to 1¼ inches. If we had the edgings to match them the price would be 5c yard.

1,200 Yards Val and Torchon Insertions, 5c Yard

This lot is made up of Insertions and a few Beadings that run in width from the very narrowest to those that are two inches wide. There are some very fine pieces that formerly sold at 20c yard. Both white and black.

25c, 35c, 48c and 50c Torchon Laces, 19c

These are English Laces and run in width from one to four inches and can be prettily used in camisoles. Many charming floral and conventional patterns.

75c, 85c, 90c and $1 Net Laces, 39c Yd.

Of all the splendid values in this Sale these are the best. They are well worth their former prices, for they are fine and prettily patterned. Widths from 4½ to 6 inches. Obtainable in white, cream, ecru and black.

15c to 25c Guipure Edgings, 10c Yard

Most of these come from Switzerland and are consistent with the high reputation of that country for good and fine laces. They have just arrived, and most of them are still bound with tissue paper and tape—just as they were packed by the Swiss workmen.

The value is so good that a wholesale merchant whom we showed them to remarked: "The firm that sold you those at that price must be hard up for money." You can have white, cream or black.

15c Shadow Laces, 2 Yards for 15c

We have four pieces. They are three inches wide and their color is white. It is a very fine quality and the patterns are neat and filmy.

85c, $1, $1.25 and $1.75 Heavy Lace Insertion, 59c Yard

Lace of this description is greatly used for trimming organdie dresses, and we sell a lot of it to trim camisoles. The widths are from 2 to 5 inches. There is white, cream, ecru and black.

Two Groups of Silk Torchon Laces

We have a few pieces of these Hand-made Silk Torchons. They come from the Isle of Malta where the inhabitants excel in the manufacture of lace of this kind. The color is a deep cream or natural.

35c to 50c qualities, yard .....27c $1.00 and $1.10 qualities, yard 59c

WORKING WOMEN TO TAKE SUMMER COURSE; IS AN EXPERIMENT WITHOUT PRECEDENT

TWO MONTHS' SUMMER COLLEGE COURSE OPENED AT BRYN MAWR COLLEGE TO-DAY WITH MANY APPLICANTS FOR SEVENTY ENTRIES.

BRYN MAWR, Pa., June 15.—(Associated Press).—A group of women workers in industry, representing many States, gathered at Bryn Mawr College yesterday for the opening to-day of an educational experiment without precedent in America—a two months' summer college course for working women.

Scholarships covering tuition, board, rooms, everything but incidental personal expenses, such as laundry, had been provided for these young women by trades unions or through working girls' clubs. The college has assembled a corps of instructors from colleges and universities throughout the east and middle west to help train these young women along broad and constructive lines so that they may exercise an increasing influence in the social and industral world.

Only 70 students could be accepted and it was a difficult task for the Joint Administrative Committee, representing the college and women workers in industry, to select them from the many applications. They were chosen because of character and ability from among those who had shown a natural aptitude for leadership.

Subjects offered include English—both written and spoken—public speaking, literature, history, economics, government, labor movements and problems, industrial organization, elementary law, physiology and hygiene, community life, the origin and evolution of the earth and of life, general psychology and appreciation of art.

Lectures and discussions will fill the morning hours and in the afternoons there will be two hours of conferences and preparations. The remainder of the day will be filled with various college activities—field athletics, training in the gymnasium and dancing on its roof, plays and entertainments. The college library will offer a cool summer retreat for the more studiously inclined.

A group of Bryn Mawr alumni will live in the same dormitory with the new students and share their athletic and social activities.

New York is represented by the largest number of students, with Massachusetts and New Jersey coming next. Others were divided in small groups—sometimes only one to a State—representing Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Kansas, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina, District of Columbia, George and California.

Trades represented include weavers, sewing machine operators, sheet and pillow case workers, shirt and collar makers, cap makers, milliners and trimmers, clothing makers of various sorts, hosiery and knit goods makers, laundry workers, cigar box makers, bindery workers, printers and proof readers, silk workers, cordage workers, overall makers, electric workers, paraffine workers, telephone operators and soap makers.

MARTIAL MILLENNIUM SEEN LIGHT MATTER.

Expert Views Psychological Illumination Divorce Enemy.

CHICAGO, June 15.—The day of the old maid has ended. Leap year is going to be an every night event after this. Cobwebs over the doors of the divorce courts. All husbands in love with their wives.

This was the romantic rainbow promised by Dr. M. Luckiesh, authority on scientific lighting and coloring, director of applied science at the Nela Research Laboratories in Cleveland.

"It's all a matter of psychological illumination," said Dr. Luckiesh. "A tongue-tied suitor, an impatient maid—and then click—she turns on the caressing blue-white lights previously arranged in the lamp on the library table. It's all over but the wedding march.

"The young man succumbs to the mysticism of the artificial moonlight; he says things he could not unloosen under the ordinary harsh lights—and there you are.

"The lights and colors used in the ordinary American home, are—well, criminal. No wonder there are so many nagging wives, whimpering children, callous husbands.

"I venture to predict that, when housewives have their homes illuminated with satisfying light—instead of the usual irritating glare—that divorces will be reduced materially."

Dr. Luckiesh says that an ordinary electric lamp, given a delicate yellow tint, will give a candle light effect that is narcotic, restful and cozy.

VICE IN FRANCE DUE TO SPLEEN.

Baredom Induced By Fast Living.

PARIS, June 15.—The amazing prevalence of vice and crime in France since the war is due to a return to the fashionable mid-Victorian malady, "pleen"—cafard in French, boredom in English.

After five years of living from minute to minute at the top of our speed, during which we ran the gamut of emotions and back again, nothing new satisfies us. We go from simple pleasures to dangerous ones, from which the step is but a short one to vice.

We try to awaken our jaded senses in every imaginable way; our "pleasures" to-day were the crimes of yesterday; we drink; we dance, we "shimmy," we frequent resorts which are only permitted by the frantic toleration of the age—and at the end of the vicious circle we are back again where we were before; tired, apathetic, listless, unaroused.

The Napoleonic wars had an aftermath of the same sort. But it was nothing compared to the virulence of the disease of to-day. In the last century society shuddered, deliciously shocked by the names of Lord Byron, the Oscar Wilde, of Paul Verlaine, the French poet, yet society of to-day is composed of nothing but Byrons and Wildes and Verlaines and nobody thinks anything of it.

Morals a Thing Apart.

To be moral and Christian in these days is to be a thing apart.

If Lord Byron could come back to earth to-day and journey to a fashionable gathering in Paris he would be as shocked as that severe American, Anthony Comstock, was when a New York picture dealer dared to exhibit in his display windows a nude Chabas.

The mild distractions of 1914 no longer satisfy even our children. Sensation is rung on sensation, and still our appetite remains unappeased. Girls of sixteen in Paris do things our grandmothers would have been whipped out of town for doing, and their mothers look on—when they get the time from their own whirl of pleasure—and indulgently smile.

Decency Thrown Aside.

Caution, culture, decency—all are thrown to the winds. Nobody cares what the world may say because they know very well the world is doing as bad or worse. Society mothers who in 1914 would have perished at the thought, now take into their homes and introduce to their daughters men whose vice is not only written on their faces, but eloquent in their speech.

The round of existence has become a drunken merry-go-round of besotted pleasure. Tango palaces are filled and the hospitals are filling. Millions are no longer millions, but counted as sons. Love has flown from the world and been replaced by a ruthless, all-devouring passion.

The blood of our fathers ran at gentle rubbed-tired carriage speed, but ours courses through our veins at the rate of a fighting airplane.

The result of living at this terrific speed is that we pass too rapidly by the good things of life to notice them. We call it living, but we shall die before we really know life.

CLOSING GREAT COUNTRY HOMES.

Taxation Overtakes Capital in Landowning Classes of England.

LONDON, June 15.—Now we are in the rush of what used to be the season, it may be interesting to note the one topic that the people who used to hold the season are talking about. It is the approaching end of the great country house.

Castles and great houses are being shut up, (1) because the territorial owners can not afford to live in them; (2) because even if they would they can not let them. There are many famous instances. In most cases the great land owners are paying their income tax out of capital. House after house is being shut up because taxation has overtaken capital in the landowning classes.

The evacuation of the larger houses, of course, will materially change the whole face of English social life. The new people, with a few exceptions, are not seeking to buy estates, and most of the great houses that survive doubtless will pass into a new phase where they will have no connection with the country that surrounds them except, perhaps, in a sporting sense.

One sees in the next generation that the houses of the rich in the country will be much like the country houses of the rich in America—little islands, beautifully kept, in a countryside that only knows them as people who come and go in motors.

About the best way to induce a woman to keep a secret is to keep it to yourself.

Constipation

It is a disease-producing malady, and if not corrected may result in serious complications. In good health the bowels should move freely at least once every day, carrying away the waste products from the Blood and Liver. If this function fails or is irregular, the work of removing the poisons falls on the Skin and Kidneys, with the result of the latter organs becoming congested and clogged. The Blood becomes poisoned, Indigestion sets in, the Kidneys become deranged, and a severe if not fatal illness is brought on. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS correct this trouble by its action on the Liver, causing a healthy flow of Bile, and exerting a soothing and toning influence on the whole Intestinal Track.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up in three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00 per Box. For sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough.

FRENCH JUSTIFIED IN THEIR DEMANDS, BANKER DECLARES

Sir Vincent Meredith Gives His Views—Much Activity in France, He Says.

Conditions in Canada.

Arriving in New York on the S. S. Acquitania and later in Montreal from a business trip to France and England, Sir Vincent Meredith, Bart., expressed his views as follows:

"My visit to Paris and London was of such short duration and my time was so largely taken up with the bank's business abroad, that I hesitate to express any decided opinions of my own that are not based on personal observation regarding the general situation in England and on the continent," said Sir Vincent. "I made it a point, however, of getting in touch and discussing general conditions with those best informed, both in London and Paris. The information furnished me accorded with my own views, and, such being the case, I have less hesitation in giving expression to them.

"Before my arrival in Paris, I had come to the conclusion that the French demands on Germans were too exacting and probably too onerous to be met, but when I had an opportunity of seeing the wanton destruction in the manufacturing districts as well as in the fairest agricultural provinces of France, to say nothing of the enormous depletion of man power of the country, I felt that the French were justified in standing out for the fullest reparation.

"So far as I could learn, it was the feeling in France that with the German birth rate so much in excess of their own, so soon as the latter are in a position to do so, they will attack France again. The French desire apparently is to make Germany powerless to again engage in war for many years to come.

French Are At Work.

"The French peasants and population generally are working unsparingly, and are exercising their well-known thrift to repair the destruction of the war, and Frenchmen of all classes are practicing the utmost economy.

'It was most gratifying to find the rural districts of practically the whole of France, including the devastated areas, have been put under crop, with every prospect of reaping an abundant harvest.

"The French budget, as is well known, does not disclose a satisfactory condition of affairs financially. The French Government continues to borrow, apparently relying on payment of German indemnities. The taxes levied are not sufficient to balance their budget. In this connection the French Minister of Finance draws attention to the fact that the war disrupted their excellent organization for the collection of taxes, and it will take time to rehabilitate it.

"As I have said, the French people are spending little or no money, but Paris is crowded with foreigners, who appear to be well supplied with funds and are spending lavishly.

"I feel that the Bank of Montreal, in opening in Paris, has made a good move, and it is giving an excellent service, not only to the Canadian travelling public, but to our many friends resident in France."

Affairs In Canada.

While in London, Sir Vincent Meredith was interviewed by a number of newspaper representatives respecting trade and financial conditions in Canada; and from his reported remarks the following are extracted, mainly from The London Times:

"The financial position of Canada is sound, with general conditions not dissimilar from those in Great Britain, France and the United States. A number of merchants and manufacturers with us, as elsewhere, have been caught with heavy stocks, largely accumulated at former excessive prices, notwithstanding that the banks had been giving warnings of the possibilities of a precipitate decline in the prices of merchandise and commodities. These stocks will have to be liquidated, and losses, no doubt, will have to be faced before a return to normal conditions can be looked for, and this may prove to be a slow process. A return to more normal conditions generally will be accelerated by labor accepting a reasonable reduction in wages, and by hard and efficient work all round.

"Our present banking system is admirably adapted to our country's requirements. It has withstood the tests of panics and other vicissitudes in past years, and emerged from these without loss of credit.

"The suggestion that Canada should adopt a central reserve bank on the model of the United States or South Africa has been fully discussed at meetings of Canadian bankers, and the almost unanimous opinion was that it would be difficult to improve on our present banking system, and that a reserve bank would be an unnecessary and expensive luxury, not giving us any facilities that at present we do not enjoy under our Finance Act of 1914.

Require Immigration.

'What we require in Canada is a large immigration of desirable people to open up new lands and to give increased production. This is essential if taxation is to be lightened, and in my opinion it is unwise to handpick the emigrants too finely. Personally I am not in the least apprehensive of the Bolshevik element taking permanent root in Canada.

MORRISON-AYLMER NUPTIALS

St. John's Anglican Church was beautifully decorated to-day with tall palms, ferns, peonies and daisies, for the wedding of Muriel Esme youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Aylmer of Peterboro to George Meredith, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Morrison, of Amherst, N.S. The ceremony, solemnized by Rev. Canon Blagrave, took place at 1:30, when the dainty bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away, entered to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mr. R. J. Devey. Her exquisite costume was of ivory French charmeuse, with bodice and sleeves of Chantilly lace and panels embroidered in seed pearls. The long court train was lined with white georgette, the veil of white tulle, with cap of Chantilly was caught and held with orange blossoms, the only ornament being the groom's gift, a rope of pearls with diamond and platinum clasp. Her flowers were a lovely arrangement of Ophelia ross and lilies of the valley, with a shower of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. The bridesmaids, Miss Gladys Mulholland and Miss Bessie Mather, were gowned alike in pale pink georgette with picot-edged handkerchief draperies and silver ribbon streamers, and hats of pink tulle with deep pink flowers and touches of black. They carried bouquets of mauve and pink sweet peas. Miss Anne Ponton of Belleville in mauve, who has a lovely mezzo-soprano voice, sang "The King of Love My Shepherd is" during the signing of the register. The groom was supported by Mr. H. F. Tennant of Amherst, and the ushers were Messrs. Harry Grubbe, Meredith Huycke and Bertram Tate of Toronto and Mr. Richards of Amherst.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Weller street, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer attired in a French costume of black taffeta and black and white checked organdie, with smart black hat and corsage bouquet of roses, and Mrs. Morrison, the groom's mother, in blue charmeuse, embroidered in blue and silver, with black lace hat. Mrs. Eric McDougall of Toronto, wore brown taffeta, with lace and tulle hat to match. The house was decorated with peonies and poppies, and the table, with the enormous bride cake in the centre, was lovely with tulle festoons, tall pink snapdragon and Ophelia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left on the 3.50 C.P.R. train for Toronto, en route for a motor trip to New York and Boston, the bride travelling in navy blue canton crepe with grey, navy taffeta hat with grey ostrich mount, and black fox fur.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts, including the groom's present of a rope of pearls. The bridesmaids received silver bangles, set with brilliants and sapphires, the ushers were given pearl stick pins, while the groomsman's gift was a gold Eversharp pencil.

Among the guests at the wedding reception were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bayliss Brown of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Robertson of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Eric McDougall of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dunsford, the Misses Dunsford, Miss Gingras, Belleville, Miss Edwards, Mrs. B. Gardiner, Miss Anderson, Mrs. Harry Barker, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mr. W. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer are entertaining the wedding party at the Golf this afternoon, and at a dance at their home this evening.

A pretty little incident in connection with this charming wedding was the omission of the throwing of the bride's bouquet, which had been carefully saved as a gift to an old gentleman who has nearly reached he century mark, and has been a faithful and devoted friend of the family and of the young bride for many long years.

MURRAY ST. CHOIR AT CHEMONG PARK

GUESTS OF DR. AND MRS. MORGAN ON AN IDEAL JUNE NIGHT.

There are no better hosts than Dr. J. A. Morgan and Mrs. Morgan. This was the unanimous conclusion of the choir of Murray street Baptist church a few evenings ago, when the summer home of the chairman of the Music committee was opened to receive those who so well serve that church.

Almost every member was present. The lake was loveey. The motor boat was in splendid form. The piano was in perfect tune. The muse was inspiring those of the members who are gifted as prophets and poets. There were weird and humorous stories told in the dusk on the verandah. The same old moon shone in the sameold sky and gave the same old charm to such an hour. The voices in song echoed back from the shining lake and filled the park with harmony.

Somebody says:

"There never was a happy choir
Found far away in Morgan's Glen,
But had a taste of busted tire
To be repaired by patient men."

But what is an hour or two on the way home in such company? And how readily we forget an hour or two of waiting for a car in the earlier hours of the evening when once we become a part of the festive group at last. It was a great night, and as has already been said, the hosts were perfect. Such thoughtfulness keeps choirs together in spirit during the vacation season and makes them glad to get to rehearsal again in the fall.

"How do you know you have a soul?" asked the Sunday School teacher.

"Cause," answered the small boy, "I can hear it tick."

MANNING DOHERTY AT DOWNEYVILLE

SPOKE WITH LOCAL MEMBER, F. G. SANDY, AT U.F.O. MEETING.

DOWNEYVILLE, June 14.—Mss Reta Maher, of Peterborough, is the guest of Miss Agnes Piquette.

Messrs. Peter Murray and Eugene Downey spent Sunday in Peterborough.

Miss Hazelle Houlihan, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with friends here.

The Hon Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario, delivered an excellent address in the Parish Hall on Monday night. Other speakers were Mr. F. G. Sandy, Mr. Smale, and Mr. Thurston.

Miss Evelyn Scully delivered an address of welcome to the honoured guest, and presented him with a bouquet of flowers. A very entertaining programme was also given in his honour.

Mr. Doherty, in his address, gave a vivid and very satisfactory explanation and account of the business transacted by the Government of Ontario in connection with agriculture, and the improvement of the rural districts. We trust that Mr. Doherty's reports regarding trade will soon be rewarded and conditions take a brighter view.

The large audience left the hall feeling very pleased with the information so eloquently delivered.

Mrs. Henry Mathews, of Toronto, is the guest of Miss B. Morrissey.

Mrs. A. E. Paul, who has been seriously ill, is slightly improved.

MAJOR O'CONNOR ON LORD BYNG'S STAFF.

Reported He Will Be One of Rideau Hall Officers.

OTTAWA, June 15.—Unofficially, it is reported that Major Willis O'Connor, D.S.O., A.D.C. to the Chief of the General Staff, and who leaves for England this week, will be attached to the staff of Canada's recently appointed Governor-General, Lord Byng of Vimy, whom he will accompany back to Canada.

Major O'Connor is one of Canada's most widely known military officers. He proceeded overseas with the first Canadian Division as Adjutant to the Second Canadian Infantry Battalion, later becoming A.O.C. to General Sir Arthur Currie, who was then a Brigade Commander.

He continued in this capacity after Gen. Currie became Corps Commander and returned to Canada at the conclusion of the war on this duty.

GENEROUS CONTRIBUTIONS FOR EXHIBITION PARK IMPROVEMENTS

PRESIDENT DENNE AND R. H. TURNER SECURED $1430 FROM BUSINESS MEN AND MERCHANTS IN ONE AFTERNOON.

Tenders for the new cattle barn were opened at the meeting of the Exhibition Directors, but owing to a change in the plans none of the bids was accepted. The Board decided to extend the width of this building to 32 feet, and before the contract is let the tenders must be based on the increased size.

Nothing definite was decided in regard to the grandstand, but it was understood that with the expected assistance of the County Council an addition to the stand can be made this year.

Subscriptions Coming In.

Business houses and merchants responded generously to the appeal of the Exhibition Board for funds to carry on the improvements laid for this year. The following list of subscriptions were obtained by Mr. R. Denne and Mr. R. H. Turner, and it is understood that other lists have been circulated in the country. With this evidence of a general desire to assist the Board, the Directors feel that before the subscriptions close the contribution will reach an appreciable sum, which, with expected substantial grants, will insure the building of a cow barn and grandstand annex. The good-will shown by the business men and other citizen makes their support doubly acceptable and also encourages the Directors in the work that is next their heart, but which would be impossible without the sympathy of the public.

A FAREWELL MEETING.

A special meeting will be held tonight at the Salvation Army Temple as a farewell to Col. and Mrs. Bettridge, who are leaving the Eastern division command to assume the direction of the Toronto Training College.

FUNERAL THIS MORNING.

Thomas Moloney's Body Recovered Yesterday.

The funeral of Thomas Moloney took place at 9 a.m. to-day to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery. A large number of friends paid their last tribute to Mr. Moloney, the funeral being very largely attended. The body was recovered in the Canal immediately south of the bridge at 3.15 yesterday afternoon by James Crowley. The body was found floating on the surface of the water close to the shore right at the point where the search for the body had centred. Coroner Dr. Young was called, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary, that accidental death had occurred. The body was taken to Lane and Eano's Undertaking Parlors.

Mr. Moloney is survived by his wife and two daughters, Teresa, of Winnipeg, and Sister M. Fidelma, of Mount St. Joseph.

PROCEEDS OF COMPETITION FOR FATHER PHELAN'S CUP WILL GO TO CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY AND ST. VINCENT'S ORPHANAGE.

EXECUTIVE MEETS

At the Executive meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association, held on Monday evening last, considerable work had to be done in view of the fact that all statements must be cleared up before the annual meeting, which will be held at an early date.

The Association is in a very healthy condition and are looking forward to even greater success than in the past.

The cup ties have disarranged the league schedule somewhat, but the Executive instructed the Secretary and President to re-arrange all league games between July 1 to July 15. Therefore, the playing season is extended two weeks.

The first game of the Father Phelan Charity Cup will take place as originally drawn, viz., G.W.V.A. vs. De Laval; referee, Mr. J. Clark; kick off at 6.00 p.m., Thursday, June 16.

The original first round game was Canadian Woollens vs. C.G.E., which will be played on Thursday, June 23.

The semi-finals will be played by Thursday, June 30, the finals to be played on July 7.

The scheduled games and referees were appointed as follows:

Tuesday, June 14 — Canadian Woollens vs. Comrades; referee, A. McKinley.

Thursday, June 16—G.W.V.A. vs. De Laval (Phelan Charity Cup); referee, J. Clark.

Saturday, June 18—De Laval vs. Caledonian Club; referee, T. McKinley.

Saturday, June 18 — Canadian Woollens vs. G.W.V.A.; referee, J. L. Howarth.

Tuesday, June 21—Comrades vs. De Laval; referee, J. Clark.

The public in general are requested to show their appreciation of the Peterborough Football Association in their efforts to do something tangible in the way of charity.

This handsome trophy (cup) donated to the Association by the Rev. Father C. J. Phelan for competition amongst the league teams should draw good crowds, and the gross proceeds (no expenses will be allowed in these charity games) will be handed over equally at the end of the series to the Children's Aid Society and the St. Vincent's Orphanage. This is a good cause and deserves the support of all good sportsmen, and the Association should be highly commended for their actions.

A special meeting of the P. F. A. Executive will be held to-night in the G.W.V.A. Hall at 8 p.m. Business important.

HAP HARRISON OUT OF THE GAME

PETES FIRST BASEMAN SUFFERING FROM BLOOD POISONING AND WILL NOT BE ABLE TO PLAY FOR THREE WEEKS.

The Petes will be without the services of "Hap" Harrison for at least three weeks. The big first baseman was suffering from an injured heel in the game against Lindsay Saturday and although as usual he went in and gave the best he had, his gameness proved costly, and he is confined to bed with blood poisoning. The loss of Harrison at this critical stage in the Central League race will be severely felt, and every fan in Peterborough will be sorry to learn of his illness and wish him a speedy recovery.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-morrow, Thursday, the Capitol offers another big sensational show—Douglas Fairbanks in his new comedy, "The Nut," and Hoffman & Hughes, another big time vaudeville novelty.

The first three days of this week the Capitol did a record business, considering it's the summer season and the off-period for inside amusements, but the excellent quality of the big picture program presented by this popular and cozy resort was a magnet strong enough to pack 'em in. The Three O'Connor Sisters, a big time vaudeville act, singers of the highest class, three really remarkable voices in popular songs, will to-night, Wednesday, be the public's last opportunity to hear these clever vocalists, and another capacity crowd should be in evidence.

To-morrow night, and for the balance of this week another smashing big program is offered: Douglas Fairbanks in his newest big comedy drama, "The Nut." The balance of the picture program contains many short reels—serial, travel, comedy and subjects of interest. The vaudeville act for this week-end is one of the very best yet presented at the Capitol—Hoffman & Hoges, a bicycle act different from any other. This act has a very funny comedy opening that will win any audience. Some clever dancing by the lady member of the troupe and some of the cleverest and most sensation, hair-raising stunts ever seen in an act of this kind. Hoffman & Hoges are remarkable performers, and nothing better has been seen in this city on a vaudeville stage.

A big program at the Capitol's popular prices: a show that should pack this cool and cozy resort at every performance for the balance of the week.

AT THE REGENT.

FARNUM TO APPEAR IN DRAMA OF HOME LIFE

Does a husband's success mean everything to a wife? And can mother love be crushed from a woman's heart by the applause of the public? These are questions put forth in the latest William Fox production starring William Farnum. This picture, called "His Greateest Sacrifice," will be shown at the Regent Theatre next Thursday. It is a highly dramatic play and one that gives the popular William Farnum an opportunity to display his finest gifts as an actor.

J. Gordon Edwards, who directed "Salome" and "Cleopatra," among other pictures for William Fox, directed "His Greatest Sacrifice."

AT THE ALLEN.

CHINESE STREET BUILT FOR MOVIES

The ingenuity and artistic sincerity of the Goldwyn Art Department successfully met the severe test placed upon it when a reproduction of a street in the Chinese section of San Francisco was needed for the first Gouverneur Morris original photoplay, "A Tale of Two Worlds," which will be shown at the Allen Theatre last time to-day.

Mr. Cedric Gibbons, the Goldwyn Art Director, supervised the construction of a Chinese street two blocks in length, with overhanging balconies on the houses, shops decorated with lanterns, Tong signs, and fish stores with live fish swimming about in tanks. Other shops showed strings of dried meats cured in the Chinese fashion.

The actual work of preparing the street for the Chinese New Year celebration fell to Mr. Edward Willis of the Goldwyn Art Department, who has been a student of Oriental art for many years.

AT THE ALLEN.

"NOT GUILTY."

"Not Guilty," the photoplay which is coming to the screen of the Allen Theatre Thursday is arousing interest among patrons of that house because many have read Harold McGrath's thrilling novel, "Parrot & Company," from which it is adapted.

The feature is released through the Associated First National Pictures Inc., and is a Sidney A. Franklin production presented by Albert A. Kaufman.

The plot is an unusual one and involves twin brothers who love the same woman and who, strange to relate, are both loved by her. One of the brothers commits a crime, turns out to be a murderer and his twin changes identity with the guilty brother. Then events follow in rapid sequence. The innocent brother self-exiled goes to India, the land of "brilliant days and purple nights," where the love, the life, the lure of the tropical east soothe the hopes and the hearts of the civilized west. Then by coincidence the girl visits India. But the path of true love, which never did run true, winds through a veritable jungle of tense situations to an amazing climax.

SLOPPY GAME IN CITY LEAGUE

C.G.E. WOLLOP Y.M.C.A. 20 RUNS TO 6 IN MOST RAGGED EXHIBITION OF SEASON.

In the most ragged exhibition of the season the C.G.E. team defeated the Y.M.C.A. outfit in the opening game of the second round of the City League schedule at Riverside Park last night by 20 runs to 6. The Red Triangle crew made thirteen costly errors and C.G.E. scored at will, although Gilchrist, on the rubber for the "Y," might have made the battle a close one if his team mates had given him any assistance. C.G.E. scored nine runs in the first two innings with only four hits, but in the later innings combed Gilchrist's offerings with a vengeance.

Frost pitched the first five innings for the winners and had an easy time holding the "Y" to seven hits and one run. Johnston pitched the last two innings, and four errors, three hits and a pair of walks gave the losers five runs.

The story of how the runs were scored would be painful to read and more painful to write. The box score, which follows, tells all that is necessary to know about the game:

FRENCH SPORTSMEN ABANDON PLANS TO SEE THE BIG FIGHT

MINISTER OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION WITHDRAWS OFFICIAL RECOGNITION OF BOXING IN DEFERENCE TO FROWNS OF AMERICAN CLERGYMEN.

PARIS, June 14.—A curious and rather an embarrassing situation has arisen as a result of the announcement, a few weeks ago that Gaston Vidal, the French Minister of Physical Education, would give his official recogniton of boxng by his personal attendance at the Dempsey-Carpentier bout.

It is now definitely learned that M. Vidal has abandoned the trip, not from any desire of his own but at the request of Premier Briand, owing to the fact that certain bodies of American clergymen have made representations, urging him to remain in France.

It was announced a few days ago that the former Blucher, now the French liner Leopoldina, which was engaged to convey several hundred prominent Frenchmen to the ringside, would not sail, ostensibly for the reason that not a sufficient number signed on for the trip. Inasmuch as M. Vidal was the moving spirit in the plan to charter the liner, it is now clear that the opposition has been heavy aganst what the American clergy declare would be "officialisation" of the contest.

Clergy Stops Trip.

At the same time it must be admitted that the French Government, through Premier Briand has been obliged to pay atention to the outburst from the American clergy. The French answer, which is entirely clear and simple, is that with the war's death-roll of nearly 1,500,000 men, they are perfectly willing to "officialise" boxing or anything else that will aid physical development of the next generation of Frenchmen.

Therefore, the complaints of the clergy leave them quite cold inwardly, but they nevertheless are willing to comply with the clergy's desire in the larger interest to France's and American amity and goodwill. Besides, all France is striding to the top rank so swiftly in all lines of sports is quite confident that Carpentier will conquer Dempsey inside of five rounds, even without a governmental delegation at the ringside.

M. Vidal, who is a great friend of Carpentier, and is the possessor of a pair of gloves worn by the French champion in his victores over Wells and Beckett, said to a correspondent: "I also am promised as a souvenir the gloves with which our Georges will put Dempsey well to sleep."

The city of Paris is taking greater interest in the fight than in anything that has occurred since the Armistice, elaborate preparations already being made to receive the returns of the bout round by round, inasmuch as the result should be known here late in the evening. The entire city will be en fete.

If Carpentier wins red rockets will be sent up from the Eiffel Tower and the heights of Montmarie and Montrouge. Lights will be blue if Dempsey wins, and yellow in case of a draw.—Philadelphia Ledger.

RUTH MAKES A NEW BIG LEAGUE RECORD

WOOLENS DEFEAT COMRADES 4 TO 2

Canadian Woollens put themselves far in the lead of the City League by defeating Comrades 4 to 2 at the Oval last night. Comrades put a stiff battle but the Woolens were the superior team as they plainly showed in the second period. At the end of the first period, the score was 1-1 In the second half the Woollens came back for 3 goals and the Comrades only secured one.

Twenty minutes of play had elapsed in the first period before either team scored. McDougall got in a nice one for the Comrades and the Woollens took the offensive strongly but failed to register. In the last five minutes of play, however, a penalty was awarded the Woollens and "Mat" Shaw scored.

In the second half the Woollens showed what they could do. J. Shaw tallied early in the period. Through a confusion at the Woollens citadel Dunkley got in the second and last goal for the Comrades. The Woollens began applying more pressure on the Comrades and the defence began to weaken. Harold Jones scored with a well-directed shot and just before the final whistle sounded J. Shaw was responsible for a goal headed in off a play from one of the Comrades' full sacks. A. McKinley was referee of the game:

The line-ups were:

Canadian Woollens

Goal, Fenner; Full backs, Cridland Chambers; Half Backs Frost, McMillan, Roberts; Forwards, Beard, H. Jones, M. Shaw, J. Shaw and E. Jones.

Comrades

Goal, Post; Full backs, Cowie, Mallison, Half Backs, Jackson, Jolliffe, Mulvihill; Forwards, Roberts, Dunkley, Hardy, McDougall and Firth.

OBITUARY

VICTOR McPHERSON.

The death occurred this morning of Victor, the youngest son of J. A. and Mrs. McPherson, of 533 Patterson Street, aged two years.

Funeral (private) this afternoon.

MRS. CHRISTY SCOTT.

The death occurred on Tuesday morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John F. Allin, 205 Sherbrooke Street, of Christy Menzie, relict of George Scott, in the 87th year of her age.

The late Mrs. Scott has been for many years a highly respeted resident of this city. Of Highland parentage, she came to Canada early in life, and settled with her parents in South Dumfries, Ont. Her husband predeceased her twenty-three years ago.

The remaining members of the family, Mrs. A. R. Wilson, Seattle, Mr. Robert Scott, Orillia, Mrs. (Rev.) O. C. Elliott, Toronto, Mrs. J. F. Allin, Peterborough, Mr. A. L. Scott, Badin, North Carolina, fourteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren are included in the family circle.

The late Mrs. Scott, on coming to the city, identified herself with St. Paul's Church, of which she was a valued member for many years. When Knox Church was formed, she was one of its seveney charter members, and was intensely interested in its inception and growth. A regular attendant at the services, as long as her health permitted, she was known and loved by all her fellow-members and adherents for her reverence, her charitable judgment, and her Christian geniality. Many strangers were made to feel quite at home by her kindly welcome, while all learned through knowing her how splendid are the lives wihch are hallowed by the Presence from on high.

One of her special intersets was the work of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, while one of her great contributions to the progress of the Gospel was the gift of a son to the ministry, in the person of the late Rev. J. McP. Scott, for many years the well-beloved pastor of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Of the late Mrs. Scott, it may truly be said that while she rests from her labours, her works do follow her.—Contributed.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW.

The funeral of the late Mrs. George Scott will be held to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon, 16th June, at 2 p.m., from the residence of Mr. J. F. Allin, 205 Sherbrooke Street, to Litle Lake Cemetery.

ANOTHER WIRE TAPPER IN THE POLICE COURT

In Police Court this morning the Utilities Commission appeared as informants for the third time recently against citizens who have been tampering with the Commission's wires, to their loss.

The accused this morning apparently did not wilfully tap the wires, but in putting in a fuse, effected a change so the electricity was used but did not register in the meter. He was allowed to go by Magistrate Dumble by paying the costs.

The Utilities Commission have, so Mr. Fisk states, resolved to stop all tampering with their wires, and persons with illegal connections should take warning from the treatment of similar offenders, he declares.

WEDDING BELLS

MEEKS--HAMILTON

The marriage of Kathrine Elizabeth Hamilton, daughter of David Hamilton, Westcott street, to Finlay McLarne Meeks, also of Peterboro, was solemnized by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie at Knox Church manse, at noon to-day. The bride was attended by Miss Robina Killingbeck, and Mr. Alex. Meeks, brother of the groom was the best man.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara. They will reside in Peterboro on their return.

HENDRON—DEWART

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at George street Methodist parsonage on Tuesday, June 14th, when Alice Celestia, daughter of James Dewart, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Arthur Nelson, son of John Hendren, both of Warsaw. Rev. Harold Young, B.A., pastor of George street Methodist Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in taupe Duchess silk, with trimming of burnt orange, and wore the groom's gift, a pearl sunburst. The young couple were unattended, and left immediately after the ceremony on a motor trip. They will reside in Dummer, near Warsaw, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

DEYELL—JOHNSTON

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston, North Monaghan, a pretty wedding was solemnized at noon on Tuesday, under an arch of evergreens, peonies and daisies, when their daughter, Zetta M., was married to Gordon E. Deyell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Deyell, of Otonabee, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. A. MacKenzie of Knox Church. The bride, attired in a gown of sapphire blue Georgette, large hat of ivory Georgette and carrying a shower bouquet of Sunset and Sweetheart roses, entered to the strains of the wedding march by Miss Olga Fowler. The bride was attended by Miss Olga Kenyon attired in navy taffeta, with black mohair hat and carrying Columbia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Stanley Whitfield.

During the signing of the register little Doris Donnelly sang "Until". After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty luncheon catered by Hooper's. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace, to the bridesmaid a pin set with pearls, to the pianist, beads, and to the soloist silver bangles; the bride's gift to the groom being a diamond tie pin.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Port Stanley and Cleveland, the bride traveling in a rookie brown embroidered suit and leghorn hat trimmed with blue and gold. The Biggest Bargain Of Them All--Health Canadians are noted the world over as dearly loving a Bargain. What better Bargain can the average person have than HEALTH?

This is, at the worst, a good old world, and we all want to stay here just as long as we can.

Everybody believes this; but with many it is a case of PREACHING one thing and PRACTISING another. These people take such little care of their bodies that it would be pardonable to believe they wanted to get out of this world as soon as possible.

You may be strong and healthy now and yet, before another sun rises, you may be a lifeless corpse or at the best a hopeless invalid.

We insist that ninety-five per cent. of the sickness in the world to-day is due to some defect in the Spine.

The Chiropractor carefully examines the Spine and finds the Misaligned Vertebrae which are causing pressure upon Nerves, then with a scientific movement he adjusts those Vertebrae back to normal position, which relieves the pressure from the Nerves, and Health is the result.

Knowing this, have you any excuse for being sick?

Don't lock the stable door after the horse has gone. In other words, don't wait until you are on a bed of sickness before you consult a Chiropractor.

YOU HAVE THE BIGGEST BARGAIN ON THE MARKET.

Health and Happiness right at your very door to-day. It is yours if you will but reach out your hands and grasp it.

Your Chiropractor, who has been specially trained for this work, will be glad to give you a Spinal Analysis and tell you just what, if anything, ails you.

Thousands of people have experienced relief through taking Chiropractic Adjustments.

WHY NOT YOU?

CHICAGO FIRM INVESTS HERE TO LIFT RATE

PLACES $570,000 INSURANCE POLICY WITH CANADIAN FIRM TO HELP BOOST VALUE OF OUR DOLLAR IN THE U.S.

"TRADE IN CANADA"

MONTREAL, June 16.—(Canadian Press).— Messrs. Peabody, Houghteling and Company, of Chicago have made application to the Canada Life Assurance Co., for a $570,000 policy on the life of Alexander Smith, president of the firm. They were prompted largely, it is stated, by a desire to start a general movement among American business men having large interests in Canada to right the exchange situation. The interests both of the United States and Canada, the more promptly Canadian money is brought back to parity, well better for all business; and in the opinion of Messrs. Peabody, Hougheling and Company, no better way can be found than "trading in Canada."

PLAINTIFF LOSES IN JURY'S VERDICT

AWARDED ARCHIE COLE $30.00 COUNTER CLAIM AGAINST L. FLORENCE

The jury in the action of Florence vs. Cole, in which Louis Florence claims damages of $218.60 from a motor car accident with Archie C. Cole, Bailieboro, general merchant, on June 22, 1920, on the grounds of negligence on Cole's part, yesterday afternoon found that the negligence did not lie with Cole but with Florence. His Honour submitted a list of questions to the jury. The questions and answers as returned by the jury are as follows:

"Were the damages to plaintiff's car caused by negligence on the part of the defendant?"—No.

If so, in what did such negligence consist?—No answer.

If the defendant was negligent could plaintiff by reasonable and ordinary care have avoided the accident?—Yes.

If so, what should he have done to avoid it?

Ans. 1. Should have kept to the right of Park street. 2—Or slackened his speed and sounded his horn before approaching Charlotte street. 3—Or turned west on Charlotte street.

What damages do you award the plaintiff, if any?—None.

Were the damages to defendant Cole's car caused by the negligence of plaintiff, Florence's car?—Yes.

If so, in what did such negligence consist?—By not keeping his own side of the road.

If the plaintiff was negligent could the defendant, Cole, by reasonable and ordinary care, have avoided the accident?—No.

If so what could or should he have done to avoid it?—Did all was possible.

What damages, if any, do you allow the defendant on his counterclaim?—$30.

J. A. Murphy, Foreman.

The jury empanelled in the case of Florence vs. Cole was composed of Lewis Fife, farmer, Asphodel, Russel Harper, harness maker, 432 Rogers street, Peterborough, Alexander Graham, farmer, Otonabee, E. A. Stinson, employed at Quaker Oats, 176 Brock street, Bruce Barclay, driver, 127 Rubidge street, John O'Brien, farmer, Douro, Wiliam F. Elliot, farmer, Asphodel, Edward J. Wildman, farmer, Belmont, John A. Murphy, farmer, Smith, Wellington Hill, laborer, Lakefield, Joseph Doran, farmer, Ennismore, Gordon Robinson, farmer, Smith.

Judge Huycke has not yet given judgment in the case.

G. N. Gordon represented Mr. Cole in this case.

The case of Murray vs. Morrison was dismised with costs. The plaintiff, Alex. Murray, had begun action against Robt. Morrison for slander, alleging that the defendant had described him as an agitator and this made it impossible for him to obtain employment in certain quarters. The plaintiff did not appear for trial. G. N. Gordon was solcitor for the defendant.

CITY COUNCIL TO INVESTIGATE BREAD PRICES--ACTION ON MEAT PRICES SUGGESTED IS SHELVED

The City Council has taken up arms against the price of bread in this city and will demand that the local bakers show their reasons for maintaining the present high level price of 24c the large loaf, when the prices of other living commodities have dropped and are still dropping.

Port Hope bread is being sold in Peterboro at 20c per large loaf.

Ald. Crowe opened up this question in committee of the whole last night, when, pointing out that council investigate the price of fuel, he saw no reason why similar action should not be taken regarding the staff of life, the prices of which the bakers here seemed to be holding up.

Council acquiesced in Ald. Crowe's stand, and Ald. Turner went one further in contending that local butchers require a little attention in respect of the prices of meat.

Meat prices may be investigated later; in the meantime, on motion of Ald. Crowe and Morrison, the Mayor named the following committee to investigate bread prices with the bakers: Ald. Crowe, Phelan, Morrison and Committee's chairman, Mayor McIntyre.

PROVINCE IS UNABLE TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF RENEWED OFFER OF HOUSING LOAN BY OTTAWA

ACT PASSED LAST FALL PREVENTS ONTARIO EROM BORROWING FURTHER—OUR SHARE WILL BE DIVIDED AMONG OTHER PROVINCES.

AID CHARILY GIVEN

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 16.—Ontario finds itself unable to take advantage of the renewed offer of the Dominion to lend it money for the purpose of building houses. Just before the last session of the Parliament at Ottawa closed, the sum of $12,000,000 was set aside to be lent to municipalities through the Provinces for housing purposes, but a year ago the Legislature decided that it had borrowed enough money, and, in any case, the funds provided by the Dominion were running out; so an Act was passed that stimpulated that no moneys should be advanced by the Province after December 31 of last year.

As the law stands, therefore, the Drury Government could not borrow money from the Dominion and lend it to the Province, even though it should desire to do so. The present law permits the Province to guarantee the bonds of municipalities for housing purposes, but even this form of aid is now being charily given. "At one time we applied for more money from Ottawa, but could not get it," said Hon. Mr. Nixon, the Provincial Secretary, to-day. "All the municipalities that borrowed money have kept up their payments and the money is coming back to the Province very satisfactorily."

Ontario's share of the Ottawa housing loan is about two million dollars and presumably will go to the other Provinces if required.

SOLDIERS IN CAMP GUESTS OF CIRCUS

EXCHANGE OF COURTESIES MARKED THE TEMPORARY ASSOCIATION OF THE TWO TENUED GROUPS,

The John Robinson circus arrived "on the lot" at the Exhibition Park bright and early this morning, but the bugler for the two military camps had been up and around ahead of the advance men. The soldiers and the circus men looked each other over, compared horses and tents and general equipment and soon became fast friends. This good will blossomed into a general invitation from Mr. Robinson, Jr., to all the men in the artillery and cavalry camps to come and go as they wished providing they paid the war tax. Col. Johnston, camp commandant, atended to the war tax detail, with the result that the circus has provided an unexpected attraction as an interlude in the camp's orders of the day.

By the way, Walter D. Nealand, who is in charge of the publicity department of the Robinson circus, has a fixed place in his memory for Peterborough. He was through this city with the "Yankee Consul," the musical comedy with which the Grand Opera House was opened in 1906. "Those were the days of real musical comedies," he remarked, recalling some of the other Henry W. Savage productions, and also mentioning the unready conditions under which the Grand gave Peterborough its first taste of "big time" shows.

The military reciprocated by Major Sutton, M.D., extending the use of the Red Cross tent to the circus. "We appreciate the kindness of the Major," said Mr. Nealand, "but really the management hopes that there will be no occasion for the attentions of the Red Cross."

200,000 GREEK TROOPS ARE IN ANATOLIA NOW

100,000 MORE IN RESERVE—NATIONALISTS PROBABLY HAVE LESS THAN 100,000 ALTOGETHER.

TO DELAY OFFENSIVE

SMYRNA, June 16.—(Canadian Press).—It is improbable that the Greek offensive against the Turkish Nationalists will be started for several weeks, King Constantine declared to the Associated Press yesterday. He said he would not go to the front before July 3 and that he did not expect to return to Athens until August.

The Greek army now numbers two hundred thousand fighting men in Anatolia and it has a hundred thousand reserves. The Nationalists, it is estimated, have less than a hundred thousand.

Constantine does not find life in Smyrna very cheerful. He complained during his conversation with the correspondent of the presence of bedbugs and lamented the fact that he could not go bathing on account of the curiosity of the people there.

London despatches last night said that should the Turkish Nationalists launch their projected attack on Constantinple, British troops would be sent against them.

OTTAWA DIDN'T RECOGNIZE ANY INTERFERENCE

TOLMIE SAYS CANADIANS WHO INTERFERED IN BRITISH POLITICS DID SO ON OWN INITIATIVE.

MAKES GOOD IMPRESSION

LONDON, June 16.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)—Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, last night made an important statement of the position of the Dominion Government respecting the embargo in Great Britain against Canadian cattle. In an address before the Empire Parliamentary Development committee, presided over by Right. Hon. Winston Churchill, Dr. Tolmie made it known that while the Canadian government had for many years aggressively pressed its protests against the embargo in the proper and constitutional manner, it was in no way responsible for the propaganda upon this line in England, nor for the interference or attempted interference with elections or politics in England.

Dr. Tolmie is in London to present the case for Canada on the embargo question before the Royal Commission investigating the subject. The meeting at which he spoke last night was attended by several members of the British Cabinet and by Premiers Massey, New Zealand, Smutts, South Africa, and Hughes, Australia. The Canadian Minister's remarks were received with apparent approval.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

C. Robinson: Mr. Dobbin's idea as to Peterborough's needs in last night's Examiner, should be emphatically endorsed by all citizens, and immediate action taken. I would suggest that the Mayor call a public meeting to discuss a scheme whereby the city may be able to start right away to build as many five-roomed houses as it can afford, and leave all other civic ornamental work until later on.

As to the soldiers' monument, I hope to see it some day, as I am a returned man myself.

The meeting, in my opinion, should be well advertised by posters and newspaper insertions, and should be held at, say, the Opera House (the expense would not be missed), not at some "little pokey hole." With more houses in the city, people would want to furnish them, and thus creat trade, which would alleviate the unemployment situation a little. I would like to see about fifteen or twenty houses go up on the King Edward Park—which just now is "neither use nor ornament."

FLYNN OUT OF THE G.A.U.V.

RESIGNS AT REQUEST OF EXECUTIVE BOARD—REASON FOR BOARD'S ACTION NOT ANNOUNCED.

CAPEWELL GOES ALSO

TORONTO, June 16.—(Canadian Press).— (Canadian Press). — J. Harry Flynn, Dominion organizer of the Grand Army of United Veterans, has resigned from his official position with the Association at the request of the Executive Board. Flynn was granted thirty days leave of absence on account of ill health a week ago but asked to tender his resignation first according to the announcement of the Executive last night. While away on furlough subsequent developments, stated the board, made it necessary to accept Flynn's resignation. Flynn returned to his home in Boston, Mass., a few days ago and was last night officially struck off the rolls of the G. A. U. V. as an executive officer. The name of Hebert Capewel, an honorary member of the Advisory Council, was also ordered struck off the rolls of the organization.

TRAIN DROPS THROUGH BRIDGE; FOUR DEAD AND SOME MISSING; 14 INJURED, SOME SERIOUSLY

POLICE PROBING STRANGE STORIES

CALGARY, June 16.—(Canadian Press).—The police are investigating strange stories which have been circulated regarding the domestic life of J. J. Rutledge, whose wife and four of their children were burned to death in their home at Innisfail on Tuesday night. Mr. Rutledge, his sister-in-law and one child escaped.

It is known that the Department of Neglected Children sent a man there this week to investigate and he was to have been there to-day. "This is all that is left" Rutledge is reported to have said when he arrived at a neighbor's house after the fire with the surviving child, saying that the house had been burned.

FORWARD SLEEPERS PLUNGED THROUGH STRUCTURE AFTER ENGINE AND MAIL CAR PASSED OVER SAFELY.

IN NORTH NEBRASKA

Latest reports place the dead at four, the injured at 34 and the seriously injured at 8.

OMAHA, Neb., June 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Four persons were killed, fourteen injured, some seriously, and three or four are missing in a wreck of an east-bound train on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad near Crawford, Neb., late last night. The forward sleepers of the train plunged through a bridge over the Big Cottonwood Creek, after the engine and mail car had passed safely, according to the first reports. A relief train took the dead and injured to Chadron, a few miles east, early to-day, and returned to the wreck to complete the search of the debris for missing passengers. Crawford is in the far north-west corner of Nebraska and wire communication with the scene of the wreck is meagre.

PAVEMENT FOR THE EAST WARD

HUNTER STREET EAST TO BE PAVED---ALSO STORM DRAINS WILL BE RECOMMENDED BY BOARD OF WORKS.

TENDERS RECEIVED

That storm drainage for Hunter street east will be provided for, and notice given by the City Council of its intention to pave Hunter street east from Armour road to the westerly end of Hunter street east, and Hunter street west from its easterly end to Sheridan Terrace, under the local improvement act, was the decision of the city's board of works last night.

This was the motion of Ald. Hay and Mayor McIntyre.

City Engineer Parsons reported that before Hunter street east is paved a storm drainage would have to be provided. This would mean a rain of approximately 40 inches in diameter on this street from the Otonabee river to Mark street. From Mark street to Rogers street a storm drain 21 inches in diameter is required. From this point, if the pavement is extended up the hill, it would be necessary to lay a 12 inch pipe. This would cost about $12,000, which would take care of all future work in the line of storm drains required on this section of Hunter street.

Ald. Crowe opposed the whole proposition on the ground of lack of funds; but it was pointed out that both pavement and surface drainage have been promised and are due to East City as well as elsewhere.

Ald. Hay drew attention to the extensive traffic on Hunter street east, even up the hill toward the Lift Lock, especially in summer time. And this pavement is not for Ashburnham alone, but in the interests of the city generally to a large extent. Ashburnham, he said, has for years been contributing its share of the cost of pavement throughout the city, and he thought that the time had arrived when East City should have some attention in this respect, which it has not had up to the present time.

More Paving.

Ald. Morrison urged that the Simcoe street pavement should be continued on down the hill past the Peterborough Cereal Co.'s mills.

Ald. Jones thought that this work could be left until another year; but on motion by Ald. Gordon, notice will be given of Council's intention to concrete pave Simcoe street from Queen down to the C.P.R. right of way on the river front, under the local improvement act.

Tenders For Pavement.

Tenders for about 20,000 yards of concrete paving—asphaltic and bithulithic—including George street south, from the C.P.R. to Romaine street, were received from D. W. Archibald, Toronto; V. C. Hays, Peterborough; the City Engineer; Asphaltic Concrete Co., Toronto; John Carroll, Peterborough; R. Sheehy & Sons, Peterborough; Standard Paving Co., Ottawa, Warren Paving Co., Toronto; F. F. Fry, Toronto.

On motion of Ald. Gordon and Crowe these bids were sent to Engineer Parsons to analyse the prices with a view to selecting the best tender for the respective kinds of work tendered on, he to report back within a few days.

DEPARTING STUDENTS GUESTS AT BANQUET

WERE ENTERTAINED AT THE Y. W.C.A. LAST NIGHT TOGETHER WITH BUSINESS GIRLS AND OTHERS

The festivities which take place annually at the Young Women's Christian Association before the students and teachers depart for their homes, and the business girls commence their holiday season, took the form last evening of a banquet tendered by the House Superintendent, Mrs. E. Morrison, to about 80 guests, including all the girls at present staying in the house with members of the Board and their guests. Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. G. R. Langley, Mrs. Ingall, Mrs. E. Harvey, Miss M. Rannie, Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. W. R. Widdiss, Miss Groat, and Miss Winter of Toronto, were present. The eight tables laid in the pretty dining-room were beautifully decorated with red and white peonies, and the banquet was a perfect feast of good things. Miss Mabel Walker was toast-mistress, and the following were the toasts proposed by various members present: To "The King" by Miss Truesdale, to "Our Board", by Miss G. Glover, expressing the thanks of the girls for the thoughtful care and consideration afforded them at all times by the Board of the Y. W. C. A. This was responded to by Mrs. W. D. Scott, the president. Mrs. V. East wood then gave the toast to "Our Home Girls", responded to by Miss E. Kennedy. "The Girls who are Leaving" by Miss Lilian Armstrong, was answered by Miss Clara Forsythe, and Miss Castor gave "The Superintendent, our Mother", answered by Mrs. Morrison. All the toasts emphasized the strong feeling of the house girls towards their kindly superintendent. Mrs. E. Morrison, who is now in her fourth year at the local branch of the Y.W.C.A. and whose unfailing kindness and thoughtfulness for the girls under her care has made her very popular with all who come in contact with her. The very enjoyable evening broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

TRAVEL UP THE LAKES

A RECORD SEASON PREDICTED —COTTAGES SCARCE—VISITORS PLENTY—LAKE SERVICE GOOD.

Capt. F. G. Young, manager of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, was seen yesterday, and stated that "the prospects for a record season u the Lakes are the best he has ever known." It was also stated that there were "a larger number of summer residents up and around the Lakes at the present time than has ever been known before so early in the season."

The scarcity of cottages to rent is greater than for years, notwithstanding the number of new ones erected lately. Applicants from a distance are having difficulty in securing rooms and board. From as far as Washington, D.C., Seattle, Bloomington, Bucalo, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Detroit, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, and other large centres, accommodation has been found difficult, and the numbers are increasing every week.

Letters are being received daily by Captain Young, asking for placings ahead, for which it has been found hard to receive attention at present.

Quite a number of visitors have decided to come to Stoney Lake and camp out. One party of twelve, headed by the professor of the University in Bloomington, has decided to tent out and enjoy canoe excursions over the lakes.

The Stoney Lake Navigation Company have been putting on one boat daily up to the present, but next week two boats are promised, to be followed in July by three boat services.

The summer hotels are now open, and bookings are lively. South Beach, Viamede, Mount Julian, Crowe's, Burleigh, McCracken's, and other boarding-houses are all busy, and preparing ahead for the larger influx of visitors from July to September.

It is rumoured that the Grand Trunk Railway are being asked to put on a Sunday afternoon train during the season for the convenience of business men desirous of reaching their homes in Toronto and other points.

It is astonishing what a brightening turn a man's religious experience will take when he surprises his liver with a trip up Stoney Lake on one of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company's fleet of boats. What most people need about this time, who are what the boys call 'grouchy," is a good holiday up the Lakes. Better than tonic is exercise. Get after that old liver, "laugh and grow fat." for "a merry heart is good medicine," or, as the revised translation puts it, "causeth good healing."

THESE WOMEN PLAY MANY QUAINT TRICKS

This One "Snurls" Her Nose, James Reports.

DETROIT, June 16.—James Albright, 30 years old, 2225 Meldrum avenue, a barber, admitted to Judge Thomas M. Cotter that he had had a few drinks of whiskey prior to attending a dance hall Saturday night. Everything was going along fine, he said, until he prepared to leave the hall.

"And then, just as I came out, a lady snurled her nose at me," he told the Judge.

Judge Cotter looked perplexed. "What's this 'snurling business?' he asked the policeman who had arrested Albright.

"I don't know," said the officer; "I didn't see any lady. But it must have been awful, for he was screaming and cutting up something frightful."

"Pay no attention to 'snurling' women," said Judge Cotter as he assessed James $15.

MEIGHEN WILL OPPOSE RENEWAL OF ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE WHILE AUSTRALIAN PREMIER WANTS IT

CANADIAN PREMIER, BELIEVING NECESSITY NO LONGER WARRANTS IT, AND REGARDING RENEWAL AS CHALLENGE TO U. S. AND MOVEMENT FOR DISARMAMENT AND PEACE, TO FIGHT FOR DENOUNCEMENT.

QUESTION BEFORE CONFERENCE MONDAY

(By M. Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 16. — The advisability of renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance question, in which Canada is vitally interested, will be the first subject before the conference of Prime Ministers when it opens its sessions on Monday.

Premier Hughes of Australia, influence towards having the treaty his country, will urge a renewal, but Premier Meighen is almost certain to throw the whole weight of his terpreting the public sentiment of denounced.

The Canadian Premier was willing to support a renewal of the alliance provided that it could be shown that such renewal was necessary to British interests; but it has become clear that no vital Empire interest is involved, and as there is a strong sentiment here, both in government circles and in the press, against the treaty, he has practically determined to fight against a renewal to the utmost of his power.

The Premier of Canada will base his opposition to the treaty on three main grounds:

First: that the reasons which made it necessary in 1911 have since disappeared;

Second: That a renewal of the treaty would be regarded as a challenge to the United States, where the Harding administration and the new Congress have just taken steps in the direction of disarmament; and,

Third: That the formation of a special alliance is antagonistic to the spirit of the times, and the endeavour that the world is making towards disarmament and peace.

ANY ATTEMPT BY KEMALISTS TO TAKE CONSTANTINOPLE TO MEAN WAR WITH BRIRAIN, SAYS NOTE

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 16 (Canadian Press).—The British have warned the Turkish Nationalists that any atempt to take Constantinople will mean war with Great Britain.

The purpose of sending a British Brigade from Malta to relieve the Greeks at Ismid is to frustrate any such Nationalist attempt to occupy Constantinople.

The Allied High Commissioners here have authorised the Greek fleet to operate from Gallipoli up through the Bosphorus and along the Black Sea, to prevent the Bolsheviki sending munitions to the Turkish Nationalists by way of the ports on the Pontus Coast.

HEALEY FALLS POWER PLANT WILL BE OPERATING ACAIN IN FEW WEEKS

ST. LAWRENCE HOTEL DINING ROOM IS AGAIN UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF THE PROPRIETOR—COUNCIL TO COMPLETE PRESENT WORK,

CAMPBELLFRD, June 16. — From Healey's Falls it was reported last night that the power house would not be able to pick up its regular load for two or three weeks as a result of last Saturday's accident. The most damage was done to the generators, but the switch board, dynamoes and other apparatus was not seriously impaired. At present it is impossible to estimate the financial loss. The exact cause of the accident was due to the giving way of one of the stop logs in the headgate above the power house. The man hole at the lower end of the pent-stock was open and a jet of water 16 inches in diameter shot across the plant. It was not until 9 a.m. Sunday that the inrushing water was stopped. The logs had to be worked out, and a new log put in where the other had fallen.

At a special meeting of the Council held on Moinday afternoon it was decided to continue any work under way to completion.

The dining hall has been beautifully painted and papered and is now a credit to the house. Mr. Kerr will be managing everything himself again and the hotel is operated on the American plan.

Social For War Memorial.

The Fete de Nuit, which was held on Dr. Macoun's lawn under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire, was a fine success. The proceeds of this social are to be used as the first contribution to the soldiers' memorial fund. There were many attractions, among others being the excellent music furnished by the 40th regimental band. There were a number of booths and side shows, some of which were a candy booth, of which Mrs. S. Neale was in charge, a cooking booth under Mrs. Carnahan's direction, ice cream booth under Mrs. B. I. Gibson and Mrs. T. Tait. There also was a hoop-la stand under the supervision of Miss Maynard and a wheel of fortune under the direction of Messrs. Dr. Watson and A. L. Rundeau. The 'British museum,' a tent containing many war trophies, etc., and under the supervision of Mrs. J. Govan, was one of the main attractions. The fortune teller's booth was very popular and was conducted by Mrs. Welsher. A great attraction was the 'Willie Wiggil' show under the supervision of Miss Robertson, where Mr. Geo. Morrison did some real good artist's work, and also conducted a small entertainment. A Japanese tea room was kept busy and looked very nice with its Japanese decorations and the ladies all in Japanese costumes. CHIEF ACCOUNTANT OF PUBLIC TRUSTEE'S OFFICE KILLS SELF WHEN ACCOUNTS INVESTIGATED

MAJOR E. O. REID TAKES POISON AT LEWISTON MOUNTAIN, OPPOSITE NIAGARA FALLS COUNTRY CLUB.

LEAVES A PITIFUL NOTE

TORONTO, June 16. Canadian Press. Major E. O. Reid, Chief Accountant of the office of Public Tnustee for Ontario, a veteran of the late war, who had a splendid military record to his credit, killed himself near Lewiston yesterday afternoon, by drinking poison. In taking his life, Major Reid put himself beyond the reach of police officers, who armed with a warrant sworn out by the Provincial authorities, were searching for him.

Lying beside his body, which was found on a point at the brow of Lewiston Mountain, just opposite Niagara Country Club, was a bottle that had contained poison, while in a note book in his pocket was the following pitiful note:

"The sun has set on this dreadful day. The dearest of woment, the four sweetest of children, forget quickly a bad daddy. It has been dreadful of me to run away, but I know that I am much better out of your life. Perhaps the good Lord will send someone who will be worthy of your affection and kindness. Kiss yourself for daddy, and think kindly of me. Good-bye, and God bless you. Daddy."

The tragedy that has brought sorrow to the Reid home had its beginnings a little over a week ago, so far as the knowledge of the authorities goes, when what Hon Mr. Raney last night termed "irregularities," were discovered in Major Reid's accounts. It was stated that the amounts that appeared to be short were not large, and that they would not in any event be more than one or two thousand dollars.

Pending a full investigation, the accountant was suspended from office, but no action was taken by the Attorney-General or the Board administering the office of public trustee, looking to his arrest.

A FINE RESPONSE.

The confidence imposed by the people of the city and district in the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is being shown in a practical and substantial manner by the response that has already been made to the canvass for funds for the building programme undertaken by the Exhibition management. The Directors have decided to enlarge the grandstand and erect a cattle barn—two enterprises that will add considerably to the success of the Exhibition—and the citizens have shown their interest in the work by already contributing over $1,400, the donations running from $2.00 to $200.00 The response must be gratifying to the Directors as a concrete proof that the people of Peterborough are solidly behind the Exhibition and anxious to make it an even greater success than ever.

THE EXAMINER FUND.

The campaign on behalf of the fund for the blinded soldiers and other blind Canadians in connection with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is an effort to lighten the burden of the less fortunate citizens of Canada who are forever destined to wander and stumble in the Kingdom of Darkness. "Help us to help them to help themselves" is in effect the appeal of those connected with the campaign, and The Examiner is glad to place itself at the disposal of the Executive and to open in its columns a fund for this purpose. Peterborough is asked to contribute $2,500 towards the movement, a total that represents little more than 10c per capita. At the same time eighteen other cities in Ontario will each be working to raise from $800 to $7,000 for the Institute. The Examiner brings the campaign before its readers confident that the work on behalf of blind Canadians will commend itself to the citizens and that they will recognize it as a cause that is in every way most worthy. Contributions will be received and acknowledged by The Examiner. Will you not do your share in this splendid work?

A RED LETTER DAY.

To many citizens of Peterborough this is one of the red letter days of the year, for the open season for fishing commenced this morning. It is a glad time for anglers, old and young, and the beginning of a new season once more reminds us of the splendid advantages we enjoy in Peterborough with our fine river and the many beautiful lakes within easy reach. All fishermen do not catch fish, but hope springs eternal in the human breast, and if they are not lucky to-day they try again to-morrow. After all, it is not the actual catching of fish that counts, although the hope of success adds the necessary zest to the pastime. It is the fresh air and sunshine that one absorbed, the getting back to nature and the simple things of life, the exercise of paddling or rowing and the slipping off of worries and cares that make angling a boon to mankind. With every variety of bait, with every kind of equipment, from skiff and canoe and punt, from bridges and piers and booms and from the river bank itself, Peterborough's Waltons will try their luck in the halycon days that began this morning. If they never land a three-pound bass or drop a struggling lunge into the bottom of their canoe, they'll be happier and healthier men for their hours in God's outdoors.

THE RIGHT TYPE.

In the examinations at McGill School of Agriculture, Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., Lieut. R. H. Unwin, formerly of the Royal Field Artillery, an Imperial prospective soldier settler under the Soldier Settlement Act of Canada, stood at the top of his class. He wrote on twenty-two subjects. In seventeen he obtained first-class honours, and in nine was first in his class. In the remainder of the subjects he took second-class honours.

Lieut. Unwin, whose home is in Newmarket, England, served in France, Flanders and Germany, and on demobilisation appled to the Soldier Settlement Board Office in London for a selection certificate. He came to Canada in August, 1920, and secured employment on the farm of Roy Bullpitt, near Cardigan, P.E.I.

The Board's supervisor, who visited him from time to time, reported that he took a very great interest in all farm work and had made very good progress in the selection and care of stock. He had a good idea of land tillage and understood the digerent kinds of soil. In general management of a farm his progress was good, and his employer reported that he had given excellent satisfaction.

Lieut. Unwin intends to continue his practical work on the farm this summer with the idea of taking advantage of the Board loan and purchasing a farm of his own next year. He comes from a family of farmers, his forbears having tilled the soil in England or 20 years, and he himself has owned orchard and grass land, and has a good knowledge of general farming.

This is the type of men that the Soldier Settlement Board welcomes to Canada.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF LINCOLN.

Red Socialists and lesser Socialists—including labor agitators and public ownership extremists—will find to-day a thought worthy of serious contemplation in Abraham Lincoln's sound philosophy:

"Capital has its rights, which are as worthy of protection as any other rights. Nor is it denied that there is and probably will be a relation between labor and capital producing mutual benefits.

"The strongest bond of human sympathy outside of the family relation should be the one uniting all working people of all nations, and tongues and kindreds. Nor should this lend to a war upon property or the owners of property. Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise.

"Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

—A. LINCOLN.

What was good for social well-being in the time of Lincoln is just as good for to-day and for to-morrow—nor was it a new theory in his time, although he gave it tnat characteristic expression which interpreted a complex problem in a simple way. Visionary Utopians are not of to-day alone. They have presented their rose-tinted theories whenever a social crisis has given them a following of the discontented. But they will fail to-day as they have always failed, because they ignore economic fundamentals—fundamentals which have been, are and always will be the same.—Financial Post.

THE LADIES' DRESS.

The agitation over women's dress which has been growing in emphasis during the last few years does not seem to have much effect upon its object. The ladies go calmly on their way, quite indifferent to the cries of their critics.

It is interesting to study the feminine dress historically. In the age of innocence, before Eve sinned, she wore nothing. After that she put on an apron, says the Scriptural authority; plus paint and tatoo, the anthropologist will have it, and the student of woman's ways readily agrees. The apron, we may easily understand, would be for work, as sweat of the brow supervened quickly upon the first disobedience. The paint was for embellishment as well as for some magic purpose. Concealment? Does not every mortal action conceal? Not to speak of eyes and smiles, "words half reveal and half conceal the soul within."

As civilization advanced, Grecian and Oriental women were dreadfully free, to put it mildly, in the matter of dress. They didn't wear any stockings at all. Some of them flaunted in Coan garments, which were transparent veils. St. Paul was particularly keen on women wearing some sort of hat when at worship, and yet he says that "her hair is given her for a covering." He might not have approved of some modern hats in church. But the height of impropriety to him was not so much a bare throat or foot as a bare head.

The ages of faith which succeeded Roman times saw some curious developments in female dress. Dante's sainted Beatrice had a figure, if we may believe the artists. The ladies of those pious times did not bundle themselves into shawls and sleeping-bags. They did not altogether hide their light under a bushel. Then there were the shameless days of the bold Renaissance, when arose a "monstrous regiment of women," said John Knox. The Reformation did not seem to make things any better.

What shall be said of the seventeenth century? At first the Puritans did for a time correct the wickedness of women. The sweet Priscillas somehow contrived to charm without any garish display of themselves. Puritan dress, however, is associated in our memories with the savageries of witch-burning, the silence of church-bells, and the suppression of games. All this produced the violent reaction of the Restoration period and eighteenth century. The less said about fashionable women's attire in those times, the better. See Hogarth's paintings.

The next phase was Victorianism. It was a somewhat priggish epoch, evolving such unparalleled atpocities of ugliness as the hoop skirt and the bustle. Of all old portraits those most deserving to be turned to the wall are the mid-Victorian. With a sort of shudder the ladies of the present age refuse to be like them at any rate, whatever may betide. The spirit of the present day is resentful of cramping tradition. Women will no longer be dolls. The censor who referred to "the painted dolls pacing the streets" saw not all of the matter. Many of these ladies are working for a living, and many are eager for a free, active, even athletic sort of life. Their dress is more sensible, more modest, than that of past centuries, more beautiful than fifty years ago. Doubtless there are imperfections, but haven't women always run to some madness of high heels, or high hats, or high cuffs or low necks? It is the eternal feminine.

At present "dress reform" seems to proceed in invarious ratio to the volume of criticism and protest now reaching boiling-point. But if the knee-skirt has fluttered the devotees of Morality, they have only to consider the flagitious history of apparel, or go down to the bathing-beach for consolation. And think, too, how the wicked audacities of the theatre have lost their lustre. Everything has its compensation.—London Advertiser.

Never Made a Mistake

The long-suffering professor smothered his wrath and went down into the cellar. "Are you the plumber?" he inquired of a grimy-looking person who was tinkering with the pipes. "Yes, guv'nor," he answered "Been in the trade long?" "Bout a year, guv-nor." "Ever made any mistakes?" 'Bless yer, no guv'nor." "Oh, then, I suppose it is quite all right. I imagined you had connected up the wrong pipes, for the chandelier in the drawing-room is spraying like a fountain, and the bathroom tap is on fire."

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

INTROSPECTION

Chapter 77.

Two wonderfully happy weeks passed. When one has been very near the edge of the precipice one breathes life in with keener joy. In coming so near to losing one another, Leonard and I were made more fully to realize what we meant to each other. A little leaven of pain in the cup of life enriches it—if the dose is not over large.

We both came to understand that the greatest pitfall in married life is the danger of taking things too much for granted. Love, faith, devotion, all are lost if they are left too much to themselves, are regarded too lightly and as a matter of fact. They need nurturing and will weaken and die entirely without it. Such a lesson learned is costly to the heart, but the value of its experience lies deep down within the soul.

It is always easier to understand difficulties and sorrows after they have passed by. Perhaps it was that perspective that gave me a keener and more honest insight into life and especially married life. I could look at Leonard's past experience and class it simply as human nature. It did not excuse the act, it explained it. I might have had the same experience myself, any one might. We are all human.

I had slipped into married life as so many guileless girls do, expecting to be blissfully safe, always and forever. Life is never like that. It is full of struggle, conflict, and progress. If you don't progress, someone else will at your expense.

Marriage is a game. It doesn't play itself. You have to do your part.

I could look back now and realize that the weak spot in our married life had originated in my attitude. I had been too cocksure. The great God doesn't like us to be too sure of anything. It would be too easy, and life isn't easy. If I had been more keenly mindful of my part of the game, Leonard would have been so greatly interested in my moves and plays that he would not have had time or desire to turn to another.

I wondered what thoughts Leonard was turning over in his mind. I would love to know—but I could not ask him. Neither could I tell him mine. It is not safe to think aloud or to tell one's weaknesses. Certainly not to one's husband.

I thought of Thierry Brunswick and how experience had unfolded life to him. I hoped he would find profit and not all loss through it. When a woman's faith is shaken, though it may be more vital and soul-deep to her, she usually makes it a specific instance. But a man's loss of faith spreads to every woman in general. He trusts none, he doubts them all forever afterwards.

Then I thought of Alva Fairchild. He was born to gamble, and especially with love and women. I could not give him much of my sympathy. Most likely he did not want it.

And Mrs. Darwood. She was an old hand and a master at the game. No wonder I had found her a difficult opponent. How I had hated her! Now I could look back on her and feel only pity. Did she need it? I wondered!

I was sitting by the front window in my room with some mending on my lap. I was dreaming, as usual. But now my dreams had happy endings and awakenings.

The verdant splendor of the trees spread a cooling shade down the length of the street. Two robins were building a nest in the maple tree by the front gate and my interest was about evenly divided between these homely efforts and my own, which at that moment consisted in trying to bring a torn button hole into some semblance of its natural and useful shape.

A motor car turned into the street with a luxurious little chug-chug. It stopped in front of the house. Then a long familiar leg was stuck out through the door and then another one followed it, while the owner of the legs and evidently of the car stepped out on the sidewalk, and with hands thrust deep in trouser pockets, stood admiring its glossy newness. Then a big, deep wonderfully dear voice called up to me at the window:

"Come on down and see how you like it."

Tomorrow—Happiness.

A Beautiful Roof that Wears for Years

ADD that touch of refinement—that tint of color—that improved appearance which increases the value of your home, by roofing it with

Brantford Asphalt Slates

A basis for anaylsis is given below:

1—INITIAL COSTS OF MATERIALS—Brantford Asphalt Slates are sometimes higher in initial cost for the material.

2—NAILS REQUIRED—Brantford Asphalt Slates require ONLY 684 nails to lay a square. Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates require ONLY 450 nails.

3—COST OF LAYING—Brantford Asphalt Slab Slates are four on one strip—require only one operation in handling, one operation in spacing—Individual slates are 8 x 12¼ inches—Cut easily, fit easily, fit on angles and bend over round surfaces. You save 30 to 50 per cent. in laying.

4—NO PAINT OR STAIN REQUIRED—The surface of Brantford Asphalt Slates is in nature's permanent colors, green and red, unfadeable, always attractive—requiring no stain to produce artistic effects, no liquid coats to make them fire-resistant.

5—SAVING OF INSURANCE—Brantford Asphalt Slates are classed as non-combustible by fire insurance companies—a direct saving of from 10 to 20 per cent. on premiums is effected. In certain localities fire regulations demand asbestos paper under some roof materials, but Brantford Asphalt Slates are fire-resistant and are immune from special regulations.

6—COST OF REPAIRS—From the day they are laid Brantford Asphalt Slate roofs show almost 100 per cent of the original roof untouched. Brantford Asphalt Slates do not curl, split, crack or rot. Complete protection and permanent protection are built into Brantford Asphalt Slate Roofs.

There are Brantford Roofs in your neighborhood. Look one up. You will be convinced that our roofs embody all the good features of other roofing without any weaknesses.

WHEN NERVES ARE NEAR EXHAUSTION

A TONIC SHOULD BE TAKEN TO ENRICH THE BLOOD.

When you become so exhausted after a day's work that you cannot sleep, or sleep fails to refresh you, it is time to look after your health. Failure to act at once means a steady drain on your health reserve, which can results in but one thing—a nervous breakdown.

Do not wait for a breakdown. The treatment is simple enough if you do not let your condition become too far advanced. The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring an effective tonic. As the nerves have to be nourished by the blood, the vital fluid must be built up. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in nervous troubles.

Mrs. Mary McAdam, Sydney Mines, N. S., is one of the many who has proved this tonic treatment. She says: "Last winter my health completely gave out. I was all run down and my nervous system in a condition that greatly alarmed me. I often had nervous headaches, and at times severe pains in the region of my heart. I felt as though I would never be well again. My husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before the second box was finished I began to improve, and under a further use of the Pills I felt as well as ever. I would advise all weak and nervous women to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

APSLEY CHILDREN ENGAGED IN MAKING BIRD HOUSES—RELIEF FOR DESTITUTE FAMILY.

APSLEY, June 14.—A meeting of the Municipal Council of Burleigh and Anstruther was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, June 1st, when there were present Reeve Brown, Councillors Tucker, Reid, Earnshaw and Matthews. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and signed, it was moved by Coun. Tucker and Matthews, that sheep accounts be paid. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Tucker and Reid, that William Windsor be paid $36 for work done on road, and also be allowed statute labor for 1921. Carried.

A motion by Coun. Earnshaw and Matthews, that the Council lay over account from William Windsor for statute labor done by him for W. H. Darcy was withdrawn.

That Frank McFadden lay out $250 by-law money on Jack's Lake Road.

That By-law No. 1 be read a third time, signed and sealed by the Reeve and Clerk.

Coun. Matthews and Reid reported they had inspected culvert built by George Lean, and timber, price of same approved, but repair work done by George Lean worth $5.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

Arch. Downing, sheep killed and costs, $29.70; Almond Harris, sheep killed and costs, $10.40; Isaac Lean, sheep killed and costs, $35.90; A. M. Booth, subpoenas for Divisional Court, $6.75; Wm. Windsor, work done on road, $5; Wm. Windsor, work for W. H. Darcy, $12; Lorne Northey, cedar for culvert, $3; George Lean, repairs to culvert, $5; Mel. Tucker, putting in new culvert, $7.

The Council then adjourned.

A very successful picnic, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Church, Owenbrook, was held on George Robson's grounds on Friday, the 10th inst. Delightful weather prevailed, and a big crowd assembled, who thoroughly enjoyed the programme of sports, football match and first aid and drill display by Girl Guides.

The young men of the neighborhood worked most assiduously for days to prepare the ground, and were quite successful, the result being an ideal picnic ground. The ladies also worked hard in providing eatables and serving at the tables, dinner and tea being well patronized, as also was the canteen, at which over sixty dollars were taken. About a hundred dollars was taken altogether. Part of the profit will go towards renovating the church and driving shed, and part to the Parsonage building fund.

At the close of the festivities the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, in a short speech, expressed his appreciation and thanks to all who had worked so hard in making this the first Church of England picnic in Owenbrook for many years, such a successful and happy event.

Entries in the bird-house competition are beginning to come in, the first two being received from Glenalda School, both being the work of girls. Further entries should be sent to the Rev. Mr. Spence, Apsley, as soon as possible.

Several entries are expected for the mile championship race for Chandos and Burleigh and Anstruther Townships, which will be run on the Church of England picnic grounds (Mrs. Grant's) on July 1st. A silver medal is the trophy that goes with the title. Competitors must be residents of the townships.

Marauders of some kind are still making havoc among the sheep. Archie Downing is reported as having lost four or five lambs lately. A large number, it is also reported, have been killed around Clydesdale. This time, it is said, the slayer is a mountain lion, which has been seen by credible witnesses.

Mr. J. Fitzgerald and party from Peterborough visited Apsley on Sunday and left a quantity of blankets and clothing at the Parsonage for the Marshall family, who lost everything when their home was destroyed by lightnig. Mr. Spence is forwarding the same on the first opportunity.

Mr. W. A. P. Grant ("Wap") is spending a short vacation with his mother.

Teaching the Blind a Trade

5

BRIGHT new vistas have been opened to blind men by the inauguration of workshops in various parts of Canada. But there are those blind whose inexperience prevented them taking up work at once in the workshops.

A shop was therefore established in Toronto a short time ago where blind men are apprenticed to a trade—such as basketry, netting, etc. When sufficiently expert at their work they are promoted to the broomshop or given the option of either following in their homes the trade they have learned or remaining permanently in the workshops.

The quality of the work is truly remarkable for its excellence; the blind men are independent and earning their own living, and they are happy and contented in their new usefulness.

This work must be extended, and we turn to you, in good faith, for your help. Subscribe to this noble cause and help lift the blind of Canada from their darkness into light and happiness.

FARM CONDITIONS IN ONTARIO

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture;

Fall wheat is heading out rather better than was expected, but there are some complaints of loose smut. Kent says that all grains are likely to be short in straw.

Red clover is not doing so well, being rather short in length, with the fields looking patchy in places.

On the other hand alsike as a rule is looking fine, and is now being cut for hay.

Simcoe reports that sweet clover is cut, and that silo filling from this crop will be general this week.

Peterboro' and Lennox and Addington say that owing to the expected failure of the hay crop there will likely be a larger area of millet sown than for years.

Haldimand reports that summer fallowing is being more practised this year than for several seasons.

Potatoes are coming along very satisfactorily, but the beetles are said to be unusually plentiful. The root crops are not so promising as some resowing had to be done.

Lincoln reports a heavy drop of fruit from peach trees during the past week.

Norfolk says: "Insects seem to be very bad this year. Grasshoppers are a real menace in some districts. Potato bugs are reported extra troublesome. Pea aphis made its appearance in very large numbers. Truck crops and small fruits have their annual visitors in larger numbers than usual."

Peel also reports regarding insect pests: "A ring canker worms have seems to be more plentiful this year, and is showing up considerably in new seeding as well as in the spring grain crops.

Cattle on pasture are generally in good form, and the flow of milk is generous.

York reports cream as selling on the basis of 25 cents a pound of butter fat.

Cheese sold on the boards in Peterboro' and Hastings last Friday at 14 1-4 and 14 1-8 per lb. respectively

Leeds reports that at present time pure-bred Ayrshire and Holsteins may be had at most reasonable prices owing to general conditions.

Prescott and Russell says: "At the first consignment sale of Holsteins at Navan under the auspices of the Russell county Holstein Breeders' Club, mature cows sold for $250, and the young stock from $35 to $65.

Welland states: "At a recent Shorthorn sale forty-three head averaged $180. Young stuff sold for considerable more than matured. Good individuals with good pedigrees sold well, demonstrating that there is always a good market for well bred individuals with the right conformation."

Hogs are selling at a comparatively low figure, $8 to $8.50 per cwt on foot being the prices quoted. The supply of bacon hogs on hand is much smaller than for year. Welland states that many farmers in that country have gone out of hog raising entirely. Young pigs are hard to procure, and relatively high in price.

Regarding farm labour, Norfolk reports a number of men looking for work, and remarks that there is difficulty in finding places for them. Welland also says that most farmers seem to be well supplied with farm help.

Mrs. A. Crawford Tells How Cuticura Healed Little Girl

"My little girl's trouble started with small pimples on the back of her head and they spread down her back. The pimples were hard and red and they itched and burned terribly. She scratched and irritated them and they later developed into sore eruptions. Her hair fell out and became thin and dry, and scales fell off on her clothing.

"I used a free sample of Cuticura and the pimples commenced to dry up. I bought more and when I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Alonzo Crawford, 83 Parker St., Bangor, Maine, Jan. 22, 1920.

For every purpose of the toilet and bath Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are wonderfully good.

ANNIVERSARY IN LAKEFIELD NEXT SUNDAY

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH PASSES ITS 55TH MILESTONE — VILLAGE PREPARING A BIG HOLIDAY EVENT.

LAKEFIELD, June 15. — Miss Amy Watson was the guest of her sisters in Peterborough for a day or two this week.

Capt. Boal, senior chaplain of the Navy Leaguee of Canada, was in the village on Tuesday.

Rev. S. F. Dixon left on Tuesday to attend the meeting of the conference of the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. Wm. King has returned from his holiday, which he spent with friends in Toronto.

Mr. Walter Chappell, who has done the work of the census enumerator in Lakefield, is nearly finished. He has made good progress.

Mrs. James Johnson and family are visiting Miss McFarlane at Young's Point.

Mrs. Wm. Webdale and Miss Mary, who have been visiting Mrs. Isaac Watson, returned on Monday to their home in Peterborough.

A Long Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Wm. Batten on Friday last was the largest ever held in Dummer and probably in the county. There were over a hundred motor cars, besides other conveyances. All honor was paid to a good woman, who was respected and loved by all who knew her.

Six nephews of Mrs. Batten were pallbearers, viz., Messrs. Henry and Ernest Batten, Andrew and Alex. Batten, Hillard and Richard Darling.

The interment was at Warsaw cemetery and the services were in charge of Rev. J. D. P. Knox, pastor of the Methodist church in Warsaw.

There were numerous floral tributes from the family and many friends Besides those of the husband, brothers and sisters and near relatives was a wreath from the Orangemen, a wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Sam McKibbin and family, wreaths from Mrs. George Payne and family, and bouquets from Mr. and Mrs. Walter. Mr. and Mrs. George Crowe, Mrs. M. E. Crowe, Miss Olive Clement and others.

Mr. Batten, who is known throughout the entire community, has the sympathy of everyone in the loss of his wife, who was truly a real helpmeet.

Navy League Representative.

The Navy League of Canada is the one and only organization in the Dominion that stands out as the upholder of sea power. It was sea power that made the British Empire what she is today, and Canada can do what the Mother Country has done. With her great supply of manufactured goods she will be able to reach the markets of the world. It is only a story of yesterday, when it was flashed across the seas that the largest shipment of wool from that far flung outpost of the British Empire, Melbourne, where one of the Canadian ships left with the largest cargo of wool for the Dominion of Canada.

The Navy League notonly looks after the interestsof shipping, but also the dependents of the men of the merchant marine. Seventeen thousand of them paid the extreme price and died that we might live. Forty-five thousand widows and orphans remain to be looked after. The sailors' institutes throughout the Dominion of Canada are looked after entirely by the Navy League. The following committee was elected for 1921 in Lakefield, viz., Mr. W. H. Casement chairman, Mr. J. F. Lillicrap vice., F. J. Burgess, S. T. Leggott, Reeve Strickland and Rev. F. Vipond, with Miss Graham, Misses Isabel Sutton, Mary Johnson and Jean Ridpath officers of the Junior Navy League.

The objective for Lakefield this year will be $100. At a later date Capt. Boal will return to Lakefield and put on his official pictures, the Surrender of the German Fleet.

Prepare For Celebration.

The committees in charge of Lakefield's old home day are greatly encouraged by the enthusiasm shown by citizens, not only in words but in deeds, which counts more. $150 in cash has been given in the village already besides about 30 prizes. Business men in Peterborough have given generously and the T. Eaton Company of Toronto, are giving a special prize. The Robert Simpson Co. of Toronto have given a case of silver as a special prize.

Mr. E. W. Bailey, manager of the local plant of the Canada Cement Co., has contributed a set of prizes for a tug of war between any teams who wish to compete.

The Lindsay Canoe Club will probably be present to take part in the regatta. The following is the schedule for the day, which promises to be a very full one, with something for everyone to do —a real community holiday:

9.15 a.m.—Football match, Lakefield vs. Sixteenth, Smith.

10.30 a.m.—Baseball. League game between Norwood and Lakefield.

1 p.m.—Opening of Memorial hall.

2.15 p.m.—Parade of organizations to dock.

2.30 p.m.—Regatta.

8 p.m.—Concert, Mutt and Jeff and Jiggs Co.

The Salvation Army Band of thirty-five pieces will be in attendance during the day.

The parade of organizations will be under the veterans' charge and will be unique and full of interest.

The Veterans and the Ladies' Auxiliary, the Rangers, the Navy League, the Scouts, the A.Y.P.A., the Firemen and Brotherhood and Sisterhood, to say nothing of the City Fathers themselves, will be asked to parade.

Lakefield's last parade was held on the 11th of November, 1918, when the signing of the armistice was celebrated in Lakefield in a loyal manner.

55th Anniversary.

On Sunday next St. John's parish celebrates the 55th anniversary of the building of the 'new' church. The occasion will be marked by suitable services both morning and evening. Few village parishes in Ontario have a more interesting record than that of Lakefield. The history of the Church of England in Lakefield is the history of the village itself. In 1852 the 'old' church was built on the banks of the Otonabee river and gradually around it God's acre grew up. The parish and village grew quickly and in 1866 the new church was built to accommodate the increasing population.

The bell of the old church called the volunteers to arms in 1866 at the time of the Fenian raid. Old timers tell of the call which came in the "wee sma hours," and the waggons containing the young men rattled off to join the larger body at Peterborough.

The 'new' church, too, has had its share in the history of the times and several historic services have been held within its walls, notably the Diamond Jubilee service in 1897. A good number of the third generation are attending St. John's Sunday after Sunday "as their fathers did of old."

RECLAIM 800,000 ACRES.

With This Objective Federal Government is Conducting Survey.

WINNIPEG, June 16.—(Canadian Press).—With the object of reclaiming about 800,000 acres in Carrot River district for cultivation, a survey has been started by the Dominion Government, according to Hon. Edward Brown, Provincial Treasurer, who returned from The Pas recently. The territory in question is subject to periodical flood by the Saskatchewan River, which overflows its banks for a distance of about 50 miles in some parts of the north. The prevention of flooding is an engineering problem, and if it can be solved splendid results should accrue, said Mr. Brown. A big staff has been put on to the survey.

Mr. Brown stated that Professor Wallace, Commissioner for the Northland, had gone to the Opasquai district with a representatives of the Saskatchewan Government to investigate the oil discovery made there recently. The district, part of which is in Manitoba and part in Saskatchewan, has every appearance of being an oil-bearing district, said the Minster.

Lowe Brothers

This paint film is less than 1\100 of an inch thick. What does that mean to you?

When you stop to realize that a two-coat film of paint is less than 1-100 of an inch in thickness, and that this thin film stands between your house and the weather, you can see the vitalness of buying the right kind of paint.

Lowe Brothers High Standard Paint forms a tougher film than any other paint we know of. It is elastic. It will not crack with the weather's changes. It is both weatherproof and waterproof.

It costs a little more than most paints, but it always covers more surface, therefore less paint is required and you actually save money at the very start. This fact, coupled with its long lastingness, makes it really an investment paint.

If you want to prevent future trouble, come in and talk over your paint problems with us.

JERSEY SUITS

A Great Clearance of All Our Suits of This Description!

Jersey suits! Be careless with them, scuff them about all day long and bring them out the next morning and they are fresh and new looking.

They Are the Most Sensible and Serviceable Garment for the woman who motors, boats or travels. On the street, too, they can hold their own when in competition with other stylish garments.

We Offer Every Jersey Suit We Have

and all are this season's, and all are well made and come up to our high ideas of what real suits should be. We want to lay stress on their quality and workmanship, for both are far above ordinary standards.

$17.95 Models for $12.75

These are heather mixtures and can be had with green, brown or tan tones predominating. The quality of the Jersey is surprisingly good for this money and the styles are quite smart—tuxedo collars, patch pockets, inverted pleat down the back, strap belt, two-piece skirt.

Also, two plain shades of taupe and tan in similar style.

$35 Models for $25

We present this model in two colors—one African brown, size 20; the other a rich purple tone, size 38. Both have a fawn tuxedo collar, and all their other characteristics are the same—inverted pleated back, narrow belt run through loops and patch pockets on the skirt and coat.

$35 and $37.75 Models for $27.75

These are more youthful, in color at least. The shades are rose and Pekin blue. They have notched tailored collars and their backs are panelled with three inverted pleats—one group on each side. The patch pockets fasten with buttons to match.

Another model at this price is in semi-Norfolk style and is taupe color. The back is panelled with side pleats. The front is semi-tailored and the collar is notched, narrow belt and patch pockets on skirt.

$42 and $45 Models for $32.50

The first impression you get is the color—it is dark sand; next you feel the quality of the Jersey and find it is good, unusually so. When you examine the style features you discover the back seams are finished with self strappings and ivory buttons to match, the pockets are slashed in the sides and the belt is of the string variety. The coat will button close to the throat if you wish to wear it that way. Size 20.

$42 Model for $32.50

The color is kangaroo shade and the back is panelled with two clusters of five half-inch tucks. The pockets are patch style in half-circle pattern and have the appearance of an extra flap; tailored notch collar and narrow belt. Size 18.

$42 Model for $32.50

Here is a heather mixture with Ensign blue as the predominating color and undershot with brown. The collar is tailored and notched. In the centre of the back is a series of ten side pleats—five on each side and coming to the centre. Notched collar, string belt and patch pockets fastened with a black bone button. Size 38.

Similar model with convertible collar and patch pockets finished with side pleats. Size 40. Delf blue undershot with brown.

$45 Model for $32.50

This one is somewhat tailored. The inverted pleated back gives this impression and the collar that fastens to the throat or rolls back like a lapel contributes to the tailored effect. The patch pockets are a novel arrangement. The color is Ensign blue undershot with brown. Size 18.

UTILITIES COMMISSION CENSURED FOR BUYING PUMPS IN SWITZERLAND

TRADES COUNCIL RECORD THEIR OPPOSITION TO PUBLIC BODIES PLACING CONTRACTS OUT OF CANADA THAT COULD BE FILLED HERE.

OTHER CRITICISM

Because they bought the pumps for the filtration plant from a firm in Switzerland contrary to the national business slogan advising Canadians to buy "Made in Canada" goods, the Utilities Commission drew a vote of censure from the Trades Conucil last night. Delegates declared that pumps as good and even better than the Swiss company's product could have been secured right here in Peterborough at the Wm. Hamilton shops.

T. J. Stenton enumerated instances in which the Hamilton pumps and pipes had demonstrated their superiority over other Canadian makes, and expressed the confidence that the Wm. Hamilton company could have equalled and excelled the machinery the Utilities Commission have ordered from Switzerland. Moulders and pattern makers were walking the streets and yet the Commission sent business to a European firm The difference in the tenders between these two firms was reported to be roundly $2,000.

"We were told by the Commission that even if the Wm. Hamilton company had got the contract most of the work would have been done in Sault Ste. Marie," Mr. Stenton continued. "I aswed about that around the shop and I was told that it was a lie. But even if it had been true, it would be better for Canadians in Sault Ste. Marie or any other town to get the work than to send it to Switzerland."

Keep Money Here.

J. Arthur Sharpe said that the drawings for the pumps went all over the world and could have been obtained by the Wm. Hamilton company. He asserted with emphasis that the Wm. Hamilton company could make beter pumps than the Swiss firm. The Peterborough factory had a reputation which it could not afford to lose. It could turn out cheap products if it so desired, but that wasn't the Wm. Hamilton idea. They would rather lose money than turn out inferior work. "The head man, Mr. Westbye, is one of the best engineers in the world," Mr. Sharpe continued. "I know he has been called to New York for consultation on important jobs, and also that his judgment has proved correct when other big engineers said that a certain work couldn't be done. We have as good engineers as there are anywhere and as good workmen too. I believe the Commission would have had a better job if they had placed the order here in Peterborough. But look at it from a Canadian standpoint. When they work goes to Switzerland they get our money and we get the pumps. But if some factory in Canada had the contract we would get the pumps and we would keep the money in this country."

The Council went on record as opposing the practice of letting contracts out of Canada, and also censured the Commission for placing this contract in Switzerland. Copies of the general clause will be sent to the Dominion and Ontario governments. "When two new street cars were bought for Peterborough the Hydro Electric Commission went to the United States for them," commented Mr. Sharpe.

Secretary Dodds advised the Council to withhold its censure in view of the fact that at the last meeting Mr. Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission, had explained the purchase of the filtration plant pumps apparently to the satisfaction of the delegates, but the motion carried.

City Council, Too.

After disposing of the Utilities Commission the discussion veered toward the City Council with the wind blowing warmly from the represenatives of the Labourers' Union. They complained that the Council singled out the city labourers' wages for a cut of fifteen cents an hour, but passed over the salaries of the department heads and other civic officials. The contractor on the Bank of Toronto job was reported to be paying labourers fifty cents an hour, but the Council chose to reduce the wages of their labourers in face of the seeming fact that the cost of living in Peterborough was the highest of sixty towns and cities in Ontario with one exception. It was stated that this comparison was based on the statistics from the Government's Labour Gazette. Bread in Belleville was said to be 18c. a loaf against 24c. here. Working men were expected to send their children to school decently clothed, they themselves and their wives had also to be respectably dressed, but rents were going up and the wages of the labourers were cut 15c. an hour by the City Council.

"I know one man who was offered a house with the pump outside and no lights for $22 a month, and another man, a labourer, had to pay $35 a month," said one of the delegates. "How can he keep a roof over his family and dress and send them to school with costs like that, and wages cut fifteen cents an hour? And on top of that is an increase in water-rates and the tax for the Hunter street bridge. It will drive people out of the city. A man can own a house with a big garden outside the city and pay about $18 taxes, but in the city he would have to pay $90 or $100 taxes on the same style of house."

The Utilities Commission's announceemnt of an increase in water charges of 80 p.c. was only mentioned in passing, but the public meeting on Friday night will likely find many of the Labour delegates up in the front row or thereabouts.

TRADITIONAL STRAW HAT OF BRITISH TAR TO BE SOON ABOLISHED

The British Admiralty has announced, reports The London Times, that it has been decided to abolish the sennet hat, the traditional straw hat of the British sailor.

CHURCH WASTES EFFORT BY MUCH INTROSPECTION

REV. BYRON STAUFFER SAYS TIME IS LOST DIAGNOZING OWN CASE

WHITBY, Ont., June 15. —"The church is like a sick man who spends too much time taking his pulse and reading his blood pressure," declared Dr. Byron Stauffer while preaching to the Bay of Quinte conference this morning. "We are too introspective, losing precious hours in diagnosing our own case and observing our own failures, some of which are non-existent. We have made some progress in a hundred years. Slavery, bear-baiting, lottery-playing, dramshop drinking and the more open forms of boisterousness are gone, and the church has had the leading part in their abolition. Why, then, do we denounce ourselves so bitterly? The church is like an old hen which has hatched out a family of ducklings and now sees her brood swimming across ponds where she cannot follow them. Our very reforms are the ducklings, and our alarm is in seeing these children of ours independent of thir parent. Why not quit worrying about it and go ahead and hatch out more ducklings?

Don't Decry Our Generation.

"Let us not think it a sign of piety to decry our own generation. The marvel of 1921 is not that society is so weak, but that it is so strong. The historian of to-morrow will note with praise that we have surmounted so many of the after problems of the most terrible test that civilization has ever endured. This is a wonderful age, and it is good to be alive and have a part in laying the beams of the new ship of progress."

Dr. Stauffer likened this present hour to the day when God told Elijah that He still had seven thousand in Israel who were on the side of purity and godliness. "Our seven thousand are middle-class people who keep the life of our commonwealth pure and clean. If you are sometimes alarmed at wicked Montreal and suspect that Toronto is following her eastern neighbor in dissoluteness, just recollect that between these two centres are three hundred and thirty-three miles of good-living people in our towns, villages and countrysides, people who go to bed at decent hours, wear modest apparel and maintain old-fashioned standards of home life. And these are constantly renewing the stream of our city life.

"Out in the country our young men are debating and investigating and planning. They are preparing to be to-morrow's statesmen, and they will give us a new sort of politician and parliamentarian. That is one of the bright phases of the present situation. It completely overflows the channel of the U.F.O. movement. If the church does not become broad enough and liberal enough to lead this new spirit, so much worse for the church.

JOHN ROBINSON'S CIRCUS HERE

FAMOUS NELSON FAMILY, America's Versatile Artists.

One of the Feature Attractions with the John Robinson's Circus.

John Robinson's Circus is in town to-day for two performances at the Exhibition Grounds, much to the delight of the small boy and elders as well. Circus Day is always a gala event in Peterborough, and the John Robinson's Circus is universally recognized as the oldest as well as one of the best on the road to-day.

Just at dawn the circus trains arrived over the Grand Trunk and was greeted by an army of small boys who forsook their beds in the chilly dawn to see the red wagons unloaded from the orange hued flat cars that make up the first section of the show train. There are fifty double length railroad cars required to transport the show paraphernalia, but in a remarkably short space of time, the trains were unloaded and a long procession of heavy baggage wagons was on its way to the Exhibition grounds, where an army of workmen started the work of erecting the tented city. There are fourteen tents in all and as if by magic where at dawn there was a peaceful race course, by nine o'clock a huge tent was gently swaying in the breeze. The largest tent, used for the big show, is 350 feet long and seats 10,000 people.

An Impressivce Parade.

Shortly before noon the grand free street parade was held and the streets were lined with interested spectators who commented most favorably on the wonderful spectacle. There was the gold-carved band and tableau waggons, the twenty open cages of wild animals, the gallant knights and fair ladies mounted on milk-white steeds, the rich and pictureque costumes and trappings, the huge lumbering elephants and camels, the funny clowns in grotesque costumes, the handsome dapple grey horses and cunning ponies, and then there was the monster blood-sweating hippopotamus, wallowing luxuriously in her tank of water in the massive open den drawn by eight horses. The always popular steam calliope shared honors with three bands of musicians who discoursed martial strains, and everybody was supremely happy, munched peanuts and had a fine time.

There was a large crowd attending to-day's matinees and all roads led to the circus. The Famous Nelson Family, the Nine Flying Wards, Tetu Robinson, the Royal Tamaki Japanese Troupe, the Chin Toy Chinese Troupe, Riding Hodginis with Joe Hodginis, comedy bareback riding act, the trained elephants, countless wire atnd trapeze acts, tumblers and gymnasts; the funny clown band tickled the crowd; dainty lady bareback riders and other wonders to behold.

Nearing Century Mark.

John Robinson's Circus is exactly 98 years old. Since 1824 it has toured America from coast to coast, and visited every large city. It has won the title, "The Aristocrat of Circusdom" by its modern equipment, everything being new except the name. Stakes are driven by automatic stake drivers, huge tractors haul wagons with ease, and the canvass is rolled on enormous "spool wagons." There are 1,058 people on the circus payroll; 516 head of the finest dapple grey horses in America; 410 arenic stars participate in the big show programme.

To-night's performance will start at 8 o'clock, with the doors opening at 7 for inspection of the menagrie. There are elephants, lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, monkeys, camels, llamas, Polar bears, Russian bears and other known wild animals, including Miss Congo, the $25,000 hippopotamus.

A concert will be held following the big show, in which Bill Leon, the Greek champion heavyweight wrestler, will meet any local man and offers a purse of $50 to any local heavyweight who can stay with him 15 minutes on the mat. He will accept the challenge of any local man. Arizona Bill's Wild West will also be seen in the concert.

OBSTRUCTION ON NEW BRIDGE'S SIDEWALK MUST BE REMOVED

TO BE REPLACED BY IRON RAILING ON "SAFETY ISLAND" IN PROTECTION OF PEDESTRIANS —IMCREASE IN ASSISTANT ENGINEER'S SALARY REFUSED.

BOARD OF WORKS MEET

The request of Assistant Engineer Geo. Perks for an increase in salary above the $1,700 he is now receiving, caused considerable division of the Council's Board of Works last evening, and resulted in no action being taken one way or the other.

City Engineer Parsons recommended Perks as being both faithful and efficient and Ald. Gordon and Hay moved that he be allowed an increase of $300 per annum, dating from July first.

Ald. Crowe opposed this proposition, as also did Ald. Turner, who thought it would be inconsistent to reduce salaries as was done at last council meeting, and now recommend an increase in this committee The cost of living is coming down, he said, and he would vote against Ald. Gordon's resolution, if for no other reason, on the ground that when striking the appropriations council decided to grant no increased salaries this year.

Ald. Gordon—"It only means $150 for six months, not much increase this year."

Ald. Hay—"And Mr. Perks is giving the service."

Ald. Jones here suggested that perhaps Ald .Gordon would amend his motion to reduce somewhat the increase embodied therein. Personally, he would not object to a little more salary for Mr. Perks, especially as he is a good engineer, and one whom it would cost considerably more than $1,700 a year to replace.

With the consent of Ald. Hay, Ald Gordon amended his motion to read that Mr. Perks get an increase of $200 per annum.

At this juncture Ald. Hamilton and Jones moved an amendment that the matter be laid over for subsequent consideration; but both this amendment and the motion failing to carry, no action was taken and Perk's salary remains as it was.

Street Pennants

Bandmaster Gliddon of the 57th Regiment Band, which is interested in the Chautauqua this year, asked permission that advertising pennants, 70 feet long, be strung across ten side streets so as not to interfere with traffic; and also that two boxes be placed, one at the corner of Simcoe and George streets and another on the corner of George and Charlotte streets; advertising Chautauqua talent.

Ald. Hay suggested that this request be allowed under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Ald. Hamilton—"You'll only be courting all kinds of trouble; similar requests have been refused other applicants."

Ald. Turner pointed out that such pennant, or streamers, interferred with the wires, and that there is a by-law prohibiting their use across the streets.

Ald. Hamilton — "I don't see the use of making laws and breaking them."

Ald. Gordon did not think the pennants would do any harm if strung high enough not to interfere with the wires; but he did not approve of advertising boxes or stands on the street corners.

Ald. Gordon and Hay here moved that the request regarding the pennants across the strets be granted

Ald. Turner and Hamilton moved in amendment that the request be not allowed.

The motion carried and the pennants will be permitted.

To Water street

Ald. Morrisons' proposition that McDonnel street, from Aylmer to Reid be watered was agreed to.

To Ald. Crowe, the City Engineer replied that the city has but two watering carts now that oil is being used so generally.

Remove Obstruction

On motion of Ald. Hay and Crowe, the obstruction on the north sidewalk of Hunter street bridge, facing the Quaker Oats platform leading into their building will be removed, and replaced by an iron railing or "safety island" in protection of pedestrians from vehicular traffic into the mills. This obstruction is the four inch lit for continuation of sidewalk) centring a driveway each side into the Quaker Oats building, which Ald. Crowe complained of last meeting of Council.

Ald. Hay raised this question last night and was insistent that the public at this point be adequately protected.

More Water Service

Ald. Gainey and Jones moved that the Utilities Commission be requested to lay a water main on Euclid avenue, and install a hydrant —Carried.

Sewer Connections

A request from John Mervin for sewer connection with his property in North Monaghan was sent to the Board of Health to report.

A recommendation from the Board of Health for a sewer on Townsend street, from Rubidge to Stewart, was sent to the City Engineer for report.

Pigeon Creek Bridge

As far as the city's interests in the Pigeon Creek Bridge, now dismantled, are concerned, the board, on motion of Ald. Crowe and Morrison, were satisfied that Dan Whetung should use a portion of it to construct a bridge across the channel to the Curve Lake Indian Reserve. The County Council has already agreed to this proposition, but the County of Victoria and the Dominion Government have also interest in the old structure.

Park street Drain

R. C. Braund's request for storm drainage and a concrete sidewalk on the west side of Park street, just below Albert street, after the ditch there is filled in, met with the sympathy of the board, athough they could not see their way clear to grant the request this year, not having anticipated such work in their appropriations.

City Engineer Parsons estimated the cost of the storm drainage—840 feet—at $2,747, and that of the side walk at $1,760. The sidewalk of course could be laid under the local improvement act, but surface drainage must first be provided, and the cost of such work would, under existing conditions have to come out of the board of works' appropriation, of which there is not sufficient in hand to allow of such an upprovided for expenditure this year.

Ald. Gordon moved that action be deferred; but Ald. Turner, suggesting that the work be done and debentures to defray the cost thereof issued after wards, wondered if Ald. Gordon would withdraw his resolution in consideration of this crying needs having been promised 17 years ago. Or, Ald. Turner would agree to deferring the matter were Ald. Gordon to amend his motion by assuring Mr. Braund that both storm drainage and sidewalk would be provided for next year.

Ald. Gordon —"I don't expect to be here next year."

On motion of Ald. Turner and Jones, the situation will be explained to Mr. Braund and he assured that the prosecution of the work will be recommended to next year's council.

The Little Lake Cemetery Company's request that roads in the cemetery be oiled on the same terms as last year was granted.

There were present chairman Ald. Whitehouse, and Aldermen R. Jones, J. J. Turner, G. L. Hay, Jas. Hamilton, N. Phelan, J. Crowe, R. Morrison, H. Gainey, G. N. Gordon and Mayor A. A. McIntyre.

LOCAL BERRIES LAG BEHIND THE TORONTO PRICES

GROWERS HOLD OUT FOR TOP FIGURE WHILE WESTERN MARKET TUMBLES.

Strawberries are on the downgrade. The old, old recurrence on the Niagara fruit farms has taken place. Without warning the market has been glutted with berries from Grimsby and the Peninsula and prices have gone smash in Toronto. Yesterday prices in Toronto dopped about 60 per cent., and towards the close of the day some of the shops were selling berries at two boxes for 25 cents. While Peterborough is not so fortunately situated, from the viewpoint of the householder seeking cheap berries, the crop will be low in price here once the Grimsby fruit comes in. "I expect to sell berries at 17 or 18 cents or two for 35 cents in a couple of days," a Charlotte street fruit merchant said to-day. Berries were selling in Toronto yesterday at 10 to 15 cents a box wholesale. This dealer said he could import berries laid down in Peterborough at 14½ cents a box and sell them at 17 or 18 cents and make enough to keep the wolf from the door.

A fruit dealer told The Examiner yesterday that the local berry growers were asking too much money. Claiming a poor crop, they refused to sell less than 23 to 25 cents a box, and he stated that the public would not stand for 30-cent berries when they saw them selling in Toronto at such insignificant figures. People want cheap berries and must have them, this dealer said. If they can be purchased cheaper in Grimsby he was going to buy them there and ignore the local growers till they came down in their demands. Most of the berries in the down-town shops were 25 cents a box to-day and practically all of the dealers were anticipating lower prices. The berry season is earlier compared to other years. This time last year berries were just coming in and the price was about 50 cents a box.

One dealer stated on Saturday he sold berries at 50 cents a box, today he was asking 25 cents, and he would not be surprised if they sold at 15 cents. The last few days of fine warm weather have hurried the berries along, and the rapidity with which the fruit has ripened apparently accounts for the strawberry congestion on the Toronto market. This flooding of the market has not been greatly alleviated by the commission men buying. In spite of a short crop, they believed there would be lower prices, because of the canners buying only in limited quantities.

SALTS IN HOT WATER CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN

Says we must make kidneys clean the blood and pimples disappear.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generally in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities ad clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

IT'S CIRCUS DAY, AGE-OLD THRILL STIRS OUR BLOOD.

Performance This Evening

Alarm clocks sang in homes all over the city this morning, sang a song as irresistible to little boys and girls as the thin, but potent notes of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, sang childhood's song of songs—"Circus Day."

For to-day is circus day, and the fact sends an age old thrill through youthful blood and blood that has long since lost the fire of youth. "Circus Day" smacks of Americanism. It is peculiarly American, for the circus, as it is known in this land of ours, grew up with the country. And, perhaps, that is why the thrill of circus day persists. It is in our blood.

So, alarm clocks sang this morning. Tousled heads tossed pettishly a moment and then their owners hopped out of bed with glad shouts. There were scamperings through hallways, pleadings with grownups to hurry, hurry, hurry. Then the swift journey to the railroad yards where long trains came to rest on sidings with sharp whistlings of engines, hissing of air brakes and gruff commands of bosses. John Robinson's Circus had come to town.

Four, six and eight-horse teams stepped down ramps leading from horse cars and were pulling the "cook-house" wagons, the stake and chain and heavy baggage wagons out of the yards in no time. Other teams towed tableau wagons, tarpaulin covered cages, in which mysterious animals muttered and growled, along strings of flat cars and down runs to waiting gray and dappled teams which hooked on to make the haul to the circus grounds.

From cars of special architecture lumbered and swayed huge elephants, no end of them, pair after pair of camels, sacred cattle, bison and behind them other weird looking animals that stalked along with small regard for the men who held to their halters.

Out at the grounds the feeding of the 1,200 people in the John Robinson family interested the crowds, that and the ever fascinating sight of a city of canvas springing into being. The parade, for which it is claimed that no more novel circus pageant has ever been assembled, started through downtown streets at 10 a.m. In it were seen seven bands and thus throughout the long and glittering animated spectacle there was music, the lilting, stirring music of the circus. The performance will be repeated this evening at 8. They open with a spectacular extravaganza, in which 1,000 people and 400 animals take part.

REVOLUTION TRADE DECLINE IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—(Associated Press).—The business of making a living by fighting seems to have undergone a decline in Mexico. This is indicated by the fact that 1,200 soldiers, some of them retired and some in active service, have asked the Government for tracts of land for small farming.

SNATCHED BY DOG FROM NEAR DEATH

WINNIPEG, June 16. — Snatched from the danger of death beneath a railway train by a big St. Bernard dog and restored to his parents' arms by its owner was the thrilling end of wee two-year-old Leo Lavoie's ramble through the woods near his home in St. Boniface recently.

The little lad was found fast asleep on one of the Union Stockyards' tracks by the St. Bernard, and with all the instincts of a true dog rescuer, the St. Bernard picked the child up and carried it out of harm's way to his master. Leo wandered away from his home at ten o'clock in the morning and was not found until 4.30 p.m. The child was saved from death by a narrow margin as the regular train would pass over the track about 5 o'clock.

WEEKLY EDITORS EXTOL BEAUTIES OF FAR WEST

PROCEED FROM LAKE LOUISE TO BANFF, WHERE THE C.P.R. ENTERTAINS THEM.

BANFF, Alta., June 15.—After leaving the glories of the Lake in the Clouds and Lake Louise, the C. P. R. Special carrying the Canadian weekly editors soon reached the wonders of Banff yesterday and remained until to-day, leaving for Calgary at 5. After enjoying dinner on the train they wended their way through the village to the delightful Banff Springs Hotel, where the general manager placed everything at their disposal, many immediately enjoyed the swimming pool, others lolled around and at nine o'clock dancing was provided in the ballroom and throughly enjoyed.

Some of the editors opined Lake Louise was glorious but Banff magnificent. To-day a special drive was provided by the C.P.R. to Lake Minnewanka, thence to the caves and the golf links and luncheon at the Hotel. In the afternoon pony riding was indulged in and the swimming pool proved one of the greatest attractions.

Mr. A. R. Brennan, proprietor and editor of The Journal, Summerside, and the newly elected Vice-President, in an interview said: "The Canadian wekly press association convention trip through western Canada should prove of inestimable value to the Dominion as a whole, while the vastness of the prairies, the grandeur of the Mountains, the powerful rivers and boundless forests impress themselves into one mighty whole for Canadians to mould into the greatest nation that yet has been. It also compels us to take a tighter grip on ourselves to develop a good national spirit that will do this on firm foundations for the future. The prairie provinces, as yet hardy touched in their agricultural possibilities, are a revelation to those seeing them for the first time and the fine towns and cities that have sprung up as by magic out of these vast stretches planning for the future and built in the most modern syle are a striking symbol of the Canadian spirit of doing things. For mighty grandeur, however, nature must win. The sight of the tremendous mountain ranges of British Columbia and Alberta fill one with awe at the titantic power there displayed and unfold themselves in an ever varying panorama to the beholder. The railroads traversing this country have chosen some of Nature's most wonderful beauty spots and have established there luxurious accommodation for those who desire either beauty of scenery of health resorts.

"Banff, where we are to-day staying, seems impossible to improve upon from either of these viewpoints Nature has been most lavish in its magnificence. The scenery and healing properties of its Sulphur Springs and health restoring atmosphere. Through the efforts of the C. P. R. these have been made available to those who would obtain health with their pleasure. This magnificent place could be made the Riviera in summer and St. Moritz in winter of this continent."

BUSINESS INTERESTS SKEPTICAL RE TRADE TREATY WITH SOVIET

Germans See No Hope of Considerable Trade With Russia.

COLOGNE, Germany, June 16 (Associated Press).—German business interests and the German press are extremely sceptical about the value of the preliminary trade agreement entered into with the Russian Soviet Republic by the German Government, and frankly declare there is little reason to hope for immediate trade with Russia on any considerable scale.

The fact that the Soviet Republic still insists upon monopolising all import and export business and had the preliminary trade agreement written with that object in view, confuses German business men, who profess to be unable to comprehend the document.

While the Soviet Republic takes to itself the rights and functions of a business corporation, it also holds to the well established international principle that a government cannot be sued, but endeavours to reassure business men who desire to do business with it by including in the preliminary agreement a stipulation that dealings between the Russian Government and German firms and individuals in Russia are to be controlled by an arbitration court.

In discussing the agreement, the Cologne Gazette says: "This is the first step toward readjustment of business relations, the final step being still far in the future. Nevertheless, it is a step forward, and others must necessarily follow. The new agreement means that the two business delegations — in Moscow and Berlin—must be essentially enlarged and clothed with more authority. An urgent warning should be issued against false hopes of great commercial advantage.

"The German business men who put their faith in this agreement can have no guarantee of personal or property security, for the interpretation can be so distorted by the mental gymnasts of the red republic as to divert wholly its purpose. There is insufficient security offered for German life and property, which will in every instance be at the mercy of Bolshevik commissars."

PILES AND PILES OF GOLD.

Will Take a Full Month to Count Gold in the U.S. Assay Office.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The largest amount of gold and gold certificates ever assembled in one place in the U. S. is now being counted piece by piece and note by note by four of the fastest counters in the employ of the U. S. Government. The counting is expected to take one month.

The task is to check up and determine the amount of gold and currency in the U. S. assay office here, and was necessitated by a change in superintendents of the office. Neither Verne M. Bovie, the outgoing superintendent, nor Isaac H. Smith, who succeeds him, would give the value of the money in the vaults, but it is known to exceed $1,000,000,000.

Finely Built to the Least Detail

There is so much enthusiastic comment on the fine Chalmers motor, that other excellent Chalmers features seem to be taken for granted.

But they are worthy the careful consideration of all motor car buyers. For here is a car that is finely built to the least detail. Engineering and car building experience have applied themselves in masterly fashion.

Design and Finish Beautiful

Every element of beauty and style is incorporated in the Chalmers.

The wonderful motor is satin-smooth in its pickup, starts easily, and warms up at once. The car rides with remarkable ease and comfort.

Thus the Chalmers has earned a name enviable among really fine cars.

The Fuel is Pre-Heated

The Chalmers motor has played its important part in winning this reputation. Fuel is pre-heated by the hot-spot. This means greater mileage on gasoline; and very much better motor performance for longer periods without overhauling.

We invite you to investigate the Chalmers and permit us to demonstrate superiority.

WEIRD DECISION ROBBED THE PETES OF GAME AT PORT HOPE YESTERDAY

PORT HOPE FINISHED IN FRONT 3 TO 2, BUT PETERBORO CLUB HAS PROTESTED GAME BECAUSE OF RAW VERDICT BY UMPIRE HENDERSON.

A rank decision by Base Umpire Jack Henderson of Port Hope that was utterly against the rules of baseball robbed the Petes of a chance of victory in yesterday's Central League game at Port Hope, and the Ontarios finished in front 3 runs to 2. The game has, however, been protested by the Peterborough team, and as Umpire Henderson's decision was absolutely wrong, the Central Ontario League executive can not, in justice, take any other course than to order the game repiayed.

The play that caused all the trouble was as follows: In the first half of the seventh innings with Port Hope leading by 2 to 1, Cherrett of the Petes was on second base and Murray on first base with nobody out. Ray Rose was at bat and hit a foul on which the runners started to move up, returning towards second and first respectively when they saw the ball was foul. The ball was returned to the pitcher, who delivered the ball to the batter. Then the Port Hope second baseman called for the ball and it was thrown out to him. Cherrett, who was standing on second base, was tagged and Umpire Henderson called him out because he had not touched second base after the foul hit. The decision was ridiculous. One the ball was delivered to the batter there was no chance of a play on Cherrett on this point, and to make the verdict more of a farce he was standing on the bag when called out. The Petes complained long and vigorously, but to no avail, although Jack Rosevear, Johnny Rowden and other Port Hope baseball enthusiasts called the decision a raw one.

The effect of Umpire Henderson's mistake was to rob the Petes of one sure run and the chance of making more, for immediately after the play Ray Rose doubled, scoring Murray from first base. Cherrett, who was wrongfully called out, would have of course scored on that hit and the Petes would have had two runs in and a man on second with nobody out, instead of one run and a man on bases with one out.

The game itself was a snappy exhibition of baseball, marked by fast fielding on both sides. Dear, who pitched for Port Hope, and Lornie Rose for the Petes, both delivered a nice article of ball, each allowing seven hits, while their support was good. The only unearned run was Port Hope's third counter, for which Micky Murray paved the way by a wild throw to first.

Carelessness on the bases cost the Petes at least two runs. One was lost in the first when Cherrett fell off second after stealing the base cleanly, and Pinnette also threw another way in the second when he lost a two-base hit by failing to touch first base, Lornie Rose following this play with a double.

The fielding features included a one-handed catch by Guy, the Cobourg second baseman, which saved a couple of runs, a beautiful catch by Fair in centre field which robbed Cherrett of a double, and a great stop by Ray Rose who robbed Moise of a hit by diving for his hot grass cutter.

First Innings.

Peterboro—Cherrett walked but died stealing when he slid over the bag. Murray walked. Ray Rose sacrificed; R. Chalk to Hills. Ross singled through short, scoring Murray. Jackson fanned. One run, one hit, no errors.

Port Hope—F. Chalk walked and stole second as Guy fanned. Moise doubled to right centre, scoring F. Chalk, but died at third trying to stretch his hit into a triple. Kirn to R. Rose to Murray. R. Chalk rolled to Murray. One run, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Peterboro—Pinnette hit to right for two bases but was called out for cutting first. Kirn rolled to Moise. L. Rose doubled to right. McCarney flied to Moise. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Port Hope—Friar drew a pass. Hills sacrificed. Murray to Jackson. Fair fanned. Carter singled to left, scoring Friar. Dear struck out. One run, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Peterboro—Cherrett singled past third and was forced at second on Murray's bunt to Dear. R. Rose walked. Ross died; Dear to Hills. Jackson flied to Moise. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Port Hope—F. Chalk singled over second. Guy sacrificed. L. Rose to Jackson. Moise singled to right, and Kirn's good throw held Chalk on third. Moise tried to go to second on the toss to the plate and was caught between the bases, and as the Petes started to run him down Chalk attempted to score, but was headed off, Moise going to second, while Chalk was being retired. R. Chalk flied to Pinnette. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Peterboro — Pinnette was hit. Kirn sacrificed, Dear to Hills. L. Rose flied to Friar. Dear tossed out McCarney. No runs, hits or errors.

Port Hope—Friar singled over short. Hill sacrificed. Fair lined to R. Rose. Carter was called safe on a tap to R. Rose. Dear fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Peterboro—Cherrett singled to second and stole second, Murray walked. R. Rose was called out on strikes. Ross fanned. Guy pulled down Jackson's drive with his gloved hand. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Port Hope—F. Chalk rolled to Jackson. Cherrett tossed out Guy. Moise was safe on Murray's fumble. R. Chalk walked. Friar fanned. No runs or hits, one error.

Sixth Innings.

Peterboro—Pinnette beat out a roller to short and went to second on Moise's high throw. Kirn flied to Friar. L. Rose grounded to Hills, Pinnette going to third. Guy tossed out McCarney. No runs, one hit, one error.

Port Hope—Hills rolled to Murray. Fair fanned. Carter popped to Cherrett. No runs hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

Peterboro—Cherrett beat out a bunt and stole second. Murray walked. Then with Rose at bat came Umpire Henderson's weird decision, already explained, Cherrett being called out. Rose doubled to centre, scoring Murray. Ross flied to Friar and Rose was doubled off second. One run, two hits, no errors

Port Hope — Dear popped to L. Rose; F. Chalk flied to Kirn. McCarney grabbed Guy's fly to centre. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Peterboro—Jackson fanned, Pinnette hoisted to Guy. Kirn was thrown out by Dear. No runs, hits or errors.

Port Hope—Ray Rose made a great stop of Moise's fast one, and got the runner at first. R. Chalk walked and stole second. Dear hit to Murray who threw high to first, Chalk going to third and Friar to second. Hills singled past Murray, scoring Chalk. Fair fanned. Carter rolled to R. Rose. One run, one hit, one error.

Ninth Innings.

Peterboro—L. Rose fanned. McElroy batted for McCarney and also whiffed. Fair made a great catch of Cherrett's fly to deep centre. No runs, hits or errors.

ZION WINNERS IN GAME WITH DOURO

OTONABEE LADS NOW TIED WITH NORWOOD FOR SECOND PLACE

Hard hitting and several smart fielding plays featured the East Peterboro league game at the Riverside Park last evening, Zion taking the honors by a score of 9 to 7. The contest was interesting and well contested all along the line.

Catches on speedy line drives by Connors at second base, and Rice in the box, were conspicuous in the play by the winners. The Zion team is improving rapidly, and it will be a hard nine to beat in the games of the second half.

Score by innings—

Douro ....0010213—7
Zion ....110313x—9

The line ups:

Douro — Coughlin 1b; Heffernan, ss; R. O'Brien, 2b; F. O'Brien, rf; Kelly, lf; Walsh, c.; Leahy, p.; English, 3p.

Zion — Shaughnessy, cf; Connors, 2b; H. Crowley, c; Clancy, rf; Jackson, ss; B. Crowley, lf; Close, 3b; Coughlin, 1b; Rice, p.

Zion and Norwood are now tied for second place. A win for Lakefield at home to-day against Keene, will tie Keene, Norwood and Zion, with two wins and a loss each.

BELLEVILLE BEATS SCUGOG CREW 9 TO 1 IN EASY FASHION

LINDSAY, Ont., June 15.—(Special.)—Belleville defeated Lindsay here to-day by 9 to 1, the great work of "Fred" Goyer in the box for the visitors doing the trick. Lindsay played a poor game in the field. Both pitchers showed class, and Oulette deserved much better support. He struck out 9 while Goyer "fanned" 12.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To Editor of The Examiner:

A special meeting of the Peterborough Football Association was held last night in the G.W.V.A. Hall to deal with the case re suspension of players.

I was instructed to contradict the statement in the press, as such was not authorized by any members of the Executive.

The minutes of the previous meeting were never rescinded, and, therefore, the business was illegal, in regard to these players' suspensions being reduced, and the matter will be dealt with fully at the Executive meeting on Monday next.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Football Association.

FRED. SUTCLIFFE,
Secretary.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

"NOT GUILTY."

Just suppose you had a twin brother. That while you were boys playing with firearms you accidentally shot your twin in the head and the surgeon said the wound had affected his sense of right and wrong, and later he shot a man, would you change identities with him and become an outcast, especially when you were in love with the "only" girl in the world?

Perhaps you would and then again you might not. Anyhow you cannot help following the sacrifice and subsequent thrilling adventures of Richard Dix, who plays the part of the noble brother, with breathless interest. "Not Guilty," the feature which opened at the Allen Theatre to-day, is a Sidney A. Franklin production, presented by Albert A. Kaufman and released by Associated First National Pictures, Inc. It is pulsating drama from the opening scene to the finish. It is not just the buttoning and unbuttoning of life, but presents a drama which led one patron, as overheard, to remark: "Truth may be stranger than fiction, but this photoplay is stranger than either." What he meant to express was that while "Not Guilty" was the screen version of Harold MacGrath's exciting novel, "Parrot & Company," the director had made even a better picture than the material in the novel afforded. Sylvia Breamer as Elsa Chetwood gives a pleasing performance of the girl who loved both twins and finally gave herself to the one who, in the eyes of the world at least, was a murderer. "Not Guilty" is just the kind of drama skilfully interpreted as it is by a well-balanced cast to please the discriminating patron of the eighth Art.

"THE SON OF TARZAN."

"The Son of Tarzan," by Edgar Rice Burroughs, the author of the famous Tarzan stories, will be presented at this theatre in serial form to-day. This is the world's wonder jungle serial, abounding in virile action, daring rescues, thrills, suspense; pulsating with romance and adventure.

Korak, the Killer, the son of "Tarzan," from boyhood wanders in the heart of the African jungle, battling with ferocious lions, tigers, baboons, savage black and sinister Arabs. With him always is his little sweetheart, Meriem, a girl of the wilds. Garbed only in leopard's skin, they grow to manhood and womanhood and love.

It is a picture you can't afford to miss.

Yours very truly,
MANAGEMENT,
Allen Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL.

FAIRBANKS GOES SMASHING THROUGH FIVE REELS OF THE UNIQUE STORY

His Latest Production is Creating a Sensation—Big Comedy and Bicycle Act Also.

In "The Nut," Douglas Fairbanks' fifth production for the United Artists, the star has a vehicle that is absolutely made to order. it is not picturized from some widely-read book or famous stage play, but is an original story written especially for the occasion by Kenneth Davenport, and the screen adaption was prepared by William Parker and Lotta Woods under "Doug's" own supervision.

The management of the Capitol Theatre announces that Fairbanks' admirers will have an opportunity to view this versatile actor's work from an entirely new angle when the picture opens to-night. Not only does he go smashing and crashing through five reels of complicated comedy-drama, but he portrays emotion that has a heart touch in it. The trend of the story carries him from the sublime to the ridiculous, and although much that he does is grotesque there is never a time, it is said, when he does not win your sympathy with his antics.

"The Nut" is especially notable because it is essentially a studio product. Although the story material was assembled and the plot worked out three thousand miles from the scene of production, yet the actual taking of the picture was accomplished on the Fairbanks' "lot" in Los Angeles. Not a single scene was "shot" outside the studio. All the elaborate exteriors, including several Greenwich Village streets, in addition to many lavish interiors, came out of the studio carpentershop and the business office checkbook.

This feature introduces, in addition to the play itself, another Fairbanks-made product, which in this case happens to be Ted Reed, the director. Schooled as assistant on a number of Fairbanks' productions, Reed now comes forward as a graduate meganhone-toter. His work in the preparation of "The Nut" is said to stamp him as a production conductor of no small ability.

The balance of the program will include a big sensational trick comedy bicycle act from the Keith circuit, Hughes & Hoffman. This act has lots of laughs, and some clever dancing by Miss Hughes.

She was in the stage play "Daddies" for two years. Lorena's parents were on their way from Australia when, at Honolulu, a motion picture director wanted her for a play. The parents could not remain; but the enthusiastic director gave them letters to managers in New York—saying he didn't want the latter to miss a chance of getting Lorena first.

HAY CROP LIGHT IN DISTRICT OF KINGSTON

Farmers in the districts around Kingston reeport that in most places the hay crop will be very light and there will be practically no clover. There are certain sections of the country where a fair supply of clover is to be found, but generally speaking it will be a very light crop. The reason for the small crop of hay, the farmers state, is due to the open winter. The prospects for a record crop of grain are exceedingly bright, especially so should the country be favored with rain during the next few days.

UNDULATING DANCERS STOP WHEN GOOD MUSIC BEGINS.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Chicago's Episcopal clergy found out to-day how to take the wiggle out of the poetry of motion.

The ministers, who met to-day to devise means of cleaning up dancing, called in Louis J. Guyon, proprietor of the "Paradise," one of the largest dancing halls in the country.

This is what he told them:

"I agree with you that some of the dancing of to-day is too raw—to put it mildly.

"I have seen some of our sons and daughters dancing at church balls, colleges and society functions in such a way that they should at least have had a marriage license before stepping on the ballroom floor.

"We all know the effect on the morals of boys and girls who wiggle cheek to cheek on the ballroom floor. And parents stand by and watch that sort of thing.

"Dancing is the poetry of motion. It is as natural to dance as it is for the sun to shine. Dancing itself is not wrong, but we object to its abuse.

"Let's cut out jazz music. People do not dance indecently to good music. I tried an experiment at my academy by playing a jazz number. In 60 seconds the dancers were wiggling and twisting in indecent positions—doing everything but dancing. It had the same effect as five big drinks of whiskey.

"There is nothing wrong with the morals of the boys and girls of to-day. Youth imitates. Let the society leaders quit dancing indecently and our youth will soon forget all about it.

"Clean up the dancing in so-called high society and all dancing will be clean."

Guyon allows nothing but the old-fashioned dances in his academy.

WAVE OF VIOLENCE.

Human Life of Little Value in the Big Cities.

NEW YORK, June 16. — Human life, cheapened in the world war, has not regained its value, according to the murder statistics in despatches to the United Press to-day.

Chicago and New York, the country's largest cities, led all others in the number of murders for the first six months of 1921. Despite the difference in populations, Chicago reported more violent deaths in that period than did New York. The totals for 1920 were not far apart, Chicago having 302 for that year, and New York, 344.

LIBRARY SOR THE SIGHTLESS A BALM FOR 7,000 MEN AND WOMEN

A BLESSED WORK THAT HAS BEEN GIVEN GREAT IMPETUS BY SEVERAL SOLDIERS BLINDED IN THE WAR—A LIGHT IN LONELY PLACES THROUGHOUT CANADA.

"Faith, I'm not jokin'."

"'Tis the bhoys—the raw bhoys—that don't know what a bullet manes, an' wudn't care av they did—that dhu the work," said Pte. Mulvaney, chief of Kipling's soldiers three.

And it's the boys—the raw boys—who have sacrificed their sight in learning what a bullet means who are showing this country how to help the blind civilian population.

When two of these sightless heroes came home in 1916 there was absolutely nothing for non-sighted adults in Ontario or the Maritime or Western provinces, except the small Canadian Free Library for the Blind in West Toronto and two local shops for men, one in Ottawa and the other in Montreal.

No Niche Here For Him.

That little barque had been launched in Markham, Ont., in 1907, by Mr. E. B. F. Robinson, a blind man touched with a feeling for the infirmities for others.

"Bert" Robinson was a brilliant student. He graduated with honors from Trinity University, wrote a book called "The Sphere of the Blind," was appointed a school trustee in Markham and played whist like a wizard. But he wanted work. Time hung on his hands.

It did not take him long to learn the Morse characters clicking in the village telegraph office. Unfortunately for him the touch system of typewriting had not then been evolved and he knew no way to transcribe a message legibly. He could not apply his knowledge. There was no occupation he could follow, no place for him in Canada's vocational plan. He had "nothing to do." So while still a young man he slipped away to the Great Beyond.

They Opened Our Eyes.

That was before the war—before blinded heroes from its shambles fought the fallacy that the sightless should be shoved aside as useless—doomed to idly sit in darkness.

In 1917-1918 the Hydro-Electric Commission's trouble report records were typed by a blinded soldier. These were taken from a dictaphone and typed so flawlessly they stand as a pattern for all sighted successors.

Little Craft Lurching.

Canadians, who early in the war gave their sight to keep clear the world vision of the right of small nations, learned in England to read the embossed Braille system for the blind.

Returning home in 1916 they feasted on the literary cargo of the little craft launched by the Markham man. That free library had been moved in 1910 to Toronto. It did not take them along to discover there the small ship was making heavy weather of it. There were not nearly enough books aboard and insufficient funds for wharfage upkeep or fresh cargo.

Knew Need and Got Gold.

Corporal A. G. Veits, P.P.C.L.I., and Captain Edwin A. Baker, M.C., Croix de Guerre, both completely blinded, became directors of the library board.

Young, enthusiastic, clever, and both actively engaged in business despite the terrible toll that war had taken from them—they applied their energy to the improvement of the libarary. Asking nothing for themselves, their eloquence was all the more convincing. They, the blind, made people see what it meant to the 7,000 sightless men and women, many living in isolated places, to be without companionship of books.

An' All Pull Together, Boys.

Women's organizations that had nobly helped the library before, redoubled their efforts. Other clubs joined the good work. Individual contributors were increased. One financier became so interested he not only wrote substantial cheques, but added freely time and concentration that helped materially the library's organization.

It floated proudly in February of 1917 from basement quarters in the city's western limits to a suitable house at 142 College Street, remodelled and fitted for the purpose.

All For Two Cents.

That was just the beginning of its success. Now, with its 9,000 volumes, it is the second largest on the continent and has the most varied circulation.

Since becoming the Library and Publishing Department of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in February, 1919, news of its accessibility has been published far and wide.

Light in Lonely Places.

What these books mean to sightless people, "cribbed, cabined and confined" in small hamlets or lonely farms where nothing is provided for their teaching can not be even guessed. All access to the library costs them is an initial outlay of two cents on a postal card asking that a book be forwarded,

Don't Pay Postage.

The Government carries the books free through the mail, both to and from the library.

Students and foreigners alike are furnished from its shelves with French, German, Spanish and Italian volumes, and music in the various embossed systems is also indexed there.

Regular Safety Deposit.

You who have lent books, and you who have lost them, listen to this and learn how the sightless treasure a volume.

In eleven years the library has lost its only eight books. These went astray in the mails.

Came Into His Kingdom.

If there is a happy and exultant man in Toronto, it is Mr. Sherman C. Swift, M.A., the librarian.

With a faithful few he labored long trying to keep afloat the half-foundering little library before the soldiers manned the ship.

It was in a "rough school of billows, storms and seas" this pilot learned his art. Although blinded by a powder explosion when only seven, he took a B.A. degree at McGill University and specialized in modern languages. He speaks French, German, Italian and Spanish fluently, and is an accomplished pianist.

Patted and Pushed Aside.

Mr. Swift wanted to be a school teacher, and with that goal ahead took his M.A., at the Faculty of Education, Toronto, passing with honors.

Though Mr. Swift was deflected from his early ambition to become an educationalist he is nevertheless firmly convinced of the practicability of teaching as a profession for those without sight. Clearness of vision in the mind's eye is the great essential requirement. The blind educator, while laboring under a handicap himself really stans as an object lesson in perseverance and application. Other blind educators have made and are continuing to make a lasting impression on the minds of their students, among these are numbered Prof. A. T. Barnard, who occupies a position at the Robertson Theological College, Edmonton, Alberta. Prof. Barnard obtained his degree at Queen's University and after officiating in an Ontario pastorate for several years was elected to his present position. Mr. Charles McInnes, a Canadian was educated in the Halifax School for the Blind, Dalhousie University and Oxford University, England, taking high standing throughout. He now occupies the Chair of History in the University of Bristol. Mr. Swift, however, was drawn to the library work and took it up with enthusiasm, evem under the great difficulties existing at that time.

The "the bhoys—the raw bhoys"—the brave blinded boys came home! They gave this storm-tossed voyageur the chance he wanted. He has work now worthy of his hand.

The Library Department is but a tributary of the activities of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, a far-sighted miracle-working institute, started by five charter members, with only one pair of sighted eyes in the lot.

Strong men and fine women are working whole-heratedly with them. They are making the prevention of blindness a national work and the finding of occupation and entertainment for sightless citizens an imperative necessity. They are showing Canadian people and governments a long neglected duty.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 16.—(Canadian Press).—Stocks rallied briskly at the active opening of to-day's trading, shorts covering hurriedly on favourable developments announced after the close of yesterday's session. These included a lower commercial discount rate fixed by the local Federal Reserve Bank and the declaration of the regular Northern Pacific dividend. Northern Pacific soon gained two points, while Great Northern, Louisville and Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, New York Central, Reading, Balitimore and Ohio and Texas and Pacific advanced one to two and a half points. Mexican Petroleum, yesterday's weakest feature, made an initial rally of three points. Pan-American Petroleum rose 2 1-2, "B" stocking rising 3 1-2. Baldwin Locomotive, Studebaker and American Sugar were among the other strong issues.

The greater part of the early advance was cancelled within the first hour, extreme heaviness being shown by various specialties, particularly Sugars and Tobaccos. Steels, Equipments, Shippings and Chemicals also gave way. American Sugar, American Tobacco, Sumatra Tobacco, Bethlehem, Crucible and Replogle Steels, Pullman, Chicago-Pneumatic Tool, Atlantic Gulf, Mercantile Marine Preferred and Industrial Alcohol fell one to four points. Just before noon Mexican Petroleum became the centre of another severe drive, selling down to 113 on a further reaction of four points. Studebaker and American Woollen also were weak. Call money opened at 5 1-2 jer cent.

Specialties as well as the leaders of the Steel, Equipment and Motor groups became increasingly heavy during mid-session with oils. Mexican Petroleum reacted to 111, three points under yesterday's low record.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Bullish crop reports led to sharp up-turns to-day in the price of wheat. According to a leading expert prevailing conditions in South Dakota were such as would be likely to make a black rust plague develop. An extra well known authority reported that the wheat crop in Ohio and Indiana showed huge areas but suffered permanent injury. Demand was also promoted by decided advance in foreign exchange. Opening prices which varied from 1-4 to 1 1-2 lower were followed by a rapid rise much above yesterday's finish.

Corn ascended with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1-4 lower, the market scored a material advance all around.

Oats were stronger in line with other cereals, starting 1-8 off to 3-8 up and then continuing to harden. Provisions sympathized with grain, despite lower prices in the hog market.

B. C. GOLD OUTPUT INCREASED.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 16.—British Columbia's output of gold is expected to reach a value of $3,500,000 in 1921, an increase of a million dollars over 1920. The Rossland mines, which yielded $600,000 last year, are expected to yield $1,500,000 this year. The Surf Inlet mine, on Princess Royal Island, should run to $1,000,000 and the Premier mine on Salmon River should get into full operation very soon. The Granby Smelter at Anyox will probably produce $200,000 worth of gold as a by-product of its copper ores, and there are several gold mines now in operation, such as the Sheep Creek, Bridge River, Bedwell River and Coquihalla River properties.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 16.—(Canadian Press.)—City Dairy Common by a sharp advance to 80 featured the trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Transactions in other stocks showed further unsettlement, especially in issues that have been active during the recent trading. City Dairy stood at 70 bid at the close of yesterday afternoon's session and the first sale this morning was made five points higher. A further gain of five points was made before the close on very light transactions. Riordan established another low record by falling 1 1-2 points to 71 1-2, while Consumers Gas was quite weak at 65 3-4. Substantial fractional recessions were made by Bell Telephone at 102 1-2, Spanish River at 62 1-2 and Toronto Railway at 75 1-2.

TAKING STEPS TO FORM ORGANIZATION TO DEVELOP EMPIRE COTTON GROWING

NEW BODY, WHICH IS PERMANENT, WILL BE EMPIRE COTTON GROWING CORPORATION TO FURTHER ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE OF BRITISH EMPIRE BY INCREASING COTTON PRODUCTION.

LONDON, June 15.—(Canadian Press).—Steps are being taken to establish a permanent British organization for the purpose of developing cotton growing within the Empire. This permanent body, incorporated under royal charter, will be known as the Empire Cotton Growing Corporation. One of the Board of Trade items appearing in this year's budget includes a provision of 50,000 pounds sterling for the development of cotton growing in the Empire, as compared with the item of 10,000 pounds sterling appearing in last year's budget. It is understood that one of the first steps to be taken by the new corporation is the selection of cotton experts—men of wide experience in tropical agriculture.

The stimulation of cotton growing within the Empire represents a reaching out toward economic independence in the matter of raw material. Cotton manufacturing is one of the fundamentals of Britain's industrial power. Other European countries have gradually developed cotton manufacturing, but Great Britain holds the lead and its industry is increasing. In the 20 years preceding the war Great Britain's spindles had increased 16,700,000, as compared with an increase of 15,500,000 in the United States and 15,200,000 in all Europe.

Roughly speaking, three-fourths of the cotton spun in the United Kingdom is for export trade. Out of 411,000,000 pounds sterling, which represents Great Britain's total manufacturers sold abroad in 1913, 124,000,000 pounds sterling consisted of cotton yarn and goods.

Throughout the last 120 years, or since the cotton industry was first organized in factories in England, Britain imported approximately three-fourths of the total quantity of its raw cotton supplies from the United States; the remaining one-fourth came from India, Egypt and the British West Indies. By increasing the yield of raw cotton within the Empire, Great Britain will become economically less dependent upon the United States, and an important step will be taken toward uniting the constituent units of the Empire through the exchange of products.

Under normal conditions India ranks second after the United States in point of cotton production with an annual crop running to some four or five million bales of 400 pounds each. Indian cotton is inferior in quality, and but little Indian cotton is employed by Lancashire spinners. Experts, however, are of the opinion that a quality of cotton comparable in many respects to Egyptian long staple can be grown in certain sections of India, notably Sind, under irrigation. The Sukkar irrigation project on the River Indus, which has been approved by the Indian Government, promises to bring under cultivation 5,000,000 acres of land, of which 750,000 acres are suitable for the cultivation of high-grade cotton adapted to the needs of Lancashire.

Dating 30 years back, when British engineers began to effect a true control of the Nile for irrigation purposes, the Egyptian crop steadily increased until a total of over 7,500,000 cantars was attained. A cantar, roughly, equals 100 pounds. During the war production fell to 5,000,000 cantars, and this probably represents a fair average to what can be expected from Egypt until some remedy is found for the unsatisfactory condition of drainage in the Delta. Experts are the opinion that when reclamation and irrigation projects now under consideration have been put through the Egyptian production may be raised by some 3,500,000 cantars.

A beginning has already been made of cotton growing in the Sudan. The matter is a simple one for irrigation. The most promising latent and undeveloped territory lies immediately south of Khartum in the alluvial triangle of land formed by the junction of the waters of the Blue and of the White Nile. This area known as Gezira is regarded as one of the most promising districts for the development of cotton growing. A barrage of the Blue Nile is to be undertaken, which will, in time, render possible the irrigation of some 300,000 acres of land in the Gezira as a first installment with prospects of a further increase to about 1,000,000 acres suitable for cotton growing. Assuming a production of 300 pounds to the acre, which is not extravagant, this area would add 225,000 bales of 400 pounds each to Egypt's crop.

A fine type of sea-island cotton to the amount of about 5,000 bales a year is grown in the British West Indies. The sea-island cottons from the West Indies are consumed almost entirely in Lancashire and in Lille, where many of the finest mills work in close alliance with British firms.

As a result of a comparatively few years work, a crop of 25,000 bales per annum may be counted on in Uganda, British East Africa. K. W. McConnel, Chairman of the Fine Cotton Spinners' and Doublers' Association, estimates that a crop of 1,000,000 bales may be expected before many years from that remote region. He speaks of the possibilities of Nigeria as being practically illimitable from the standpoint of cotton growing. Beginnings have also been made in cotton cultivation in Nyasak and Rhodesia and the Union of South Africa.

The main difficulties about agricultural production in equatorial Africa have to do with labor and transportation. It is extremely difficult to interest people of low culture in any enterprise that does not yield immediate results in increasing their food supply; as cotton can not be eaten, its production holds small attraction for the natives. The lack of transportation facilities for an article so bulky as raw cotton calls for no special comment.

Cotton is being grown experimentally in Mesopotamia. Seed farms have been laid out for the purpose of providing sufficient supply of commercial seed for the commencement of cotton growing on a large scale in 1921. Experimentally, cotton not unlike the best Egyptian strains and altogether suitable to Lancashire has been grown in Mesopotamia. Climatically and from the standpoint of soil and irrigation, there seems to be no special obstacle to the production of cotton in the valleys of the Tigris and the Euphrates comparable to the types produced in Egypt.

JAME FINNIE WILL BUILD NEW BARN

AWARDED CONTRACT AT $1895 BY COMMITTEE OF EXHIBITION BOARD

Tenders for the new cattle building for the exhibition park were opened by the Special Building Committee yesterday afternoon, and the contract awarded to James Finnie, whose bid of $1895 on the original plans was accepted.

Tenders for an extension to the grandstand were submitted by Ephgrave and Barrett, H. Shurter and E. Mahoney, the estimated costs ranging from $8,300 to $8,700.

The committee decided that these were prohibitive prices and consequently the plans for a concrete annex were abandoned. Ephgrave and Barrett submitted alternative plans for a steel structure, and these were referred to the committee.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS AT NIAGARA FALLS

TALENT ENGAGED FOR THIS YEAR'S TOUR EXCELS ALL OTHERS.

Mr. Wiliam C. Judy, Advance Advertising Superintendent of the Dominion Chautauquas, Ltd., arrived in Peterboro yetserday. Mr. Judy is here to aid the 57th Regiment band in putting over the ticket sale for the Chautauqua to be held from June 22 to 28 inclusive. He is sent out by the Chautauqua Company to aid the local committee.

The first Chautauqua opened at Niagara Falls on Monday and the entertainments put on by the various talent have been the best ever shown on any Chantauqua platform in Canada, according to Mr. R. I. Alber, manager of the company.

The Junior Chautauqua will be held at 4:30 p.m., every afternoon so as not to conflict with the public schools. Miss Ruth Whitford is the Junior Leader this year. Miss Whitford has had experience in this work and promises the "kiddies" some good times. The first meeting on the afternoon of June 22 is free to everybody.

BRITAIN SOON TO BE BUYER OF OUR BONDS.

Some Close Observers See British Bond Market Opening—Exchange the Factor.

Within two years Canadian provinces and municipalities will be selling gtheir bonds and registered stock ing thier bonds and registered stock ite forecast, but it is the opinion of certain financial men who have closely studied the British bond market, and the international exchange markets.

The British investor has money for the purchase of Canadian securities at the present time. That much is assured, and the entire question of British investment in Canadian securities depends upon future developments in the exchange market. For a while following the close of the war British sources of capital were kept busy supplying home demands, but London, the money market of the world, is building up a surplus of investment funds that must eventually find its way to other countries. Much of this money has already been placed. The C.P.R. and the Canada Steamship Lines have already sold issues in London; Sweden was the last big nation to go on the British market and others are following.

B. C. is Optimistic.

Speaking to The Financial Post in Victoria two weeks ago, the Hon. John Hart, minister of finance for the Province of British Columbia stated that he hoped to sell the bonds of his province in London in two years time. The American Pacific Coast market has not been as receptive of late to Canadian issues as it was last year, and the Eastern Canadian mraket is temporarily stagnant, but the coast province has its eyes on Britain, and hopes to place its registered stock and debentures in that country in a comparatively short time.

A. L. Fullerton, manager of the London, England, office of the Dominion Securities Corporation, who has been in this country for the past few weeks, feels that the Hon. Mr. Hart's optimism is quite justified. "Of course, it all depends upon the future of the exchange rates and one man is as good a guesser as another regarding that," but I feel that the time is very shortly approaching when Canadian bonds can readily be sold on the English market," he told The Post.

Mr. Fullerton believes that it will not be necessary for the pound to regain its full value in this country before Canadan bonds will reach English investors. When the pound is around $4.60 in Canada and possibly less in the United States, the English banker will be in a position to talk business. The margin of exchange will then be small enough to allow for negotiations upon a proper basis.

Canada's Advantage.

Canada will be competing with British home issues and American issues—such as railway issues—when it enters the British market, in the same way that it competed with these issues in pre-war years. Canada will have an advantage over American borrowers in negotiating for funds so long as there is a premium on New York funds in this country; that is, while the pound sells for less in New York than in this country.

Before the war Canada borrowed heavily in Britain. In 1911, 1912 and 1913, 75 per cent. of all Canadian bonds were sold in that market. But with the outbreak of war the percentage dwindled and the figures for subsequent years are: 1914, 68.14 p.c.; 1915, 14.18 p.c.; 1916, 1.55 p.c.; 1917 66 p.c.; 1918, 43 p.c.; 1919, .57 p.c.; 1920 none. Much of this money was borrowed at a very low rate but future borrowings will probably be at rates about similar to what the Canadian market affords. British county and housing issues are selling at well over 6 per cent. at the present time and Canadan provinces and cities can not hope to borrow at less than English counties. But the recent C.P.R issue is already at half a point premium and the yield is slightly under 6 per cent. on that basis.

ROYAL DANCES AT BUCKINGHAM

The Princess Mary and the Prince of Wales between them have been able to persuade the Queen to allow the tango valse and one or two other of the modern dances to be danced at Buckingham Palace.

Not long since, however, the Princess Mary and the Prince of W... induced her majesty to allow a f... of the modern dances to be danced at an impromptu dance that was held after a small party at the palace at which all the guests, with the exception of the household, were quite quite young people.

The dancers adjourned to the ball room at about 10 o'clock. A piano and a couple of violinists from the king's band supplied the music, and her majesty for the first time in her life witnessed the dancing of the fox-trot, two-step, tango valse, and the hesitation.

The queen decided that there was nothing objectionable in any of the dances she witnessed and agreed to allow them to be included at the series of small dances for young people that will be given at the palace in the coming season.

But her majesty will still debar any modern dances being included in the program of the state balls. This is because at the state balls a large number of the dancers are, comparatively speaking, elderly people, for whom modern dances are to a great extent unsuitable, and to many of whom they are rather distasteful.

"Y" GIRLS BURLESQUE VAUDEVILLE STUNTS

Last night some of the junior girls who have enjoyed the hospitality of the Y.W.C.A. Camp in former years put on an entertainment of "stunts" for the Camp Week festivities. This was largely attended, and was the cause of much mirth. "The Magic Doctor" who converted fat ladies into lean ones, and vice versa, was enacted by the Misses Effie Dick, Dorothy Clark, and Isabel Tremain, "The Coquette" who had four suitors, coming to call at the same time, was the work of the Misses Lily Slaughter, Lily and Rose McGovern, Myrtle Bradley and Clare Morgan, "The Spanish Tragedy", a melodramatic portrayal in pantomime of the woes of a maiden with a lover favored by herself and another favored by her father, was in the hands of the Misses Thressa Taylor, Ethel Dicks, Olga Johnston and Mary Gardiner, the latter impersonating the stern parent, "Hawaiian Dancers" in realistic costumes of paper and slashed sacks, who danced the hula-hula to the music of weird guitars, were played by Misses Mabel Young, Florence Johnson, Viola Payton and Gertrude Kirn, while the "Crazyola Victrola", with solos by Mdme. Skidooski, was in charge of Miss Florence Johnson and Mabel Young. The gymnasium was filled with a jolly crowd for this unique entertainment, which brought forth gales of laughter from an interested audience.

ST. LUKE'S MOONLIGHT LARGELY ATTENDED

The moonlight excursion held by St. Luke's Y.P.A. last evening was very well attended. About 250 people were on board and spent a jolly time. A number of young people availed themselves of the excellent music and spent the evening in dancing, while the rest of the party remained on deck to enjoy the moonlight. One of the deck hands provided a little excitement by taking a plunge into the water while the boat was in the locks, but a rope thrown in haste helped him to scramble out and everybody breathed a collective sigh of relief.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial took place at St. Paul's church in Port Hope on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, with 82 delegates present in one of the largest meetings ever held in the district. Miss Martha Dickson of Peterborough, the retiring president, occupied the chair throughout the proceedings. Mrs. Jno. McPherson, or Peterborough, opened the convention with prayer, Mrs. Rork of Norwood, gave a Bible reading, and splendid addresses were given by Miss M. Dickson and Miss A. Erskine, of Peterborough, while Miss Crowe of Havelock, gave a report of the Mission Band work. Mrs. Yale, of Peterborough, spoke on Home Religion. Greetings from the Presbytery were extended by Rev. F. W. Anderson, M.A., pastor at Port Hope, and the ladies of the church, who acted as hostesses, gave the visitors a wondreful welcome, entertaining them at luncheon and tea during the two days of the convention. NEAR AGREEMENT FOR PURCHASE OF RIVERSIDE PARK

OWNERS ACCEPT CITY'S COUNTER PROPOSITION—CITY SOLICITOR TO SEARCH TITLE OF PROPERTY

The owners of Riverside Park, through their solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, have acepted the city's counter proposition for the purchase of this property by the city, as recommended by the Council's Railway Committee on Monday night.

Eleven thousand dollars is the price agreed on plus the cost of the tools and implements, the present owners to enjoy the revenue from the park this year, and also to pay the taxes for 1821. Payment for this property by the city may be deferred until January second next.

Committee of the Whole Council last night instructed the City Solicitor to search the title of Riverside Park and report at an early date.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Canadian General Diamond last evening was the scene of a battle that will go down in the factory's baseball history when the crack Engineer's Indoor Baseball team was defeated by the never-say-die draftsmen by a score of 13 to 12. A great body of spectators including many of the factories notables were present. The game was fast through out each team fighting every minute of the play and was only marred when one of the engineers broke his finger.

The game started with the engineers at bat and with Parnall and Jackson on the battery for the draftmen. In this innings the engineers got one run. The draftsmen then took the bat and tied the score with Gates on the mound and Hinton catching for the engineers. The battle went on merrily until the fourth when the Engineers got five runs mostly on errors. The draftsmen came back with three tallys and three more giving them the lead. Gates was then retired in favour of Langley. The score kept even for the rest of the game and stood at 12 to 12, when the draftsmen took the bat in the last half of the seventh. They drove in the winning run and the game was called with one out.

The stars for the draftsmen were Stanton on second and Maybee on third and for the Engineers, Hinton catching and Parlour on second. Convery and Franks officiated very efficiently.

Harrison, Murphy, Canada, Mrs. C. H. Newbury and Mrs. Anna Bell Hornberger, both of Pittsburg, and Mrs. Carnegie and eight grandchildren survive.

MISS LENORE SANDERSON.

Seldom has the community suffered a greater shock than it did last evening when it was learned that Miss Lenore Sanderson daughter of Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, and a member of the Collegiate Institute staff, had passed away.

She continued to perform her duties until the closing of the Collegiate on Friday last, although her health had been poor for a year or more. On completing the term's work, she decided to go to the hospital to undergo an operation in the hope of regaining her health. The shock proved too great for her impaired strength, and she passed away on the day following the operation.

The late Miss Sanderson was born and educated in Peterborough, completing her Public School and Collegiate education in this city, she entered Queen's University, from which she graduated with an honour degree.

After completing her professional training at the Faculty of Education, Toronto, she entered the teaching profession. She taught for a year or two in the Province of Manitoba, and then returned to Ontario, and became a member of the Collingwood Collegiate Institute staff.

Four years ago she was appointed to the Peterborough Collegiate staff, taking charge of the Art Department and the physical training of the girls. She was a specialist in both of these departments.

She was highly esteemed by her fellow-teachers, and by all who enjoyed her acquaintance, and was deservedly popular with the students of the Institute.

The remaining members of the family are her mother and her two sisters, Mrs. (Dr.) Mathes, of Augusta, Georgia, and Mrs. J. Birnie, of Owen Sound. These have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

Miss Sanderson was a young woman of fine disposition and varied accomplishments. She lent her aid to all worthy objects, but her strengh and energy were devoted chiefly to the duties of her profession. Her early death is a distinct loss to the teaching profession and to the community which she so faithfully served.

The funeral of the late Miss Sanderson will be held to-morrow (Friday) afternoon, 17th June, at 2 o'clock, from her mother's residence, 360 Brock Street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

FAIL TO GRASP FULL SCOPE OF IMPERIAL MEET

BRITISH PUBLIC AND PRESS IN SPITE OF THIS, HOWEVER, ARE BEGINNING TO EVINCE INTEREST.

PRESS IS CONFUSED

LONDON, June 17.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of Caandian Press.)—Judging from the newspapers, the British public is beginning to evince some interest in Monday's opening conference of the Premiers. To-day's debate in the House of Commons when the agenda of the Imperial Conference is to be discussed will undoubtedly increase this interest and incidentally will serve to disclose the mind of Parliament and of the government on some of the more important questions with which the conference will deal.

Thus far even the most important journals here afford little indication of what the British people want and show less understanding of what the conference really is. For instance, the Times appears to have confused the ideas to the real purpose and scope of the gathering while the lesser newspapers persist in terming it an "Imperial Peace Cabinet" and seem to be under the impression that it possesses executive powers.

The public is not seized of the fact that the functions of the present conference are purely consulative and lack wide executive powers vested as a war measure in the Imperial War Cabinet, nor that this conference represents the first attempt to have the Dominions aid in the formulation of a foreign policy for the Empire, hitherto a functionof Great Britain alone

RENOWNED DOCTOR HERE ON SUNDAY

DR. C. W. SALEEBY OF LONDON ENG., WILL SPEAK IN TWO CHURCHES.

Is to visit Peterborough on Sunday, and the local interests have arranged for him to deliver one of his informing and attractive addresses at Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and at Murray St. Baptist Church on Sunday evening.

When introducing Dr. Saleeby to a Toronto audience upon a recent date, Dr. Hastings, Medical Officer of Health for Toronto, made the statement that no more distinguished scientist had ever addressed a Toronto audience than Dr. Saleeby, Chaireman of the National Birthrate Commission of Great Britain.

Dr. Saleeby during the war was an assistant of the Food Minister of Great Britain. He is taking a leading place in the movement against alcohol in the British Empire, and is also Chairman of the World Executive of the World Anti-Alcoholic Movement.

The Toronto Globe on May 18th in reporting Dr. Saleeby's address before the National Public Health Convention, held in the Physics Building of the University of Toronto, said:

"The late and partly lamented John Barleycorn never received such destructive criticism rrom such high sources of authority in Toronto as it did in the address of Dr. Saleeby," in which Dr. Saleeby said:

"This prohibition seems to me to be the greatest health-making move in history. It is a lesson to Europe and Europe will have to learn it."

Dr. Saleeby said there were three racial poisons—that is, poisons that do not die with the individual, but are transmitted to the next generation—one comes from working with lead, a second comes from alcohol and the third was venereal disease.

THE WEATHER

"A fine rain." "This will do a world of good," and other similar expressions, could be heard in commendation of the heavy showers that fell last night and this forenoon. The amount was over half an inch (.61), which shows that it was no sprinkle. This is the day of the Normal School excursion (the thirteenth event of that description) and on almost every occasion it has rained. As a rain-producer Hatfield, who is now working east of Medicine Hat, and endeavouring to bring showers to the thirsty prairies at so much per inch of rain, is not in it with the promoters of the Normal School excursion.—W. DANCE AT CHEMONG PARK PAVILION TO-NIGHT UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER I. O. D. E. 1d142

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

Harold Ephgrave: In answer to Mr. F. H. Dobbin, in your issue of the 14th regarding workingmen's homes, he is undoubtedly well qualified to make these remarks, and his question of who will start is answered. I have started to build a home for the workingman. It is the most complete, compact house I have ever seen. It was designed by my wife and myself for comfort, and to cut out housework. There are six rooms. The living-room is very cheerful, with a mullion window, and the size is 13 x 14. The dining-room is 12 x 15, with a mullion window. The kitchen is 9 x 11, with plenty of light. There are three bedrooms and a very large, roomy cellar. This house is a semi-bungalow, of good appearance, and the stairs are built in such a way that they afford both back and front stairs. There are no halls and ballisters, which are, to my estimation, half the work to a housewife, and a very expensive part of the house. This house is built on a 50 x 100 foot lot, and must be seen to be appreciated; and I invite your inspection, or any other person interested.

GREEKS HELD IN LEASH FOR BRITISH MOVE

BELIEVED BRITAIN IS AWAITING POSSIBLE ACCEPTANCE OF REVISED SEVRES TREATY BY KEMAL.

INACTION IN MEANTIME

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 17.—(Canadian Press).—The Greek offensive against the Turkish Nationalists has ben halted while the final decision of the British to back up the Greeks is pending.

In any case, however, the Greeks are expected to launch a local offensive east of Ushak, where the Turks are badly placed. This offensive would be ordered for the purpose of maintaining the prestige of King Constantine.

It is believed here that the British are waiting to see if the Turkish Nationalists are willing to accept the revised Sevres Treaty which was discussed at London with the Nationalist representatives last March.

ENTERTAINED BY CITY AND C.P.R. AT CALGARY

CALGARY, Alta., June 16. — When the C.P.R. Special train drew up at the platform in Calgary bearing the delegates of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association convention which was held in Vancouver a very large and enthusiastic group of friendly newspapermen and citizens greeted them, the enthusiasism was unbounded and despite the whirl of gaiety experienced since leaving Vancouver at Field, Lake Louise and Banff they showed no weariness but just entered into further festivities provided for them by the good citizens of Calgary, the fast growing city of the west. They simply took the city by storm.

Acting Mayor John D. Hugill, was on hand to extend the welcome at the depot and representatives of the city and the women's press club. Entertainment last evening included a ride on a scenic car, others enjoyed the theatres as a diversion since leaving Vancouver, through the generosity of the C.P.R. and the general management of the Palliser Hotel. The beautiful ball room of this renowned hostelry was placed at the sole disposal of the visitors. The orchestra played for dancing until midnight and needless to say it was thoroughly enjoyed. In the opinion of the higher officials of the association nothing has been omitted to make the delegates enjoy themselves and the hospitality of the greatest transportaion in the world has been At as Lloyds too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the railway officials accompanying the train and attending to the wants in the slightest detail of any one member of the party.

EXAMINER HAMPERED BY POWER SHORTAGE

Due to uncertainty regarding power delivery yesterday afternoon, it was necessary to close the city edition of The Examiner hurriedly in order to publish before the power should be cut off as feared. This necessitated leaving out considerable news and a number of regular features, including the women's page. Throughout the week The Examiner has been hampered in this way to a great extent, but yesterday the situation was worse than previously. Until the disabled Healey Falls generating plant is again in operation, readers and advertisers are asked to bear with us under the existing inconvenience.

THEFT CASE IS BEGUN IN COURT

THREE KEENE MEN CHARGED WITH STEALING $54 FROM KEENE BLACKSMITH.

J. J. Barraclough, John Edwards and George Edwards of Keene, were placed on trial before Judge Huycke and a jury in the June sessions of the County Court yesterday afternoon, on the charge of theft of $54 from Charles Ellis, a blacksmith of Keene, on March 7, 1920. Magistrate Langley committed the men for trial on March 18 after hearing considerable evidence in the case. J. O'Brien is representing the three accused.

Plaintiff's Evidence.

The evidence of Charles Ellis was that on March 7 he went to the garage of Barraclough and George Edwards and imbibed too freely of Montreal whiskey therein. When he went to the garage he had $54 in bills. When he got his senses about nine o'clock that night his money was gone. He therefore centred his suspicions on the three men who were in the garage. Next morning he told his son to get the constable. In the morning the men gave him a cheque for $54, signed by George Edwards and J. J. Barraclough, which he accepted, but the charge of theft was proceeded with. Mrs. Ellis swore that Barraclough offered her the cheque but she refused it. Barraclough she said, said he would rather lose the money than have any trouble.

Vernon Ellis, who works for his father, said at eleven o'clock he met Jack Edwards bringing his father home. He was arguing with Edwards about his money and had to be forced to go home. The money was counted the day before at the house, Ellis said and there was $54.

Later in the night, witness said he was speaking to Barraclough in particular in a car with the two Edwards boys. Barraclough said he'd see him in the morning and help to find the money. Barraclough didn't show up in the morning to make a search as he promised, he said, but later discussed the case with Ellis in the blacksmith shop. He repeated what he said the night before, "that he'd rather give him a cheque." George Edwards came in and they agreed to go up and give a cheque to Mr. Ellis. Barraclough told witness he put his father's pocketbook back in his pocket the night before when Ellis pulled it out. Witness told of the cheque signed by both men being handed to his father in his bedroom later in the morning.

He said his father told him to get the constable and he did get him.

To Mr. O'Brien, Ellis said he remembered John Edwards handing him 50 cents he had found across the street from Ellis' garage. Witness said he told the men if they wanted to save any trouble it would be better to give his father the cheque. He denied that he gave his assurance to the men there would be no trouble about the liquor or anything if the cheque was given. He advised them to give the cheque only after

RUTLEDGE HELD FOR MURDER OF WIFE, CHILDREN

CORONER'S JURY FINDS WIFE AND FOUR CHILDREN DIED IN FIRE SET BY HIM—ACCUSED CONFESSES.

IMMORALITY IN HOME

CALGARY, June 17.—(Canadian Press).—A charge of murder will be laid against Joseph Rutledge, Innisfail farmer, as a result of a coroner' inquest into the fire which destroyed his farm home, six miles east of Innisfail, and burned to death his wife and four children.

The verdict returned by the jury declared that the woman and her children had met their death in a fire set by Rutledge. Rutledge confessed to jury that he entered into an agreement with his wife to kill the children, then commit suicide, because of immoral conditions in his home. He lost his nerve after setting the place afire, when his family were in bed and, seizing one of the children, made his escape. Miss Shaw, sister of the dead woman is being held as a material witness in the cast. Rutledge is still in the hospital suffering from severe burns.

The result of the balloting, which was announced this afternoon, was: Admiral Suelor, Independent, 12,329; Sir H. Carlyle, Coalition Unionist 5,552.

13th Picnic of Normal School in Usual Rain

SUPERSTITION OR NO SUPERSTITION, ANNUAL DELUGE WAS UNUSUALLY HEAVY.

Perhaps it was the fact that this was the thirteenth time that old Jup. Pluvius' unyielding prejudice against the students of the Peterborough Normal School celebrating the end of their training by means of a picnic had been ignored that caused the customary down-pour of rain to be unusually heavy to-day. Superstition or no superstition, the fact remains that this was the thirteenth braving of the elements by the embryo teachers and that Jup. Pluvius was not satisfied with opening the floodgates during the day, but started in the night before. Only once in the thirteen years that the Normal School picnic has been an annual event has the sun kept from behind the clouds throughout the day.

$100,000 LOSS BY FIRE IN SOMBRA

TOMLIN DEPARTMENTAL STORE AND NEARBY BUILDINGS BURN.

SOMBRA, June 17. — (Canadian Press).—A loss estimated at $100,000 was caused early this morning by fire which destroyed the Tomlin Departmental store and the dwelling and barns of the Tomlin Estate nearby, driving the members of the family to the street in night attire. A big corps of volunteer fire fighters prevented the spread of he flames to other buildings though it looked at one time as if a big part of the village would be destroyed. James Clancy, while working on the roof of the residence threatened by flames fell to the ground and suffered serious injury.

OTTAWA, June 17. Canadian Press.—"No one has ever accused Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Federal Minister of Agriculture, of being responsible for the propaganda in Engalnd against the Britsh embargo on Canadian cattle," said Hon. Manning Doherty, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, this morning, in answer to the statements attributed to Dr. Tolmie in London, that he was not responsible for the propaganda.

"If the embargo is lifted," Mr. Doherty continued, "no one will accuse him of being responsible for that either."

LONDON, June 17. Canadian Press —Austen Chamberlain, the government leader in the House of Commons, declared in the House this afternoon, with regard to a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty:

"Althouhg I do not wish in any way to prejudice the action of the Imperial conference, it is right to say at once that we shall be no party to an alliance directed against America ,or under which we can be called upon to act against America."

SINN FEIN IN ENGLAND CUTS SIGNAL WIRES

ATTEMPT MADE LAST NIGHT TO BREAK COMMUNICATIONS ABOUT LONDON, ATTENDED BY VIOLENCE.

NINE MEN ARRESTED

LONDON, June 17.— (Canadian Press.)—A campaign of widespread cutting of railway and signal wires and burning of signal cabins around London, attended by violence against signal men, was carried out during last night by Sinn Feiners and members of the Irish Self-Determination League. Nine men were arrested.

The official police statement says: "All the men arrested give local addreses. They are young Irishmen between 17 and 22. It has been known for some time that the heads of the Self-Determination League in London have been in correspondence with the so-called Irish Republican Army, which has been directing the murders and outrages in Ireland."

TENDERS CALLED

Tenders have been called for the construction of the new Surgical Wing for St. Joseph's Hospital. The work is in the hands of Arthur W. Holmes, architect of Toronto. This extension will be a building approximately one hundred and thirty by forty feet, and will accommodate 54 extra beds. It will be erected to the south of the present hospital building, and connected with it. Operations in the present building will not be interfered with while construction work in the extension is going on. The new building will have private and semi-private wards with the third floor entirely given over to women, and the operating theatres on the top floor, where X-ray and laboratory facilities will be installed, the entire equipment to be modern and up-to-date in the very smallest particular.

SERIOUS DISSATISFACTION HAS ARISEN AMONG MINERS OVER OUTCOME AND MANY MAY TAKE MATTERS INTO THEIR OWN HANDS.

HALF DID NOT BALLOT

LONDON, June 17.— (Canadian Press.)—The ballot of the coal miners on the question of strike settlement favors a continuation of the strike, it was officially announced here this afternoon.

Serious dissatisfaction has arisen among the rank and file of the Miners' Federation over the vote on the owners' latest proposals and many of the men as a consequence are expected to take matters into their own hands and return to work under their own arrangements. The situation was somewhat confused, however, and the Miners' Executive is meeting to-day to consider it.

It is estimated that more than fifty per cent. of the Federation's milling members abstained from voting.

The Miners' leaders are faced with the possibility that the strike must be continued while the government's ten million pounds bonus will be withdrawn and thousands of men will return to work. The way the dispute has been allowed to drift and the failure of the miners' leaders to offer advice or recommendations to the districts on the issues involved in the ballot are said to be the cause of dissatisfaction in some quarters The ballot appears to have been taken in a most casual way.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

DECIDE WHICH SEWAGE SYSTEM IN A FEW DAYS

Council's Commitee of the Whole are, in a few days, going to devote an evening in digesting the City Engineer's report on the best system of sewage disposal to be installed at the south end of the city.

His report to hand Wednesday recommended the Imhoff tank system as most suitable for this city, and he has characterised the activated sludge plan as in some respects being more or less in an experimental stage yet.

Mr. Parsons quoted expert opinion that the problem of economically disposing of sludge has not yet been satisfactorily solved, and unless local conditions are peculiarly favourable, this city should hesitate at adopting the activated sludge method.

Ald. Whitehouse favoured the Board's recommending to Council the Imhoff system; but owing to the lateness of the hour at which this question came up, and the bulk of other business before the committee, Ald. Gordon's sugestion that it be referred to the committee's next meeting, within three or four days, was adopted.

Ald. Gordon contended that this sewage disposal plant was too large a matter for decision without the fullest consideration.

Park Grant.

On the motion of Ald. Gainey and Phelan, the County Council will be asked for a grant toward the care of Victoria Park. A deputation will wait upon the Council in this regard.

THEFT CASE IS BEGUN IN COURT

he was asked if his father still wanted the money.

"Did any of these boys ever admit they saw the money?" asked Mr. Hatton.

"Yes. The night before Barraclough said dad pulled the money out of his pocket and he helped him put it back again."

That night witness said, he mentioned proceedings.

C. R. Banks gave character evidence on J. J. Barraclough. He said he had a good reputation for honesty and would not consider him likely to commit the offence charged.

Barraclough in his evidence, admitted asking Ellis down to the garage about 4.15 to have a drink. George and John Edwards were at the garage and all had a drink, Ellis getting very drunk. He picked up a dollar and some change Ellis dropped. Ellis they put in a car, and he and George went home to supper. About 7.30 or 7.45 he returned. Shortly after the Edwards boys came along in their car. They fund Ellis lying down across the road in the mud, still drunk. "John and George and I tried to get him up and into John's car. He said he'd lost his money— $100. When taking him home some change was picked up that he dropped. He denied that he saw Ellis' pocketbook. The money found was in the neighbourhood of where Ellis was found.

Witness told Mr. Hatton he had been in business in partnership with George Edwards three months. He had been doing business with Ellis and asked him to have a drink. They drink the liquor "neat" in the garage said Barraclough. John stayed till 5.30 and he and George left about six together. When they put him in the car he was unconscious. Witness said he left the door open when he left. When he returned he could hear Ellis "hollering." He locked the door before he tried to take Ellis home. Ellis did not then accuse anybodyof taking his money. Barraclough said later when he saw Vernon Ellis, threats of proceedings were made and he mentioned liquor, and fearing exposure, Barraclough said they would rather settle.

Do you say he (Vernon Ellis) took that money from you to stop any prosecution under the O.T.A.? asked Mr. Hatton.

No. But I think he lost the money and wanted to get it.

Do you mean to tell the jury you were innocent and paid over this $54 to stop any charge under the O.T.A.?

Yes.

The night before the three agreed it would be better to give a cheque and avoid trouble, witness declared. We didn't expect to have any trouble over it if he got his money back.

But wasn't it all over the village?

No, not at that time.

Did you have any row in the garage?

There may have been a little loud talking, but that was all.

Barraclough said Vernon Ellis was mistaken when he said he was doing all the talking the night before.

Reeve Fred Eason testified to the good reputation of the Edwards boys, and stated that, so far as he knew Barraclough, his business reputation was good.

John Moore, clerk of the township, testified similarly.

William Wedlock, of this city, formerly of Keene, also swore to the reputation for honesty of the Edwards boys as being good.

When the case was resumed today Robert Woods, who lives across from Barraclough's garage in Keene, gave evidence that he heard quite a noise from the garage on that night. He heard Ellis saying he wouldn't go home till he got his hundred dollars. He heard an unknown voice say, "perhaps you lost it in the ditch where I found you."

Mr. Wood said next morning he found two quarters right where the conversation came from east of the garage and across the road.

To Mr. Hatton, Mr. Wood said he could not identify the date exactly. Witness said he saw them striking matches to find the money. He did not hear any motor car.

John Edwards in the box, denied he stole any money of Ellis or the other accused did so far as he knew. He and George Edwards both swore Ellis was found drunk on the side of the road and wanted "his $100" before he would go home. The two Edwards' evidence corroborated what Barraclough swore. John Edwards swore he did not steal the money, or his brother or Barraclough as far as he knew.

Charles Ellis, called in rebuttal, swore that Barraclough did not find him in the ditch. Barraclough tried to take him home and he would not go home with him. Ellis said he might have said he lost $100, as he was drunk. Ellis denied he threatened any liquor charges.

Ellis said he used to be a drinking man before the war, but told them he hadn't taken any liquor since the armistice.

Vernon Ellis, called, denied he threatened Barraclough with charges under the O.T.A.

The jury, which is as follows, went out with the case early this afternoon: Ralph Drummond, farmer, Otonabee; Russell Harper, harness maker, Peterborough; Alexander Graham, farmer, Otonabee; Lewis Fife, farmer, Asphodel; George Wilson, farmer, Douro; Joseph Doran, farmer, Ennismore; William Hickson, farmer, Ennismore; W. J. Mills, Peterborough; W. J. Nixon, Peterborough; Robert Hoskin, Peterborough; Albert Hendree, farmer, Dummer; William F. Elliot, farmer, Asphodel.

BUSINESS EDUCATORS' ASSN. WILL MEET HERE

IN PETERBOROUGH ON JUNE 30 AND JULY 1 AND 2

Members of the Business Educators' Association of Canada will meet in annual convention at Peterborough on July 1st and 2nd. The business sessions will be held in the big class-room of the Peterborough Business College, of which Mr. J. A. McKone is Principal. Accompanied by their ladies, members of this association will arrive here on June 30th, from Windsor, Sarnia, London, Brantford, Galt, Kitchener, Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa, St. Thomas, and possibly other towns. One day is to be devoted to a trip over the Kawartha Lakes under the fatherly eye of Mr. McKone.

The Business Educators' Association is composed of Principals of Canada's leading business colleges, its membership including representatives of schools throughout the whole of the Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver. Its object is to advance the interests of higher business education, and to, when needed, amend and improve the curriculums and instruction methods in business schools to keep apace with the growing demands by modern commercial and industrial houses for their graduates.

These coming visitors are prominent in the public eye, and such men among them as W. H. Shaw of Toronto, W. F. Marshall, London, A. E. Day, Brantford, and W. D. Euler, M.P., of Kitchener—leaders in their own communities as well as heads of large business colleges — can go a long way in advertising Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes as a desirable business and manufacturing centre, with beautiful recreation advantages conveniently adjacent. A cordial welcome should be extended to these visitors as opportunity arises.

DUBLIN, June 17.—(Canadian Press).—Government forces have ben making a sweeping round up of certain areas in the last few days with the apparent idea of making large captures and sifting them for men who are "wanted". Operations have been in progress in Monaghan County all this week. Hundreds of arrests were made in progress in Monaghan County all this week. Hundreds of arrests were made but to-day all were released with the exception of about a dozen persons.

Five cavalry regiments invested Carrickmacross, Monaghan, early this morning and commandeered several private houses. They made several arrests including a despatch carrier of the "Irish Republican Army". Similar raids occurred at Wexford and Athlone.

SHE LIED TO HER HUSBAND--NOW THEY ARE CHARGED WITH MURDER

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 17. —(Canadian Press. — Because she lied to her husband, Mrs. Thomas Foran, aged 24, and her helpmate, are in jail, charged with 1st degree murder. They are blamed for the death of Joseph Wamser, killed when mistaken by Foran for a thief.

Last Saturday, according to her story, Mrs. Foran needed twenty dollars to buy a dress for one of her two children. She feared to ask her husband for it and took the cash from the tool box, where he had hidden it.

When he returned hom she told him that a burglar had ransacked the house and to make her story strong, screamed "There he is at the window."

Foran reached for a revolver and ran outside. Wamser was the only one on the street. He accused Wamser, who struck Foran, knocking him down. Then Wamser started to run. Foran shot and killed him. For three days the case has baffled the police. Yesterday Mrs. Foran broke down and told her story.

DR. CHOWN OUTLINES ATTITUDE WITH WHICH UNION SHOULD BE VIEWED BY METHODIST CHURCH

ORGANIZATION WITH GREATEST EFFICIENCY REACHED IN LEAST POSSIBLE TIME SHOULD BE AIM.

INVITED TO MEET HERE

WHITBY, Ont., June 17.—"I am persuaded that we have a distinct contribution to make to the united churches, and we should now determine to go into it, carrying with us the most perfect development possible of those elements of church life with which God has specially blessed us in the past," said Rev. Dr. Chown, general superintendent of the the Methodist Church, at the Bay of Quinte Conference yesterday afternoon on the subject of church union.

"The process of constituting and organising the unified church, in the nature of the case, will be prolonged enough to satisfy the most conservative believer in amalgamation. At the same time, with due care and calm consideration, our aim should be to proceed rapidly enough to reach an organisation yielding the greatest e ciency with the least expense in the shortest possible time.

Task Lies Before.

"The Methodists are not impetuous, nor yet impatient, about this question of union," continued Dr. Chown. "We recognise that with two other Christian communions, we are engaged in a peculiarly difficult experiment of fitting three great churches of diverse history, practices, and temperament into one great organisation for the promotion of the kingdom of God in Canada. Herein we must not hurry, yet we must make reasonable haste in keeping with the importance of this great enterprise. It is quite possible that, as we come to closer grip with the problem, we may have grievous disappointments, but we trust more glad surprises by the way. However it be, we must ever follow the gleam. The human element may sometimes almost baffle our best efforts, but through much prayer, the light will come, and we shall know the divine leading.

Blazing New Trail.

"No such adventure has ever been essayed before in the history of the world," continued Dr. Chown. "We are blazing the way through a pathless forest. We must walk carefully. For this reason, we want to know very definitely, and without any confusion, the direction in which we are going, and to have a clear conception of the goal toward which we strive. We cannot take the next step safely without knowing the ground on which we now stand, and

REV. S. D. CHOWN,
General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, who delivered a forceful address before the Bay of Quinte Conference of that Church at Whitby, yesterday, on the Methodist attitude toward church union.

the direction in which that step will lead us.

"To be true to our expressed purpose, we must, now and hereafter, assume that we are unitedly moving towards organic union, and that organic union means much more and something very different from mere co-operation. We must not assume that the expression as 'expeditiously as possible' means, as some would interpret it, 'as slowly as possible.' The temper of the supreme courts of the churches and that of their respective members and adherents may suggest circumspection and calm deliberation, but it must not be allowed to block the issue now so clearly stated and agreed upon. The resolution of the General Assembly means precisely to-day what it did when it was prst presented for discussion."

Invited to Peterborough.

A cordial invitation to the conference to meet in George Street Church, Peterborough, next year was extended yesterday afternoon by Rev. W. Harold Young, son of Dr. W. R. Young, of Parkdale Church, Toronto. Mr. Young was heartily welcomed back to this conference, to which his father was formerly attached, and he acknowledged the greetings of his brethren in a felicitous and eloquent speech.

"Men in the ministry are not paid anything like iwhat they should receive for the work there is to do," declared Dr. J. E. Midleton, of Peterborough, in presenting the report of the Ministerial Suport Committee. 'Men cannot render the best possible service if they are handicapped by financial worries." His report showed an increase in members' contributions of $46,208.00, or 25 per cent. in excess of the previous year. Notwithstanding that, the receipts fell $6,000.00 below the actual pledges."

A movement is on foot among the ministers of the conference, who served in the great war to abolish all military titles. At the meeting of the memorials committee of the conference yesterday the following resolution was drafted. "That where as the war is more than two years past, and no great purpose can be served by any military display be it resolved that all miitary titles be deleted from the minutes of the conference." This resolution will be moved by Rev. Ernest Harston and seconded bp Rev. H. J. Latimer both of whom were on active service in the war and hear the titles of captain. It is understood that most of the men who bear military titles are willing to shed them.

CUPID'S INROADS CRIPPLE TOKIO'S 'PHONE EXCHANGE

TOKIO, June 15.—Japan's telephone system, which is not considered good, has, to the dismay of the telephone authorities, been suddenly disturbed by the marriage of a large number of operators in the Tokio exchange. The cause of the sudden weddings really springs from an old Japanese tradition, which in its turn comes from China, as so many Japanese things did, and is a result of giving to each year the name of some animal or bird.

The year 1921 is the happy and glorious year of the bird. For this is the Japanese word tori, which also means "to take" or "to gather in." Hence the telephone girls of Tokio, like many others of the land, are gathering to themselves husbands.

AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND PREMIERS WILL PRESS MATTER ON IMPERIAL CONFERENCE NEXT WEEK.

NOT CONSTITUTIONAL

(From Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 17. — Despite the fact that Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Massey of New Zealand, will endeavour to have the conference of Prime Ministers discuss, and if possible decide upon, an imperial policy in the matter of naval defence.

It seems practically certain that Premier Meighen will have the support of the British prime minister in his demand that the question be postponed, and that no steps be taken until after a constitutional conference has been held.

Premier Meighen holds that as the present conference is not a constitutional conference, it cannot therefore deal with or settle a question of constitutional relations. It has no right to deal with naval questions at all.

HELMET WORKS LOOSE; DIVER, HELPLESS, DIES

DOWN 25 FEET ON BOTTOM OF GEORGIAN BAY DIVER SUCCUMBS AFTER MATES MISUNDERSTOOD SIGNALS.

HAULED UP TOOLATE

SOO, Ont., June 17.—(Canadian Press).—Death in one of its most terrifying forms came to Damon S. Godfrey, diver in the employ of the Great Lakes Towing and Wrecking Company yesterday when the great copper helmet, he worse as a part of his diving dress became loosened in some way while he was down 25 feet on the bottom of Georgian Bay, near Little Current, Ont.

Little by little the water began to trickle inside the diver's rubber suit as the helmet worked still looser. Damon signalled frantically to his mates on the lighter above to be hauled up, but in some way, it is said, his jerks at the line were not properly understood owing to the lines being tangled and the men at the air pump continued to send down fresh air. Finally when no further signals were received his helpers became alarmed and hauled the diver up. When the helmet was unscrewed Godfrey's head toppled over to one side. He had been dead for several minutes.

And there's the rest cure; but don't take it too often.

THE PRICE OF BREAD.

In appointing a special committee to investigate the price of bread in Peterborough, the City Council is acting in the interest of the public and their action will be received with satisfaction by the citizens. The bakers have no cause to complain. If the inquiry proves that they are receiving only a reasonable profit on the sale of bread, they will gain by having that fact officially established. On the other hand, if the spread of profit is too large and the price is higher than in common fairness it should be, the consumer is entitled to the information. Rightly or wrongly there has been a feeling that the price of bread should have dropped before this. The public has been at a loss to understand why bread manufactured in Peterborough should be sold for 24c. when Port Hope bread could be bought here and sold for 20c. The inquiry will throw some light, it is hoped, on this question. It would have appealed to the majority of citizens, too, had the committee been empowered to investigate the prices of meat, a matter in which there is general interest and about which there is considerable comment.

INFORMATION WANTED.

The Utilities Commission should take advantage of to-night's meeting, called to discuss the increase in the water rates, to explain why it has been found necessary to make such a heavy increase and at the same time inform the public of the reasons that led to the ordering of the new pumps for the filtration plant from Switzerland instead of purchasing them in Canada. The citizens have a right to be informed on these two points, and an official explanation to-night would probably remove most of the dissatisfaction that exists. Every consumer of water and every taxpayer is naturally interested in everything that pertains to the operations of the municipal water system and there is no reason why a plain statement covering the points that are in doubt in the minds of the public should not be given. The citizens will not object to paying more for water service if they are convinced that higher rates are necessary, but they want to know the facts. And their desire for that knowledge is natural.

THE PAVING PROGRAMME.

There should not be any objection from other sections of the city at the decision of the Council to pave Hunter street east from the bridge to Armour Road and to provide storm drainage for the same section. In the first place, Ashburnham has not been given the same attention in regard to public works as have other districts in the city. The people of the East Ward have had to pay their share of the cost of permanent roadways in other sections and have, up to the present, been without paved roads in their own ward. And Hunter street east is a much travelled thoroughfare, used by the citizens generally, for it is the direct route to the lift-lock. It is a road that should be in the best of condition and is properly included in the paving programme for the year. Incidentally there is a general hope that the permanent roadway over the Ashburnham bridge will be laid soon. Just now it is one of the roughest pieces of road within the city limits.

MR. TROTZKY'S NIGHTMARE.

Mr. Trotzky declares that "the dissolution of capitalistic wealth is in progress". It might be taken for granted that in Russia the work has been carried to a point which gives promise of a fairly complete job; but the Bolsheviki's dream of supreme joy will not be realized until the last trace of wealth has disappeared from the face of the earth. When universal poverty and stagnation have taken the place of plenty and activity, the aim and purpose of Bolshevism will have been achieved. And then what?

It is difficult to visualize a world operating on the Trotzky plan — a world from which ambition and enterprises had been expelled and in which all human life had been reduced to a dead level. In such a world the parable of the talents would have no meaning. Absolute monotony would prevail. Existence would be on a purely animal basis. There would be no incentive to special effort, simply because there would be no prizes to be won, no applause to be earned, no satisfaction to be had in achievement. Life would be merely a period of waiting for death—a negative, non-competitive, dreary and soul-corroding thing.

There was a time, and not so long ago either, when people regarded fresh air as a deadly enemy. They shut it out of their homes, and they kept it away from the sick and the weak. They misunderstood it. Mr. Trotzky and his long-haired associates have somewhat similar views about capital. Fresh air was capable of being misused, and no doubt has often been misused, leaving pneumonia and other ills in its wake. Capital has at times been made a despotic weapon; but on the whole, it has done infinitely more good than harm. It makes the wheels of industry move. It provides daily bread for millions. It is the impelling force behind all enterprise; and in one way and another it is sufficiently diffused to bring some substantial share of it within the reach of tens of thousands who are willing to work hard. It is while working that men really live.

In a world from which all competition had been eliminated, the monotony of mere existence would be appalling. Half the purpose of God-given muscle and brain power is to strive, and unless there were something to be won at the end striving would be a silly and meaningless waste. Bolshevism takes away that something, and in so doing it robs humanity of the divine purpose of life. So long as a man can exist, just as the beasts of the field exist, he reaches the highest ideals of the Trotzky's and the Lenine's. He is forbidden by these evangels of the new gospel to compete or to save. He must surely mark time between the cradle and the grave, in which case the sooner he died the sooner he escapes from the awful monotony of living.

That things are not ideal in this rather half-deevloped civilization of ours, is obvious. The egg-laying records which occasionally appear in the columns of this family and fireside journal, tell us plainly that the industrious and modest hen still falls far short of perfection; but that is scarcely a sound reason for the slaughter of all fowls. Just because every hen does not shape up to to the highest standard would hardly justify the decree that henceforth we must all do without eggs. And yet that is exactly what the Trotzkys are aiming to do. They do not like eggs, on the ground that some of them have gone bad, and so they set themselves to the annihilation of al lthe hens in the world and the stopping of all egg-laying. What the world really needs is the annihilation of the Trotzkys.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A good many Peterborough people seem to be worrying about the H. C.O.W. judging by the meeting to be held to-night to protest about the new water rates.

Those Varsity students who were expelled for copying and impersonation at examinations found a new way of finishing their college career.

Many baseball fans will be inclined to answer the well known query, "What is Peterborough's greatest need," by replying, 'A win in Oshawa to-morrow.'

Ontario editors on their tour to British Columbia are reported to have been intoxicated—by the beauties of the Rocky Mountains.

A Montreal magistrate declares all the drunks come from Onatrio. The drinks, of course, come from Quebec.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Sometimes it happens that the people who want to know everybody are the sort whom no one wants to know.

Weary Young Man—Is your sister making up her mind whether to come down and see me or not?

Little Brother—It isn't her mind she's making up.

The man who raves about eating in the open is the same grouch who kicks about the ants in the food.

A man in Saskatoon staged a hold-up in a restaurant because it had served him a poor cup of coffee. If this is a legitimate excuse we would advise many hostesses to bolt their doors and windows.

He (cautiously)—"Would you say "yes" if I asked you to marry me?

She (still more cautiously)—Would you ask me ot marry you if I Would you ask me to marry you if I marry me you?

Often it happens that a thing of beauty becomes a bore forever.

One begins to realize why Peterborough gave such an overwhelming dry majority in the recent referendum when one reads in the files of ten years ago that a fish six feet long was caught in Little Lake.

Any man who ever tried to save money has discovered that when you limit your expenditures you limit your circle of friends.

Caller—"Is Miss Jones in?"

Servant—"No, madam."

Caller (surprised) — "Where is she?"

Servant—"Don't you know mum? Miss Jones is going to be married, and she goes to the college every afternoon to take lessons in domestic silence."

HAPPINESS

Chapter 78.

It was all black, glossy black, save for its beautiful bright yellow wheels.

"How do you like her?" Leonard ejaculated, standing by my side and beaming like a boy with a new toy.

"It's wonderful—wonderful! When did you get it?" I hurled at him enthusiastically, but by that time his head and shoulders were more than half way under the front of the car and I doubt if he even heard me.

After a few minutes he emerged from under the wheels and drew out his watch and regarded it for a second thoughtfully.

"It's not 5 o'clock yet. How about a little ride off in the country somewhere? We can find some attractive place to stop for dinner, and get back by 10 or 11 o'clock," he suggested.

Needless to say, Leonard did not have to coax me. I ran upstairs to get ready, two steps at a time.

I sat down for a minute in front of my dressing table and secured my locks safely under a hair net. Then I made a quick decision as to hats. I had a small, close fitting black satin hat faced with chipped straw. It slipped on tight and firm. "One would almost think I had had a premonition." I thought smilingly to myself. "Oh, it's so good to be happy again!" I beamed lightheartedly into the mirror.

Leonard came into the room and stood back of me. I saw his reflection in the mirror. I turned quickly and looked up at him with a joyous smile.

"How would it be, dear, to take sort of a little picnic lunch with us and not bother with having to hunt up a place to eat," he said, coming nearer to me and resting his hand for a minute on my shoulder.

"Just the thing,—I'd like nothing better," I answered eagerly, standing up and endeavoring to make myself as tall as possible and temptingly near and handy for a kiss.

Leonard leaned over and caught me in his arms and nearly lifted me off my feet. I got my kiss, but my hat slid off over one ear and I had to re-adjust it before I hurried downstairs. Emma and I soon had a wonderful lunch ready for the picnic.

"Good heavens, Noreen, we won't have room for all that in the car," Leonard said laughingly as I handed him the lunch basket. I remember afterwards when we got back about 11 o'clock and I unpacked the basket in the kitchen, there was just one sandwich and two olives left in the bottom.

Leonard helped me in the new car, placed the basket in the back and then came around and got in beside me. He put his foot on the starter and the engine purred loudly, and then burst into a low rumbling chug-chug.

Half unconsciously my eyes sought the windows of the house next door. A curtain moved a little. Yes, I could see quite distinctly. The slanting rays from the late afternoon sunlight lit up the room in back and I could plainly see Mrs. Ruwssell standing behind the curtain.

Revenge is sometimes sweet, and in this case mine was very sweet. I settled down beside Leonard comfortable and contented. As we sped past the house I pretended not to be looking, but a side-long glance of satisfaction penetrated the curtain.

"Any special place you want to go, Noreen?" Leonard asked me as we turned the next corner.

"Just any place you say, dear," I told him gayly.

"Frank Dale was telling me of a little lake about two hours ride from here where there is a great bass fishing. Shall we look it up?" he said, as he settled back and advanced the gas a little.

The End.

WAKELY—NORTHEY

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Northey, Lakefield, on Wednesday at 03'clock, the marriage took place of Terfocia Estelle, sister of Mrs. Herbert Northey to Mr. Alfred Ronald Cox son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wakely of Agincourt.

The house was simply and attractively decorated with ferns and daisies and the Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield conducted the ceremony under an arch of festooned white tulle bearing huge bowls of daisies with long ribbon streamers and trailing smilax.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert Northey and looked charming in her gown of white kitten ear crepe with overskirt of white Georgette, embroidered with pearls and loops of white satin ribbon falling from the loose bodice.

Her veil was arranged on her head with a bandeau of orange blossoms and she carried a superb bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lillies of the valley and wore the groom's gift, a rope of pearls. She was attended by the little Misses Laurene Nugent and Margaret Tanner, gowned in white net filet frocks and little bridal veils and carrying baskets of sweet peas. Master Trevor Little, nephew of the bride, carried the ring on a ribbon decked wand and looked very sweet in a "Jack Tar" suit.

The wedding music was played by Miss Beulah Northey, niece of the bride, and as the bride descended the stairs Misses Mary Tanner and Lelda Northey stretched satin ribbon to the altar while little Clifford Northey strewed rose petals before her.

After the ceremony a reception was given, the bride and groom receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Northey in the drawing room a buffet lunch then being served, the bride serving the wedding cake.

Mrs. Northey wore a handsome gown of black satin and a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

After the reception the happy couple left for a two weeks' honeymoon in Quebec. The bride's going away costume was of navy blue with embroidered coat and grey squirrel neck piece and black hat.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wakely will reside in Toronto.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts of silver and cut glass, among them being a silver tea service from the groom's mother.

CHURCH PRAISES HARDING'S STAND ON SUNDAY GOLF.

CHICAGO, June 16.—President Harding was praised in the sermon preached here at the Third Presbyterian Church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Stevens, because of the President's refusal to play golf on Sunday.

At the suggestion of the pastor the congregation of 200, by a rising vote, authorized the sending to the President of a telegram expressing approval of "Harding's Sunday observance platform."

May Have to Go After Them.

"The golf players who on Sundays neglect the worship of God in favor of their favorite game are on the broad road to destruction," said Dr. Stevens. "It may be necessary for the preachers to go out to the golf links to warn the men and women of the error of their ways like the prophets of old went out on the highways and byways warning the sinners of their day to repent and turn to God.

"President Harding by his refusal to join his 'golf cabinet' on the links on Sunday has set an example for the American people to follow. He has shown that he believes in remembering the Sabbath day 'to keep it holy."

Blessing Asked for President.

The telegram to the President was signed by a committee of which R. L. Thomoson is Chairman and A. G. Fegert Secretary. After reciting the unanimous action of the congregation, it concludes:

"May God richly bless you in your determination to serve Him and to remember His day, thereby setting a good example to the American people and to the people of the world."

Value Of Play In School Hours Recognized In London Institute

Mrs. W. R. Morris, on a recent trip, had occasion to visit the Ryerson School in London, which Dr. Cody, the Minister of Education, declared the model public school of the province. Here the value of play in school hours is fully recognized, and although the teachers were much set in the beginning against the idea of inaugurating play-time in hours of study, after a few months' trial found their classes so much the better for it that all are now quite enthusiastic over the idea. This is a beautiful school building of eight rooms, all on the ground floor, a four-sided structure built around a central auditorium. It has rest rooms, principal's office, in fact all the most modern improvements in up-to-date school construction.

Every grade has a play period of half an hour twice a week, when the whole class goes out of doors, and in wet or too cold weather, repairs to the auditorium, which has sound proof doors. The recreation is supervised by a specially trained young lady. At present Miss Cook, who was for two years in Peterboro on Playgrounds work, directs activities, with Miss Chapman, who intends to go to Columbia University for post-graduate course in university work. During the interval, the class teacher rests or corrects the papers, or prepares work for the following day.

This type of school costs no more to build than the ordinary school, and little more to maintain. It requires fairly extensive grounds, the London school occupying two and one-half acres, while the auditorium has a seating capacity of nearly 500, and may be used as a community centre for community gatherings.

Rules for tenants of new municipal houses in Lewisham, England, include one that the bath shall only be used for the purpose for which it is intended.

A Day In June

There is no price set on the lavish summer,
And June may be had by the poorest comer.

"And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days:
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays:
Whether we look, or whether we

Help the Kiddies

The ladies who are members of the Board of the Children's Aid Society, assisted by two or three other local women, are kept busily engaged sewing for the small inmates of the Shelter. All sorts of outer and inner garments for the various feminine and masculine members of various ages who dwell in this institution are evolved from the busy fingers of the ladies who attend these sewing meetings, and are never without a number of little bodies, with their attendant feet and fingers, to be provided for.

The ladies would be extremely grateful to the housewives of Peterborough if, when putting up preserves and canning fruit, they would not fail to include a sealer or jar for this or the other charitable institutions of the city.

Practical Hints

For nails in shoes, cut an insole of thin pasteboard, as the side of a cracker box. The nails will not hurt the feet, and the pasteboard lasts a long time.

To keep on pumps, sew a piece of chamois to the lining inside the heel.

When the soles of shoes and slippers begin to wear, cut a piece of kid from the top of an old shoe and glue it over the worn sole.

To restore the colour to black kid, mix ink with the white of an egg, and apply with a soft sponge.

To clean white kid, dip a clean, white flannel cloth in a little ammonia and rub lightly on a cake of white soap. Rub the soiled spots gently, changing the cloth as soon as it becomes soiled.

To polish tan shoes, first clean the shoes with a sponge and warm water. Wipe with a dry cloth, and let dry. Then rub freely with the inside of a banana peel. Wipe carefully with a dry cloth, and polish with cotton.

Good Manners

At a High School for Girls in Philadelphia, courses in good manners have been inaugurated, in an improvement drive on dress, manners and morals. A manual has been prepared by the faculty, classes in manners have been started, and shadowgraphs will be shown at assembly, depicting various situations in polite life. Advice is given in these courses on all things pertaining to dress, customs, acceptance or refusal of invitations, etc.

This movement should not be confounded with the elaborate sort of etiquette in which schools used to drill their pupils at the expense of other accomplishments. French boys and girls of the aristocracy in the period preceding the Revolution were given much more careful attention to train them how to behave in a drawing-room than how to read or write. The importance of manners was over-stressed. That is why with the French Revolution came a feeling that training in manners was undemocratic.

There is a very practical side to this training in good manners. According to those who handle traffic and transportation, policemen, railroad executives, conductors, motormen, ushers, and floorwalkers—the thing that is most lacking where the crowds are gathered is good manners. Accidents would often be avoided if people were possessed of ordinary good manners, and all the time people would be able to travel with far greater comfort if every one followed a few simple manners based simply on considerateness.

Girls Successful In Camp "Shower"

The shower for their camp at Burleigh Falls, which was held at the Young Women's Christian Association on Tuesday afternoon and evening, was very successful, and the articles received were many and various. Three bags of potatoes were a most useful and appealing contribution, with three large kettles to cook them, and sundry other comestibles in, a skiff, and pair of oars, a flash-light to spot a stray burglar or enquiring ghost, bottles of luscious-looking fat olives, a kettle to brew the water for the tea, and towels to wipe the cups, soap for the cleaner, canned berries and other fruit, a suspicious looking bottle, supposed to hold catsup, chili sauce, and pickles and muffin-tins, marmalade in a pail, even a pair of serviceable-looking turkey wings found their way into the lot, and $15 was donated in cash. "And there is more to come," said the young lady in charge, looking at the fine array which had already come from the hands of generous givers.

The shower was made the occasion of a very jolly little afternoon and evening good time. There was a sale of fancy articles and a tea-room, prettily decorated with ferns and masses of bright yellow buttercups, and a musical programme in the evening when Mrs. Ellis, the Misses Ina Allen, Ruby Quartermaine and Trucie Pearson, rendered vocal solos, Miss Helen Morrison gave a reading, and Miss Florence Giroux an instrumental solo.

THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I.

Ohio woman for three years could hardly keep about and do her housework she was so ill. Made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound:

Fayette, O.—"For about three years I was very nervous and had backache, sideache, dragging-down pains, could not sleep at night, and had no appetite. At times I could hardly do my housework. I got medicine from the doctor but it did not help me. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and took it with good results, and am now able to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

An Illinois woman relates her experience:

Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to it for my health."—Mrs. J. A. MCQUITTY, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Day in and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and beside the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children, or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been restored to health by this famous medicine. Therefore ask your neighbor, and you will find in a great many cases that at some time or other she, too, has been benefited by taking it, and will recommend it to you. For more than forty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring suffering women to health and strength.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up in the morning with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Burglars broke into the Royal County Theatre at Readinfi, smashed the safe, and took all the contents, which are reported to have been considerable.

Why Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is the Favorite Constipation Remedy with so Many Mothers

YOUNG Mothers in the midst of bringing up a family of small children should consider it a duty to investigate the action of the various remedies for constipation. This is the ailment most common among children, and it often leads to serious diseases. It is important for the mother to know the right remedy to give, for they differ widely in action.

Children do not take kindly to drastic drugs, salt waters, calomel, physics, castor oil, carthartics, mercurials and such things, and they find difficulty in swallowing these harsh medicines even when disguised in sugar-coated tablets or pills. It is not only that the child doesn't like the taste, but these drugs are so violent that they wrench the little system. They should not be given to children.

Thousands of wise mothers, after having tried many things, give only a combination of simple herbs with pepsin, known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

The formula is on the package. It is a mild, gentle remedy, free from all narcotics, that relieves constipation and its symptoms, such as headache, biliousness, colds, fever, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, and it does it without griping or weakening. A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for sixty cents and is enough to last an average family many months.

Last year over eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin were sold in drug stores, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, and as the preparation has been on the market over thirty years the second generation of mothers are now giving it to their babies. No careful, well-regulated home will be without a bottle for a mild, safe constipation remedy like this may be needed by someone in the family any minute. Every bottle is guaranteed to do exactly as claimed for the ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels or your money will be refunded.

Feminine I.O.O.F. Honors Departed

The feminine branch of the Independent Order of Oddfellows have a very pretty custom of commemorating their departed members. Once a year a special memorial meeting is held, when the ladies gather together and hold a service for their deceased friends. In accordance with this custom, the members of the local Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, No. 81, held a meeting on Tuesday evening at their hall, when memories of the late Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Akey, Mrs. Wilson, and Miss Robinson were recalled.

A short adress was given by the Noble Grand, Mrs. C. E. Sisson, and a service of prayers and hymns was held.

WHAT CLEVER HANDS CAN DO

Things that bring a breath of the old-time days have a wonderful charm, and to-day you are to be told of an art that can, this modern day, bring to us objects, suggesting our great-grandmother's possessions.

Petit and gros point work is done on canvas with stitches which go but one way. It is done with French tapestry yarns, whose days, unlike the hairs of one's head, are unnumbered!

Canvas patterns are displayed with design already laid in appropriate colors. One follows those colors with a stitch easily mastered. In fact, one of the charms of this beautiful work is the ease with which one progresses.

In many of these designs is a central figure of the petit, or small point, clearly, beautifully worked.

Covers for chairs, benches, sofas, footstools, lamps and fire screens can be had and designs range from $7.50 up. A Louis XVI. design for a small chair has a background of tete-de-negre with a beautiful flower filled basket in the centre. An old-time English design is charming beyond words. On a small square in Louis XV. period a quaintly lovely lady stands. Blue is the sky above her, and one can almost hear the soft wind in the tiny green trees and catch the tinkling notes from the guitar that is in her pretty hands. Placed in a wooden screen this makes a lovely lamp screen.

Needles, patterns, tapestry yarns, etc., are all easily procurable and free instructions are available if needed.

Help Make Blind Women Happy

6

They were blind!

Blind—every single one of them. A big, cheery roomful of girls and women seated before sewing machines, working busily away turning out aprons, nightdresses, kimonas and mats. It seemed incredible that these busy women were sightless.

And yet just a few years ago these women and girls were sitting idle with their unhappy thoughts, shut off from the world by a wall of deepest darkness.

To-day these blind girls and women earn their own living in our Industrial Department for women at 64 Baldwin Street, Toronto. They are happy, even in their darkness, for they have found a new usefulness, thanks to the opening of this Industrial Department a little over two years ago.

But, of course, funds to help run this valuable branch, along with the many other phases of the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind are needed.

MORE LETTERS FOR MISS LEE

UNDERSTOOD ANONYMOUS CORRESPONDENCE BEGUN AGAIN —MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED

POLICE ARE SILENT

LISTOWEL, June 17.—A solution for the mystery surrounding Miss Edna Lee, who was reported to have been kidnapped and chloroformed in Palmerston, is just as far distant as it ever appeared, to the people of her home town and Palmerston. Miss Lee has now recovered from the effects of her experience and is seen often in town, although she has not been back to Palmerston, nor will she or her family agree to an interview.

While the aonymous letters which were linked with the supposed chloforming ceased temporarily, it is understood they have commenced again with the last week and are of much the same type as the previous letters. One letter was received that had been written in Toronto, but this one merely made rabid observations on the affair.

The writer of the present letters is believed to be the same as the first ones. The members of Knox church, Palmerston, where Miss Lee was choir leader, have been particularly sympathetic and pay her many visits.

Knox church session rectory wrote Miss Lee a letter stating they would stand behind her through all and that her position remained open for her. The Misses Doan with whom Miss Lee lived in Palmerston, visited her yesterday while Dr. Konkle and the entire choir were here earlier in the week.

Miss Lee, it is learned, will not return to her choir work in Palmerston despite the requests for her continued services. Her health is said to be impaired and she will require a complete rest.

Mrs. Lee, too, has been seriously ill since her daughter's misfortune and recently while attending her daughter in the night, fell down stairs and sustained several bad injuries and cuts in her head. Relatives and friends who have talked to her say Miss Lee has not related anything more than she at first knew of the affair. While the provincial police department has not communicated with C. A. Lee, the girl's father, activities in the case have not ceased and investigations and inquiries are continuing in a private way under Mr. Lee's direction. The hope is still held that the kidnapper will some day be found and punished.

Considerable feeling is expressed by the family against statements of the provincial police department. It is understood that if any direct accusation is made against Miss Lee by the department it will be followed by civil proceedings, as it is maintained that the department has no evidence on which to base such a statement.

NEW WATER RATES TO BE DISCUSSED

AT PUBLIC MEETING IN THE G.W.V.A. HALL TO-NIGHT.

The public meeting in the G.W.V.A. hall to-night for the purpose of discussing and enquiring into the causes of the increased water rates announced by the Utilities Commission should bring out every citizen, who is interested in the new filtration plant and the administration of the Water Works Department. An invitation has been extended to the Commissioners by the promoters of this meeting, and it has been intimated that they will be present.

A full statement of the affairs of the waterworks department will likely be given probably in the hope that it will satisfactorily answer the complaints and doubts that have culminated in to-night's public discussion. The citizens, who have taken the lead in this matter evidently believed that their action would appeal to all those, who are seeking information and facts concerning the operating costs of the city's water service. A large attendance of ratepayers will furnish proof that the people generally are interested in the community's affairs.

STREET CAR WON JURY DECISION

A. H. STRATTON'S CLAIM FOR DAMAGES TO HIS AUTOMOBILE DISALLOWED.

Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon dismissed the case of Stratton vs. Hydro-Electric, one of those on the June sittings docket after the jury had cleared the Hydro-Electric of causing the accident which occurred on Oct., 1919 and over which the damage suit arose. The plaintiff, Albert H. Stratton, claimed damages of $150 to his automobile, $20 for medical attendance for himself and unstated amounts for personal injuries and the depreciated value of his car. The accident took place at the corner of Park and Hunter streets and plaintiff alleged the driver of the street car was responsible for the accident. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission, as owners of the Peterborough system, claimed that Mr. Stratton attempted to cross the tracks in front on an approaching car and the accident was due to his stopping his car right in the path of the car in a negligent maner. R. S. McLaughlin, of Toronto, was counsel, with Hall & Hall Mr. Stratton's solicitors, and W. W. Pope of Toronto, appeared for defendants.

The list of questions submitted by His Honor to the jury were answered as follows:

1. Were the damages to the plaintiff's car and person caused by the negligence of the defendant, its stewards or agents?—No.
2. If so, in what did such negligence consist?—Unanswered.
3. If defendant was negligent, could the plaintiff by reasonable and ordinary care have avoided the accident?—Yes.
4. If so, what could or should have been done to avoid it?—He should have stopped east of Park street.
5. What damages do you award the plaintiff, if any?—None.

R. H. Knox, Foreman.

The action, on the answers of the jury, was dismissed with costs taxed. Against such costs Judge Huycke allowed a set-off of $35 the costs of the day of plaintiff on 14th inst. when defendant was not ready to proceed.

The jury which heard the case of Stratton vs. Hydro-Electric follows: John Buchanan, farmer, Belmont; William White, Monaghan; Percy W. Elliot, farmer, Dummer; Richard Doris, farmer, Otonabee; William Hanbridge, farmer, Otonabee; William Miller, farmer, Smith; Melville Harrison, farmer, Otonabee; John Sullivan, blacksmith, Peterborough; William Northey, farmer, Harvey; Robert Knox, Lakefield; Albert Tennyson, Peterborough; Percy Hunt, farmer, Harvey.

BLIND WOMEN THREAD NEEDLES, MAKE MANY KINDS OF GARMENTS

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT OF CANADIAN NATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR THE BLIND PERFORMING A WONDERFULLY USEFUL WORK.

One of the most striking things about this national employment of blind people is the realization by the organizers that brightness and beauty is essential to the sightless. The The Industrial Department for Women is flooded with spring and winter sunshine and leafy trees screen the open windows when the summer's heat is here.

The sightless need such surroundings. They feel with greater intensity than do sighted people the freshness of the air, the sweetness of the breeze, the brightness of the sun, the smooth surfaces of wood, and the quality of textures. They make their other senses take up the idle one of sight.

Just about Jailed Her.

There is a strong contrast between the condition of these efficient, busy, self-supporting women in the Industrial Department, and that of another sightless girl whose case was recently reported to the head office of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Investigation showed that for six months she had not been outside the house. Her people had not even taken her to church or for a walk.

Do you wonder there is rejoicing over the establishment of an Industrial Department for Women? The pathos of it is there are ten on the waiting list, and not room for even one of them.

At present there are about 35 blind women and girls employed in the Industrial Department at 64 Baldwin tSreet, Toronto. They are engaged in making night dresses, aprons, caps, kimonas. Some are weaving rugs, making them up from material supplied by anyone interested. Sewing machines, electrically governed, are buzzing all day under the skilled guidance of these blind women and girls. One old lady, 64 years of age, has learned to work the machine, and now earns from $10 to $15 per week on piece work. Threading needles among the sighted often is no easy matter as we all know, but these blind women think nothing of it. Others stand and fold the newly made garments as neatly and as regularly as her sighted sister in any factory by aid of measuring board and her exquisite and sensitive touch. Nightgowns are pressed and stacked in regular piles, and sold by one of the largest wholesalers as the "Hope" brand—please remember this when you are buying these garments. Altogether "this department has now reached the high water mark of their output, 2,400 gowns a week as well as rugs and aprons. 6,000 yards of cotton a week is used." While these girls can sew as quickly as sighted ones, they take more time to put the pieces together as every movement is carried through by the sense of touch.

WORLD'S STRONGEST ROPE.

For Its Size, Spider's Web Qualifies For That Distinction.

What a wonderful contrivance is the spider's web-making apparatus! By means of it he can lower himself easily, rapidy, and safely a distance several hundred times the length of his own body, says Tit-Bits.

No rope that man can make is, for its size, anything like so strong as the spider's web. The smallest rope that will safely bear the weight of an average man is one inch in circumference, or a third of an inch in diameter.

A spider only a quarter of an inch long will swing down from ceiling to floor, running out a line of 500 times as long as himself. To equal the spider's performance a six-foot man would have to carry more than half a mile of one-inch rope! No man could carry the weight.

Spiders' webs are used for making the fine crossed lines of telescopes and other delicate instruments with which minutely accurately measurements are made.

The spider is placed on a tiny roller, which is shaken gently until he falls off and begins to descend. The roller is then turned so that the web is wound on to it, whilst the spider, who thinks he is dropping down, remains suspended in the air.

The amount of web that one spider can make is astonishing. Even if his entire supply is for the moment exhausted, he is very soon able to begin again.

ISSUE OF MARRIAGE LICENSES.

TORONTO, June 16.—Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, stated this afternoon that reorganization in connection with the issuing of marriage licenses would probably go into effect by Sepember 1st. A bill was passed in the House last session providing that in future all marriage licenses would be issued by the town clerks or city clerks in the various municipalities.

Setting Forth Only the Economical Advantages For Those Who Purchase in This Store

Frugality Is Thrift's "Poor Relation"

Doing without things is not real thrift.

Genuine Thrift is careful buying. One cannot practice thrift unless one buys things. One does not call a miser thrifty.

To thrive one must husband his resources; but need not hoard them.

The prosperity of the nation requires that everyone shall buy the things he or she needs; so that all industries shall be active. Personal thrift builds up one's individual prosperity, and is best expressed by careful selection of things needed for one's comfort and happiness, and securing them at their fair prices.

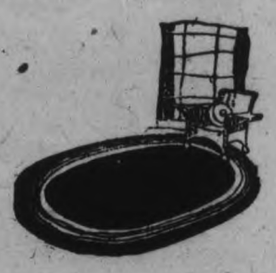
"Going, Going!"

An Auctioneer Would Say, But We Won't Say "Gone" Until Saturday at 9.30 p.m.



Then the GREAT SALE OF FLOOR COVERINGS will be over. Then the offer of a 25 to 38 per cent. reduction on all our Rugs, Linoleums, Oilcloths, etc., will be no more.

Thrifty persons who need merchandise of this kind are unstintingly patronizing this sale. Those who practice false economy or pay little heed to thrift will let it go by. Be as it may, a 25 to 38 per cent. reduction is not to be lightly thrown aside.

We want to impress upon you the magnitude of this event. It does not limit you to a few of this or that—its scope is only limited by the size of our stocks and they are not insignificant by any means.

We Direct Your Attention to Our Children's Dept.

There is much in this section that Children great and small require to keep them cool when the weather is warm, and warm when the weather is cool in the evenings. There are playthings and dressy things and a variety of prices. Mothers economically inclined will find it profitable to have their requirements shown to them from the stocks of this Department.

WAVE OF UNREST AFFECTS WORK OF CHILDREN'S AID

G. W. POWELL'S REPORT TELLS OF PASSING MINOR TROUBLES.

The Children's Aid Society held a meeting in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. A. Sanderson in the chair, in the absence of Rev. Father Phelan, the president. The following members were present: Mrs. Gibbs, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Kimberley, Messrs. J. Edgar, G. W. Powell, R. H. Parsons, F. H. Dobbin, H. B. Cowan and Dr. King.

The mintues of the previous meeting were read, and reports of the purchasing committee, the matron, and the agent, heard. The purchasing committee was authorized to purchase coal for the coming winter from the different dealers of the city.

Communications were received from North Bay, regarding a play caled "The Girl in Red," which is being put on in North Bay, Haileybury and New Liskeard by a Mr. J. E. Bird, under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society. Mr. Bird would like to come to Peterborough with this play, but the Society considered the season too far advanced for an undertaking of this sort. A letter from the Utilities Commission notifying the Society of the proposed increase in water rates, was the subject of some protesting discussion, and a request from the Social Service Council that the Society appoint two members to act on the Advisory Board of the Council resulted in the naming of Mrs. A. Sanderson and Dr. King to act in this capacity. The Women Teachers' Guild wrote, enclosing a cheque for $45 as a donation from the Guild to the Shelter, part of the proceeds of the Spring Festival put on by the teachers in April last, and the secretary was instructed to acknowledge same with hearty thanks.

Mr. Powell's report disclosed the fact that a wave of unrighteousness seems to have attacked some of the wards of the Society in the past few weeks. A small eight-yearold boy in Otonabee township succeeded in setting a whole community by the ears by his tale-bearing proclivities, he roused up a row betwen his teacher and the principal of the school, was suspended from classes, blackened a little girl's eye, and is now once more in Peterborough. His foster mother, however, still believes in him and wants him back. Another little boy in Bailieboro created a great havoc in the barnyard by chasing the old gander and killing the goslings. He also smashed the windows and did considerable other damage of a like nature. He has been returned to the Shelter, with the request for a girl instead. In contrast to this was the case of a young boy overworked and ill-used by a farmer, who compelled him to do most of the heavy work around the place and treated him harshly at the same time.

WIFE INDIGNANT AT CIRCUS "LADY"

ONE OF THE LITTLE INCIDENTS OF THE BIG SHOW LAST NIGHT.

The John Robinson Circus gave a splendid show here last night. A large crowd assembled under the big top to be amused and entertained and thrilled for two hours by the performance of daring aerial acrobats, wonderfully trained animals, and a multitude of mischievous clowns. These circulated amongst the performers in ruffs and pantaloons, in feminine attire with huge bustles, in red, yellow, and stripes, and gave a mock wrestling match and a band number, in which a temperamental leader directed with every portion of his anatomy the struggling trombones, drums, and flutes of his jazzy troupe.

The "lady" masher who escorted gentlemen to their seats with such tender solicitude was wildly chased by an irate female, who led her protesting escort away from all such temptations with much vigorous language, and a late feminine comer shrieked loudly in fear of the blank cartridge of the red-haired clown policeman.

An outstanding feature of the whole show was its clear-cut quality. Everything seemed to be run on a very efficient system of careful attention to all details which go to make up a successful performance, whether from the standpoint of the training, daring, and skill on the part of the artistes, or from the service rendered by officials in charge of the different departments.

GREAT TENANTS' SOCIETY FORMED TO END EXTORTION

NEW YORK, June 16.—Announcement of the formation of the Citizen's Protective Housing League, said to be the most comprehensive tenants' organization that has been attempted, was made to-day by Nathan Hirsch, former Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on rent profiteering.

Samuel Untermyer has consented to serve as advisory counsel and the members of the Executive Council, still uncompleted, include James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany; Grace Strachan Forsythe, Edward I. Hannah and David Gerber. Mr. Hirsch is President, Charles C. Hughes, Secretary, and Thomas F. Curran, Treasurer.

The objects of the League are to stimulate home building, protect tenants from profiteering landlords, defeat harmful legislation and furnish members with paid counsel in the arbitration of differences with landlords and in actual court proceedings.

Voice of the People

Peterborough, June 16, 1921.

Editor, Examiner:— It is noted with interest that a meeting of the citizens will be held in connection with the demands made by the Utilities Commisssion in their schedules as submitted to the people to be put in operation on July 1st. The commission should come to this meeting prepared to fully answer the reasons why this increase is necessary. For example: The average house in Peterborough will possibly work out something similar to the one I illustrate below.

Seven roomed house 25 x 36 ft. on a 40 x 80 ft. lot. This house is supplied with the usual three-piece bathroom, hot and cold water in the kitchen sink, also hot water boiler attached to the furnace. It is noted that there are no luxuries like washing machines or stationary tubs, shower btahs, etc. The old rate on this house was $3.30 per quarter less 33 1-3 per cent. discount or equal to $8.80 per annum. The new rate as advertised will be as follows:

Dwelling house, 4 rooms and 1 tap, $5.40. Three (3) additional rooms at 66c., $1.98, tap on the hot water boiler 66., hot water tap kitchen 66c., lawn and garden 2,300 feet, $4.68, water closet $4.02, wash basin $1.38, bath $2.70. Total $21.48 less 10 p.c. discount $2.14. Net, $19.34 per annum or an increase of 120 p.c.

Every citizen should make it a point to be at this meeting in order that they may be satisfied that this increase is necessary before it goes into effect. A number of people claim that it does not effect them, as they do not pay their water rates. This is no argument. It affects everybody that lives in a house. If a man is a freeholder and lives in his own home he will have to pay this rate. If he rents the house he will have to add this increase in the rent plus his carrying charges, and it will have the effect of increasing rentals from $1 to $5 a month, so that both owners and tenants are very seriously affected by this increase.

The house in question is probably worth about $5000, including the lot. This will probably be assessed at $3000. This increase, which is so quietly slipped over without any consultation with the people whatever, is equal to an increase on their taxation of 4 mills on the dollar.

INFLUX OF IMMIGRANTS

Big Increase From British Isles and U.S.—Few Rejections.

OTTAWA, June 16. — Thirty thousand immigrants have come into Canada in the first two months of the fiscal year. While May figures are not complete, they are running about the same as those of April. In that month 15,052 arrived, an increase of 13 per cent. over the corresponding month of 1920; from the British Isles there were 8,476, from the United States 5,035, and from other countries 1,541.

Figures just completed for the fiscal year ended March 31st, show a total influx of 148,477, of which 100,418 came in by ocean ports and 45,050 from the United States. Is the previous year immigration total led 117,136, but only 67,680 came in that period from Europe.

A featu- about the immigration in the recently closed fiscal year has been the fe- rejections. They numbered only 953, or less than one per cent. Deportations of those who have failed to make good in the country totalled 655. The situation at the order is not so favorable. Many come, but not all are allowed in.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

AN ENCOURAGING RECORD.

The "Excel Club," composed of men who have written at least $100,000 of new life insurance for the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, will meet at the Windsor Hotel, at Montreal, August 17th to 20th, and a record attendance is expected The substantial increase in the club's membership is an indication of the financial condition of the people, and is confirmed by the records of the company. These show an increase of business over the record of 1920. Some people are complaining of adverse business conditions, but they cannot find any trace of them in this company's returns. Many people have awakened to the fact that the lowered buying power of the dollar has left them with decreased insurance protection, which accounts for the greater amounts being taken to make up the shortage. The lessons of the war have contributed to the general realization that life insurance is a necessity.

EXHIBITION PARK VARIEGATED PLOT OF LAND TO-DAY

It would be difficult for the Exhibition grounds to present a more animated panorama than it did yesterday. There were two camps of soldiers with cavalry and artillery drilling on the campus between the two, and in and about the camps men and officers hustling and bustling about their manifold duties, while to the west in the centre of the race track oval John Robinson's circus was blooming forth with all its variegated colours and raucous noises and with the military commands of the officers mingled with the shouts of the circus drivers, with the blare of the trombone and the clear note of the bugle ringing in the air, there was a combination of the serious and the light and comic that is unusual in the history of Exhibition Park.

The camp was informally visited by Gen. W. B. M. King, C.M.G., D.S.O., General Officer Commanding M. D. No. 3 yesterday a.m. and while the official inspection is not till this morning, he went quite fully over the entire camp. He commended both units on the general appearance of the camp but saved laudatory remarks for the official inspection. Gen. King arrived in Peterborough Wednesday night. The squadron of dragoons from Pontypool, Bethany and Millbrook number 98 all ranks, and arrived in the city in good condition at 5.30 Tuesday afternoon after a 30 mile ride. Major Powell is commanding this squadron from Manvers and Cavan.

Yesterday morning both units were hard at drill. Troop drill was being carried on much to the enjoyment of a dozen negroes, some of whom, judging by parts of their respective garments, saw service under Uncle Sam.

Major W. T. Rogers, V.O., inspected all the horses yesterday at 9 a.m.

Lieut. G. C. Dix was orderly officer yesterday. Lieut. W. S. Miller is next for duty.

The Examiner was informed by Capt. Lawrie, O.C. 4th Battery, that the battery would break camp on Saturday. On Wednesday 32 men, the pick of the battery, will mobilizez again and go to Petawawa on Saturday for four days' firing. The dragoons are a nine days' camp, the artillery only six, and the dragoons will not break up till next Wednesday it is stated.

A full parade uptown Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. has been promised by Lt.-Col. Johnston, and citizens will have an opportunity to see this fine body of men, 151 strong, in marching trim then.

Visitors are welcome to the camp, Lt.-Col. Johnston stated, and so far Col. Johnston's kind hospitality has not gone unaccepted. Pickets were put up at the camp yesterday because of the crowds at the circus, but well-intentioned visitors to the camp were readily admitted.

STELGAUSAURUS SKELETON.

Claimed to be the only Complete One Existing and Shipped to Edmonton.

EDMONTON, ALTA., June 16. — Claimed to be the only complete specimen in the world, the skull of a stelgasaurus was recently unearthed in the bad lands of the Red Deer Valley by an expedition, led by Charles Sternberg, expert verteabraic paleontologist, collecting fossii specimens for the University of Alberta. Up until the discovery of this skull the stelgasaurus had been described only by a very small fragment of its head.

This specimen will be shipped to the University at Edmonton. Mr. Sternberg estimates that 50 per cent. of the fossils in the United States' museums have come from the Red Deer District. This year there are only three parties operating in this field, the other two being in charge of brothers of Mr. Sternberg, who are collecting for Ottawa and Toronto.

SAY FARMERS MAKING GOOD IN GOVERNMENT

DRURY A CLEVER LEADER, SAYS EDGAR WATSON AT OMEMEE.

The present Provincial government has made good, although we were told that the farmers could not run anything," declared Edgar Watson, M.P.P., for North Victoria, speaking at the recent U.F.O. picnic near Omemee. Sam Crawford Clark and Mr. Crawford, both in the opposition," he added, had stated that Mr. E. C. Drury is one of the bright est and cleverest leaders that the people of Ontario ever had. Formerly the farmers were called stingy, but now they were spoken of as spendthrifts. We hear much of deficits. If our book-keeping was done as it was in the old Government, our deficits would disappear.

The people of this Province has ben flim flammed. The farmers are just as good business men as the lawyers. Our population is increasing and our business is growing and our expenditure is growing. The road system has to be taken in hand and automobiles demand good roads. The expenditure is justified. Mothers'" Allowance Bill amounts to $700,000.00 and will grow to $1,250,000.00 and will be an increasing burden. The Ontario Government has no control of present conditions Sooner or later things must get back to normal, but during the process it will be hard, for no Government can stop deflation. The farmer is not making money to-day. His commodities are subject to the laws of supply and demand. There is no combination among the farmers.

R. H. Halbert, M. P. for North Ontario, also addressed the gathering.

AVIATOR LANDS IN GRAND CANYON ON ARMY TEST.

WILLIAMS, Ariz., June 16.—Lieut. Alander Pearson, army flier, flew into the Grand canyon and landed and took off again. After his flight Lieut. Pearson said he believed this was the first time either of these feats had been accomplished.

Lieut. Pearson has been ordered by the War Department to fly over the canyon to study its air currents for the Department of the Interior and to locate possible landing fields.

"In spite of the fact that the upper part of the Grand canyon is thirteen miles from rim to rim and the lower gorge is eight miles wide," Pearson said in describing his experiences, 'I felt cramped for room when I was descending into the chasm. I seemed every moment to be flying right slap into some vast cliff."

WOMEN'S COUNCIL WILL CONTINUE EFFORT TO RESTORE THE CURFEW

WILL ENDEAVOR TO ENLIST THE SUPPORT OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE POLICE COMMISSION—BABIES' CLINIC DOING GOOD WORK.

The local Council of Women held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Green room of the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Mowat, the President, occupied the chair. There was very little routine business to be attended to, but some interesting discussion took place on several timely topics. The ladies were asked to contribute the encouragement of their interest and presence at the playgrounds of the city during the summer months and to do everything possible to help the supervisors with their work. Mrs. S. T. Medd introduced the subject of having musical services in Nicholls Hospital for the patients on Sunday afternoons, remarking that during time spent in St. Joseph's Hospital she had enjoyed the singing of the nuns in the chapel. Mrs. W. R. Morris and Miss Stratton both added words of encouragement to this project, and a committee composed of Mrs. Medd, Mrs. Wearing and Miss Stratton was appointed to follow the matter up and make enquiries as to its feasibility from the proper authorities.

Curfew Law Stands.

Some time ago Mrs. A. Stevenson, Mrs. E. V. Frederick and Mrs. S. T. Mead were named to investigate the local by law covering the curfew, and Mrs. Medd reported yesterday that the ladies had been informed that such a law was on the statute books of Peterborough, but that it was a very difficult matter to enforce it. The reason given by the Chief for not ringing a bell in this connection was that there is no bell available for such a purpose. Some suggestions were made as to the use of the chimes, or one of the guns in Central Park, as a curfew warning, and, after considerable discussion, a committee, composed of Mrs. A. Mowat, Mrs. N. H. Sutton and Miss Walton, was named to confer with the Chamber of Commerce, asking them to co-operate with the Women's Council in approaching the Police Commission with regard to this matter.

Miss Walton enquired whether there was a society in Peterborough for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and asked the opinion of the Council with regard to the matter of ill-used animals. Mrs. Medd remarked that the children were taught in school to be kind and careful to dumb brutes, and then, going home, might see a horse being beaten or in a starved condition. The matter was commented on by several members, and it was finally decided to suggest to the Chamber of Commerce the need of a society of this sort and ask that a committee be formed to look into it.

The Babies' Clinic.

Dr. Bernie gave a very encouraging report of the progress being made at the Well Babies' Clinic, and recommended the expansion of same in the ensuing season by having nurses give occasional talks and demonstrations in outlying districts of the town. A nurse who is able to give full time to house visiting can do a wonderful amount of good in lowering the mortality among infants.

Miss A. Lancaster read Sir Chas. Lucas' paper on "The Meaning of the Empire," which was very much enjoyed. What the Empire stands for, the meaning of it to its citizens, and what it does for its people, were sharply defined in this excellent address, which declared that the Empire was the great world-wide insurance of democracy and is the expression of action and deeds—not of words—that British justice has become a proverb amongst the nations of the world, and that, in remembering the men who have worked for the Empire, and, above all, the men who have died for the Empire, the the writer could truly say: 'My lot has fallen on fair ground; yea, I have a goodly heritage."

The meeting adjourned until September with a few apt words from the President, Mrs. Mowat.

A silver penny of Edward VI., has been found on the ancient Castle Hill at High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, England.

EX-SERVICE MAN IS RIGHT ON JOB

DUTHIE SAYS HE FEELS WELL AS EVER AND WORKS EVERY DAY SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"Nobody can talk to me long these days without hearing something about Tanlac," declared Charles Duthie, 191 DeGrassix street, Toronto.

Mr. Duthie, who is now employed in the government artificial limb factory, is a veteran of the world war and lost his left leg in the battle of the Somme.

'Some eight months ago," said Mr. Duthie, "my stomach got all wrong. What little food I managed to eat just seemed to lay like a weight of lead in my stomach and kept me feeling miserable for hours and I suffered all the time from constipation. I would wake up every morning after a restless night, feeling as bad as if I hadn't gone to bed at all. In fact I felt dull and languid all the time and it was all I coud do to keep at my work. In spite of all the medicine I took I kept right on getting worse.

"But all those miserabe feelings are things of the past now, and I could do to keep at my work. In I eat and sleep like a boy and am never bothered with indigestion, constipation or nervousness. I am full of life and energy and can keep right on the job from morning till night and still feel fine. I never miss a chance to recommend this grand medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and leading druggists.

The Campbellford and Peterborough lacrosse teams will cross sticks at the Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the first local game of the season. The public are promised a good clean game, with Len Smith, president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, referee. The scores of the Oshawa-Peterborough baseball game will be posted during the match.

ACID TEST FOR THE PETES AT OSHAWA TO-MORROW

RESULT OF BATTLE IN AUTOMOBILE TOWN WILL HAVE LOT TO DO WITH DECIDING LEADERSHIP OF FIRST ROUND OF CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE RACE—SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP.

The game between Oshawa and Peterborough to-morrow will have a lot to do with deciding the championship of the first half of the Central League race. Oshawa, with Dainty primed and ready, expect to win easily, while the Petes say that George Peacock's gang will know they have been in a ball game. "Hap" Harrison will, of course, be an absentee from the team to-morrow, but otherwise the Solomon gang expect to be at full strength. The crew ave not been playing the best of baseball, but they claim to have it all out of their system now, and hope to prove it in Oshawa to-morrow. It is the crucial game—although, as a mater of fact, every game is a crucial one with the teams going as they are at present.

Umpire Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, will be in charge.

Belleville team, after losing their first two starts, are coming fast now. They have won three in a row, and should add another to-morrow when they play Port Hope in Belleville, although the Ontarios are playing nice ball, and will give any man's team a battle anywhere. Counting Wednesday's game, which stands as a win for Port Hope, at least until the Central Ontario League executive deals with Peterborough's protest, the League standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Oshawa	2	1	.667
Peterborough	3	2	.600
Belleville	3	2	.600
Lindsay	3	2	.600
Cobourg	1	3	.250
Port Hope	1	3	.250

Games To-morrow.

Cobourg at Lindsay.
Port Hope at Belleville.
Peterborough at Oshawa.

In protesting Wednesday's game at Port Hope, the Peterborough ball club is not endeavouring to win on a technicality or to win in the committee room rather than on the diamond. They are simply asking for a fair interpretation of the rules of baseball and to be protected against decisions that are directly opposed to such rules. The decision given by Base Umpire Henderson the other day deprived them of a sure run and a good chance of scoring others, and as the score was 3-2, his mistaken ruling was the biggest factor in the victory of the Port Hope team.

The Petes are only asking for their rights in calling attention to the work of Umpire Henderson.

Moise, the Newcastle boy who played shortstop for the Port Hope team two years ago, is back with the Ontarios again this year, and is playing nice ball both in the field and at bat.

It is not often that the Petes are so shy of men as they were in Port Hope. Harrison, Swanston, Lowe, and Holyman were not available, and as a result "Lefty" McElroy was the only man on the bench. He got into the game as a pinch-hitter before the fray was over.

KEENE DEFEATED BY LAKEFIELDERS

WHITE TURNS BACK OTONABEE NINE AND THREE TEAMS ARE NOW TIED.

With Kelvin Murray, the Petes' third-sacker, calling them from behind the baters and Jake Solomon officiating at the bases, Lakefield defeated Keene at Lakefield last evening in an East Peterborough League game by the score of 14 to 4.

Norwod, Keene and Zion are onw tied for the leadership in the first half of the schedule, each team having won two games and lost one. Next week's games will bring Norwoodand Zion together at Norwood, and Keene plays at Douro.

Lakefield used White, a portsider, against Keene, and the visitors broke away only once— in the seventh, when they scored three of their four runs. White struck out the side in the first and second.

The Keene defence wobbled badly, both Barraclough and O'Dette who succeeded him being poorly supported.

Batteries— Lakefield, White and Simpson; Keene, Barraclough, O'Dette and O'Dette.

LACROSSE NOTES

Talking of the old-time days when a match was decidel by the first four goals, Fred Waghorne calls atention to the fart that the change was not made immediately to the present system, says Sport Murton in the Toronto Telegram.

At first the time limit was made two hours, with change of nets after each goal. Then for a long time the playing space was divided into two periods of 45 minutes each, with a rest only at half-time. It was not until about 1900, quite recent times, declares Fred, that the four 20-minute periods were adopted. He himself fathered the innovation in the C.L.A., and it was introduced afterwards into the N.L.U. by Charlie Querrie, when the Tecumsehs joined that league.

According to Art Warwick his intermediates expect a great name from the Shamrocks when the latter visit Oshawa a week from Saturday. Mimico last Saturday strengthened by the addition of Johnson, the player who was expelled last year, gave his team a fair battle for the second half of the game, but the combination of Oshawa was to clever for them from the half-way period on.

Oshawa is not a new town in lacrosse by any means, though they have been out of the game for a long time. It was against Oshawa in 1902 that the Fergus Thistles wrested the intermediate championship in the semi-final at the Island, when the whole Scottish town and a piper took the excursion train to the metropolis. Oshawa is again one of the most enthusiastic strongholds in Ontario.

Banning Rough Play.

Looking over the early games played in the senior ranks, the O.A.L.A. executive came to the conclusion that it appeared as if opposing teams were making a dead set on the star players. Hard bumps were being handed out to the stars, and they were treated too severe. With this in mind, the executive made a slight alteration to one of their rules, and this alteration may make things much better. The original rule said that "Any player striking another on the head, whether accidentally or otherwise, shall be ruled off for a period not less than five minutes." That five minutes has been changed to read "ten minutes or more." All clubs and officials have been advised of the change.

No Alternative.

While in a few cases this rule may work a hardship, the executive feel that it will do away with much of this "cutting down" of star players. Of course, it is not always the stars who are flailed. The lesser lights receive their share, too. But it has seemed that the outstanding players on each team are the subject of much abuse. There are times when a player is hit over the head and cut, and it is an accident. However, the referee has no alternative.

On Saturday last, at Scarboro Beach, Reevs of Beaches hit Dickin, of Weston, on the forehead, and the latter was cut. It was purely an accident, and Referee Querrie knew it. Yet he had to give a ten-minute penalty.

While the O.A.L.A. executive may receive a few criticisms for their change in the rule, still they must be congratulated for getting after the rough players. It is much better to be airtight with their rulings than to lean towards evading the issue.

AN EASY VICTORY FOR CRESSMAN'S

GRAHAM COVERS MUCH GROUND, TAKING THREE HARD CHANCES BEHIND FIRST.

Instead of turrning out a real ball game, Cressman's and Barrie's went at it last evening in the Mercantile League and scored 25 runs. Into the melee were injected 18 errors. Barrie's started it, and the contagion spread. At the fourth the arrival of rain brought the hope that Umpire LeBar would have to call off the game. But no such luck.

Cressman's won the game by 19 to 6, winning pretty much as they pleased by batting the ball to the outfield, where any old kind of a clout fell safe. Bill McGee was the only Barrie gardener to catch a fly ball and he made it a double by throwing to the plate and getting Hunter.

Barrie's had a glorious chance to get some runs in the first. Seven batsmen appeared. There were three hits, one outfield error, and two passes, yielding in all but one run. That was their last chance. Cressman's had thirteen runs at the third, and Barrie's did not score again until the sixth.

Everett Graham enlivened the exhibition by going over behind first base and taking three high flies. All were difficult chances. Al. Wade knocked out a home run in the 7th, with Sage on, and upon his arrival at the plate was thrown out for failing to touch second base.

"Babe" Head, who on account of Bergoine's injury, was forced into harness behind the plate, went through the game with his throwing hand swelled to the size of a circus balloon.

NEW FARNUM PICTURE IS STIRRING DRAMA

William Farnum stirred the audiences at the Regent Theatre deeply yesterday, when he appeared for the first time here in the latest William Fox production "His Greatest Sacrifice," based on the life tragedy of a wife who separates herself from her husband and her child in the hope of winning happiness from public applause in the opera world. At the time of this separation the husband has just begun to climb the ladder of success as a writer. The wife has a fine voice, and she leaves her home because she is fearful that domestic life will interfere with her career.

A wealthy and influential man tells her that her career means everything to her. She believes him. She achieves fame—but in the end is forced to give way to younger women. Then mother-love, which she had tried to crush, comes back and she seeks consolation from her husband and her daughter—only to find that what she discarded so callously cannot be grasped again at will.

There are many intensly dramatic moments in this picture, moments when Mr. Farnum stirs your whole being by his fine acting. It's a picture in which there are no dull moments. It is satisfying. It should draw crowds to the Regent Theatre.

AT THE ALLEN.

"EVERYBODY WORKS BUT FATHER," RECALLED BY CHESTER COMEDY.

Hap. H. Ward, who has become such a favorite by his character work in two reel Chester Comedies, has a role in "Beat it," the latest one, at the Allen theatre, to-day that recalls a song that was a great favorite a good many years ago — "Everybody Works but Father." He takes the part of an old man who allows his nine year old daughter, (played by Ida May McKenzie, "the sweetest child on the screen") to support him by singing in a prohibition dance hall—what ever that is. The story turns on the theft of the money which she earned to pay off the mortgaeg on the home.

Of course, Snooky, the Humanzee, has the principal role and he executes a number of feats that again prove him a most marvellous animal actor. He is seen as a waiter in the dance hall and is said to be screamingly funny.

HOW SYLVIA BREAMER SPENT HER BRIEF VISIT.

When "Not Guilty," Sidney A. Franklin's initial independent production, which is coming to the Allen Theatre, was completed, Sylvia Breamer dashed home to remove her "make-up" and then rushed to the Los Angeles depot to catch the Overland for New York.

She returned to the west coast recently with the proud announcement that she had seen every dramatic performance on Broadway. Miss Breamer is gifted with a remarkable memory and astounded her Holywood friends by giving extracts from all the different plays.

INFIELD OF SOUTHPAWS FAILS TO WIN A GAME

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 16.—A distinction said to be claimed by no other baseball nine in the country may be seen in connection with the Williamstown High team which is a contestant in the Berkshire League series this spring, for all four members of its infield —the three basemen and shortstop —are southpaws.

The often heard contention that the initial sack is the only place in the diamond for a left-hander receives more power from the local experiment, for up to date this season Williamstown High has not registered a single victory.

"Keep your own name" is the slogan of the latest club organized by New York professional women.

DANCING AND BICYCLE ACT AT THE CAPITOL

Another vaudeville act from the Keith circuit delighted the large audience at the Capitol Theatre last night. Hughes & Hoffman had a trick novelty bicycle act, in which Mr. Hoffman does some sensational feats, turning somersaults in mid-air, jumping over a table, balancing his companion on one hand, and riding at full speed on one wheel. His partner, Miss Hughes, has a dainty litle dance number, with some clever little steps and a dainty costume.

The comedy of circus life was aptly chosen for the occasion last evening, and the new Fairbanks picture, "The Nut," was filled with original situations to show off the versatile Douglas to the best possible advantage. It has a direct, strong love interest and some amusing complexities. Comedy complications rather than stunts, dominate the action, in which the star sets himself to the task of pleasing one girl, a philanthropist of the "Lady Beautiful" type, who has very high ideals of social service. In assisting her in the accomplishment of her various endeavours, the hero finds himself in a number of mirth-provoking situations from which he extricates himself through a combination of ingenious devices and daring stunts. Douglas Fairbanks is at his best in this picture, and a happy ending arrives through the rescue of the heroine from a gambling house to which she has been lured by the villain.

CHAUTAUQUA SUCCESSES

The manager of the Dominion Chautauqua, Limited, writing of the phenomenal success which attended the first day's programme at Niagara Falls on June 14th, says that the entertainments are "going to be popular with Ontario audiences, if one may judge from the expressions of approval heard here yesterday afternoon and evening. Every number was encored. Mr. Zedeler's talk preceding each selection was especially favorably commented on. I heard people remark that it was a musical education to hear him and then hear the selection played. Miss Booth, the soloist, made a decided hit. Herbert Leon Cope's lecture was simuply a riot. There was a burst of laughter at the close of his first sentence, and from then on it continued almost unbroken for one hour and a quarter. There were times when it rose in shrieks. He closed with the "Whistling Boy," and the crowd hushed its laughter to almost complete silence as the beautiful poem was given."

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The proposed stock dividend on Louisville and Nashville and the fifty percent. reduction in Crucible Steel dividend were reflected in the irregular trend of prices at the opening of to-day's stock market. Louisville and Nashville rose two points and Crucible Steel fell 2 3-4 points. Within the first half hour, however, the market again lapsed into its recent weakened condition. Atlantic Gulf Common and Preferred were especially weak, losing 1 1-2 to three points at low records. New York Air Brake, Harvester, Studebaker, American Car, Mexican Petroleum, Sumatra Tobacco and American Woollen showed losses of one to 1-2 points. A few drifting gains among the sugar and retail specialties soon were cancelled.

Selling for both accounts was renewed in to-day's stock market. Extreme losses of one to five points in popular issues involved many new low records. Sales approximated 750,000 shares.

Chesapeake and Ohio lost four points on a further postponement of dividend action, other rails falling one to two points.

Among oils, steels and motors rallies of one to four points accompanied extensive short covering. The closing was irregular.

Steels and Equipments led the more extensive decline of the morning. United States Steel fell one point to 73 3-4, its lowest price in several years. American and Baldwin locomotives, General Electric and Harvester lost two to 4½ points. Mexican Petroleum broke to 104¼ after rallying to 109. Louisville and Nashville re-acted five points and other rails were inclined to fall back. Corn Products, Central Leather, Common and Preferred, Studebaker, American Woollen and Sears-Roebuck forfeited one to four points. Offerings of call money extending into next week at 5½ per cent. were without influence on the stock market.

EGGS AND POULTRY.

Toronto firm and higher. Specials jobbing 41c, extras 39c, firsts 37c. Receipts reported only sufficient to supply local demand. Several cars of States eggs reported rolling this market.

Montreal firmer. Specials jobbing 40, extras 37c to 38c, firsts 33c to 34c, seconds 29c.

Chicago current firsts 34 to 35c, storage extras 26 1-2c, firsts 26c, refrigerators Mays 26 1-2c, Aprils 27c; terms cash, buyer assuming charges.

New York current extra firsts 28c to 30c, firsts 25c to 27 1-2c.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 17. — (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange strong; demand 3.78; Canadian dollars, 11 1-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 17. — (Canadian Press).—Hot weather and reports of consequent damage to crops in some localities had a bullish effect on the wheat market to-day. Offerings were light until prices had scored an advance of five cents in some cases. Then sellers became more numerous and prices began to sag. Opening quotations, which ranged from 3-4c to 5c higher, were followed by a material re-action from the initial top figures.

Corn and oats were stronger with wheat. Corn, after opening 3-4c to 2 5-8c higher, steadied at moderate gains compared with yesterday's finish. Oats started 3-4 to 5-8 up, hardened a little more and then re-acted somewhat. Provisions, although dull, were firmer, re-acting the upward tendency of grain and hogs.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one or two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

PSYCHOLOGICAL STUFF FOR THOSE LINDSAY DARBS

(Lindsay Post)

The flock of grousers, growlers, crabbers, and windjammers inhabiting this town would do justice to even Peterboro.

Listen—Against the advice of old ball veterans, and in the interests of true sport, Lindsay put a team in the C. O. B. L. this season. For years they have been taking everybody's dust, trailing in the rear. Now heartened by a good pitcher and strengthened by a collection of good all-round ball-players, they have forged ahead. Working at a nerve-cracking rate, playing Wednesdays and Saturdays for weeks, they have landed on the top shelf.

Then the inevitable break came, and the air-tight ball sprang a leak. The Belleville ex-champs won their game. Then out shrieked the calamity howlers.

That's no good. Crabbing won't bring that game back or win the next. It will do more harm than good. Give them a smile and a cheer. Atta boy! Go to it! We're behind you. All right, Belleville, we'll get you again, you bunch of cripples. Come on Cobourg!

A bunch of ball swatters who are game enough to go into the Central League when things looked darkest displayed genuine gameness and the true sporting spirit, and are worthy of the loyal support of every fan.

WEDDING BELLS

EASSON—McGUIRE.

One of Ennismore's prettiest weddings took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, in St. Martin's Church, when Miss Elizabeth McGuire, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire, became the bride of Mr. Fred Easson, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Easson, Lakehurst. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. V. McAuley. The bride looked charming in a delicate costume of white French charmeuse, with trimming of white georgette and lace rosettes, and wearing a dainty veil of tulle, banded and caught with orange blossoms, and carrying a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna McGuire, of Peterborough, who was prettily attired in a gown of palest pink organdie, with hat of black mohair and long streamers caught with rosebuds, and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and roses. Mr. Wm. Harrington, as groomsman, fulfilled his duties in every respect. During the ceremony Misses Mary and Margaret McGuire, twin sisters of the bride, rendered beautifully the appropriate duet "Ave Maria," and while the register was being signed, Mr. Jas. McGuire, B.A., sang "O Sacred Heart."

After a dainty breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left on the 12.20 train for Montreal, Quebec, and points east, the bride travelling in a suit of navy, with hat to match. On their return they will reside at Lakehurst.

HENDREN—RUSSELL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Russell, Locust Farm, Douro, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at six o'clock on Wednesday, June 15th, when their daughter Stella Russell and Mr. Elmo Stephen Hendren of Warsaw were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. Girard Graham B. A., was the minister. The bride entered the wedding room leaning on the arm of her father, and looked charming, dressed in her wedding gown of blue taffeta silk and carrying a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and carnations.

The travelling suit was navy blue with hat to match. The gift of the bridegroom, to the bride was a pendant set with pearls, and to Lillian, who played the wedding march, a twin pearl ring. The happy couple will reside in Warsaw, where Mr. Hendren is in business.

Miners' Leaders Plan General Strike, But Men Return to Pits

EXECUTIVE TO MEET OTHER TRADES WITH OBJECT OF TAKING NATIONAL ACTION TO SECURE DEMANDS.

COLLIERIES ARE OPENING

LONDON, June 18.—The Executive Committee of the Miners' Union which met this morning to consider the coal strike situation decided to ask all trades unions affected by the wages dispute to meet the miners' representatives at an early date with the object of taking national action with the miners to secure their mutual demands. Secretary Hodges of the miners said this implied a general strike if the other unions agreed.

The striking miners this morning were given one more day within which to take settlement steps, which will assure them of receiving the ten million pounds subsidy from the Government to apply on wages. The action of the Executive in opening negotiations for the support of other unions indicates that the subsidy offer will be allowed to lapse.

Members of the Miners' Committee left for their respective districts after the meeting had adjourned indefinitely. The committee will not re-assemble, it was stated, until developments arise or the members are called together by their officials.

Many thousands of miners who did not vote on the owners' proposals, as well as others who voted in favor of acceptance are preparing to resume work on Monday, in response to notices posted at several pit heads, announcing that the works would open Sunday night, according to advices from mining centres today. In Warwickshire two collieries already are working, while in the northern portion of the Nottinghamshire district and in the Midlothian district the men are declared to be preparing to resume work.

KING IGNORES REBEL THREAT FROM BELFAST

WILL OPEN ULSTER PARLIAMENT, ACCOMPANIED BY QUEEN, IN SPITE OF RECENT RIOTS TO PREVENT VISIT.

ANOTHER AMBUSCADE

BELFAST, June 18.—(Canadian Press). — It was announced to-day that Queen Mary would accompany King George on his visit to Belfast for the opening of the Parliament of Northern Ireland next Wednesday. Their Majesties will be escorted from England by two light cruisers, a flotilla leader and nine destroyers.

CORK, June 18. — (Canadian Press). — Twenty-five auxiliary policemen beat off the forces of three hundred Sinn Feiners after a fierce fight at Rathcoole last night, when four lorries were ambushed. Three road mines were destroyed, putting the lorries out of action, and the attacking party fired upon the police from trenches and walls. They were forced to retire, however, losing one known killed and many wounded. It is believed that three of the attacking party met death during the fight. The Crown forces lost two killed and four wounded. Reinforcements were rushed to the scene and were searching the countryside early to-day.

JURY FOUND NO WRONG INTENT IN ALLEGED THEFT

Charged with stealing a cow from William Craig, of Galway, Mrs. Mahoney, an elderly lady, now liviung on Park street, Peterboorugh, was tried before Judge Huycke and a jury yesterday afternoon in County Court. The circumstances of the case are unusual, it appearing that defendant disposed of her chattels at an auction sale and complainant had got the cow, giving Mrs. Mahoney an endorsed note in payment. Taking the note to a bank at Kinmount, defendant was unable to discount it. She took the note to complainant's home and left it with his wife, claiming the return of her cow. She secured the cow. Mrs. Mahoney and her son alleged that complainant's wife delivered up the cow willingly to accused but the wife denied, stating she had neither consented or refused consent. About two weeks later complainant came to Peterborough and laid a charge of theft. This occurred in March of this year.

The accused, after holding the cow for several days, disposed of it for a lesser amount than when sold at auction. It was pointed out in the addresses to the jury that the question for consideration was whether or not Mrs. Mahoney had mistakenly or dishonestly taken the cow home. The jury reached the conclusion the act was done without any intention of wrong-doing and a verdict of not guilty was brought in and His Honor discharged Mrs. Mahoney. G. W. Hatton prosecuted for the Crown. F. D. Kerr is defending accused.

AGREEMENTS NOT ABROGATED, SAYS U.S. RAIL BOARD

RULES CAN ONLY BE CHANGED THROUGH AGREEMENT OR APPEAL.

CHICAGO, June 18.—(Canadian Press).—The national rules and working conditions agreements in effect on the railways of the United States are not abrogated by the Railroad Labor Board's decision of April 14, terminating the previous decision enforcing the rules, the Board decided to-day. The rules can only be changed by the agreement of roads and employees or through appeal to the Board. The rules and working conditions now governing the big four brotherhoods will continue in effect until changed by negotiation between the Brotherhoods and Railroads or the Railroad Labor Board under the ruling of the Board to-day.

STRAWBERRIES AT 5 CTS. IF BOXES RETURNED

NORWICH, June 18.—The strawberry crop here is very bountiful. On Tuesday one party sold berries by the crate at the rate of 5c. a box if the boxes were returned. One of the merchants sold them at 6c., a lady offered good berries at 7c. and one grower charged 8c. Outside of these exceptions the prevailing price was 10c.

SOVIET FORCE MOVES TO AID NATIONALISTS

REPORTED TO HAVE REACHED POINT 60 MILES FROM ERZERUM---ITALIANS MAKE WAY FOR GREEKS.

2 SHIPS FOR PROTECTION

PARIS, June 18. — (Canadian Press).—The Russian Bolshevik forces sent to the assistance of the Turkish Nationalists by the Moscow Soviet Government are at present sixty miles west of Erzerum, the former Capital of Armenia, says a despatch from Reval. These forces consist of two divisions of infantry, One division and one brigade of cavalry, eight batteries of field guns a battery of heavy cannon, several air planes and the necessary technical units.

Constantinople, June 18.—(Canadian Press) Two Italian battle ships have been sent to Adalia to protect Italy's interests here. Italian troops along the Meanaders River, south of Smyrna ,are being withdrawn so that the Greeks may not invade the demarcation line betwen the creek and Italian zones as they did last year.

PARIS, June 17 (Canadian Press). —Marquis Curzon, the British Foreign Minister, and Premier Briand, with experts, discussed the conditions in the Near East to-day, and expect to present their ideas on the solution of the problem this afternoon.

The Italian Ambassador to France has been invited to attend the confer— this evening.

Marquis Curzon, it is understood, gave it as the present British view that the Turkish Nationalists should be offered all Anatolia and that Smyrna Villayet should be autonomous, but if the Nationalists refuse to agree to this, then the Allies should support the Greeks financially against the Nationalists.

ABROGATE BAN ON PULPWOOD EXPORT

U.S. SENATE AUTHORIZES OPENING OF NEGOTIATIONS.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—A resolution authorizing the President to open negotiations with Canada for the abrogation of Provincial and Dominion regulations restricting the exportation of pulp wood to the United States passed the Senate yesterday and was sent to the House.

G.W.V.A. TO ORGANIZE DISTRICT COMMANDS

THREE DISTRICTS ARE ALREADY ESTABLISHED — THE LEGION PROPOSAL.

The organization of district commands of the G.W.V.A. throughout Ontario was given a further impetus at the meeting of the secretaries of the province in Toronto yesterday. Mr. Sidney Whatley, secretary of the Peterboro branch of the G. W. V. A., told the Examiner this morning, that the local district command would include such branches at Lakefield, Millbrook, Port Hope, Norwood, Havelock, Campbellford and other places. Three districts have already been established, including one centering in Toronto and another at St. Catharines.

"This consolidation of the districts has already proved its usefulness," said Mr. Whatley, "and in this locality it will bring together branches that have not been, but should have been in close touch. According to this plan each branch will send representatives to meetings which will be held at regular intervals, perhaps in Peterboro. It is obvious that this should arouse new interest and enthusiasm and keep the branches strong and flourishing."

Mr. Whatley stated that the consensus of the secretaries' reports showed that although the Association in Ontario indicated a seeming weakness last January, since then there has been a steady increase in strength until at the present time the G.W.V.A. is practically full strength.

Union with the G.A.U.V. was freely discussed yesterday elicitating the opinion that this question should be carefuly deliberated. It is contended that the G.W.V.A. has property in Ontario of an aggregate value of one million dollars, apart from the position it has attained, and the strength of its membership. These were considerations that could not be lightly disposed of. The G.W.V.A. desire co-operation with other soldiers' associations, but in the formation of a Canadian Legion they believe that the G.W.V.A. should retain its identity as fully as possible.

Independent Audit of the Books of the Local Utilities Commission Demanded by Incensed Ratepayers

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

F. H. Dobbin: Coming back to this matter of the small house. In fact, we should not have to come back — should keep it before us.

Many citizens have contributed to your column. Have made writings that express ideals for and of the city. Largely speculative. But if we have no ideals, we stand still. And the idealist, if sincere, is often a help. In any event, he fills the place of a counter-irritant. Keeps us moving.

What we most need just now is the practical thing. It is such that accomplishes. Too often people will not accept suggestions, simply because they are made by the other fellow, and allowed to stand. Can we get a few men who will catch hold and lift.

Granted that the small house building movement needs to be encouraged. On that we generally agree. But verbal approval will never lay one brick or slap on one lath. It is doubtful if, under present conditions, private capital will come into action.

So if we need to build, the problem lies as between the man and his city.

Now it is pointed out that we have encouraged factories to locate in Peterborough by offering such and such things by way of inducement. If we do this to get factories here, why not do something to get men of the city to stay here? A property owner in the city is worth six at Apsley.

And we encourage the factory on the plea that if this city does not do something another place will. It is a jug-handled argument, but it works. Why can't it work now?

Follow this idea into the movement to encourage the building of small houses. We have lots of lots. So many that selecting one is a sort of lottery. The deceased Housing Commission knows of 164 lots at none, over $300.00. With all municipal services.

The vacant lot pays a moderate tax to th city. Unimproved and unoccupied. Clap a house on it, and its joint value (lot and house) increases. Let the assessed value of the lot stand for five years. Give the house a fixed assessment for the same period. The city will gain in taxes and the municipality by having increased accommodation.

But we have to meet the objection of some new house owner, who says that he will be hanged if he will help pay for the other fellow's house. Don't argue with him. Just stand him off. Politicians never argue. If they did they would never get anywhere. They stand off—the first principle of politics.

Taking the stand, as above, the objection is illogical. The owner has probably voted for exemption on a factory project for the reason that in so doing he would be helping to supply employment to others. Decent and commendable. Why not, then, do as much to get the other fellow a chance at a home?

Beyond question this city has to have for its municipal needs more money. For our city, housekeeping is getting more and more expensive. It can get the coin by raising the assessment. It can get by raising the taxes rate. By far the best way is to try and raise it by moderate encouragement of building of more small houses; that will at least bring into the coffers of the city a share of taxes to assist in lessening the general liability. It would be distinct gratification to the city tax collector to be able to issue three hundred additional taxes bills.

We look for litle easement from municipal economy. Friends, it isn't done. The function of all municipal bodies is to spend money. That is what we elect them for. And those bodies that have the least to do with raising the money endeavour to spend the most. No year's expenditure is ever less than the preceding. Why should it be? New needs, new fads, new projects spring up. All find advocates, who abandon the several fads and fancies that they have been tooling along in a public way and hustle after the new. All over the city the shelves are stuffed with minute books of things that came up, were the fashion for a while, and died for lack of support. People ever run after some new thing.

So now let us give them something substantial to hike along with — the Small House Movement.

The idea is big enough. And important enough. Just now it lacks momentum. Who will help shove?

BIG INFLUX OF NEW SETTLERS TO CANADA

30,000 Arrived in the Past Two Months.

OTTAWA, June 17.—Thirty thousand immigrants have come into Canada in the first two months of the fiscal year.

While many figures are not complete they are running about the same as those of April. In that month 15,052 arrived, an increase of 13 per cent. over the corresponding month of 1920.

There were 8,476 from the British Isles, 5,035 from the United States, and 1,541 from other countries.

Figures just completed for the fiscal year ended March 31, show a total influx of 148,477 of which 100,418 came in by ocean ports and 45,059 from the United States. In the previous year immigration totalled 117,336 but only 67,680 came in that period from Europe.

A feature about the immigration in the recently closed fiscal year has been the few rejections. They numbered 953 or less than one per cent. Deportations of those who have failed to make good in the country totalled 655.

The situation at the border is not so favorable. Many come, but not all are allowed in. Of 68,190 who presented themselves for admission to Canada 20,131 were rejected or at the ratio of one in four. Why so few are turned back at ocean ports and so many on the border is explained by the fact that people from the States are more inclined to take a chance and rejection does not impose the same inconvenience. The main reasons for the extension rejection are lack of money qualification and for having come by indirect passage through the States from Europe.

BRITISH DEMANDING MEETING IN SILESIA.

Serious Situation Resulting From French Procrastination.

LONDON, June 18.—The continued procrastination of France, as the British Foreign Office views the tactics of the French Government in the Silesian question, is developing a very serious diplomatic situation.

Because France has been apparently so indifferent toward affairs in Upper Silesia Great Britain is again calling her attention to the lack of co-operation between the Plebiscite Commission and the military arm of the entente administration, it is learned on good authority at the Foreign Office. The position of the British troops is declared to be intolerable because of the attitude of the Commission.

The British Foreign Office is demanding an immediate meeting of the Supreme Council to discuss both the Silesian and Near Eastern questions, but Premier Briand continues to side-step the issue.

The tactics of France are regarded as obstructive and if they continue, it is intimated, Lloyd George will summon Italy, Japan, Belgium and the United States—the latter in the newly adopted unofficial capacity—to deliberate on the matters, ignoring France and putting it up to her to participate if she likes.

It is reiterated with considerable force in London that the attitude of France in the Silesian matter is regarded as contrary to the treaty of Versailles and that it may eventually cause the Entente to be hindered if not entirely dissolved.

If God couldn't keep the first man decent, parents of to-day need not be discouraged by their failures.

MEETING TO PROTEST AGAINST 80 PER CENT. INCREASE IN WATER RATES ENDS IN ADOPTION OF RESOLUTION FOR AUDIT.

DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS

"Resolved that we, the ratepayers of the city of Peterborough, do most strenuously protest against the extreme increase in the water rates as published in the Evening Examiner of June 9, 1921, which becomes effective July 1, 1921, and would therefore demand that such increase be postponed until such time as a thorough audit of the books of the Utilities Commission can be made by a qualified chartered accountan and cause shown why this large increase is necessary."

Endorsed by a unanimous show of hands and shouts of accent, this resolution, moved by William Lytle, seconded by M. Cain, was adopted by the indignation meeting of citizens in the G.W.V.A. Hall last night, protesting against the great increase in water rates announced by the Utilities Commission to take place on July 1 to meet increased operating expenses and the maintenance of the filtration plant.

The resolution was a climax to a meeting unusual in the annals of Peterborough's public utilities. The meeting, organized by a handful of citizens, was packed. Every class in the city was represented. The antipathy to the announced increase if the meeting is a guage, is general throughout the city. The Utilities Commission were unpleasantly criticized last night, and the line of men sitting on the platform representing the Commission were under merciless fire all night.

Mayor McIntyre presided. The Utilities Commission was represented by Robert Hicks, chairman, E. F Mason and C. F. Sisson, Commissioners, Ross Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks, E. H. D Hall, Commission's solicitor, S. R. Armstrong, secretary, George Henderson, accountant, and H. O. Fisk, manager of the Commission.

There was no mistaking the strong feeling at the meeting last night. There were many bitter things said about the Utilities Commission and other public bodies at the protest gathering of ratepayers.

After Mayor McIntyre had briefly spoken of the reason for the meeting, he said he understood the procedure was to call Mr. Hicks. Wm. Lytle, sitting a half-dozen rows from the front, said they had a plan for the meeting, and he went on and asked Ald. J. J. Turner to address the meeting. A roar of applause greeted his call for Ald. Turner. Mr. Hicks suggested the names of the speakers might be put in and called one by one.

"We'll look after the procedure," said Mr. Lytle.

"Mr. Hicks, the procedure has already been arranged. You sit down," added C. S. McClellan.

Ald. Turner, in introducing the subject generally, said that the attitude of the citizens to the increase was the same as the Council's to their increase in hydrant charges—they thought it was too much. "We realize the increase of 80 per cent. over what I am paying now an exorbitant increase. It seemed to be out of all proportion with the service rendered and the prices in other cities." Ald. Turner commended the openness of the Utilities Commission making all their affairs public business, and the meeting, he said, was call'ed to determine if the increase is warranted. Ald. Turner stressed the point that water should be as cheap a commodity as anything.

Mr. G. W. Worth asked Ald. Turner if he hadn't meant 103 per cent. instead of 80 per cent. increase. The 33 per cent. discount formerly allowed, Mr. Worth said, was cut to 10 per cent., therefore the net increase was 103 per cent.

Mr. Turner was also taken up upon his surmising that, as he was, the ratepayers were each notified by letter of the increase. "Didn't the water-users get a letter that the rates would be increased?" he said in unfeigned surprise.

"No! No! No!" came from all parts of the crowded hall. Ald. Turner accepted the correction.

The Chairman of the Utilities Commission explained the reason for the increase as follows:

Why is it that, while in previous years the Waterworks, from 1902 to 1919, had a total surplus of about $80,000.00, it is now found necessary to increase the rates?

For two reasons. As is known to everyone, the cost of construction and operation has steadily increased for some years. The price of material and the rate of wages has gone up, as they have in every business, and have increased the expense of operating the system.

And it was found necessary to lay water mains to maintain the pressure that did not yield a sufficient revenue to pay for themselves. In the western and southern parts of the city, where the most of the growth had been, the pressure decreased until it was hardly sufficient

NEW WATER RATE

The revision of the water rates necessitated by the increased expense caused by the purification of the water, has been completed by the Utilities Commission, and the new rates will go into effect on July 1st next. The accounts will be sent out along with the electric light accounts every two months, instead of quarterly, and a discount of 10 per cent. off the tariff rates will be allowed for payment within ten days from the delivery or mailing of the accounts. These rates are approximately an increase of 80 per cent. over the present rates. Of this increase about 27 per cent. would have been required owing to increased costs in operation, and the balance of the increase is owing to the expenditures on the filtration plant.

BAR TITLES OF MILITARY FROM THEIR CHURCH

METHODISTS OF BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE DECIDE UPON THIS AFTER SOME DISCUSSION.

ROSS HAS AMENDMENT

WHITBY, June 18.—(Special Despatch to The Examiner.) — After some discussion in which a few delegates dissented from the recommendation, the Memorials committee of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference on motion of Rev. J. Latimer and Rev. Ernest S. Hartson, carried their resolution for the abolition of military titles in the interests of a spirit of brotherhood.

Rev. George E. Ross, of Peterborough moved an amendment that overseas men should be given the appendix S.O.S. for "Service Overseas." Rev. R. F. Stillman ponited out that this was a signal of distress. "Yes," replied Mr. Ross, "but we had a signal of distress before these men went." He was willing to change it to M.S. "Military Service."

A motion opposing the holding of lands by speculators and urging legisaltures and municipalities to amend the Assessment Act so that the temptation to use these lands for the impoverishment of industry should be removed, was referred to a committee to report for next year.

BELLEVILLE SCHOOL BOARD WILL APPLY TO COURTS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 18.—A few weeks ago the Board of Education of this city made a requisition upon the City Council to pass a debenture by-law for $140,000 to erect a new public school in Coleman Ward. The Council turned down the proposition for the time being, alleging that the building could in the near future be built much cheaper. At a special meeting of the Board held recently a resolution was passed authorizing its solicitor, Mr. W. J. Diamond, to take the necessary legal steps to force the Council to pass the by-law in accord with a requisition for $140,000 to build the new school.

EVEN THOUGH SPUDS ARE 30 CENTS APIECE ON TRAINS PREMIER OLIVER SEES DIFFICULTY FOR THE FARMER

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—"They charged me 30 cents for one potato on this train at dinner last night, and here I see where some fellow in Vancouver is selling them at 35 cents a sack," complained Hon. John Oilver, premier of British Columbia, as he sat at breakfast in the dining car of a Canadian National trans-continental train approaching Vancouver the other day. All the farmer in the farmer-premier rose at the thought.

"Of course there's service included," suggested a reporter.

"Yes, that reminds me," added the premier, "of the story they used to tell in the old Cariboo days about the man who had to pay a dollar to a Hebrew peddler for a needle."

"What was the point?" inquired the reporter.

"Well, when the miner protested at the price the peddler said: 'Holy Moses, man, I'm giving you the needle as a present; the dollar barely pays the freight,'" and the premier laughed.

Then he took to talking seriously about farming problems. "This is going to be one of the best and one of the worst years for the farmer," he observed. "I never saw Canada give such a promise of good crops as this year. The prairies never looked better to my eye, while in Ontario the early spring and mild weather with light rains has given a wonderful start to young crops. There'll be splendid crops, bar accidents. But prices! Well, I don't know what the farmer is going to do this year.

"I stayed with a farmer in Ontario who told me that six weeks before he had been shipping cream to Toronto at $22 a can. Then it dropped to $19, then to $17, then to $15, and so on until the day I stayed there he was getting only $7 a can for his cream. It droped from $22 to $7 in six weeks.

"It looks as if this is going to be a year of difficulty for the farmer in spite of potatoes at 30c. apiece on the trains."

CATTLE EMBARGO LIFTS PRICE OF BRITISH MEATS.

Scarcity of Home - Killed Cattle Causes High Prices, Says London Paper.

LONDON, June 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Proceedings before the Royal Commission enquiring into the embargo on Canadian store cattle are being watched with much interest not only by home beef producers and the trade generally, but by the consumer. The Daily News in a recent article displayed on the front page attributes the cause of high prices to the limited supply of home-killed meat and the control of killings by the trade. It said in part as follows:

"When the British Government remover the embargo against the landing of Canadian store cattle and reopens the Deptford Cattle Market for the reception and slaughter of cattle and sheep from all exporting countries the home consumer will get cheaper meat.

"This is the reply of several trade authorities to the outcry against dear meat prices. Each of them also emphasized the fact that the country could not hope to get cheaper meat until the Government took that course.

"Inquiries by a 'Daily News' representative show that the country is in the grip of economic forces—the inevitable aftermath of war—which automatically work to keep up prices against the consumer.

"Subsidiary causes may be to blame to some extent, but the main cause is the dearth of home-killed meat, a problem that could be remedied to a great extent by importation of live cattle.

"Our herds and flocks have suffered heavy depletion especially since the war, and we are now dependent on imports for about 70 per cent. of our meat supplies.

"Coincident with the decline in home herds and flocks—due partly to the excessive slaughter of calves—there has been an increasing demand for fresh killed meat and chilled meat of good quality.

"Supplies of chilled beef—the next best in quality to home-killed— are of necessity limited to immediate market requirements, because the meat must be put into sale within a few days of unloading from the ships.

"Home-killed meats, for which there is the greatest competition, are retailed on the average at almost double the pre-war prices.

"As supplies are limited senders are able to maintain their prices by reduced killings whenever there is a fall in the market rates.

"The price of home-killed meat, therefore dominates the meat trade prices.

"But, given greater supplies by the removal of the embargo on Canadian store cattle—in other words, Free Trade in live cattle for fattening in this country—prices of both home-killed and imported meats would automatically slump to a lower level."

REEVE IS DISQUALIFIED.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 17.—Edward Sills, reeve of the township of Loughboro, was disqualified for two years before Judge Lavell to-day on account of having received money for work he had done on a bridge being reconstructed on the Opinicon road last April. Evidence was given that Reeve Sills had received money on account of Frank Clark, Sydenham, who had worked along with Sills and Councillor Hagerman. The reeve testified that it had been customary to render an account under one name, but Judge Lavell found that the act disqualified him.

COTTON STRIKE ENDS; REACHED A COMPROMISE

TEXTILE WORKERS AGREE TO ACCEPT WAGE REDUCTION ON SLIDING SCALE.

VOTE OF 266 TO 227

MANCHESTER, Eng., June 18.—(Canadian Press.) — The cotton strike was settled yesterday. The United Textile Workers at a joint meeting accepted the employers' offer for a settlement. The Textile Workers' Association, which represents all branches of the cotton operatives, voted for resumption of work by 266 against 227 and arrangements are being made for a return to work next Monday.

The compromise was based on an immediate reduction of 46 pence to a pound and a further reduction of seven pence at the end of six months. It also provides for a reduction of 60 per cent. in the rates for piece work and another 10 per cent. six months hence. There is a provision that should either side to the controversy desire a revision of the agreement two months' notice must be given.

EXAMINATIONS HIT A SNAG IN SUDBURY AS PAPERS ARE DELAYED

SUDBURY, June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—As a result yesterday of examination papers on French Authors not having reached Sudbury in time for the scheduled time of writing the whole class may be held up for some time. It was not noticed in time that the Department at Toronto had not sent these papers.

North Bay, however, got them and wrote and some of the local students, hearing this, sent to North Bay and got copies of the papers. From this it is obvious that the same paper will not do for the locals on a deferred examination. There is some talk of another paper being set, or putting the whole class off until the supplementary examinations in September.

PROBABILITIES.

BRITISH STATESMEN RECOGNIZE DOMINIONS AS EQUAL PARTNERS IN AUTONOMOUS COMMONWEALTH

SUCH WAS EVIDENT IN DEBATE ON AGENDA OF IMPERIAL CONFERENCE IN BRITISH COMMONS YESTERDAY.

LARGER SHARE IN EMPIRE'S AFFAIRS

LONDON, June 18.—(By Gratton O'Leary, Canadian Press Correspondent) —The debate in the House of Commons yesterday on the agenda of the Premier's Conference seemed to make one thing abundantly clear. It seemed to make it clear that there is not a responsible person or party in Great Britain who wants to see the autonomy of the Dominions diminished or destroyed. Indeed, if there was one thing more than another about the debate which impressed the small group of candidates who heard it, it was that the Radicals vied with the Unionists and the Laborites with the Liberals, in emphasizing recognition of the Dominions as co-equal partners in a commonwealth of self-governing states. Even the small group of Nationalists applauded every reference made to the heightened status of the Dominions.

Austin Chamberlain, leader of the House, who spoke for the Government, made a speech which might well have been delivered by such stern Canadian Nationalists as Sir Robert Borden and Hon. N. W. Rowell, after likening the Empire to a League of Nations he laid it down as an accepted principle that any suggestions for change in the existing status must come from the Dominions themselves and added, "we can assure them that anything they desire in the way of a greater part in greater authority in the affairs of the Empire will meet with our hearty concurrence." They should not be restricted to a cut and dried agenda. They should hold themselves free to discuss any question which concerned interests of the Empire as a whole.

The most notable contribution to the debate, however, came from Sir Samuel Hoare, Coalition-Unionist Progressive views. Sir Samuel declared bluntly that the Japanese alliance must not be renewed in its present form and if renewed at all must be modified and revised and laid down as the basis of the Empire's foreign policies three cardinal principles; First Anglo-French understanding in Europe; Second Anglo-American understanding and third a conference between the United States, Australia New Zealand, Canada, Great Britain and Japan to arrive at some satisfactory understanding regarding the Pacific.

LONDON, June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—In the House of Commons lobby last night it was generally understood that Premier Lloyd George will name a delegation to negotiate peace with joint delegations from the North and South of Ireland. Jan Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, Lord Grey, Lord Derby and Major Barnes are named as the selections of the British Premier for the task. It is said that the Premier is now preparing a firm offer as a basis for new negotiations.

U.S. TARIFF WALL BOOSTING PRICES

NEW YORK, June 18.— (Canadian Press.)—Effects of the Emergency tariff law are already being felt by United States consumers. Food experts trace the recent advance of pork and beef prices to the new rates imposed on meats coming across the Canadian border.

The Emergency Tariff law has been in effect but a short time and while live steers and hogs are lower there is an advance of fully 2 cents in the wholesale price per pound of dressed Western steers and pork loins.

Under the new tariff smoked meats and provisions arriving here from Canada are subject to excessive import duty. It is expected that some of this may be refunded to dealers later. In the meantime the consumer will have to pay and will not receive any later rebate.

THE FUND FOR THE BLIND.

The people of Peterborough have never before been asked to contribute towards the fund for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, so that the present appeal should be marked by a generous response. The work that the Institute is carrying on on behalf of blind Canadians and of the soldiers who were blinded during the war should commend the campaign to the public generally. There are numerous calls upon the generosity of the people, calls that are made by worthy causes and for commendable purposes, but, nevertheless, The Examiner in endorsing the effort that is being made to provide funds for the Institute for the Blind feels confident that no more meritorious appeal has been presented to the citizens. Peterborough is asked to contribute $2,500, not a large amount from a city of 22,000 people, and with the co-operation and assistance of our readers The Examiner hopes that the city's quota will be readily raised. Donations left at The Examiner office for the fund for blind Canadians will be gratefully received and acknowledged. The cause is entirely worthy the need is great. Help Peterborough do her share in this splendid work.

THE MILITIA.

The presence in Peterborough of two units of the active militia, the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and the 4th Battery, C.F.A., should remind the citizens of the debt of gratitude Canada owes to her militia and to the enthusiastic officers and men who kept the organization in working order so that when the acid test of warfare came there was the machinery ready for the recruiting and officering of Canada's overseas forces. Without the militia the first Canadian contingent could never have been organized and sent overseas so early in the conflict. It would have taken many months to have accomplished what was carried out in a few short weeks. And now, back home in the piping days of peace, we find the militia still "carrying on." The majority of the officers now serving had their baptism of fire overseas, and many of the non-coms. were schooled in the stern reality of modern war. In the ranks, to there is a sprinkling of veterans, admirable stiffening for the new generation of militia men, the youngsters who were not old enough when the war was fought, but who are now learning the rudiments of soldiering and who would be as quick in offering their services were the war clouds to lower again as their fathers and older brothers were in the years of the great war.

THE COAL STRIKE.

Although the announcement from London yesterday that the striking coal miners have voted against accepting the latest proposal of the mine owners and in favour of continuing the strike is a disappointment, there is, however, a silver lining to the cloud. More than half the miners, it is stated, did not take the trouble to vote, and many of those who used their ballots to register an opinion against "carrying on" with the strike are likely to decide the matter for themselves and return to work. Every miner who gives up the struggle and goes back to his job brings a settlement closer, and there are indications that the end may be much closer than the balloting may make it appear. No real effort seems to have been made to explain the issues involved in the ballot to the strikers or the result of the vote might have been quite different. At all events, however, the outlook is not without its element of hope. The whole Empire will have cause to rejoice when the trouble is finally settled. It is one of the most serious obstacles in the pathway of Britain's return to pre-war prosperity.

RETURNING TO NORMAL.

The decrease of twelve per cent. in the wages of the employees of the Canadian railways announced yesterday is another indication that conditions in Canada are returning to a normal basis, and the employees' organizations would be well advised to regard the reduction as inevitable and to accept it as cheerfully as possible. The scale reached during the war, following the adoption on the Canadian lines of the wages established in the United States by the McAdoo award, was abnormal. It could not be expected to remain as a permanent rate of pay, and with the cost of living dropping and the remuneration in other lines of industry declining, the railway workers could scarcely hope to retain the swollen wages that the upsetting of the world by the greatest war in history had given them. The Canadian people will expect that a reduction in the cost of labour on the railways will eventually result in lower freight rates and a consequent appreciable decrease in the cost of living. The return to normal conditions is bound to come and lower wages for railway employees is an encouraging sign.

A NAVAL HOLIDAY.

One if the most important of recent incidents in international affairs is the unanimous adoption by the United States Senate of Mr. Borah's resolution requesting the President to ask for a conference between representatives of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan for the purpose of considering a reduction of naval operations and of consequent naval expenditure. True, the resolution is adopted under circumstances that seem strange. It takes the form of an amendment to a Bill which makes appropriations of nearly five hundred million dollars for the year's naval purposes, including large outlay for the construction of new vessels. While the amendment has on this account an almost amusing side, the fact that it is thrown into such a Bill makes it the more striking, and perhaps the more effective. The enormous sums that are being devoted, three years after the "war to end war," by the great naval Powers to the construction of new engines of war must be a cause of anxiety to the friends of peace everywhere.

Each of these great nations proclaims its desire for peace; yet each insists on making these great outlays on the ground that it must keep pace with what others are doing. The expenditures called for are heavy burdens on the people of each of the nations. Apart from other considerations, a cessation or large reduction of such expenditures would be a blessing to the over-burdened taxpayers of all three. All admit the need of such a policy, but who shall begin the reduction? While many public men of the three nations have expressed warm approval of such a policy, it has remained for the United States to take a formal and substantial step in that direction. The strength of the movement in the Senate is evidenced by the exclusion of conditions and qualifications that had been suggested, and the adoption by unanimous vote of the request for the conference of the three Powers mentioned.

France has to be reckoned with as a naval Power, but not one of the first rank. In the present temper of the French people it is certain that France would not be willing to tie her hands in either naval or military affairs. Germany, crushed as she is, is still regarded by France as a menace, and no movement restraining the liberty of France to arm for protection will be entertained at Paris. Mr. Borah has done well, therefore, to confine the proposed conference to the three great naval Powers, Great Britain, the United States, and Japan. If these agree on the principle of the resolution, and unite in an honest effort to give effect to it, there will be a fair chance of having the naval holiday which the friends of peace desire.

In view of the consideration which the matter has received at Washington, and of the unanimous vote of the Senate, it is to be expected that the House of Representatives and the President will concur in the resolution, and that the President will soon issue his invitation for a conference. There is no doubt that Great Britain will promptly accept the invitation and be ready to enter the conference with an earnest desire to accomplish the good purposes in view. The action of Japan will be watched with much interest, especially in the United States. There is in the Republic a widespread suspicion of Japan's intentions.

It is the naval development of Japan rather than that of Great Britain that is used as an argument for the large naval expenditures in the United States. Japan can hardly refuse to agree to the conference without confirming and extending the opinion already widely held in the States that the enlargement of the Japanese navy is a menace to the States. On the other hand, if Japan accepts the invitation and enters the conference with a manifest determination to fulfil the aims of those who have advocated it, her action will go far towards bringing about a better understanding between the Republic and the powerful little Empire of the Orient. — Journal of Commerce.

MECHANICALLY defined, a watch is a machine (containing not far from 150 parts) whose sole end is to "keep moving," and that watch is best as a timepiece the motion of which approaches most nearly to absolute uniformity.

If you open your watch and examine its mechanism, you will find it consists substantially of two supporting plates, between which is mounted a gearing of meshed wheels to take care of the movement recording time. These wheels are called the train.

The lower supporting plate in a Waltham watch is the foundation upon which every unit revolves and is permanently fixed. This plate is bored with minute holes to take the pivots, screws and pinions of the reciprocal parts which form the movement proper.

During the 69 years of watch development at Waltham many illustrious names have been added to the history of horological achievement,—men whose genius for invention, whose supreme skill in making concrete their vision, have produced marvelous machinery that has revolutionized the art of watch-making.

One of these master minds was Duane H. Church, who, among other equally wonderful machines, invented one that drills, threads and finishes the lower plate of the Waltham watch.

This machine accomplishes many operations with such methodically exact, automatic continuity that one instinctively imagines a superhuman brain is hidden in the multifold action controlling its extraordinary work.

It makes every operation (and there are 141) with infinitesimal exactness, to the fraction of a human hair; flawless, beautiful in complete simplicity—every plate a replica of every other plate, an indisputable proof that Waltham standardization gives a uniform standard of highest quality to every owner or purchaser of a Waltham watch.

To test the truth of this we have only to compare the Waltham plate with that made by hand and subject to all the variations which this hand process entails.

GROVE SCHOOL TERM CLOSES

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES AND USUAL FAREWELLS ON THURSDAY NIGHT.

LAKEFIELD, June 17.—The closing exercises at "The Grove" were held on Thursday evening and were largely attended both by local people and by parents of the boys.

The occasion was both happy and sad-happy because of the pleasant gathering together of boys old and young and other friends and sad because another year is past and a period of separation follows the festivity.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, headmaster of the School, made a happy little spech before presenting the prizes in which he spoke of the good record of the school for the year in many lines. Thanks to the care of the excellent matron, the health of the school was good and the record for athletics was well up to the standard. Two of last years boys had made good in their chosen lines namely Hamilton, Max at the Royal Military College and Pullen at the Naval College.

Mr. Mackenzie dwelt a few minutes on moral courage which is so hard to acquire to hold and which is so valuable in life. To risk unpopularity in taking a stand for the righ is hard but to do so merits a V. C. These deeds receive no prize though they richly deserve one.

The following were prize winners

For General Proficiency Form 1—Hedley; Form IIB — Rae; Form IIA—Smith 1; Form IIIB —Little II; Form IIIA—Gray !; Form V—Archibald.

Special prize for History and Georgraphy—Frank.

Special prize for English Literature—Loosemore I.

Special prize for Mathematics—Mackenzie I.

Special prize for Languages—Archibald.

Special prize for Scripture—Gray I.

Special prize for Music—Archibald.

Prizes for Sports

Best bat—Massie.

Best Bowler—Hickman.

Tennis champion —Massie.

Medals for Swimming

Swimming 100 yards senior—Little I.

Swimming 100 yards junior—Robertson.

Swimming Beginner's Race—Davidson.

Silver Cup for all round champion ship—Langley.

After the prize giving Rev. F Vipond spoke briefly to the boys expressing his appreciation of them as parishioners and regretting the separation caused by the long vacation.

Dr. Archibald of Toronto, spoke of the advantages of the homelike atmosphere of the school and the advantages enjoyed by the boys. He spoke of two more sons who were going to come as soon as age would permit.

Mr. E. R. Tate, an old Grove boy, spoke of forest preservation, a subject near his heart. He began by speaking of the building of King Solomon's temple and the two great pillars at the door. Canada has five great pillars, agriculture, mines, fisheries, power and forests, and from one or another of them we nearly all gain our living. For the milions of daily papers printed cords upon cords of wood are ground up in the pulp mills. The early settlers had to clear the forests to make homes but only about twenty-five per cent. were destroyed in this way and every year acres of valuable timber are burned through carelessness in putting out camp fires or dropping matches. Mr. Tate closed with warning the boys who spent their holiday among the lakes of Canada to be careful about the fires they lit.

After the speeches refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent informally.

Among many out of town guests were noticed: Dr. and Mrs. Archibald, Mr. Barron, Toronto;-Mrs. Pullen, Oakville, Mrs. Dingle, Mr. and Mrs. Little, Woodstock Mr. Bonnell Toronto Mr. and Mrs. Losemore, Brooklin, Mrs. Massie, Cobourg; Capt. Spence and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Morris and Miss Clara Morris, Peterboro and Mr. Philip Ketchum, Toronto, and Professor M. A. Mackenzie, Toronto.

Among the Lakefield people present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Strickland, Mr. J. W. Allan, Mrs. Goodman, Mrs. LeFevre, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Tate, Mr. Keith Tate, Mrs. Leigh Miss Traill, Miss Mucnall, Mr. and Mrs. Lampman, Miss Natalie Lampman, Mrs. Atwood, Rev. and Mrs. H. Todd, Mrs. Otter Stewart, Miss Florence Hewitt, Mrs. Osborne and Miss Angela Osborne, Mrs. H. J. Stuart, Miss Yvonne Stuart, Mrs. and Miss Graham and Rev. F. Vipond.

TRAVELLER EXPOSES 'DESERT' PICTURES.

Says Tourists in Egypt Pose on Fake Camels.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Against a background of hot sands, pyramids and sphinxes, many New Yorkers touring the Mediterranean lands have been sending back pictures to their friends, showing themselves seated nonchalantly between the humps of a camel and leisurely flicking the ash from their cigarets. All has been well until the other day a New Yorker returned and exploded the air of romance which surrounded these pictures.

The returned tourist was shown a picture of one of his friends mounted on the steed of the desert.

"That's the life, isn't it?" asked the inquisitive friend.

The returned New Yorker laughed.

"Sure, it's the life. Do you know where that picture was taken? On the Sahara? By the pyramids and Sphinx? Not on your life. I had some taken like that myself while I was away.

"In Cairo they've set up a large number of photo galleries. There they have the background of a desert, the nearby Sphinx and pyramid. Sure, it looks like the real stuff. And it's a whole lot easier to go in and climb on a stuffed camel than it is to go out and burn yourself up on the sands. Around the studio it's always possible to get a sip of something or other, but what chance has a man on the Sahara? They're realistic looking pictures, though, now aren't they?"

Constipation

It is a disease-producing malady, and if not corrected may result in serious complications. In good health the bowels should move freely at least once every day, carrying away the waste products from the Blood and Liver. If this function fails or is irregular, the work of removing the poisons falls on the Skin and Kidneys, with the result of the latter organs becoming congested and clogged. The Blood becomes poisoned, indigestion sets in, the Kidneys become deranged, and a severe if not fatal illness is brought on. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS correct this trouble by its action on the Liver, causing a healthy flow of Bile, and exerting a soothing and toning influence on the whole Intestinal Track.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up in three sizes—25c. 50c. $1.00 per Box. For sale at Warne's Drug Store, Peterborough.

BABY FIRKS.

"Life Despaired Of."

38, De Burgh Street,
Cardiff, South Wales. 30/3/20.
Gentlemen,

I have much pleasure in forwarding a photo of my son. He was so small at birth and such a weakling that his life was despaired of. He was tried with several of the widely advertised foods but rapidly went almost to a skeleton, limp and hardly any life in him. In a very few days after trying him with Virol an immediate change for the better was apparent, and he is now a plump, happy, strong child without a blemish, and is always taken to be quite a year old.

He is a splendid example of the truth of the claims you advertise for "Virol." Please make any use you like of this testimonial.

Yours very sincerely,
(Sgd.) Mrs. F. FIRKS.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,000 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilising of milk: it is also a bone and tissue building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

CRITICISM AND REMINISCENCE

(By PATERFAMILIAS)

The Mail and Empire of Thursday on its editorial page, under the caption "Confess To Crimes They Never Committed," carried a reminiscence in which the question is asked, "Have persons innocent of crime been executed because of fake confessions?" Whether such unfortunate miscarriages of justice have actually occurred or not, the writer can recount more than one instance in England where, convicted of murder on "circumstantial evidence," the innocent suffered instead of the guilty. For example, an innkeeper was hanged by the neck until he was dead, dead, dead, as the sentence of capital punishment was pronounced over there at one time, and some years later the murdered man's servant, when dieing in the United States, confessed to having slit his master's throat while asleep for the sake of the gold he (the master) had collected that same day in rents. 'Tis true, the innkeeper had intended to do the deed, and was seen leaving the slain man's bedroom with a knife in his hand, but, for all that, he had been anticipated by the villainous servant.

The Innocent Jailed.

In another case, the wrong man, a young fellow of Jewish descent, named Abram, was convicted of murder, and his sentence commuted to life imprisonment only in respect for his youth—he was but twenty-one. But after serving several years in prison the real perpetrator of the crime—Charley Peace—convicted of another cold-blooded murder, and sentenced to death, before his execution confessed that Abram was suffering punishment for killing the constable who had fallen a victim to his (Peace's) pistol. And, from memory, I will relate this story of crime and miscarriage of justice, just to show the uncertainty of circumstantial evidence unless supported by proof positive.

A Burglar Bold.

Charley Peace led a double life—of course, there are others, and one need not travel afar to find them—but Charley's dual existence comprised one life of crime, stopping at nothing, and another life in which all the Christian virtues and a generous smattering of philanthropy shone with a refulgence quite dazzling to the commonplace mortal. In off-hours he was a goody-goody, middle-aged man of arresting presence, who delighted in charity, and whose special hobby was contributing instrumental and vocal numbers at church and other entertainments for a good cause. He played on several stringed instruments with no small skill, and could sing a corking good song, so 'twas said, and take him all in all no more exemplory citizen could be found in whatever neighborhood he distinguished by his residence—in his leisure hours, of course; and he seemed to have much leisure, for he posed as a gent of independent means, always living in one of Old London's suburbs. But in business hours this angel without wings—in the public eye—clothed himself in altogether another character; for a burglar bold was he—in fact, a devil incarnate—to attempt to thwart would meant sudden death. At the time of which I am writing, between forty and fifty years ago, Charley, who, by the way, sported many aliases in his day, had made his home in a select suburb of London—think it was Narwood, although am not quite sure—and had philanthropized and played his way into the hearts of a confiding church community. He had also won the everlasting love of an innocent milkman by allowing him to stall his horse in his (Pearce's) little stable, an altogether lovely arrangement, as Peace drove the horse on business nights attached to a light trap in which he was wont to carry home loot from houses he occasionally visited in their owner's absence. Poor milkman! he did not think at times that his faithful horse showed somewhat of a tired feeling some mornings, but he never dreamt that once in a while the animal was working night and day.

Well-Planned Crime.

Peace always planned his burglaries well and timed his arrangements pretty accurately, so to speak, sometimes travelling by train to the scene of his business operations, never failing to make connections for the return trip, he said in his memoirs, that he might be many miles away from the scene before the crime was discovered. And the secret of many years of success lay in the fact that he never had any confederates, and how he disposed of his loot was not revealed.

Killed His Man.

But to return to the Abram case, it happened in this way: Peace travelled by rail from a suburban district, where he was then living under an assumed name, to a quiet spot in the neighborhood of Birmingham, and burglarized a big house there, the family being absent abroad—this was his favorite method of procedure, to catch the owner or owners away from home. With his loot of easily portable valuables in a fairly sized travelling bag, and with revolver strapped to his wrist—he left no chances of being caught unprepared for belligerent resistance, you'll thus understand—he left the house, crossed the garden, threw his bag over the garden wall, over which he followed himself, only to alight almost on top of a policeman. This was one occasion when Peace did not look before he leaped; but without a moment's hesitancy he cooly shot that policeman dead. The tragedy happened near midnight, and Peace calmly walked to the station where he boarded an express for London, as planned, and next day was horrified—sb his neighbors at home thought—to read of the cold-blooded murder near Birmingham, many miles away.

Had a Grievance.

And here is where Abram comes in. The young man had a grievance against the murdered policeman, who had accused him of poaching, and on the evening of the murder, when drinking with his pals in a pub, had aired said grievance, declaring in that reckless, irresponsible way too much ale or liquor is liable to induce, "that he would fix him." Well, to be brief, the murdered constable's body was found next morning, Abram's wild threats were repeated, and he was arrested on suspicion. He could not satisfactorily account for himself the night of the murder, other than having aimlessly wandered around under the influence of liquor, footprints near the body fitted his boots, the fatal ball was of the same calibre as his revolver, which showed an empty chamber, and, altogether, a combination of circumstantial evidence conviited him. Abram claimed to have fired the missing cartridge from hs gun some time previously, without any particular intent, and the peculiar feature of the tragedy is that no one thought of looking over the garden wall, where similar footprints to those outside might have led to a different construction of the crime and its motive. Again, the burglary was not discovered until all footprints had evidently been obliterated by time, and then, strange to say, the possibility of its connection with the shooting does not seem to have crossed any person's mind. In any event, the authorities were satisfied they had the right man, and troubled themselves no further.

Caught Red-Handed.

Peace was finally caught after burglarizing a house on Black Heath, six or seven miles from London Bridge, where he shot and killed a constable named Cox, who intercepted him when leaving the premises after midnight with his spoils. He then drove hastily away across the heath in the milkman's rig, of Narwood, before mentioned. But his haste aroused the suspicion of another constable, who stopped the rig, and finding therein a quantity of silver, promptly arrested Peace. This led to his subsequent conviction and hanging in Newgate Prison for Cox's murder; and, as said before, finding the game all up, he confessed to the near Birmingham crime, resulting in Abram's release from prison, with a substantial monetary reimbursement for his sufferings from the Government.

A Gentlemanly Fellow.

Peace, bear in mind, was a gentlemanly fellow, to all appearance. He had peculiar command over the muscles of his face, which permitted of distorting his features in a manner so disfiguring as to conceal his real identity at will. That he was also lucky was evidenced in the Abram affair.

The Sob Sisters.

While awaiting execution in Newgate his name was coupled with tons of sob-sister stuff from, one would think, "admiring" women, and reams of paper were used for recounting in the press that "better half" of himself which went to church and contributed generously, to say nothing of his remarkable entertaining talent and that kindly, courteous, charitable, private life used so successfully as a cloak for dark deeds while others slept. Altogether, in the publicity given this scoundrel, during a period covering the three Sundays permitted in England between sentence and execution, Peace was the recipient, through the press and in other ways, of "showers of sympathy," tinctured even with sentiments from a maudlin section of the public savoring suspiciously of admiration. But his victims and their dependents or connections were forgotten. And is it not generally so when great and clever criminals are brought to book?

New Drug Will Make Millions of People Well

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY —NUMERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our Livers. When the Liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your Stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach, or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicines act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100 p.c. better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed, and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

BRITISH CAPITAL IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The movement of British capital into Australian manufacturing industries continues. Speaking in Sydney recently, the federal treasurer stated that not less than 10,000,000 pounds sterling of new capital, Australian and British, is proposed to be spent in new enterprises in Australia. From March 22, 1920, to February 22, 1921, he said that 22 new enterprises or extensions of old ones had been registered with a capital of 3,500,000 pounds sterling, half of this amount being for woolen and knitting factories.

A large number of foreign (not British) companies are awaiting action on their application for permission to register, which had been held up under the war precautions act. The aggregate capital of these applicants according to the federal treasurer, is 20,600,000 pounds sterling. Regulations have now been issued under the amended war precautions act, and several applicants have been permitted to register.

Ceaseless Advertising

Admit that we are getting into dog days, and that business is not so good.

Nevertheless, the great successful advertisers have not ceased advertising. They know that during the summer most people eat three meals a day, wear clothes, clean their teeth, use automobiles, buy things for vacation, occupy houses and lead normal lives.

The so-called dog days are, nine times out of ten, the excuse of a lazy man for evading decisions.

The present effect of Daily Newspaper Advertising is just as great as it ever is.

If the experience of successful advertisers is a guide to you, consider following their lead.

Campaign For Blind Under Way; Its Objective Is A Worthy One

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind has a campaign under way just now for the assistance of the Institute, whose object is, to ameliorate the condition of the blind of Canada. Most people are unaware that there are nearly 30 blind people in Peterborough, of both sexes, young and old, that is, 30 human beings who live in partial or complete darkness, for whom the sun's light, the color of the summer gardens, the faces of family and friends, the expression of the human countenance, are as nothing. A grey or black wall separates them from the world of men and living things, and only their groping fingers can transmit shape or size or the lure of the written words in the laborious spelling-out of the nonderous Braille, to the minds which are just as quick and alive, and perhaps more keenly sensitized, than those of the "sighted" people. Sixteen of them in our own towns are being instructed in the Moon or point system of raised dots for reading, in making brooms and weaving baskets, knitting of socks and studying music.

In Toronto there are classes for teaching massage work. There are now 15 qualified blind soldier masseurs in Canada, all of whom are doing excellent work, and are highly spoken of. Four of these are practising in Ontario. Of the 192 Canadian blinded soldiers, 126 have been fully trained. They are now following their professions, trades or operating businesses, without one known case of failure.

A sight-saving class was recently started in Orde Street School, Toronto. This is a decided step forward in the prevention of blindness. It is expected that this class, proving of inestimable benefit to those whose vision is so low, or whose remaining vision would be seriously endangered by the continuance of ordinary methods, will be a stepping-stone to more classes being formed to meet the great need in Toronto, where out of 75,000 school children, over 400 were found to have less than one-third of the vision of a normal child.

"Why have the needs of blind people been neglected in the past? Because their limitations, their needs and their capabilities have not been properly understood by those in a position to assist, and the result has been that the problem was allowed to drift. The work confronting the Canadian National Institute for the Blind consists of: First, preservation of the sight of those who would ultimately become blind if not cared for; second, for those already blind, provision of training and employment; third, free judicious assistance to those who, though willing, may be unable to independently provide for the essentials of life."

Y.W.C.A. Girls Are Successful

The Y.W.C.A. has just completed a very successful week of Camp festivities, to arouse and encourage interest in the Camp at Burleigh Falls, which is open from 30th June to 31st August. Starting with a prayer service at Jackson Park on Sunday afternoon last, they had a very successful Camp shower on Tuesday afternoon and evening, which netted them many useful articles. Wednesday evening was "stunt" night, when a number of the junior girls put on a funny entertainment, and last evening was swimming night, when about 50 of the girls of the city gathered for a jolly swimming party, with games and refreshments in the Y.W.C.A. afterwards.

The Camp, which had a record attendance last year of 108, and has a yearly average of anywhere from 80 to 90, with a capacity of 20, is pleasantly situated at Burleigh Falls, on an island, "with trees and birds and a bull-frog! A cottage with a wide-screened verandah, and a gramophone! Boating, bathing and bonfires, fishing and frolics, hikes and huckleberries, sing-songs, story hours, and beautiful Sundays—could one want more?"

There will be an Association secretary in charge and someone to do the cooking, and if enough girls come, the Camp will be opened on 25th June.

A SPLENDID TONIC FOR WEAK PEOPLE

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS ACT ON THE BLOOD AND NERVES.

Food is as important to the sick person as medicine, more so in many cases. A badly chosen diet may retard recovery. In health the natural appetite is the best guide to follow; in sickness the appetite is often fickle and depraved.

Proper food and a good tonic will keep most people in good health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a fine tonic medicine, harmless and certain in their action, which is to build up the blood and restore vitality to the run-down system. For browing girls who are thin and pale, for pale, tired women, and for old people who fail in strength, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an ideal tonic. Thousands have testified to the benefit derived from the use of this medicine, among them is Mrs. William Gallie, Hantsport, N. S., who says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was so weak and run down that I could hardly do my own work. I often suffered from headaches and was very nervous. I then began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I can truthfully say I have found them the best medicine I have ever taken. You may depend upon it I will advise other sufferers to take these Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Home Argument Proves Futile

Someone has written a good little article on the futility of argument in the home, particularly the little foolish arguments that are often waged so hotly over some small difference of opinion in the family circle. Whether you prefer shredded wheat for your breakfast and someone else likes cornflakes, if you want to bob your hair and the rest of the family protest vigorously against it, the vexed question of the sort of weather we were enjoying a week ago last Friday, the relative merits of the administrations of the late lamented Sir John Macdonald and his illustrious successor, Sir Wilfred Laurier—all these unimportant matters form the basis of many hotly-contested arguments between the members of a family that are quite normal at other times, but who will argue over these and other small matters until everyone's nerves are frayed. It seems such a needless waste of words and feelings. In the big things of life, one must stand up for one's own sacred opinions, but what's the use of getting all "het up" over these piffling matters?

"I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up without assistance.

I tried different medicines I saw advertised and was treated by doctors in Amherst, also in my home town, but the Rheumatism came back.

In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that 'Fruit-a-tives' would stop Rheumatism, and took one box and got relief; then I took them right along for about six months and the Rheumatism was all gone and I have never felt it since.

Anyone who would care to write me as regards 'Fruit-a-tives' I would be glad to tell them what 'Fruit-a-tives' did for me."

Business Girls Will Hold Fete

The Business Girls of Peterborough have made arrangements for a Summer Fete to be held on the lawn of the Great War Veterans' Association on Tuesday evening next, June 21st, with a dance in the hall in the evening. This should be well attended, and everyone will wish the Club fine weather and a successful entertainment. The last garden party given under the auspices of the Business Girls' Club was held in 1918, when an entertainment at Holmwood Hall netted the society the handsome sum of $286.

The Business Girls' Club was first organized in December of 1914, for the purpose of providing Christmas cheer for the poor children of the city. In war time, it continued to do Red Cross work. Some of the money received from its entertainments went towards the following good works: 2 coats at Queen's, $50; Toronto University bas hospital $45; Navy League, $50; Bond G.W.V.A., $25. It contributed during war time towards the relief of 2 British and 2 Belgian prisoners, and has made handsome donations to the Peterborough Playgrounds, the Health Association, the Babies' Clinic and the Y.W.C.A. The money derived from the entertainment next week will be used for local charities. The Club makes a point of trying to help girls who may be ill for any length of time.

So be sure and patronize this Fete on Tuesday next. There will be plenty of dainty refreshments, games, fancy dancing on the lawn, and indoor dancing for anyone so inclined.

Wall Surface Keynote In Scheme Of Decoration, Says Authority

In suggestions for the decorating of the home, a writer says that the finish of the wall surface should be taken as the keynote for the colour scheme of each room. All other finishes should conform to it, and the exposure of the room, its lighting properties, its character, and the general style and colour of its furnishings should be considered before choosing a colour for its wall.

Colours that reflect light—creams, yellows, etc.—are best for a small room, while a bare appearance in a larger room may be avoided by using a darker colour scheme. Dainty colours are preferable for bedrooms, leaving richer tones for the living-room, such as browns, reds, and greens. Ceilings should harmonise with the tintings of the walls, and the wall colourings, which serve as a background for pictures and furnishings should never be loud or glaring. A low room should have the moulding placed at the angle and the walls left undivided, use a small border decoration, if any. Keep the ceiling very light.

A high, narrow room can be made to appear lower and broader by introducing a four or six foot wainscoating, and by painting the lower wall in a darker colour than the upper, or by placing the moulding eighteen or twenty-four inches below the angle, bringing the ceiling colour down to that line.

In a small house, a more spacious effect may be attained by holding to practically the same colour scheme in two or more adjacent rooms, especially if thrown open by wide doorways.

Drawing Competition Prizes Went To Local Students In Many Cases

In the recent competition held by the Ontario Safety League for drawings from pupils of Ontario schools on accidents, fires, accident prevention and fire prevention, Peterborough had a very fair percentage of successful contestants amongst the city's school children. The committee of judges were appointed by the Ontario College of Art, of which Mr. G. A. Reid, R.C.A., is principal, and Mr. Reid, in transmitting the prize list to the League, congratulated them on the very successful response to their appeal. The contestants were divided into two classes, those of 12 years and under, and those of 13 years and over. In each class, 65 prizes were given, one of $20, one of $10, three of $5 each, and 55 of $1 each, making a total in each division of $110, with 25 extra awards in each class of color boxes and crayons. With competitors from Hamilton, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Galt, Windsor, London, Ottawa, Barrie, Kenora, Chatham, Kingston and Brantford, Peterborough received 17 of the 65 prizes in Class A, with 8 of the supplementary color boxes, and 14 of the 65 prizes in Class B, with 3 of the boxes. In Class A, one prize of $2 and 16 of $1 each was received, and in Class B, one of $5, one of $2 and 12 of $1, making a total of $37 for Peterborough pupils, of 31 prizes and 11 boxes. Of the prizes in the two classes, the Queen Alexandra School captured 4, the King Edward 1 and 1 color box, the Queen Mary 7, and 6 boxes, the King George School 10 prizes, and 2 boxes, and the Central 8 prizes and 1 box.

The boys were evidently better at drawing than the girls in this competttion, for of the 31 prizes received, 17 went to boys and 14 to girls. Perhaps the little boys have more experience with the cause and therefore more ideas about the remedy, for fires and accidents. The number of prizes captured by Peterborough in competition with so many other and some larger places is certainly creditable, both to the children and to their teachers.

All the hot part of a summer dinner may be combined and served as one piece by various devices. One of the less frequently used is a fish stuffed with a vegetable filling. This filling is surely one of the best things to eat anybody could desire if made to perfection. Two slices of cod or halibut or a large fish of white flesh may be dressed with it. Quite a sermon might be preached or a historic discourse might be prepared on the convenience, palatability, etc., of a bit of salt pork in summer cookery.

Cut enough salt pork into dice to yield two tablespoons of fat when it is gently cooked in the frying pan. Take up the pork and put into the pan a stalk of celery cut fine and one carrot and one onion, each cut exceedingly fine. Cover the pan and let these sweat or smother until they are soft, but not brown.

In the meantime, mash and season to perfection enough potato to make one cup—as many cups as you need if you also multiply the other ingredients in the same proportion—and mix the crisp pork dice with it. When the vegetables are soft put ths potato into the frying pan and mix all thoroughly over the heat. If the mixture should seem dry add cream, a tablespoon at a time, to make it of the desired consistency.

If this is put between two slices of fish, baste the whole with a little melted butter, sprinkle with fine crumbs, and put into a 500 degree over for twenty minutes, basting it with butter after it begins to brown. If too much dressing is made to fill a fish, or to put between two fish steaks, it may be massed at one side of the pan and baked with the rest.

Easy Washing

You'll hardly believe it—until you try it. Just soak the clothes in the rich, pure, cleansing Rinso suds overnight (or for three hours) and then rinse them thoroughly either in warm or cold water. They will be as clean as though they had been boiled and rubbed.

RINSO—
Not a cake soap, or a chip soap, but new and better—fine granules so rich in soap that they loosen the dirt as the clothes soak.

If you have a washing machine—
Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

NEAR-PANIC IN OTTAWA WHEN 300 DISMISSED

Axe to Fall in Every Department, Says the Acting Prime Minister.

OTTAWA, June 17.— The civil service is nearly in a state bordering on panic as a result of an order-in-council passed in connection with the post office and customs departments by which the reclassification and weeding out processes recommended by Griffenhagen and associates are to be carried out. As a result of the order over 100 employes in the inside service of these departments and double that number in the outside service are being let out. As a consequence the departments in question are in a condition approaching complete disorganization, and much sympathy is being expressed for those on whom the axe has fallen.

Sir George Foster, acting premier, stated to-day that it was the intentionof the government to carry out the same plan in connection with other departments of the government so that something approaching panic has struck employes, for nobody knows who are to be victims.

Added to this comes the announcement that the usual reduced hot weather hours for the service are off this summer and that civil servants will have to work until five as usual.

ONLY ONE ROOM FOR THE LIVING AND DYING AT COUNTY HOUSE OF REFUGE

GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS A GENERAL HOUSECLEANING OF THE HOME FOR THE COUNTY'S OLD INDIGENTS AND URGES THAT THE REPORT PRODUCE ACTION INSTEAD OF BEING FILED AWAY WITHOUT ATTENTION.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL'S NEEDS

In their report to Judge Huycke, presiding in the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace this week, the Grand Jury plainly indicates that the conditions at the House of Refuge, near Lakefield, admit of considerable improvement.

The jury found 42 inmates there. "We found things in general in bad shape. The walls and woodwork are badly in need of repairs. The blinds in most cases are very bad. The plaster is off in several places and three closets are out of repair. The chairs are not suitable, and ones more comfortable should be provided for the old people.

"We believe the arrangement of things in general should be improved. In extreme cases the patients should not be confined to the attic of the house."

The Grand Jury also recommended that separate room should be provided for inmates when dying, instead of having them confined with other old people at that time.

Proceeding, the report says: "We would recommend the complete destruction of most, if not all, the mattresses, and that the most modern method of fumigation be applied, so as to make the same fit to live in.

The Isolation Hospital.

"At the Isolation Hospital 30 patients were being treated, mostly all for scarlet fever. We would recommend that fire escapes be made more accessible in case of fire. Basement bathroom needs repairs—that better accomodation be provided for bathing patients, there being only one bath now available for 18 patients—also more accomodation for sterilizing linens, and that the walls be redecorated, and would suggest they be painted, as believe it would be more sanitary; also that more lights be placed on the street and at the hospital, and that sewerage connection be made at once and dispense with cesspool now in use.

"The road leading from Water street to hospital is badly in need of alterations. We found it on a dry day in very bad shape, and learn in bad weather ambulances find it impossible. This should not be the case and should be repaired at once."

The other public institutions were found in good conditions.

The report concludes: "We wish to thank all those in charge of the various institutions for their kind reception and courtesy shown us in performance of our duties. In conclusion, we respectfully ask that recommendations made by your Grand Jury be not only received and filed, but that same be acted on at once and in the same spirit as they are made."

WOEFUL REMNANT RUSS PRISONERS BOUND FOR HOME.

Insane Invalids and Criminals Travel in Trainloads From Germany.

BERLIN, June 18.—The insane invalids and criminals, the last remnants of several hundred thousand Russian prisoners taken by Germany during the war, will begin their homeward journey in the next few days.

Two invalid trains, carrying about 500 each, are being dispatched to Moscow weekly by way of Riga. In all, 3,000 insane and sick will be en route by the end of June.

Many will be kept in institutions in Moscow until able to proceed to their homes. Eight hundred, in special confinement for crimes committed during imprisonment, signified their willingness to return to Russia to complete their sentences, while 7,000 prefer to remain in Germany. All will lose their prisoner status after Aug. 1, and will be classed as Russian refugees.

40,000 Held in Russia.

A Red Cross agent, who has just completed the overland journey from Vladivostok to Berlin, reports there are still about 40,000 nationals of the Central powers held prisoners in Siberia and Russia proper, among whom he has done relief work. He believes he is the first man to travel overland from the Pacific since the Bolshevist revolution.

Soviets Waning.

This man verifies reports that the Soviet glory is waning, and states its willingness to compromise is even more pronounced than rumors indicate. He told much the same story of disorganization and abnormal conditions as others who come out of Russia. His chief difficulty was obtaining permission from the five Governments he encountered en route to pass through their territory. This traveller served two weeks in prison in Moscow on an espionage charge, and said people were not merely held in prison in Moscow as a punishment, but because the Soviets found this the best way to keep an eye on suspicious characters, civil and military.

BLIND GIRLS GO TO WORK IN A BIG RUBBER-NECK WAGON

LUNCH IS SERVED FOR THEM AT THE WOMEN'S INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT—SPECIAL ATTENTION TO MUSIC FOR BLIND

Very few visitors to Toronto have not, at one time or another, enjoyed a trip around the town in one of those enormous passenger motor 'busses familiarly known as "rubber neck waggons." A man, armed with a large megaphone, stands beside the driver and points out the places of beauty and interest along the route. The 'busses were, of course, built primarily for sight-seeing tourists on pleasure bent. Imagine then, the sight of one of these gigantic cars, minus the announcer, and filled to overflowing with passengers, but—the contrast—every last one of these passengers, a blind girl! Yet it is a daily occurrence.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, being national in scope, has many of its workers from out of town. "Clarkewood," on Sherbourne Street, the residence for blind girls, is a beautiful old home, converted to their needs by the Institute. Here, each morning except Sunday, no matter what the weather, one of these large, "sight-seeing" cars calls for its precious load of blind Canadian girls and carries them to their work at the Women's Industrial Department, in another part of the city. At noon time, lunch is served to the girls right in the factory, but in the evening, the day's labor over, the 'bus calls again and conveys them safely home. It is indeed a noble use to which the "sight-seeing" car is being put.

Different Alphabets.

Few people know the difference between Braille and Moon type, which is the universal mode of reading among the blind. Braille is a series of tiny raised dots, while Moon, which is very popular with elderly blind people, is a series of prominent raised letters and signs which almost correspond to the ordinary alphabet. A good Braille reader can read a book just as quickly as these words are glanced through with the eye.

Music For the Blind.

Special attention is now being paid to the publication of Braille and Moon music, so that blind people may enter for the best standard examinations. There are now many very excellent organists, violinists, etc., in the country who have had their training in this way.

MORE GERMAN WHEAT.

This Year's Crop Likely to Be of "Better Than Average Volume."

BERLIN, June 18.—The 1921 wheat crop of Germany will be of "better than average volume," says a statement issued to-day by Herr Hermes, the Food Controller, who also states that for the first time since the war the country finds itself with grain on hand on the eve of a new harvest. As a result of the favorable crop outlook, the Government will be able to dispense with the system of the "early threshing premium," for which it paid out more than 250,000,000 marks in the last two years in an effort to induce the farmers to make early deliveries.

Although the Government has decided to continue official control of the nation's wheat production, it has modified its restrictions to the extent of permitting farmers who make the obligatory deliveries to dispose of their surplus stock to mills for flour production, thereby enabling consumers to obtain flour in the open market.

Notwithstanding the improvement in the visible grain supply, consumers will soon face an increase in the price of bread, as the Government has decided to abolish the subsidies heretofore granted for the purpose of limiting the price of bakers' loaves. This appropriation will now be stricken from the national budget, and the consumer for the present will be called on to share the burden hitherto assumed by the Government.

The fruit crop throughout Germany is also reported to be ahead of that of past years, although the prevailing high prices are heavily affecting the popular demand.

PARENTS DEAD, YOUTH STRAYED UNCARED FOR

WHITBY, June 18.—A bright youngster of eleven years has strayed into this district who knows nothing about himself, except that his parents are dead and that he does not remember ever going to school, although he can write.

He gives his name as Charlie Wilson. He came a few days ago to the home of Archie Bunker, near Audley, and was taken in charge by Police Chief Charles Lavery. He has three scapulars attached to a cord around his neck. He also has a pin and a brooch. Laundry marks on his shirt are H-564.

He says he has been in Toronto and Hamilton, sleeping in barns in the former city. He was sent to the shelter at Oshawa.

ADVOCATES GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR FOR ONTARIO

Toronto, June 14th, 1921.
Editor, Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I have received a number of letters asking when the Ontario Temperance Memorail is to be presented to the Government. Mr. Drury is reported to have said that if the people want Government control, a measure will be brought forward to give effect to their desire. A copy of the memorial has been given to the Attorney-General, with a report on the progress that has been made. It rests with the Government to say how many are needed and they are coming in every day from every part of the province. The work of obtaining signatures cannot stop until sufficient have been obtained to justify the Government in bringing in a measure of Government control.

If anyone dreams of slackening his efforts, let him consider what it will cost to make a serious attempt to enforce total prohibition. Three dollars per head is said to be the cost of trying to enforce total prohibition in the United States in one year. With our great province and sparse population, it will probably cost us more than this to discover that prohibition cannot be enforced. If the Referendum returns are any guide, we can only depend upon the support of one-fifth of our population, including inmates of old women's homes and young girls, and it does not help matters that nobody's conscience is bound by a law, based upon the assumption that it is a crime to drink wine, which not one man in five thousand will help the Government to enforce.

Three dollars a head, with a population of two and a half million, comes to $7,500,000. Add to this the loss of say five million a year from permits and sale under Government control, and we have a total annual cost of $12,500,000. This does not take into account the millions that are spent annually in this province by summer travellers and conventions, which in future, will be diverted into the province of Quebec, or the emigration from this province of those who do not like its laws.

The question is often asked, "What is Government control." Government control is control by the Government of the purchase of all alcoholic liquors, and the sale of pure liquors by the Government as a beverage to such persons and under such conditions as the Government may decide. It is always understood that it shall not be necessary to obtain a doctor's certificate. Many suggestions have been made as to the conditions under which liquor may be sold. It has been proposed that the Government should issue permits to individuals, appoint local vendors, and compel each holder of a permit to buy only from the vendor in his locality. It has been suggested that the Government should ration the quantity that may be purchased by any individual in a given place, that a greater freedom should be given for the use of wines and beer, than for strong liquors, that permits should be issued for private cellars, subject to proper conditions, and that the local option principle may be applied.

To take a concrete example. In the last Referendum Huron county farmers went very dry and Ottawa city went very wet. With local option and Government control, Huron county would be as dry as a bone. Nobody in the county could buy any liquor anywhere except upon a doctor's certificate. What more could the Huron county farmers want? Are they so interested in making the city of Ottawa pay tribute to the doctors that they are willing to contribute $3.00 per head per annum, and sacrifice a Provincial income which would provide and maintain good roads throughout the length and breadth of the province for all time to come? Are the Huron county farmers so set upon keeping Ottawa under their thumb, that they are willing to inflict upon that unfortunate city an army of stool-pigeons, to incite the members of parliament to commit a rime and then send them to gaol?

But local option in abolishing the bar is one thing. It is quite a different matter to apply majority rule to dictate what a man shall eat or drink upon his own farm. If ten farmers in Huron county insist upon their personal rights, have all the other farmers in the world the right to impose thier will? The final definition of Government control to be adopted in this province must be decided by a committee of wisemen of sane moderate views, after careful consideration of the experiments which have been tried elsewhere.

Government control should be made the paramount question of the day, for if democracy is to endure, it is the duty of every good citizen, to see that no laws are passed which conflict with elementary principles, and make for anarchy. Men who make bad laws are a greater menace to the state than the men who break them. The proposed law is bad, because it breaks a basic principle of Democracy—that things innocent in themselves may be regulated, never prohibited; and the Referendum is no indication of the considered opinion of mature intelligent people, because there was no opportunity to vote upon Government control and the girls were stampeded. We should do well to see that the fool hangs high who first suggested that a prohibitive law, affecting human liberties properly used, should be passed upon a Referendum, which does not show an overwhelming support of those who are affected by the law.

Friends of Government control can take heart from the probability that the law invoked by the recent Referendum will be disallowed by the courts, but they should begin to consider now, the kind of Government control that will best meet the situation we shall have to face.

RESULTS OF THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE EXAMINATIONS

WITU A FOREWORD BY THE PRINCIPAL, MR. H. R. H. KENNER, THAT IS DIRECTED TO INDIFFERENT PARENTS.

Note by the Principal:— A considerable number of pupils have failed to pass their examinations. Before the parents of these pupils put the blame upon the shoulders of the teachers I would suggest that they ask themselves the following questions:

1. Have I during the past year inquired of "Johnnie's" teachers about his progress and deportment to see if I could help them to help "Johnnie?"
2. Have I encouraged him in respect for his teachers and for others in authority?

THREE KEENE MEN WERE ACQUITTED

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY RETURNED BY JURY IN COUNTY COURT.

Implementing the jury's verdict of not guilty on Friday afternoon, Judge Huycke discharged J. J. Barraclough, John Edwards and Geo. Edwards, of Keene, who had been accused of the theft of $54 from Charles Ellis, a blacksmith at Keene, on March 7, 1920.

In dismissing the case Judge said that it was a satisfaction to him to know that these young men had been found not guilty and that they could return to their homes with reputations untarnished. He admonished them to avoid doing anything that might compromise their good name, to prove themselves good citizens, and also to do nothing that would bring discredit upon the military buttons which two of them had earned the privilege to wear, and upon the service, and the associations the C. E. F. button represented.

Mr. J. A. O'Brien of Gordon and O'Brien, conducted the defense of the three men, and Crown Attorney Hatton the prosecution.

TALKS COOPERATION AMONG BRANCHES OF DAIRYING INDUSTRY

E. H. Stonehouse Suggests Collective Bargaining.

BROCKVILLE, June 18.— The application in modified form of the principle of collective bargaining to the dairying industry was suggested by E. H. Stonehouse, of Weston, president of the Ontario Milk and Cream Producers' Association, speaking at the annual meeting of the Brockville district Association. "If we are to have settled conditions, whereby at all times of the year the farmer will get a fair and uniform price for his product," said Mr. Stonehouse, "I think that if we had in various sections of the country our own factories equipped for the manufacture of butter or cheese or the shipment of whole milk, the manufacturers and distributors might buy in bulk for us." Mr. Stonehouse added that he hesitated to approach so big a problem until conditions became more settled, but instead of attempting to revolutionize the industry in such a province as Ontario by means of pooling, he would prefer to follow the line of least resistance and resort to collective bargaining.

"MALEVOLENT NONSENSE," SAYS WALL STREET JOURNAL

Belabors Hearst Paper For Attacking Britishers' Suggestion Regarding Payment of Confederate Debts.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Herbert N. Casson, writing to the Wall Street Journal from London recently, spoke of $200,000,000 bonds of several of the Southern States, held by British investors, but repudiated by the States which issued them. He suggested that it would be a kindly and gracious act to pay these bonds, although it is in the last degree unlikely that Congress would consider such a proposition. But Hearst's American, in its anxiety to abuse the British, sideswipes its southern friends thus:

"The two hundred millions owed by several of the Southern States, to which Mr. Casson refers, were loaned by Great Britain to Confederate states to aid them in breaking up the Union during our Civil War."

This is malevolent nonsense, goes on the Wall Street Journal." The mildest comment is that the writer did not know what he was talking about. The bonds referred to are those which were sold to British investors by various state legislatures during the reconstruction period following the Civil War, when the irreconcilable element in the south was disfranchised. When the white Southerners succeeded in nullifying the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments to the constitution these bonds were repudiated.

Of course any stick is good enough to beat the British, so far as this Hearst papers are concerned, but in this case they are unconsciously belaboring their Democratic southern supporters. Hearst's Atlanta publication might usefully republish this simple explanation to keep the record straight.

DIED A TAGE OF 107

Henry Jones, Cumberland County, N. S. Born in 1814.

AMHERST, N. S., June 18.—At the age of 107, Henry Jones, Cumberland country's oldest citizen, and possibly the oldest Nova Scotian died at the residence of his son, Charles, at Brookdale, N. S. Until about a year ago Mr. Jones had been in excellent health.

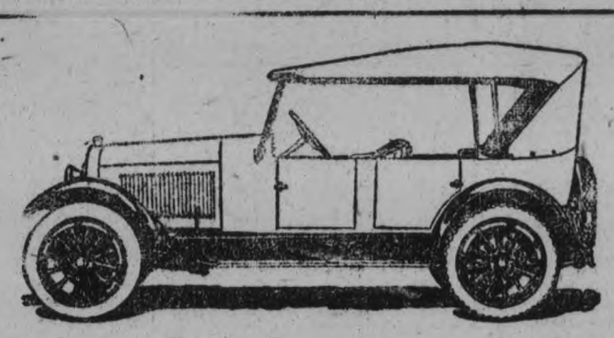
WEATHER MAN RELENTED FOR NORMAL SCHOOL PICNIC

Splendid Afternoon of Sunshine On Stoney Lake.

Despite the usual rainstorm that invariably accompanies the annual picnic of the Normal students, which softened, however, into a lovely after noon, about 160 intrepid students started out at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, for one of the most delightful outings ever experienced by the School, according to Mr. Duncan Walker. The Steamer Stoney Lake took the party to Burleigh, where they stayed for an hour, then on to Crowe's Landing, returning at 7.30 in the evening. Music and songs and refreshments were enjoyed on board by the jolly party of young people. Several of the students left on the evening train for home and the rest departed this morning.



Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.
We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

for domestic purposes, let alone fire protection. Some of the most important factories were in these districts. There was a second feed main laid from the pump house to Smith Street and a large main laid up Smith Street connecting with the western system and large main on McDonnel Street. A main was also laid through Auburn and down to connect with the East Ward system. This last main not only gave water for fire protection to Auburn, but also relieved the situation on the west side, as instead of the East Ward being fed from the west side of the city, the new main resulted in the East Ward system assisting to maintain the pressure in the main part of the city. Another similar expense was the relaying of small original mains by larger ones, especially when pavements were about to be constructed, and there is more of this work to do.

These improvements were necessary to maintain an efficient system, but they added little to the revenue, although the interest and sinking fund to pay for them had to be met. All these expenditures were approved by the City Council as necessary and some of them urged upon the Commission by the Council.

In addition to this, the protection of the city required a steam auxiliary pumping unit to furnish water when the water wheels were stopped by frazil ice or other causes, and the Fire Insurance Underwriters called for such a unit. This unit was put in, being purchased from the De Laval Company and the boilers by the Wm. Hamilton Co.

While the cost of operation and maintenance have been increasing during recent years, the erection of houses was practically at a standstill in the city, and the revenue had not been growing anything like it did in the previous years.

These circumstances have compelled an increase in rates, apart from the construction of the filtration plant. During the war the Commission endeavored to hold the rates down to what they had been, but did that a little too long, and had a deficit last year.

Then the construction of the filtration plant was authorized. The water has been growing steadily worse for some years. The Commission was compelled by the Provincial Board of Health to chlorinate the water, and the quantity of chlorine used has been increased owing to the condition of the water becoming worse. The Commission felt that they could not take the responsibility of continuing to furnish unfiltered water, as an outbreak of disease might occur and they would no doubt be held responsible. The matter was submitted to the electors last January, and the people showed that they desired the water filtered, for the vote on the by-law was 1,113 for the by-law authorizing the work and 668 against it, a majority of 445. The opinion in favor of the work was general throughout the city, for no polling place gave a majority against it.

The cost of the construction and operation of the filter plant of course must be met, and the one way of doing it is to increase the rates, and that is what the Commission has done.

Why it is that, while the law allows the Commission to have a contingent fund of $50,000.00, and directs the balance over that sum to be paid to the city, the Commission had surpluses from 1902 to 1919 amounting to about $80,000.00 and only paid over to the city $5,051.27?

Because the law provides that the Commission may retain the surpluses to form al contingent fund not to exceed at any time $50,000.00 and may use portions of the contingent fund from time to time to make extensions or improvements in the system, but no work to be undertaken involving over $5,000.00 without the approval of the Council. Portions of the contingent fund have been so used, with the approval or at the request of the Council, and at no time has the contingent fund amounted to $50,000.00. Some of the mains laid to maintain the pressure have been paid for by debentures issued against the contingent fund.

As only one illustration of how their operating expenses have increased, Mr. Hicks said that in 1914 mains cost $34 a ton. Last year they cost $105. Mr. Hicks referred to the increase in the administration of the city and the School Board since 1914. The figures for the city are $303,000 to $660,000, School Board 110,500 to 250,000. Increased operating expenses of the city were, he said, 117.6 per cent., while the increased cost of operating the Waterworks was only 50 per cent. Mr. Hicks particularly dwelt upon the money spent to increase the efficiency of the system for fire protection. An auxiliary pumping engine installed in 1916 cost $24,000, he said, and total expenditures for fire protection was altogether about $125,000.

When they advertised the by-law last January, Mr. Hicks said, they gave many facts in regard to the plant and its maintenance, and a lot of time was spent on their preparation.

Mr. Hicks began reading the ads. in the Examiner last December. "We're read all those things. We're here to get light. We read all that stuff and are sick of it," said Mr. Lytle, loudly. Mr. Hicks desisted from reading further.

Thomas Tooms, M.L.A., wanted to know where the $125,000 came from to give good fire protection.

Mr. Hicks started Ross Dobbin looking for this.

A list of questions prepared by the organizers of the meeting to strike the Commission at supposed vulnerable points was in the hands of the Mayor and others present. The Mayor read these questions, which were answered by various members and officials of the Commission. J. W. Worth asked a question, which was finally answered, based on this statement of Mr. Sisson's to the Trades and Labor Council at a meeting on November 25 last year, "That the Waterworks Department showed a balance last year (1919) of $1,000.00. This was wiped out by salary increases to all the staff and employees."

The question was, "As the year 1919 showed a surplus of $1,000.00 in the Waterworks Department, may an explanation be received showing in detail the extra expenses since that date which would cause a deficit of 27 per cent. as stated at present, not taking into consideration whatever any expenditures or expenses in connection with the filtration plant?"

In reply, Mr. Sisson read a detailed account of the increases. From this Mr. Worth gathered there was a possibility of a decrease in rates later.

"And we're liable to have the rates decreased?"

"Decidedly you are."

"Why didn't you tell us that before. Some of us mightn't have been so sore."

Mr. Lytle accused the Commissioners of paying a big price when they paid $105 a ton for mains, and he said in laying the main on Monaghan Road, the work was open all summer and weeds growing over it. He also asked, quoting from a Government report, why the capital expenditure had increased from $492,000 in 1914 to over $700,000 now.

In reply to this question Mr. Hicks promised an answer within three days through the press, and said other questions that could not be answered in a moment would be so treated.

Mr. Sisson admitted stating that the estimated increased in rates due to the filtration plant would be 50 per cent. He had been approximately true, he said. The rest, 27 per cent., was due to the increase in onerating expenses, irrespective of filtration.

Out of a discussion of salaries which several persons were unkind enough to make personal to the chairman of the Commission were revealed the salaries paid all the staff, and how these salaries are charged up to the water and light department. When wages are generally reduced, the Commission would reduce the salaries, but not till then, said Mr. Hicks.

W. H. Bradburn last night questioned the advisability of the Utilities Commission competing with electrical dealers in the sale of elecertcil appliances.

Mr. Hicks declared they were going to boost the sale for all shops and effect a greater use of electrical devices.

C. McClellan declared this to be very excellent reasoning, no doubt, but the Commission didn't similarly act when they bought pumps in China or Switzerland.

"That's the same as the lamps. Give us the lamps which you promised us 7 years ago at 10 and 15 cents.

"I might say to Mr. Lytle, give us a few weeks to get in the business."

"We've given you seven years."

Around to the matter of pumps, the Chairman said they were bought on the recommendation of William Kennedy, their engineer. Out of $8,950, $3,000 went to Switzerland. T. Stenton claimed this was too much with men out of work.

J. Bogue suggested extending the life of the debentures to lessen the load, and S. R. Armstrong said this was practically what had finally been done. The debentures are issued for 10 years, but will then be reissued at, it is expected, a lower rate of interest.

Charges of camouflage in the increase were indignantly made by J. W. Worth. Mr. Worth said he could not figure his charge. Mr. C. S. McClellan promptly replied he'd tell him what it was—103 per cent., increase.

"That's what I've always maintained," said Mr. Worth.

Mr. Armstrong replied that the rates were based the same as ever, and nothing was camouflaged.

A complaint against the Commission having advertised a 33 1-3 per cent. increase in January was made by Mr. Harding. Denying camouflage for a 103 per cent. jump, Mr. Sisson stated that if the old and new net prices were compared, a difference of 81.4 per cent. would be shown.

Cat calls and raucous cries to "get the hook" greeted Andy Webb when he talked of paying "the shot" and "backing up the men in office." He received no seconder to a motion that the Commission send notices of new rates to every ratepayer.

Mr. Tooms moved that the matter of the increase be reconsidered by the Commission.

Mr. Mason, speaking for the first time, predicted a decrease with lowering costs in another year, but said there was no possibility of changing the decision unless they went further behind.

J. W. Worth, in seconding Mr. Tooms' motion, declared from the answers received the increase was not justified. "I feel, with a further revision, it may be possible to reduce it."

Mr. Hicks commended the spirit of co-operation shown in putting the motion, and said it might be possible to effect some change.

Mr. Lytle opened a vicious attack on the Chairman and Commission. Two years ago, he said, he heard Mr. Hicks deliver a "flowery" speech and he did not mention the Commission going behind. "I maintain if a competent audit had been made of these things in the last few years we wouldn't be here to-night. We would have known we were going behind: We would not be in this unhealthy condition to-day." He moved the amendment to Mr. Tooms' motion.

W. H. Bradburn stated the people voted on the filtration by-law on the strength of what they saw in the paper. "We've got to bear the burden. I can't see what good that motion will do."

Ex-Ald. Edgar counselled that they were "raising a tempest in a tea-pot." The filtered water was worth the increase. He suggested a vote of thanks to the Commission for attending.

"Sit down! Sit down! What do you think it is—a love feast!" He was howled down with these words.

W. Nelson, in a spirited criticism of the increase, said he was going to form a Ratepayers' and Freeholders' Association, and they wouldn't pay the new rates on July 1 if an injunction had to be entered before Judge Huycke.

M. Cain seconded William Lytle's motion and the amendment defeated the motion, which had been changed so the rates were not to be increased pending reconsideration.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

HUGE SUMS PASSED THROUGH 'Y' IN WAR

National Council's Pamphlet Explains Association Transactions.

LONDON, June 18.—The huge sums which passed through the hands of the Y.M.C.A. during the war are summarized and explained in a pamphlet which the national council is issuing to contributors.

The gross expenditure from August, 1914, to May 31, 1920, was £21,951,688, which included a sum of £13,762,282 for goods purchased for the sale of refreshments, etc. Excluding this item, the total cost of the work in all war areas was £8,189,406, made up as follows:

Gifts from public, £2,848,374; grants from American, Canadian and Australian Y.M.C.A.'s, £448,082; gross "profits" on sale of refreshments, £3,625,522, receipts from beds, baths and billiards, £369,756; proceeds of sales of properties and equipment, £212,574; sundry other receipts, £78,321; payments by War Office in respect of services rendered, £610,500; surplus in hand £3,723.

The cost of free stationery, games and sports, concerts and lectures, hot cocoa and refreshments given free at night in danger areas or to the walking wounded, or to returning prisoners, hospitality to relatives of wounded, and free testaments and song books given to the troops amounted to £991,216.

The total paid for headquarters salaries and wages during the whole period of nearly six years was £223,235. This was only just 1 per cent. of the total expenditure.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

Stone, followed by a man nearest him, scrambling down the draw, hurried along the creek bottom and ran up to reach the path across which the murdered man lay. The dog, barking and dashing wildly around his prostrate master, spied the foreman and sprang madly down the trail at him. Stone, rifle in one hand and revolver in the other, was ready, and, firing from the hip, broke the collie's back. With a howl the stricken brute turned, and, dragging his helpless hind quarters along the ground with incredible swiftness, pawed himself back to the dying man's head, and, yelping, licked frantically at the hand of his master. Coming up into plain sight, Stone got a good look at the man he had killed.

"Gorman!" he exclaimed, with an oath of surprise. "Who'd a thought," he continued, with many expletives, "that old bum would be up at Dutch Henry's this morning!"

The old prize fighter was struggling in his last round. His heavy lidded eyes, swollen with drink and sleep, were closed, and from his mouth, as his head hung to one side, a dark stream ran to a little pool in the dust. Only a stentorous breathing showed his effort to live, and even this was failing fast. Van Horn hurried up the path from the bottom, whither he had followed Stone. Anger was all over his face. "Kill that damned dog!" he exclaimed, out of breath, to those about him. Two of the three men drew revolvers and shot the collie through the head.

"Damnation!" cried Van Horn in a fury. "Stop your shooting! Couldn't you knock him in the head? Do you want to start up the whole country?" he demanded, as he saw the man who lay at his feet and had taken the brief count for eternity was Gorman. He turned on Stone with rage in his eyes and his voice.

"Now," he cried, punctuating his abuse with the fiercest gestures, "you've done it, haven't you, you——!" Anger almost choked him. "You've got Gorman with a brass band and left Dutch Henry in the cabin waiting for us, haven't you? Why," he roared profanely, "didn't you obey orders, let this tank get down to the bottom, and knock him on the head into the creek?"

A violent recrimination between Stone and Van Horn followed. But the milk was spilt, as well as the blood of the stubborn rustler, and there was nothing for it but new dispositions.

Gorman's presence indicated that Henry was at home. If he were at home, he was, no doubt, within the cabin; but just how, after Stone's blunder to get at him was a vexing question.

Van Horn started down the foot trail back to the bottom and around to the first hiding place. Lingering with a companion to look at Gorman in his blood, Stone turned on his companion for approval. "See where I hit him?" he grinned. "Poor light, too."

A brief council was held in the draw. Watched for more than an hour, not the slightest sign of life about the lonely cabin could be detected. Various expedients, none of them very novel, were tried to draw Henry's fire if he should be within. But these were of no avail. A dozen theories were advanced as to where Henry might or might not be. But to every appearance there was not, so far as the enemy could judge, a living man within miles of the spot. The older heads—Pettigrew, Doubleday, VanHorn and even Stone—talked less than the others; but they were by no means convinced that the house was empty.

One of the least patient of the cowboys at length deliberately exposed himself to fire from the sphynx-like cabin. He stood up and walked up and down the edge of the draw. Nothing happened. Emboldened, he started out into the open and toward the cabin. No shot greeted him. A companion, jumping up, hurried after him; the third Texas boy sprang up, to join them. For those watching from hiding it was a ticklish moment. Toward the draw there was a considerable growth of mountain bluestem, none of it very high and gradually shortening toward the house. The three men were hastening through the grass separated by intervals of perhaps fifty feet. The foremost got within a hundred yards of the cabin door, which still stood open as Gorman had left it, before Van Horn's fear of an ambush vanished. He himself, not to be too far behind his followers, then rose to join the procession through the blue stem and the crack of rifle was heard. Van Horn, unhurt, with shout of warning, dropped instantly into the draw. But the last man of the three in the field fell as if struck by an ax. Of the two men ahead of him, the hindermost dropped into the grass and crawled snakelike back for the draw; the man in front dropped his rifle and started at top speed for safety; from the edge of the draw his companions sent a fusillade of rifle fire at the cabin.

Apparently the diversion had no effect on the man inside. With instant deliberation, he fired again; this time at the Texan crawling in the blue stem, and the half-hidden man, almost lifted from the ground by the blow of the bullet, dropped limp. Meantime the first cowboy in his dash for safety was making a record, still unequaled in mountain story. He jumped on a broncho and rig-zagged like a darting bird, but faster than either. The efforts of his companions to divert attention from him were constant. Some of them poured bullets at the cabin. Others jumped to their feet, and, yelling, sprang from point to point to expose themselves momentarily and draw the fire of the enemy. This was of no avail. The hidden rifle with deliberate instancy cracked again. The fleeing cowboy, slammed as if with a club, dashed on, but his right arm hung limp. No snipe ever made half the race for life that he put up in those fleeting seconds, and by his agility he earned then and there the nickname of the bird itself; for before the deadly sights could cover his flight again he threw himself into a slight depression that effectually hid from the range of the enemy.

A swarm of hornets, roused, could not have been more furious than the company under the lea of the draw. Shooting, shouting, cursing deep and loud, they made continual effort to keep the deadly fire off their fallen companions. They saw the half-open door of the cabin swing now slowly shut and they riddled it with bullets. They splintered the logs about it and scattering in as wide an arc as they dared they continued to pour a fire into the silent cabin. Times they paused to wait for a return. There was no return. All ruses they had ever heard of they tried over again to draw a fire and exhaust the besieged man's ammunition. Nothing moved the lone enemy—if he were indeed lone. The day wore into afternoon. By shouting, the assailants learned that two of their three hapless companions in the blue stem were alive—the Snipe very much alive as his stentorian answers indicated. He called vigorously for water, but got none. His refuge was too exposed.

How to get rid of Dutch Henry taxed the wits of the invaders. The whole morning and the early afternoon went to pot-luck firing from the trench along the draw, but although it was often asserted that Henry must be long since dead—having returned none of the shooting that was meant to call his fire—no one manifested the curiosity necessary to prove the assertion by closing in on the cabin. Stone was still sulking over Van Horn's sharp talk of the morning when Van Horn came over to where the foreman had posted himself to cover the cabin door.

"We've got to get that guy before dark, Tom, or he'll slip us."

"All right," replied Stone, with a string of oaths; "you get him."

"I want a wagon," retorted Van Horn. "There's one down at Gorman's place he won't need any more. There's some baled hay down there, too. Take what men you need, load what hay you can find on the wagon and hustle it up here."

Too stubborn to ask questions and only starting after many more hard words—with which all the ground of the morning quarrel and much more was traversed—Stone took two men and started reluctantly for Gorman's. He spent a long time on his job, but came back with the wagon as directed, loaded with hay.

The wagon was not much to view. It looked like the wagon of a man that spent more time in Sleepy Cat saloons than on his ranch. A rack, equally old and dilapidated, had been set on the running gear. The paint had long since blown off the wheels, and one of these, a front wheel, had lost a tire on the rough trip up the creek. But the felloe hung to the spokes and the spokes to the hub.

Van Horn inspected the outfit grimly. With half a dozen men he set quickly to work and under his resourceful ingenuity the wagon and hay were speedily turned into what would nowadays be termed a tank. Only lack of hay kept him from making a mobile fortress of it. By means of wire he slung what baled hay he could spare along the sides, and with much effort to avoid exposure the armored wagon was dragged over the roughest kind of ground, to the north and west of the cabin. From this direction the ground, fairly smooth, sloped from a ridge fringed by a jutting patch of rock, directly toward the cabin itself and eager hands made the final preparations to smoke Henry out. With the load of hay set ablaze and the wagon run down against the cabin the defender was bound to be driven out or burnt.

When the bustling, contradicting and confusion finally subsided, the wagon was stealthily pushed over the ridge, the hay fired and the blazing outfit, christened a go-devil, was started with a shout down the slope for the cabin.

If there existed in the minds of those who talked least a lingering suspicion that Dutch Henry was still alive it was soon strongly justified. Before the wagon had rolled twenty feet the challenge of a rifle shot from the cabin answered the attack. Everybody dodged quick, but no one was hit and a yell of the men.

With ropes borrowed from the men that carried them, and knotted together, the wagon was kept under partial control and the rope, as it was paid out, served in some measure to guide it. On it went, accompanied with shouts and yells. From the threatened cabin came no answering defiance. Henry's case looked bad as the wagon rolled down on him, but his rifle fire, though seemingly wasted, answered steadily.

Stone danced with joy: "He'll be running the gantlet next clip. He's not hitting anybody. He must be shooting," yelled the excited foreman, "at the blamed wagon."

A steady stream of bullets, undismayed, did continue to come from the cabin. Van Horn, who had run to the extreme right of the new sector, and was keeping a close watch on the go-devil was first to perceive trouble.

"Hell's delight, boys," he cried, taken aback, "he's shooting up the wheels."

The words flew around behind the rocks. The rifle fire was explained. Every eye was turned to the danger point, the wheel without the tire. It could be easily seen where the deliberate marksman was getting in his work. He had knocked one felloe off the rim and was smashing at the spokes close to the hub. It began to look like a race between the burning wagon and Henry at bay. The hay was a mound of flame and the sparks and smoke shot high into the air. A hundred feet more would lodge the fire trap against the rear wall of the cabin. But under the steady pounding of a rifle that seemed never to miss its mark the injured wheel showed fast increasing signs of distress. A second felloe was tracking uncertainty.

As a diversion, Van Horn, active, energetic and covering every part of his little line at once, ordered an incessant fire centered on the threatened cabin. Nothing seemed to check the regular report of the hidden high-powered rifle and the bullets that were splintering the old oak spokes. When the roaring wagon struck a loose stone or rough spot in its trackless path it wabbled and hesitated. Yet, jerked, steadied, halted and started by jmeans of the long cable, it rolled to within twenty yards of its mark. There it pitched a bit, recovered and for another ten yards, sailed down a smooth piece of ground. The cowboys were yelling their loudest when a lucky short from the cabin knocked off the second felloe. A second and third shot drove through the spokes of the staggering wheel. A threatening boulder lying to the right of the wagon's course could not be avoided. The men on the rope jerked and swore. It was useless. One side of the wheel collapsed, the front axle swung sharply around and the blazing watgon straddled the troublesome boulder like a stranded ship. The men guiding heaved to on the rope—the rope parted; the cabin stood safe.

At once, the rifle fire from the cabin ceased. No taunt, no threat could draw another shot from the silence. Chagrined eyes flashing, silent in his defeat, Van Horn contemplated the last of the burning wagon and watching the cabin as a dog, baffled, watches a cat on a fence, was let alone even by the most reckless of his companions. For the failure no one tried to bait him. Nor were he and Doubleday ready to quit. They got ready a circle of fires to block any attempt made to escape from the beleaguered cabin after dark. This proved a difficult undertaking, both because fuel was scarce and because the dead line, drawn by the rifle fire of the wary defender, extended a long way in every direction around his log refuge.

The night, however, was fairly clear and a pretty good moon was due by 10 o'clock. The fires were lighted, not without some sharp objection from the cabin, the moment darkness fell. The hard part then was to keep them replenished and maintain an adequate guard. Dark spots and shadows fell within and across the circle around the cabin. Van Horn ordered a rifle fire directed into these places; it was placed so steadily that when the moon rose the besiegers felt pretty confident Henry had not escaped. And just before its light had penetrated the narrow valley, the invaders had a cheering surprise when the wounded man, nicknamed "The Snipe," crawled from his hollow between the lines back to his comrades and told them in immoderate terms what he thought of them for leaving him wounded and thirsty under the enemy fire. Volunteers, inspired by his abuse, crawled out to the second man that had fallen in the morning and by really heroic effort got him back into the draw; badly hit, he was given long-needed attention. The first man, shot through the head, the rescuers reported dead.

SEVENTH INSTALLEMT

Abe Hawk at Bay.

When midnight came the men had been fed and the watch well maintained. A steer, interned earlier, had been cut up for the men's supper, and Van Horn and Doubleday were seated together before the camp fire near the creek eating some of the reserve chunks of meat when a hurried alarm called them up the draw—the cabin was on fire.

Nothing could have happened to take the besiegers more aback. There was hasty questioning but no explanation. Of all the possibilities of the night, none could have been so unexpected. But, whatever the cause, and theories were broached fast, the cabin was ablaze. Smoke could be seen pouring through the chinks in the roof, and little tongues of flame darted out at the rear under the eaves. Though there was not a breath of air stirring, the roof within fifteen minutes was in flames, and the cowboys, confident of victory, set up, Indian fashion, their death chant for Dutch Henry.

The old shack made a good fire. The roof collapsed, and, with the incantations of the cowboys, the stout walls, worm eaten and bullet splintered, falling gradually, blazed on.

"The jig's up here, boys," announced Van Horn, as the fire burned down. "The two biggest thieves on the range are accounted for. It's a good job. If I guess right you'll find the Dutchman in the fire. Yankee Robinson's next. He won't put up much of a fight, but the hardest man to get is still ahead of us. This was a boy's job beside rounding up Abe Hawk. He'll never be taken alive because he knows what's comin' to him.

"There's not a minute to lose now. Stone and I will take two of your men, Barb, and round up Yankee Robinson. From there we'll ride over to Abe's place on the Turkey. About our only chance is to catch him before he's up. If he's got wind of this, we'll have a hell of a chase to get him. Feed the horses, the rest of you eat, and we're off! You can follow us with Pettigrew and the bunch, Doubleday, just as soon as you look the cabin over at daylight." Within half an hour Van Horn and Stone and the two men crossed the creek, rode into the hills, and disappeared into the night.

Setting a watch, Doubleday and his men curled up on the ground. When earliest dawn streaked the sky, the logs were still smoking, and the cowboys, rifles in hand, walked down to where the cabin had stood.

Everything within the walls had been consumed. Long after daylight, with some of the men asleep, and others waiting for the fire to cool, one of Doubleday's cowboys, poking about the sill log of the rear wall with a stick, gave a shout. What had been taken for a half burned log was the charred body of a man. The invaders gathered and the body was presently declared by those who knew him well to be that of Dutch Henry. There was nothing more to detain the men that were waiting. The cowboy worst wounded had started with a companion for home. The snipe insisted on going on with Doubleday.

The horses had been left in good grass a little way down the creek. When they were disturbed it was found that one was missing. A hurried search failed to discover the horse.

While trackers were at work, the Snipe, always alert, found a clew that upset all calculations. It was a small dark red spot soaked into the dust of the creek trail. It was very small, such as might have been made by a single drop of blood; but one such sign was enough to put on inquiry a man versed, like the Snipe, in mountain craft. Keeping his discovery to himself, he tracked back and forth from his single spot, almost invisible in the dust, until he found a second similar spot. This he marked, and dodging and circling, as a hound on a scent, the Snipe ran his trail from his first tiny spot to the trees near the creek where the horses had been left. Doubling, he patiently tracked the telltale spots up the path that led to the cabin. Then he called to Barb.

Doubleday, much out of temper, was in the saddle waiting to get started. He bawled at the Snipe, and not amiably.

"Keep cool," was the answer, "I'm comin'. But look here before you start. There was two men in that cabin, Barb."

"What are you givin' us?" blurted out a cowboy. Doubleday stared ferociously. "There was two of 'em, boys," persisted the Snipe.

"You must 'a seen double when you was runnin'," was the skeptical suggestion of another man. But Doubleday listened.

The Snipe took him from the cabin down to the creek. Then back to the cabin. There he showed him where some one had dug what might have been a hole under the sill log, near the door.

A horse was certainly missing. And then shells from two different rifles were picked out of the ashes. One had been fired from a Winchester rifle; the others, much more numerous, belonged to a Marlin.

"Who was it, Barney?" asked Doubleday, breathing heavily. He was so wrought up and so hoarse he could hardly frame the words. But he was already convinced.

The snipe shook his head. "There's two or three fellows up here shoots a Marlin rifle. If I got one guess on this man that's made his getaway, Barb, I'd say——" The Snipe poked further into the ashes.

"Well, say" thundered Doubleday.

"I'd say it was Abe Hawk."

A bomb exploding in the smoking remnants of the cabin would hardly have caused more consternation among the man hunters than the Snipe's naming of Abe Hawk. But however Doubleday's jaw set at the unwelcome surprise, he was not the one to swerve in the face of any personal danger, and those with him were not men to bolt whatever adventure they embarked in. However, it was remarked by the Snipe that those least acquainted with Abe were least disturbed by the news of his almost certain presence in the cabin the day and night before and his escape after the fight.

Common prudence made it necessary to cross the small divide with care and to get word of the unpleasant discovery as soon as possible to Van Horn in order that he and his companions might not be picked off by the wounded man from ambush. The Snipe was assigned to Hawk's trail and two men were sent to the wings to scout for him among the rocks. Bradley rode to warn Van Horn; but the old man did not sweat his horse in the effort.

The trackers soon made it plain to those behind that the escaping man had ridden a pretty straight course himself, and had picked his way in the night like one thoroughly at home in the hills of the Turkey. And, though losing the trail at times, the Snipe had no serious trouble in picking it again from the grass or the rocks.

The country lying north of the forks of the Turkey is rougher than to the south and pretty well covered with pine. On the northern slope, Hawk's trail led down a long and winding break mile after mile, and in the end pointed straight for his shack on the creek.

Moving as nearly as possible in the order in which they had started, the party emerged from the hills half a mile from the creek, and not much farther from Hawk's when they encountered Bradley and Van Horn with one of his men. Doubleday hoarsely asked for the news.

Van Horn rode up close before he answered, and, though his tone was confident, his manner showed his annoyance at the way things had turned.

THE SATURDAY COLUMN

(By QUINTUS)

There is proceeding at the present time a very remarkable movemen of U. S. people into Canada. It has nothing to do with trade or the crops, but springs from an entirely different source of attraction. It seems that Americans have discovered what nature had discovered long ago, namely, that the climate of the Northern States and of Southern Canada is the best all-round one for the human race. Temperature is what most people set most store by, whereas, it is not temperature, but the tonic effect of the air that counts most in the physical well-being of humauity. It was noticed that wealthy Americans were buying or building along the lake-shore all the way from Kingston to Duluth. And these Americans chiefly come from the southern part of the United States. They are gradually turning that part of Canada into a terrestrial paradise. But you say:- "What about the winter?" These people find that our northern winter is almost the best season of them all for their health. Talking to some very obserrent people from Virginia the writer asked them if that well-known and highly civilized part of the United States was not more attractive to them than Port Hope or Cobourg, and they said "No." The southern air is never too cold or too hot in Virginia and it has all the other advantages of a sea-coast state, but its atmosphere even at the sea-level where it is supposed by most people, that all air is of the same weight, does not produce the same quieting and calming effect, nor he same highly-sensitized effect, two things that would appear at first sight to be contradictory. These effects, however, proceed from what may most easily be described as the food-value of the air. Northern air has a higher food-value than southern air. The nearer we approach the equator the fewer we find of the energetic and physically strong people the world over. The Mongols and Scythians, although savage and ill-equipped, could not be conquered or even held back by all the power of Persia or of Rome. The Franks, the Germans, the Goths, etc., overran Southern Europe in their day. You will answer that by saying that the Arabs or Moors (Gr. Mauros, dark,) did the same. That is true. But the Arabs did not proceed simply by way of emigration as the others did, but from a sudden outburst of religious zeal and they could not hold their conquests. And what is more important the Northern regions have developed, but what has become of Arab-land?

Not long ago it was discovered that anything that holds and emits fine dust was likely to cause and to aggravate that awful disease, eczema. Feather beds and feather pillows are now taboo on that account and the vacuum cleaner or its substitute, elbow-grease, has gone far to remove the cause of that perpetual torment. Eczema is supposed to proceed like wheat-rust from a minute insect but when it has no congenial soil to work in, it goes somewhere else. The physically unclean are very liable to it, and old people who are not so particular about scrupulous personal cleanliness and keeping the skin soft as well as clean are very liable to it, too. That is why dust aggravates their condition. It took centuries to make this simple and one would think obvious find. Southern air has more dust in it than Northern air and Southern people are more prone to eczema than Northern people. Hence when you hear people sighing for the Sunny South and when you find people of the Sunny South moving North it is just as well for the sighing to take a rest for a bit. It is the lazy who want to go South to join their brothers there. It is true a Northern climate bears heavily on people whose blood is no longer warm but put on more clothes and more coal. Make the winter home a more attractive place. It is better for you even if you are growing old than the "spicy isles where the bright sun smiles."

Australia produces the greatest athletes in proportion to its population of the whole world. It is a perfect marvel in that respect. And yet its climate is rated as hot. True, but the strength of the north has not yet run out of its stock and its separation from the rest of the world has developed its independence of spirit and self-reliance. The natives fell before them, however, and thus proved the general truth of what I am saying.

It is now proposed I am told to bring up children according to law. Hereafter, if they tell a lie they will get ten lashes or a thousand dollar fine, and if they don't conduct themselves so as to make life for others worth living, they are to get sentences varying from ten hours in a dark room to ten years in a cold gaol. This will remove the crime of the present day which is becoming alarming. But even perfectly quiet and obedient children are to be subject to penalties. They are not to be allowed to play certain games and do many other things that they have been rejoicing in for so long because some children develop badly on account of them and it is better that one should be saved than that many should enjoy themselves. Anyhow, we must get to the root of the evil and this is obviously with the rising generation. In plucking weeds it has been the custom in the past to spare the vegetables, but now all must go for it is better to be without food than to be naughty. It is hard to say how it is all going to work out, but like the Northern migration of Southern people we may yet find the true and natural solution. People ought to be made to go to Church. What is the sense of going to the expense of building fine churches to have the people go right by them as if they were not there. No one, henceforth, is to live for himself alone and that new and noble doctrine means that the general good must be seen to first and if, after we have brought up the child en properly and have brought up the grown-ups properly, there is anything left the individual may have it.

But the mass must be saved even if we have to kill off or put in chains all the individuals composing it. "I'll have order here," said the Irish chairman, "if I have to smash everything in the place." He was the true fore-runner of the modern era. Those coming after us will say of us that we lived up to our ideals as a united if not as a free people. We must submit to being ruled. It is for our good, only let me do the ruling "I care not," said Alexander the first, as did also Black Frank and other celebrities. "What the people want if I am their boss. And don't you forget it."

Many beautiful places have been laid out along the shores at Cobourg, Port Hope, etc., and in thirty years that great terrace of the ancient shore extending from the water back to the ancient bank will be like a view of Babylon before Sennacherib got to it with his Assyrian army or like that part of Canaan which the Israelites stole from the Canaanites before they in turn were marched off by our friend Shalmaneser II. to his Assyrian capital to wash his dishes and till his fields and do other work that slaves had to do in those days.

Our back lakes will always be our fishing ground and the playground of our young people, but as we get rich we will go where the breezes blow soft and cool off the great water and where the mosquitoes cease from troubling and the blackflies and bats give us a rest.

ARTILLERY CAMP BROKE UP TO-DAY; MEN WANT TWO WEEKS NEXT YEAR

GENERAL CAMP INSPECTION HELD YESTERDAY BY OFFICERS FROM KINGSTON HEADQUARTERS — FOOD FOR BOTH ARTILLERY AND CAVALRY HAS BEEN PLAIN BUT WHOLESOME.

General inspection of both units in Exhibition Camp, the horses and equipment were conducted yesterday by General W. M. B. King, C.M.G., D.S.O., General Officer Commanding, M. D. No. 3. While General King was inspecting the men Col. Garnet Greer, Senior Medical Officer for this military district and son of Dr. T. N. Greer, found the sanitary arrangements of the camp to be satisfactory and the health of the men good. Major Walsh of Kingston, Senior Veterinary Officer, inspected all horses and remarked on the general good grade of mounts. General King was well pleased with the horses and stated that about 65 percent of them would be rated as good cavalry horses.

There was no end to inspections yesterday—in fact, it seemed as if most of the Headquarters Staff was in Peterborough. Capt. Carpenter, Senior Ordnance Officer, examined the supplies, and was gone almost before the officers knew he was in camp. To complete the list of inspectors, an Armourer Sergeant appeared from Kingston to look over the rifles.

When the men had got through with all the "red caps" from Kingston, they began to think the world attached some importance to them after all.

Battery Break Camp.

Col. Folkes of Kingston, who has been making up the pay sheets, has returned to Kingston. The battery will break up camp Saturday after noon or evening, and as the men turn in their equipment they will receive their pay. Troopers and gunners receive $1.25 a day with 25 cents allowance if overseas; bombardiers' pay is $1.75 with 25 cents for overseas service; corporals, $1.45, and sergeants, $1.75, with the same allowance for overseas. Most of the battery boys are receiving $7.50 for their 6 days in camp, while the dragoons are more fortunate in getting 3 more days. Most of the dragoons, however, are ex-soldiers and are drawing $1.50.

For two days the camp commandant has been awaiting a senior musketry instructor coming from Petawawa, and for this reason the cavalry was not sure whether firing could be held at the ranges Saturday afternoon.

Fraternized With Circus.

The circus men and the troops got along excellently together. There was no trouble. The sawdust-ringers treated the soldiers with every kindness and the militia reciprocated. Col. Johnston spoke of the consideration of the management in granting passes to every man and late leave was granted many of the men to attend the night show. The camp pickets did not allow the show men about the tents, and yesterday no equipment had been missed, and it was believed the military were shown more respect than private persons by the circus hangers-on.

Food is Wholesome.

Wholesome food and plenty of it is being given the officers and men, and grumblings at the bill-of-fare have been negligible. The menus for the messes have been about as follows:

Breakfast—Bacon, bread and butter, tea or coffee.

Dinner—Soup, roast beef, potatoes, rice or tapioca, tea.

Supper—Bread and butter, cheese, jam and tea.

Something a little special will be put on on Sunday. There are five cooks in the dragoons. E. McKay is Cook Sergeant and J. MacDonald is Officers' Cook. Most of the men declare the food to be far superior to the army rations, and the only disappointing feature is the short period they can enjoy the good viands.

The storm on Friday morning held up the drill of both units, but did not dampen the spirits of the cavalry. The battery were "blue," for last night was their last night in camp. The six days have been all too brief to the men, and the Hon. Hugh Guthrie could get some advise on how long to run a camp from any of the gunners. Next year they hope and pray there will be a 14 days camp at the least, and although the dragoons have three days longer they coincide with the artillery men in their views.

Where the Blind Excel

(7)

HE was stone blind! The sight of his eyes was taken on the muddy fields of France and he was left heipless and alone in his profound darkness!

He was brought back to Canada—his pre-war occupation as electrical engineer of no earthly use to him. He chose to study massage at Pearson Hall, the Blind Soldiers' Residence in Toronto. In eleven months he was writing his University examinations along with thirty others, all of whom had perfect vision. He came out top—over all the sighted people who wrote on that difficult examination. To-day he is looked upon as one of the finest masseurs in Canada.

Many others have graduated with spectacular results from our massage classes. They hold their positions on the sheer merit of their work.

These successes can be duplicated by those capable blind civilians who would otherwise have to follow mediocre occupations. Help us to extend this work.

SCHOOLMASTER LEADS GERMANY

Joseph Wirth Has Made a Special Study of Economic Theories.

HAS FINANCIAL PLANS

He Has Figured Out That Germany Has a National Debt of $63,000,000,000.

WITH the sudden rise of Wirth to importance as Germany's new leader comes a widespread demand to know what manner of man he is, what his "past performances" have been, whether they indicate that Germany, under his leadership, will fulfil the obligations.

Joseph Wirth was born September 6, 1879, at Freiburg in Breisgau, Baden, Southern Germany, so he is 41 years old—not 75, as certain newspaper accounts had it, confusing the new German chancellor with another man of the same name. In his studies he specialized in mathematics and political economy, and, in 1908, became head teacher and professor at the Freiburg Realgymnasium. In 1911 he was made a member of the Freiburg municipal council and, two years later, a member for the Centrist Party in the Baden Chamber of Deputies. In 1914 he entered the German Reichstag, representing the district of Offenburg-Kehl.

During the war Dr. Wirth was one of the coadjutors of Matthias Erzberger and went twice to Rome in connection with missions with which that noted leader was concerned.

After the revolution which overthrew the Hohenzollern regime in Germany, Dr. Wirth was identified with the Left section of the Centrist Party. Next he became provisional finance minister in Baden, which led soon to his appointment, by the Baden assembly, to the post of finance minister.

At the meetings of the German National Assembly he sided with Erzberger on questions of taxation, and, upon the withdrawal of Erzberger from the post of German minister of finance, Dr. Wirth stepped into his shoes. Since his accession circumstances have more than once obliged him to swerve from the course adopted by his predecessor in seeking to solve financial problems.

Wirth has been referred to contemptuously by opponents as "the Baden school teacher." They have not forgotten in the statesman the man who specialized in teaching economics. And it is, indeed, primarily as an economist that the ex-professor has looked upon Germany's problems and sought for solutions.

Was Finance Minister

THEN he became chancellor last month, after the resignation of Chancellor Constantin Fehrenbach, he showed, as finance minister a grasp of economic conditions that augurs well for his success, now that he is in Fehrenbach's place.

His career as finance minister was an unending series of troubles. He first took that post a year ago last March in the cabinet formed by Hermann Mueller. When Constantin Fehrenbach succeeded Mueller as chancellor he retained Wirth as finance minister. One of the first difficulties which confronted the latter in the spring of 1920 was the demand of German railroad and postal employes for higher wages. Such demands are everyday events in the lives of present-day European statesmen, and the attitude of the German workers in question was to the full as disagreeable as that of their confreres in other parts of the distracted continent. Dr. Wirth and Dr. Johannes Bell, minister of transport, put their heads together and decided that the demands of the workers must be granted, for political and social reasons. It meant a crushing addition to the budget, but they took the step.

After studying the situation for a few weeks Dr. Wirth announced that Germany's total debt amounted to 265,000,000,000 marks (about $63,000,000,000 at the par value of the German mark). This was in June, a year ago. Dr. Wirth soon came forward with plans for reducing this enormous burden. He emphasized the necessity of adopting his own special program by threatening to resign. In this way he forced his colleagues to act as he wished and laid the foundations of that ascendency of his in Germany which eventualy landed him in the chancellorship.

SPOILED IT ALL

CAPTAIN McCULLAGH, in his newly-published book, "A Prisoner of the Reds," tells an amusing story of an elderly English lady who was extremely anxious to quit Moscow for her native land.

But having married a Russian, she was technically a Russian subject, and therefore not entitled to claim repatriation.

The poor lady tried all her wiles on the Bolshevik commissar, a Russian Jew, who had been a tailor in England, and had almost persuaded him to let her leave, when suddenly she spoilt everything by saying:

"Do you know what my maiden name is? It's D—— I'm a cousin of Mr. Justice D——."

She seemed to imagine that the commissar would immediately go on all fours. But nothing of the kind happened, for he had once been before Mr. Justice D—— for using seditious language in Hyde Park, and that learned judge's witticisms still rankled in his mind.

He did not grant the passport.

No Help at All

"Come, now, tell me the truth. Didn't your brother help you?"

"No, sir; he did it all."

He enlisted almost at the outbreak of war and soon found himself with "D" Company of the 37th Battalion at Niagara Camp as a lieutenant. Proceeding to the front, he was drafted to the 15th Battalion (48th Highlanders), and served with them until he was wounded in 1916. Nor did Mrs. Chaplin, in the beginning, have much faith in her son's abilities as an actor.

"Almost my first engagement," said Charlie recently, "was with a small—a very small!—touring company. I was away in the provinces for six months. At the end of that period my mother wrote me as follows:

"'Dear Charlie. You have been an actor six months now. Isn't it about time you came back to London and got something to do?'"

Langley Started Western Revolt

Defeated Saskatchewan Minister Is Englishman of Radical Views.

HON. GEO. LANGLEY, the only member of the Martin government to go down to defeat in the Saskatchewan general elections, is like the redoubtable Dr. Michael Clark, M.P. for Red Deer, a well-educated and versatile Englishman who in the old country was intimately identified with the Cobden-Bright Free Trade wing of the British Liberal party. He was born and educated at Saffron Walden in Essex, and was forty-one years of age and fairly well-to-do when he came to Canada in 1893 and bought and homesteaded a large tract of land in Saskatchewan. Being himself a man of energy and having the assistance of four energetic sons he made a success of his prairie farm from the start and has been credited for years with being a wealthy man; his money, his education and his natural ability giving him a great deal of influence in Saskatchewan. It was small wonder that with his radical upbringing in England he should continue to be a radical in the west. He identified himself actively with the Liberal party of Canada and in the reciprocity campaign threw all his energy into the fight in behalf of Laurier. He first entered provincial politics as a candidate when he ran for Redberry in 1905, beating his opponent easily. He repeated the operation in 1908, 1912 and 1917, each time with an increased majority, so that his defeat last week comes as the greater shock. He has been minister of municipal affairs since 1913.

Mr. Langley was one of the very first men to raise the standard of western revolt against political conditions in Canada and to tell the farmer that he had a viewpoint of his own which he ought to fight for. It was he who at a big banquet nearly ten years ago in Calgary aroused the anger of Hon. Frank Oliver, ex-minister of the interior, by declaring that the Laurier government had shown too much of a disposition "to temporize with and truckle to the manufacturers and the powerful interests."

It was here that he raised the cry that the present relationship existing between eastern and western Canada was unfair. He claimed that if western Canada were separated from the eastern provinces for fiscal purposes and allowed to manage its own trade affairs and regulate its own tariff, that it would be a million dollars a year better off than at present and very much more so in a few years. He went on record as expressing the belief that such a separation could be effected without the west necessarily ceasing to remain part of the Dominion of Canada.

Although he is only a year short of seventy, Mr. Langley is too powerful a factor in western politics and development to remain long in total eclipse.

A CLEVER LAWYER.

IT'S a poor lawyer who can't construe a law in more ways than one.

Admiral Sims Started "Bolsheviking" When He Was a Youthful Midshipman

He Tackled the U.S. Navy Head on the Subject of Cramped Quarters—His Enthusiasm for Cutting Loose.

ADMIRAL WILLIAM SOWDEN SIMS, who, as everyone knows, is Canadian born, a native of Port Hope, Ont., is at once the greatest sailor and the most stormy petrel in the United States navy. His first recorded tendency to steer his own course in spite of what superiors should think occurred when he was a mere midshipman. He complained to the captain that their quarters in the steerage were cramped and that the ventilation was bad. The captain tried to brush aside his grievance by remarking something to the effect that midshipmen had no rights.

"As humans," retorted young Sims, looking his officer austerely in the eye, "we are entitled to so many cubic feet of pure air."

So Midshipman Sims, despite his captain's disapproval, wrote a protest to Washington over his head, and in the end gained his point and more breathing space for midshipmates.

The next time that he showed the "Bolshevistic" streak in him was in 1902, when he was, as he describes himself, a "young and innocent lieutenant" on the China station. He found things wrong with the U.S. navy's target practice, so he wrote to the department using rather unofficial language with the idea of "tearing things loose." No attention was paid to him, so he wrote a letter right to the president, over the heads of his superiors on the China station and over the heads of the navy department.

He should have been cashiered for insubordination, but the president (Roosevelt) on getting the letter ordered: "Cable for that young man to come home at once and put him in charge of target practice!" So Sims became inspector of target practice and friend of Roosevelt.

But it was just ten years ago that Sims flashed across the international horizon for a very "serious indiscretion." He was only an unknown commander then, with no record outside his own navy where he had already made a reputation by his hard work and application. In January, 1911, Commander Sims was a guest and a speaker at a lord mayor's dinner in London. War with Germany seemed imminent even then, and Sims shattered the complacency of the diplomats by declaring:

"If ever the time comes when the British Empire is menaced by an external foe, she can count on every dollar, every ship and every drop of blood of her kindred across the seas!"

The poor commander seemed doomed. The kaiser was peeved and protested to the United States. President Taft was forced to eat Sims' words, disavow his country's sympathy wth the statement and utter a public reprimand of the commander.

But it must have been all done with somebody's tongue in somebody's cheek, for when the United States entered the war Sims was a rear-admiral and he became head of Uncle Sam's European fleet, and the trusted partner of Beatty and company. Then he became an admiral, and now he once more cuts loose by a denunciation of the Sinn Feiners while speaking in an official capacity at a dinner in London.

Once more he has diplomacy turning handsprings to such an extent that he has been recalled. It will be interesting to see what President Harding will do with him. For he is no mere midshipman nor a commander, even, to be whipped and made stand in the corner, but the biggest naval figure in some respects that the United States has produced.

AN APT RETORT

PROFESSOR STARR, the eminent authority on the races of mankind, has been saying some very nasty things about women apropos the plumage bill now before the British parliament.

He told a story about a woman with whom he was walking one day in the country. She saw a boy preparing to climb a tree after a nest.

"You wicked boy," she said. "Are you going to rob that nest? Think how the mother bird will grieve at the loss of her eggs."

"Oh, she won't feel it!" said the boy. "She's on your hat."

Uxbridge Old Boy Wins Distinction

Dr. W. P. Mustard, Honored by Toronto University, Is Scholar of Note.

By W. L. EDMONDS.

DR. WILFRED PIRT MUSTARD, who was one of the two upon whom the University of Toronto the other day conferred the newly-inaugurated doctor of letters, has one thing in common with the late Francis Parkman, the historian. He believes in working local color and atmosphere into his literary efforts. Accordingly, when he was preparing his two works dealing respectively with the influence of Greece and Rome on modern literature, he spent some time in the capitals of these two countries absorbing atmosphere and color and delving into the archives there.

Dr. Mustard has always been a student, and probably always will be one. When he matriculated from the high school in his home town of Uxbridge in 1882 and entered the University of Toronto, local opinion was to the effect that his penchant for thoroughness would bring him scholarly attainments, if not wealth. Graduating from the University of Toronto with a reputation further enhanced, Dr. Mustard for a year or two remained in Toronto, part of his time being devoted to the preparation of examination papers. Then he decided upon a post-graduate course at Johns Hopkins, which obtained (for him the degree of doctor of philosophy. After devoting some years as professor of Latin at Haverford College, Pennsylvania, and at a college in Colorado, he returned to Johns Hopkins, where several years ago he became professor of Latin, a position he still holds. In the meantime, in addition to the two works already referred to he has published a volume entitled "Classical Echoes in Tennyson," has edited a series of "Studies in the Renaissance Pastoral," and regularly contributes to the American Journal of Philogy.

When it was announced in the newspapers that the university had decided to confer the degree of doctor of letters upon Professor Mustard, a number of citizens of Uxbridge decided, in order to testify their appreciation, to purchase the robe to be worn on the occasion. And there was such a scramble on the part of the citizens to supply the necessary funds that after the robe was purchased there was sufficient left to create a fund for the establishing of a scholarship in Latin at the Uxbridge high school.

Richard Crozier

THIS is the man who initiated and directed the expose of Surething Ponzi's 14-million dollar swindle in Boston last year—a daring bit of journalistic enterprise which won for the Boston Post the Pulitzer gold medal for the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by any newspaper in the United States during 1920.

He is Richard Grozier, assistant editor and publisher of the Boston Post.

Ponzi had "bluffed the world," even the shrewdest being taken in by his schemes. Grozier became convinced that the schemes were crooked. Against the advice of the conservative he started a campaign that ended with Ponzi's arrest and conviction. He took a chance, backed his own judgment against that of lawyers, financiers, and the Boston police department — (unofficially, the cops were Ponzi agents in all good faith)— and won. Had he erred he was liable to heavy libel damages, and he risked the reputation of the paper—its life.

Dr. Johnson Was a Terror to Lawyers

For Thirty Years He Gave Expert Medical Evidence in Toronto Courts.

By ALBERT R. HASSARD, K.C.L.

THE death of Toronto's first official appointee to the position of chief coroner of Toronto, Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson, has removed a man who had won a remarkable reputation in the realm of medical jurisprudence. Any number of lawyers during thirty years vainly endeavored to shake the testimony of this medical expert on the witness stand.

In a serious case which came before a Toronto jury some years ago a lawyer of unusual brilliance and long experience was defending the prisoner. It was soon seen, after the cross-examination of Dr. Johnson had commenced, that it was going to be a battle of wits, on account of his attacks upon the defense theory and the defense lawyer's attempts to corner him. The counsel for the prisoner hurled his questions at the witness with great rapidity, but Dr. Johnson always took his time to make his answers, and then answered not only the question which was asked, but deliberately pointed out the way in which that phase of the situation was quite irrelevant to the issue before the jury. Never once was the lawyer able to pin the shrewd doctor down to anything which in the slightest deviated from his evidence given against the prisoner.

Severe as were these experiances for the lawyers, in cases such as that just mentioned, they were regarded as occasions of great enjoyment for Dr. Johnson, who invariably would leave the witness box smiling.

On one occasion a well-known lawyer was so angered at the cool repulses he received during an hour of cross-examination of this famous physician, that he concluded his cross-examination by saying:

"Well, Doctor, I know your address, and when I want to find an unassailable man I know where he may be located."

But Dr. Johnson did sometimes, perhaps not wholly unconsciously, give powerful assistance to his adversary. In almost the last case in which a woman was charged in the Toronto police court with murder Dr. Johnson was the witness against her. But her counsel adopted an entirely different attitude towards the man who was slowly winding a net around the helpless prisoner. "Doctor," said this lawyer, in cross-examining, "I do not know anything about medicine, and I know you could overwhelm me in a minute, but there are two or three little points in which you could, if you kindly would, help my poor, unfortunate client." Then the lawyer proceeded with his apparently innocent questions, and at the close of a short cross-examination, an entirely new phase had been put upon the question, and the woman was acquitted.

A TIP FOR AUSTEN

WHEN Mr. Austen Chamberlain was a young man fresh from college he was approached by his old nurse who, after inquiring as to his health and general welfare, asked him what vocation in life he intended taking up.

"Oh," replied the future leader of the Unionist party, "I'm going in for politics."

"For politics!" was the exclamation of the old lady. "Oh, Mr. Austen, I should have thought that two in the family, your father and Mr. Richard, were enough to have in politics. Why don't you go in for something useful?"

Quite a Change

"THE weather," said the oldest inhabitant, "is not what it used to be when I was a boy."

"For that matter," commented the flippant young man, "the weather is not what it was seven months ago."

And the oldest inhabitant could not be persuaded to talk for more than an hour.

THE CONFESSIONAL: Uncensored Talks With Big Men About Themselves

HON. HUGH GUTHRIE

By Emil Longue-Beau.

MR. GUTHRIE asked me to see him in his lawyer's office at Guelph, just before setting off to the London conference. Though only four subjects were on the agenda while Lord Milner was colonial secretary, the four have become 14 since the bubbling Winston started out to out-Chamberlain Chamberlain as chief ringmaster of the empire. Premier Meighen has protested against this expansion. Premiers may protest, but Winston will contest. As Winston is trying to drag military and naval affairs into the arena, the Minister of Militia had better follow Meighen and, for the second successive year the Guelph lawyer will find himself on the inter-Imperial, international stage. I asked him how he liked the prospect.

"Personally, I like it fine," he replied. "I have always known I was meant for great things. That was told me when I was a small chap, and my father was a member of parliament. Large affairs are my element. On that account my wife and I have always paid considerable attention to the social side of politics. It keeps you poor; but it's part of the game. Guelph's all right. I'd do anything for this city, in addition to being its legal adviser and Federal member. You will have noticed that this office is on a side street. The building is of stone, and so many of our structures are. It's a little off modernity, and has a sort of old-world air. Coming in here you might almost fancy yourself in a place like Stratford-on-Avon, or a cathedral city like Worcester. But, after all, this isn't a very large place, and its doings are not of national importance, even if Lyon and Hannigan are in our midst. I'm really glad to be swimming in a deeper, broader stream than the Speed, and with more than a private member's stroke. I should have been doing that long before the Union government was formed; but political accidents will happen."

"Meaning?"

"Meaning, in this case, the General Election of 1911. Perhaps you have forgotten that I was slated to succeed Aylesworth as Minister of Justice. He didn't run in 1911. His deafness made parliamentary life a purgatory to him; and he wasn't cut out for a politician, anyway. I had Sir Wilfrid's promise of his place; and I really believe I would have had it if the old man had remained prime minister.

"When I came to think it over, I found Laurier had not tied himself absolutely to my appointment; and I might have found myself where others did—there was often a difference between what some men thought was a Laurier promise and a Laurier performance. Still, I had been chairman of the railway committee for four years—a post that made it quite reasonable to expect that there need not be an intermediate grade before I reached the cabinet. I had let it be understood that I was sure to go higher, and that may have had something to do with retaining my seat in 1911, when so many of our fellows went down in Ontario.

"Kelly Evans was my opponent; and though Kelly's a good speaker, he was an outsider, and he didn't make rapid headway. Then, the farmers in this county had been strongly Liberal for many years. In reciprocity they saw better prices for themselves, and so the appeal to reelect me was pretty strong. But we were in an Ontario minority of sixty, which more than off-set the combined results of eight other provinces. Sir Wilfrid's regrets to me, that I couldn't be in the cabinet were all the more sincere."

"As sincere, do you think, as his regrets that you tied up with Borden in 1917?" I asked the first Liberal parliamentarian to join the union.

"Well, I think the Old Man was pretty sincere through that strange time. For Canada, he saved Quebec from becoming far worse than it was. It was always clear to those who were close to him that he was not in the war with the fervor that the rest of us were. I was heart and soul for making the utmost of our share in the war. I even chided our native-born because we let the British-born so largely fill the Canadian army. Soon after Borden declared for a coalition I spoke for it also. I was quite prepared from the start to burn my boats, and I often wished Rowell would take his plunge early instead of late. But I don't want to criticize him for being slow, though I think he deserved it."

I ventured something like a shot. "Maybe he wasn't as ready to hold office as you were?" I said.

Hugh Guthrie half closed the eyes that, most days, are not given to the widest-open facing of the world, and mentally felt out the suggestion I had conveyed before he answered. Then:

"Perhaps there's something in what you say. I was ready for office as soon as the opportunity appeared, and, thought I should have gone into the cabinet. But I was quite willing to be soliciter-general—as a starter. So I went in without waiting for the others. Ballantyne did, too. But there was a difference between Ballantyne's attitude and mine. I said nothing about the duration of my presence in the government. Charlie boldly announced that his cabinetship was a purely war measure, and that as soon as peace came in, he would go out. He has become an anchorage of the National - Liberal - Conservative party; and as he's minister of marine he'll stay with the ship as long as there's a ship to stay with. So will I."

"Because?"

"Because I have to," was the reply. "The bread of official carefulness is the staff of life to me."

"You spoke of Rowell's reluctance to join up with Borden, just now," I reminded him. "Is anybody preparing the inside story of the formation of the Union Government and the election of 1917?"

"I don't think so. Rowell told the Liberal conscriptionists' convention at Hamilton that history would say whether he did right in abandoning the provincial leadership for the federal cabinet. I'm not worrying about history myself. Sufficient for the day is the office thereof. Maybe Rowell has supplied some future historian with his contributions to the archives; but I doubt it. A humorous account of the whole affair could be given, though it wouldn't be the most appropriate thing to joke about what was really a mighty serious time."

"But suppose a light side of a heavy story?"

"Well, I think a good deal could be made of the strangely slow way in which a union war government got into action after it was once marshalled before a gaping world. We didn't have much sense of humor then; and maybe we haven't developed it since."

"You don't have to laugh at yourselves, any more," I hazarded. "Lots of other people are doing it for you."

"Maybe that's true, too," said the minister of militia, rather grimly. "But do you remember that though Calder and Carvell and Crerar—the three K's of the cabinet, as they were called—and Rowell, were sworn in about the twelfth of October, not a speech was made to the country by any of them, or by the Premier for over a month? There was an amusing, almost a silly, explanation of that. We formed a government to be superior to all considerations of party. But we didn't cease to be Liberals because we were Unionists—at least, not then, whatever may have happened since. It was thought our most urgent war duty was to the party whence we came. We owed it to our reputations to see that a fair number of Liberals came to Ottawa for Ontario seats. Rowell, particularly, had in hand the job of securing the adequate electoral harvest in view of the risks we had taken. He fought for 20 seats for several weeks, and was prepared to resign if he didn't get them. Jack Reid held the fort on the other side, with Borden a rather bewildered moderator between the two contentions. But for over a month we were silent before the country.

"Then there was the question of local action in the selection of the candidates. The Ontario Win-The-War people were active here, following their convention in August, the inside story of which you can perhaps get from somebody who knows more about it than I do. It was the Win-The-War people who really got Bob Rogers put out of the cabinet weeks before the union was formed.

"But another curious question arose, of which the public heard nothing from the newspapers. The government advised patriotic people everywhere to get together and select candidates on other than the old partisan bases, but we didn't do much publicly to get our advice taken. The Win-The-War organization was strong and busy on that side of things. They promoted conventions in accordance with their declared policy. But I ran into one of the strangest snags I ever saw, which showed that a peculiar kind of machine politics was working in that most patriotic, supposedly unmechanical organization."

"Do tell," I said, wondering greatly what was coming.

"It was thought that special pains should be taken to get Win-The-War candidates supported by people of both the old parties in constituencies where there was a strong German vote. South Bruce was one of the chief of these. I arranged to go to a convention at Walkerton to help unite patriotic men and women who had hitherto been politically opposed. But I was told to keep away, though it seemed to me that that was one of the best places in which the best work might be done.

"I learned afterwards why I had been warned away from Walkerton. The government had been induced to agree to endorse Reuben Truax, the sitting Liberal member. But he had avoided doing anything remarkable for the war, and the folks who had raised the Bruce Battalion and had done other special service for the war could not get his executive even to consider non-partisan joint action. They would no more have old Reuben for the win-the-war candidate than they would have had Bourassa. I happened to meet the man who had been sent to non-party meet the convention. He told me the South Bruce people had been told that Truax was to be endorsed by the government, and were furious about it. They had asked him to get a decision in favor of the Liberal whom the Tories had agreed to support.

"The truth was that Borden and Rowell had been advised to endorse Truax by the chief wire-puller of the win-the-war organization, though he was at the very time arranging for a speaker to attend the win-the-war convention, and he did not tell of what he had done. It would have been queer for a minister to speak at a convention and then the government to endorse a different candidate."

"I should think it would," I said. "Did you ever hear of such treachery before?"

"Yes, I did," answered the minister of militia, who has had electioneering experiences that he doesn't talk unwarily about. "I've heard of such treachery, but I never encountered the proof of it before."

"Did the win-the-war people learn how they had been treated?" I asked.

"I can't say for the general run of them," was the answer. "But Senator Donnelly, I understand, has a letter that sets out the facts. Anyway though the win-the-war organization had been sold from within their own camp, and Rowell and Borden had been deceived, Truax didn't finally get the Union endorsation. He won the election as Sir Wilfrid's candidate. I know what I have told you is true, but I guess the senator could tell the full details of this episode of union and win-the-war."

The reader will not take too literally the observations of leading men about themselves recorded by Mr. Longue Beau, but will understand that they are what the speakers would be likely to say confessionally.

"I have always known I was meant for great things."

BRUSHING UP ON LACROSSE RULES

REGULATIONS WILL MAKE THE GAME CLEAN UNDER COMPETENT REFEREE.

(From the Toronto Telegram.)

In view of the fact that increased attendances are shown at every lacrosse game and also because the majority of the lacrosse fans are not really conversant with the rules of the game, perhaps a few items out of the official O. A. L. A. rule book would not be amiss.

Perhaps it will help to enlighten a few players also who have not read the rules. Of course, it is not possible to cover all the rules, but under the heading, "A Player Shall Not," the book contains many of the important rulings and those that crop up most often. This will reach the attention of many fans and a perusal of the same will probably save the officials from much uncalled for abuse, especially from the section who deride many decisions, and who are, themselves, far from being familiar with the rules.

"Shall Not Do."

Here is the list of what a player shall not do:

1—Hold an opponent's lacrosse with his hands, arms, or between his legs, nor hold, strike or trip him with his lacrosse; run in front of him or interfere in any way to keep him from the ball until another player reaches it.

2—Hold, strike, or trip an opponent, or push him with the hand.

3—Wrestle with legs entwined, so as to throw an opponent.

4—Touch the ball with his hands, except the goaler who may bat the ball or heave it away, but may not throw it.

Cross Check Barred.

5—Throw his lacrosse at a player or at the ball under any circumstances.

6—Move from his position when 'time" is called until the ball is again faced.

7—Check the goalkeepr within the crease, nor go within the goal crease unless in possession of the ball.

8—Use the check commonly known as the "square" or "cross" check, which consists of one player charging into another with both hands on th lacrosse, so as to make the stick meet the body of his opponent.

Charging from Behind.

9—Jump at, or shoulder, an opponent from behind while running for or after reaching the ball.

10—Interfere in any way with another player who is in pursuit of an opponent.

11—Kneel, lie down, or drop, in front of the opponent when both are in pursuit of the ball.

12—Attempt to influence the decision of the umpire.

13—Use threatening, profane, or obscene language to any player, or to the officials, umpires, or captains at any time during the match.

14—Forcibly body check an opponent into a fence.

15—Charge into an opponent after he (opponent) has thrown the ball.

16—Wear spiked shoes. (Rubbers excepted.)

Striking on Head.

17—Persistently throw the ball out of bounds, lie on same, or in any way try to prolong the time of the game.

18—Check an opponent's lacrosse, or attempt to knock the same out of his hands in any way, unless both players are contending for the ball.

19—Any player striking another on the head, whether accidentally or otherwise, shall be ruled off for a period of ten minutes or more, and any player striking another with the butt end of the stick shall be ruled off for not less than fifteen minutes.

20—No player shall use what is known as the "jab" check, caused by players extending the end of the stick at arm's length into the body of an opponent.

BERGDOLL HIDING FIANCEE'S NAME.

BERLIN, June 18.—Grover Bergdoll sent the following message from Eberbach, Baden, yesterday.

"Because of personal reasons, I cannot divulge the identity of my fiancee or the date of the wedding, nor will I state her nationality. Suffice it to say that she is not from Eberbach nor vicinity. When the proper time comes I will give the details but I shall not reeval them until after her arrival in America."

The first intimation that the rich draft dodger intended to wed was contained in a telegram he sent to a Berlin friend Thursday.

He staed in his message that after his marriage, his wife would sue for restoration of his seized property in the United States.

REGINA WELCOMES NEWSPAPER PARTY

PRESIDENT OF C.P.R. WIRES TOURING EDITORS — ENTERTAINED IN SASKATCHEWAN CAPITAL

BROADVIEW, Sask., June 17.—Very hot weather greeted the representatives of the Canadian weekly newspapers association on arrival at Regina this morning, the Capital of Saskatchewan, when it was found that an interesting programme had been mapped out for the visitors.

The party was met at the station by Acting-Mayor England and representatives of the local press.

Nearly 50 automobiles were waiting to convey the delegates around the city, supplied by members of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs. They were shown the principal thoroughfares, and thence through the residential section subsequently visiting the nine Provincial Government Buildings, and also the headquarters of the world famous Royal Mounted Police, better known to the world as the Northwest Mounted Police. At the government buildings many of the visitors ventured the rather strenuous climb up the winding stairway to reach the tower, from which position a magnificent view of the city was obtained.

Returning to the banquet hall of the Trading Company the party were right royally entertained at lunch by the city of Regina and the Leader Publishing Co., this being the first occasion during their trip that any individual newspaper had invited the boys to lunch.

Mr. Burford Hooke of the Leader Publishing Co., presided, and was supported by Deputy Mayor Ald. F. D. England, Hon. S. J. Latta, Minister of Education, Ald. J. K. McInnes, and Supt. Worseey of the R. C. M. P. The chairman extended a very cordial welcome to the newspaper men from the east, and said that he thought he would have to change the daily into weekly so that instead of spending so much money, he would be able to make money for the directors and the shareholders. He had heard nasty rumors as to why the convention was held in Vancouver but seeing they had their chaplain with them he was sure that there was no ground for them. He hoped however they would come back and see more of the west.

The Hon. S. J. Latta said he had already extended a welcome to the party at Saskatoon and expressed a hope that the weekly newspapers, with their great powers, would endeavour to weld more than ever the east and the west. The Press Association was a big power in the land, and there was no other that could do so much for this great country. He wished them every success.

Mr. A. R. Brennan of Summerside, P.E.I., made a suitable reply in the temporary absence of Mr. Davies, the president.

Mr. Roy Carmichael of the Verdun Echo, Montreal, created much merriment in proposing a toast to the city and the Leader for the hospitality, when he emphasized that Quebec was the province of freedom. In Quebec they had free air, but at the same time he had to congratulate the west on its prosperity, and especially Regina, where he said he had noticed the erection of more new buildings and others in progress than in any other portion west of Winnipeg. He congratulated the city on its really fine buildings, and returned sincere and hearty thanks for the splendid hospitality extended to the weekly newspapers.

Mr. J. G. Keefer of the Norwood Register, also paid a high compliment to the west and the C. P. R. Rockies. They were beautiful beyond description. They had all been impressed with the marvellous growth of the great centres during the past few years, but what was needed most for the upbuilding of this country was the right sort of population and he looked for a stream of immigation in the near future.

After the vote of thanks had been replied to Mr. W. R. Davies, the president, read the following telegram he had received from Mr. E. W. Beatty, the president of the C. P. R. "Will you please to all the members of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association the pleasure of the Canadian Pacific in having them as guests, a visit to other scenes such as your journey to the prairies, the Pacific Coast, and the Rocky Mountains, cannot but be beneficial to yourselves and those you visit. For there is nothing more needed in a big and diversified country like Canada than an interchange of opinion between all its parts. The weekly newspaper is one of the most potent forces in building up a successful community, and it can be best achieved by educating its readers in their responsibility to the wider Canada beyond the town limits. I trust that the remainder of your trip will be as successful as the first part of your journey."

"Outside the Law," Priscilla Dean's first production since "The Virgin of Stamboul,' and said to outrival any of her former photodramas in the quality of the story and excellence of execution, is announced for Monday at the Allen Theatre. "Outside the Law" was written and directed by Todd Browning, from a scenario by Luciene Hubbard and presented by an all star cast, chief among Miss Dean's support being Lon Chaney, Wheeler Oakman, Ralph Lewis and E. A. Warren.

PRISCILA DEAN THE SCREEN'S FEMALE RAFFFLES

Priscilla Dean is one of the few distinct personalities of the screen, The mouthly crop of feature releases reveals a hundred feminine roles in which the movie-goer can imagine any one of a hundred different players with equal effect. But occasionally along comes a unique character creation, which will acuse the spectator to exclaim, "that's a Priscilla Dean part."

Big, compelling stories, revolving about a dominating feminine character, are not written every day. The hackneyed plots and tales written according to formula are not worthy the skill of a real artist. That is why Priscilla Dean does not average more than two photoplays a year. Universal must pick and choose her vehicles—not because she is hard to suit, but because it is desirous of providing her with roles worthy of her artistry. Thousands of feminine players can portray the sweet young things, the typical vampires and the rubber-stamp crooks. Priscilla Dean must be given a character out of the ordinary—one requiring real acting and artistic delineation.

Priscilla Dean was practically born on the stage. Her mother, May Preston Dean, was a popular leading woman and will be remembered as one of the original players of "Madame X," when it was produced on the stage by Henry W. Savage. When Miss Dean was four years old, she was playing with such stage stars as James W. Hearne and Joseph Jefferson. At the age of twelve she had portrayed many of Shakespeare's heroines, touring the country with Ben Greet Players. When she was fourteen she had added singing and dancing to her list of accomplishments and was being featured at the Follies Bergere, in New York.

"The Virgin of Stamboul," was Priscilla Dean's biggest success until her present production. "Outside the Law," written and directed by Tod Browning and due at the Allen Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

AT THE CAPITOL.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Capitol Offers a Remarkable Picture and Vaudeville Programme Monday—the Mona Silver Troupe —a Remarkable 5 People, Singing Dancing and Musical Act. Just Off the Big Time Circuits.

Mary Pickford's latest United Artists production, "The Love Light," which will be seen at the Capitol Theatre on Monday night, is an entirely different story and an absolutely new characterization than anything in which the World's Sweetheart has heretofore appeared.

Ever since Mary Pickford has had her own producing organization and could dictate as to the type of photoplay in which she was to appear, she has adapted the policy of never adhering entirely to one line of parts, not only because she believes that the public like variety, but because she believes the different lines of characters tend to increase her ability as an artist.

Those who saw her recent comedies will certainly enjoy her in her forthcoming production which was written and directed by Frances Marion, who has been acclaimed the leading scenario writer of the country and bids fair to standing at the head of the list of directoresses.

"The Love Light" has unusual interest owing to the fact that the idea was worked out while Miss Pickford was on her honeymoon. She met Frances Marion in Italy, also on her honeymoon, and the two worked out the story sitting on a high rock overlooking the Adriatic and it was in Italy they secured many of the properties and several of the players who support Miss Pickford. The players and properties were brought all the way from southern Europe to California where the Italian settings were minutely reproduced from photographs taken by the two.

Miss Pickford has appeared in comedy-dramas but never in an emotional drama of the type of "The Love Light," and it was only after careful study and deliberate consideration that she felt herself equal to the tremendous role she plays in this story.

Those who have seen the production say that Mary Pickford rises to histrionic artistic effects which a screen artist has never before attempted, but in all this, in the clever characterization of an Italian girl, she is still the beautiful Mary whom we love so much.

Miss Pickford has surrounded herself with a splendid cast, which includes such artists as Jean De Briac, for several years leading man to Sarah Bernhardt, Raymond Bloomer, Edward Phillips, Albert Prescott, Evelyn Dumo who played with Miss Pickford in "Little Peppina," but who had returned to Italy to play important roles in an Italian company, and Georges Rigas.

The photography was done by Charles Rosher who was also responsible for the photographic effects in "Suds," "Pollyanna" and several other recent productions of Miss Pickford.

Besides this big programme, Harold Lloyd, the million dollar comedian in his two-reel fun riot, 'In Again Out Again,' the Mona Silver Troupe, a 5-people act, that gave a remarkable musical, singing and dancing show, playing a variety of musical instruments; a wonderful boy piano player and remarkable boy violinist and one of the cleverest girl dancers in vaudeville. Certainly a great show. Fan Fan.

LOUISE GLAUM "RHENOMENON" NOW A REALITY

In One Short Year New Star in Cinema Heavens Takes Premiere Place.

A year ago, when J. Parker Read, Jr., produced "Sahara," with Louise Glaum as his star, experts in the motion picture industry viewed with extreme interest this debut of producer and the introduction of Miss Glaum as a J. Parker Read, Jr. star.

"She has found the ideal producer, said the wise ones.

"He has found his ideal star," said others.

The so-called Louise Glaum phenomenon has astounded the entire motion picture world.

Sweeping the country, Louise Glaum appeared, successively, in "Sahara," "The Lone Wolf's Daughter" and "Sex." In 'Sex" she showed she was a past mistressof her art—a supreme emotional actress. Incidentally she showed a remarkable versatility which developed in "The Leopard Woman."

In "Love," which is to make its local bow at the Regent Theatre for three days, beginning Monday, the Louise Glaum phenomenon becomes a reality.

The critics have acclaimed it; the public has welcomed it.

The public loves Louise Glaum, for two reasons:

She is a great actress.

She is essentially a human being

And more, she is first, last and all the time, that which the world most admires—a worker.

Louise Glaum is first of her company to be on the "set" in the morning. She seems to be more interested in the details of producing her pictures than any other individual, perhaps excepting Producer Read and Director Wesley Ruggles, who, in 'Love" has completed his second Louise Glaum production for Associated Producers.

And the remarkable character delineation in "Sex" and the sister love theme which runs like a beautiful thread through the story of "Love", show Louise Glaum as a tender artiste who knows better than any one else how to express the emotions that reach most deeply into the hearts of men, women and children.

Louise Glaum was a discovery—but not the discovery of a particular producer, distributor or showman.

Louise Glaum was the discovery of her public, which is still discovering new qualities in her work and her personality to love and admire.

Be sure and see "Love' at the Regent on Monday, or as soon after as you can.

Louise Glaum will be a revelation to those who have missed her recent work. She will be a great satisfaction to the thousands who have watched the Louise Glaum phenomenon develop to the point where they will say:

"We told you so."

One of the finest qualities the public has noted in Miss Glaum is her great generosity in the matter of her supporting casts.

"Close-up" are not peculiar to Louise Glaum in her productions. She abhors the centre of the stage when it is not hers, logically and dramatically. And so, in "Love", the public will see James Kirkwood as leading man and that splendid actor Joseph Kilgour, and Laura La Plante in the cast.

U.S. VICTORS IN FIRST POLO GAME

FAMOUS C.P.R. FARM VISITED BY EDITORS

RECEIVED ROUSING RECEPTION AT STRATHMORE YESTERDAY.

REGINA, Sask., June 18.—Every automobile and every man, woman and child in Strathmore turned out last evening to receive the members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association who visited Calgary yesterday in the course of their return journey from Vancouver, where the annual convention was held. As the special train on which the editors and their wives were travelling drew into the station, Strathmore Town Band greeted them with lively music and a bevy of pretty girls distributed sandwiches, which many of the party were heard to declare were the best they had eaten on the trip. The school children of the little town sang "Oh, Canada," and were heartily cheered by the visitors.

Frank Butler, the Mayor of the place, made the strangers welcome, and they were immediately loaded into automobiles and driven to the Strathmore Farm, that great agricultural undertaking from which the C. P. R. supplies its hotels, diners, etc., west of Winnipeg with milk, cream, butter and eggs.

Here, under the guidance of Professor Hutton, who has charge of the agricultural side, R. S. Stockton, Superintendent of the engineering side, and Gilbert Hastings Patrick, Canal Superintendent, they were shown their irrigation system, which is producing such wonderful crops of alfalfa—in fact, every grain grown in temperate zones, and which resulted last summer in one of the fields yielding 27 bushels to the acre at 47 lbs. to the bushel. The greatest Holstein herd in America was duly admired by the newspaper party, who heard with awe Prof. Hutton debate on its great record. Many of the weekly editors are poultry experts and they were delighted with the big chicken runs in which the Red Rock and Black Minorcas lay so consistently that the egg are gathered in clothes baskets and barrels. Refreshing glasses of Holstein milk were served to the visitors, who returned to the train impressed not only with the wonderful results obtained by the C.P.R. in this formerly arid area, but also by the warm, open-hearted hospitality of the West, which lasted right up to the parting cheer as the train pulled out of the platform to the music of the band which welcomed it. Strathmore's greeting was a live one and the editors will not forget it.

YOUNG PRAIRIE DOGS BURY FATHERS ALIVE

NEW YORK, June 18.— Excitement prevailed in the prairie dog colony at the Bronx Zoo. It came about through a peculiar kink in the disposition of prairie dogs. When a baby prairie dog becomes a strong young buck he feels morally bound to kill his doddering old daddy. Among the old fellows there is no fatherly pride in the growth of their children.

Last year the old men took control of the situation. Strangely enough there was not a single little prairie dog born. This year there was a traitor in the gang. Forty youngsters were born in one week.

The fathers saw their doom. With despondent whiskers dragging the ground they slunk about, fearfully avoiding the younger element. They put their heads together and determined to seek another home.

In the night eight of them started tunelling. They dug down below the iron grating, which surrounded their home. They went below the concrete into which the grating was sunk —a feature never before accomplished at the zoo. When the job was finished, the eight scampered 200 yards from home and dug in. They made the fatal mistake of not stopping up the tunnel through which they had escaped. The youngsters tracked them to their lair. According to spectators they carted earth to the new holes and sealed their fathers in graves they themselves had dug. After packing the earth with their heads they waited around to see that it was not disturbed. Sure that the job was done they went back to the prairie dog colony.

BASEBALL LINK WITH JAPAN.

TOKIO, June 18.—Baseball, which has become Japan's national sport and is being played by youths of all ages, was the occasion of a manifestation of Japanese-American friendship here last night when Japanese alumni of the University of California gave a dinner in honor of the Californian baseball team, which has been playing a series of games in this city.

The series, which was played against the team representing Keio University, ended in a victory for the Japanese College, which won the third game by a score of 6 to 5, the first two having resulted in a division of honors.

Bunshiro Ito, an alumnus of the University of California, paid a tribute to that institution's welcome to all students, irrespective of race, and voiced Japan's appreciation of what America has done for the education of Japanese. He asked the American athletes to take home a message of good-will.

"All Japanese love peace," he said, "and never will dare to dream of fighting America. Japan and America may be rivals in trade and commerce, but there is not reason why they cannot be friendly if they divide the apple in a kindly spirit. There is no apple of discord. If some people say there may be trouble, tell them we want to settle it by a baseball game."

The Captain of the California team expressed the appreciation of himself and his comrades over the hospitality and kindliness shown the Americans, urging that Japanese and American teams continue their games, and thus promote a mutual understanding. He said he was surprised at the brand of baseball played by the Japanese and that it compared favorably with work of teams of many American universities.

Last year's champions will be here in full force on Saturday with the exception of "Hap" Harrison, who unfortunately is confined to bed with blood poisoning and will be out of the game for three weeks. Harrison is conceded to be the best first baseman in the C.O.B.A. and his loss will be greatly felt by the Petes. Oshawa fans will also miss him at the initial corner because of his usual brilliant performances.—Oshawa Reformer.

BANKERS WIN THE FIRST SECTION OF JUVENILE LEAGUE

BEAT ST. PETER'S 5 TO 4 IN AN EXTRA INNINGS GAME LAST NIGHT AND CINCH TITLE FOR THE FIRST HALF OF SCHEDULE.

By defeating St. Peter's School by 5 runs to 4, at the Riverside Park, last night, in an exciting struggle that required an extra session to nominate the winners, Louis Yeotes' Bankers cinched the championship of the first half of the City Juvenile League schedule. Had St. Peter's won there would have been a general tie-up and they came very close to winning, too.

It was a pitchers' battle between Lefty Turner for the Bankers, and Sheehy, the good right hander of the school outfit. Sheehy had one more strike out, whiffing eleven to ten by Turner, but the latter allowed only three hits, where the Bankers collected seven off Sheehy. Misplays played a great part in the battle and both pitchers suffered from their team mates' errors. At that there was a lot of nice fielding, and the game was a good one.

The Bankers opened the scoring in the second. Wilgar opened with a single to right but was forced when McDonough dropped Pogue's fly, but tossed to second in time to get Wilgar. Pogue stole second and went round to third, when Collins' throw went to centre field. Scullie's error on Jack Hardill's tap to third sent the run in. Hall faced Hardill at second on a grounder to McDonough to McDonough, and after Bradshaw drew a pass Turner whiffed.

The winners made it 2 to 0 in the fifth. Turner singled to centre, and McLean hit safely through short. D. Johnston flied to Holland. Turner started to steal third and scored when Scullie lost Collins' throw in the sun. Jeff Hardill was tossed out by Sheehy and Wilgar flied to centre.

For the first five innings Turner did not allow a hit or a run but in the sixth his team mates fell down and St. Peter's took the lead. There was one out when the southpaw started the trouble by passing McDonough. D. Johnston mussed up N. Collins' grounder and everybody was safe. Sheehy boosted his own game by singling to left. It was the first hit off Turner and McDonough cavorted on the play, Collins going to third; Wilgar threw low to third in an attempt to nip Collins off the bag, and the St. Peter's second baseman carried the tieing run over. Then L. Collins rolled to Pogue who fumbled giving the batter a life while Sheehy registered. Turner stopped further trouble by fanning Holland and getting Clancy on a tap to McLean.

The Bankers were blanked in their half of the sixth, and in the seventh St. Peter's shot another run over. Wolfe started with a single to right and went to second on Turner's balk. Killoran fanned but Scullie came through with a single, scoring Wolfe, McDonough forced Scullie. Pogue to McLean and N. Collins rolled to Turner.

The Bankers forced a two run deficit when they began what should have been their final innings. Turner was safe on Scullie's miss, stole second and went to third on McLean's infield out. A wild pitch scored him. Jeff Hardill rolled to N. Collins. D. Johnston was safe on Scullie's miss and advanced to second when Sheehy made a balk. Wilgar's pop fly went for a hit when McDonough failed to run in for the catch and Johnston scored from second with the tieing run. Pogue struck out.

In the extra session the St. Peter's team went out in order and it was up to the Bankers. Jack Hardill gave them a start by beating out a hit to short and then stole second and third while Hare was fanning. E. Johnston's roller to short sent the winning run over. Hardill easily beat McDonough's throw to the plate.

HOW RUTH GOT SWEET REVENGE ON TY COBB

(By W. S. FARNSWORTH.)

NEW YORK, June 18.—This is the story of Babe Ruth's revenge!

To even up accounts with Ty Cobb, who had rubbed his fur the wrong way on Sunday, the Babe got special permission to-day to go into the pitcher's box against the slugging Detroit team, so he could work out his grudge. And he played a grudge game in every way.

This is what the Babe did:

He struck Cobb out.

He made two home runs.

May Be Longest Hit In History.

He drove one of these hits into the centre field bleachers and thus made a record, which, it is said, has never been equalled before in the history of baseball. The ball landed 460 feet from the home plate.

For the special benefit of that lonesome Laplander or other benighted foreigner who may have floated into town from some end of the world where they don't know about our Babe, it must be explained that Babe Ruth, in addition to being the greatest batter of his day, is now an outfielder and not a pitcher.

With one exception, this is the first game the Babe has pitched since he was a much younger baseball player.

Sunday, it will be recalled, the great Bambino, the idol of New York baseball fans, was publicly flouted and humiliated before 30,000 of his admirers. Tyrus Cobb, the bristling and tantalizing Georgia peach, whom Ruth had toppled from the pinnacle of baseball fame, was the tormentor of the ponderous Babe.

In no uncertain terms and in effective pantomime the sprightly Tyrus derided the contour of Bambino's piquant nose and the rather too bulky waistline that encircles the fame of Ruth.

Violent onslaught upon the offending Cobb was prevented by cooler heads. The Babe brooded and suffered throughout the night in his hotel suite. But when the dawn came his blind fury had changed to deadly purpose. He had planned his revenge.

The first man in the Yank clubhouse to-day was Babe Ruth. He rushed to Manager Miller Huggins.

"Let me pitch against Detroit," was his sudden and surprising plea to Manager Huggins, to which he added:

Aims To Show Cobb Up.

"You may not think I'm in pitching shape, but I am. And I want to whip Ty Cobb and his Detroit bunch. I want to show Cobb up."

Babe's intense earnestness and boyish pleading carried the day. When to-day's game was called the fans were electrified into frenzied shouting when the name of Ruth, the outfielder, was called as Yank pitcher. Thus the Babe began working out his scheme of deadly revenge.

And when the day was over the volatile Cobb was not so volatile. He seemed crushed and his shoulders slumped perceptibly. The spotlight rays had passed from him to Ruth once more and he was in darkness. Also, he was left prostrate in the dust of the Babe's hefty heels.

Some old-time fans declare the home-run hit into the centre field bleachers is the longest ever made in the history of organized baseball.

And as the Babe romped across second homeward he paused to send a shrill and mocking laugh out to lonely and desolate Cobb.

The Tarzan had worked his revenge.

Broke Terrible Ty's Streak.

But that blow, although history-making, was merely part of the Babe's sinister vengeance. Although taken from the box, he gets credit for defeating the Tigers. He made another home run in the third inning, that blow going to the upper right field stands. And he broke Cobb's batting streak, striking out Terrible Ty in one inning with two Tigers on base. The first time he faced Ruth, Cobb walked, and the only other time he flied to centre.

The Babe went to sleep more composedly to-night than on Sunday.

PORTABLE STEEL RING FOR THE BIG FIGHT

NEW YORK, June 18.—A portable ring of steel construction will be used for the Dempsey-Carpentier battle in Jersey City on July 2. A working model has received official acceptance and the work of installing a full-sized ring in the centre of the arena will be started within the next few days.

The ring will measure eighteen feet square inside the ropes and will have a two-foot extension on all four sides. It will have three ropes, heavily wrapped with soft material, at intervals of one and a half feet from the floor. The flooring will be of the best oak boards, strongly reinforced, and will be covered with a felt padding an inch or more in thickness. This padding will in turn be covered with a tightly stretched canvas.

Attached to the post in each boxer's corner by long swinging arms will be a backless and legless stool. These seats will be swung into the ring at the end of a round and at the bell for the beginning of the succeeding round swung out of the ring again. A hinge in the arm will permit the seat being dropped below the floor level during the periods of boxing. Portable folding steps will be used to permit the boxers' seconds to enter and leave the ring.

KEEPING MILK SWEET AND PURE IN SUMMER

The warm weather care of milk is one that affects every householder. It is of extreme importance to the mothers of babies or small children. Milk kept at 57 degrees Fahrenheit will keep sweet twice as long as milk allowed to reach the not uncommon milk temperature of 75 degrees Fahrenheit. Milk kept at 40 degrees will keep five times as long as milk at 75 degrees. Milk allowed to become warm or contaminated will become changed just as any other food will be changed when not properly cared for.
The Peterborough Milk Products Company have long realized the necessity for cooling milk, and keeping it cool until it is delivered to the consumer. To do this has required expensive cooling apparatus, quick transportation and painstaking care at every step in the handling of the milk. Assuming that the housewife is obtaining her milk from our modern pasteurizing and sanitary creamery she may feel assured that it will remain sweet and unchanged for a reasonable length of time providing that certain fundamental provisions are carried out.
After the bottle has been opened, which should be done in a cleanly manner with a clean, sharp instrument, it may be kept free from contamination by inverting a clean tumbler over its mouth, providing, of course, that it is kept where it will not absorb odors from other foods, etc.
Milk must be kept cool. Ice is of course necessary in warm weather if milk is to be kept in the best condition for the maximum period. Where it is not available, the careful housewife should make certain that the bottle is not exposed to the sun and dust after delivery, and at the very first opportunity should wrap it in a damp cloth and place it in a crock containing a small amount of water. While this is not the ideal way to keep milk, it will assist materially whenever ice is difficult to obtain. A clean odorless refrigerator is the ideal place for milk.
It is purely because our milk is shown to be a Health Promoter and Disease Preventer, that it is so largely used in the city to-day.

A WRONG INTERPRETATION OF RULE ASSERTS "GUIDE"

PORT HOPE PAPER REFERS TO UMPIRE HENDERSON'S DECISION ON WEDNESDAY—MISTAKE WAS NOT INTENTIONAL, DECLARES "SANDY."

The Port Hope Guide says: Everybody was doing it so why not Port Hope? Lindsay beat Peterborough and not wishing to take a back seat to our Lindsay friends we took a fall out of the Solomonites as well. The battle was staked at the Town Park yesterday afternoon and a large crowd was in attendance. The exhibition was one of the best ever witnessed on the local grounds and there was little to choose between the two teams. Port Hope played errorless ball, accepting every chance without a fumble. Both the infield and outfield played an air tight game but the Port Hope team were very weak at the bat. Time and time again a single would have given them a couple of counters but they were unable to come through with it. Of course it looks easy from the side benches, but to the majority of the spectators the offerings of the Peterborough slab artist should have been clouted all over the lot.

Peterborough scored one run in the first innings and Port Hope tied it up in their half. The locals went ahead in the second when they scored again and the battle went merrily along until the seventh, when Peterborough tied it up. By a couple of safe bingos and a stolen base Port Hope went in front again in the eighth innings.

The visitors tried hard to even it up in the ninth. Rose, the first man up, struck out. Manager Solomon sent McElroy in to bat for McCarney but he also retired via the strike-out rout. Then came Cherrett, always a worry to the pitcher and what young Cherrett would be able to accomplish would have much to do with the result. The first one was a ball, the next one was a foul, making one strike and one ball; the third one made strike two, and the fourth one he met fair on the nose and it sailed out to deep centre. But that fleet-footed Fair sailed along after it and just as he reached to pull it down he got mixed up in some loose grass and fell. But Reg. came up smiling, holding the ball in his right hand and the old game was over and the locals were the winners by a 3 to 2 score.

An unfortunate dispute occurred in the seventh innings when Cherrett was called out at second because he failed to return to the bag after a foul ball had been hit. It would appear however, that the rule was misinterpreted not intentionally, we are sure. It is only one of the misinterpretations that have been made during the baseball season and nearly every umpire who has officiated has been guilty. Umpires are not infallible and it is quite unfair to place them under a severe criticism just because they happen to make an error. A lot of people who are ready to criticise would make a far worse job of it than the official who is willing to give his services. We recall when the great baseball authority of this section, Jake Solomon, was chased from the field for decisions while umpiring a game in Toronto. The case in point yesterday was of the runner returning to the base after the batter had hit a foul ball. Spalding's official Guide gives the following ruling:

Runners are on first base and second base. The batter hits a foul ball. The runners, who have advanced to within a few feet of the succeeding bases, start to return to the bases which they originally held. Before they are able to get back to them the pitcher delivers the ball to the batter. The runners turn again and go to the succeeding bases. The catcher throws the ball to the pitcher, who throws it to third base, and the third baseman throws it to second base. The Umpire called the runners out. Were the runners out?

No. The pitcher, by delivering the ball to the batter, put it in play, and when the ball was in play the runners had the right to make the best they could of the situation which had been forced upon them. The pitcher should have given the runners opportunity to get back to first base, but when he did not do so and pitched the ball, he was doubly at fault.

LACROSSE NOTES

Johnny Sutherland reports a bank account of $40 to say nothing of a string of juniors who are just about fit for their first game here next Thursday. The line of credit is not as comfortable as it might be, but the manager of the juniors is highly pleased with the way things are turning up. He touched Rev. C. J. Phelan for $10 yesterday while getting a birth certificate for one of the youngsters, and the Albion Knitting Company are knocking $6 off the price of the team's sweaters, which are being done in green and white.

Sutherland says the juniors gave Jim Skinner's intermediates a real argument when they practice together, and as for condition they are reported to be ready right now for the first game. The old lacrosse fans and other citizens who are not familiar with the game are advised to watch the juniors. They are fast and willing, and they have developed the art of stick-handling so quickly that Todd, McCoy and other old-timers have been agreeably surprised. The juniors don't have to be coaxed out to practice, but are working hard for a place on the team. In fact Johnny Sutherland is getting anxious as to how he can give them all a chance and at the same time trot out has strongest line-up. The out-of-town games will be with Hastings and Campbellford, affording the juniors convenient train connections.

HYDRO MAN BURNED TO A CRISP

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 17.—Robert Anderson, aged 29, was instantly killed and his body burned to a crisp this morning at the Montrose sub-station on the Hydro. He was at work on a big switch and received 12,000 volts through him. He is married.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(Canadian Press).—Rallies of one to two points in leading oils, based on the more favorable aspects of that industry in Mexico, featured to-day's early dealings in the Stock Market. Mexican Petroleum soon rose two points and associated issues were higher by fractions to 1½ points. Crucible Steel, Studebaker and American Tobacco also made substantial gains. Rails and equipments were heavy, however, New Haven falling to a new low for the year on extensive offerings. Chesapeake and Ohio, New York Air Brake, American Locomotive, Harvester and Chandler averaged one point declines.

Great Oil Shipment May Affect Prices.

MONTREAL, June 18.—(Special Despatch to the Examiner).—Loaded with two and quarter million gallons of gasoline the San Ungo, is on her way to Montreal and when she docks here considerable activity is expected in oil circles. The vessel was reported as having left Sorel shortly after seven o'clock this morning and is due to dock here before noon.

The San Ungo's cargo is more than enough to supply the needs of Montreal auto owners for a year. But in another way it would drive an ordinary car about two thousand times around the world.

The vessel is one of a one hundred and forty seven chartered by the Shell Company of England and is consigned to the Shell Company of Canada here. The oil comes from the fields at Baku which have been the source of debate in United States oil circles for some time by reason of Great Britain's activity there. It is understood to be of a particularly high grade.

Harbor Officials are used to having all sorts of cargoes come into here, but they are taking unusual precautions with the San Ungo to prevent the possibility of danger here. The captain had been instructed to dock at a pier about two and a half miles down the river from the other vessels in port.

Men in the trade are not prepared to state what effect so large a consignment will have on the local market although all expect there will be a drop. How great they would not say.

Two New York officials of the company are in town to make arrangements for the unloading and disposal of the gas. The San Ungo they state will be followed by another vessel in a few weeks' time.

Speaker Rhodes Heads Nickel Firm

OTTAWA, June 18. — Special despatch to the Examiner). — The task of directing a big war enterprise into peace channels has been entrusted it is understood, to Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, president and managing director of the British American Nickel Corporation. The British-American has valuable properties at Nickelton near Sudbury and a big refinery on the Ottawa river just above the capital. Some month ago the mines were shut down throwing hundreds of men out of work owing to the cessation of a demand for nickel which has been so much in demand during the war. When the great conflict started in 1914 Canada's vast nickel deposits were largely controlled by the United States and Foreign interests Britain at once commenced to secure a number of properties to ensure a supply of nickel for armaments, and the British Government, associated with Norwegian interests, for the control of British American plant at Sudbury in which large sums of money were invested. The industry was just getting well estabished when the war ended and the bottom dropped ou of the market for nickel.

The task of Mr. Speaker Rhodes is to recognize the company and create a peace time demand for its production. British and Norwegian interests are still heavily interested. One of the Canadian directors is Mr. Fred Booth of Ottawa.

The plan of operations as decided upon some time ago involved the resumption of under ground work for the development of ore, while the smelter was to remain closed for some time longer. The mine was at no time very far ahead of the smelter and it was thought advisable to get a good supply of broken ore in the mine and on the bumps in anticipation of the re-opening of the smelter which depends on the hoped for improvement in the nickel market.

Acceptance by Mr. Rhodes o the presidency of the Nickel Cooperation does not involve his resignation as speaker of the house. There is no law in Canada which prohibits the speakers of our legislatures from taking an active part in private companies.

PACKED THE STORE

FASHION SHOP VACATING SALE A HUMMER.

The ladies were largely represented to-day at Fashion Shop's "Clean Sweep Sale," 440 George Street. And no wonder, for those who know the value of summer women's wear, and read the extraordinary inducements in the cut in prices advertised, could not fail to be attracted to the sale. Women's dresses and suits, coats, skirts, waists and corsets sold to-day at less than half their value. The store was packed, and the interest shown in the sale is sure to draw increased crowds while it lasts. The store is to rent; the fixtures are for sale; and everything has their marching orders. To-night will likely bring another jam at 440 George Street.

Do You Suffer From Neuralgia?

Neuralgia, as the name indicates, is a pain in the nerve. It is really an inflammation of the sheath enclosing the nerve and is due to a pressure on the nerve as it leaves the spine. Experience shows that Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments given at these points relieve the impinged (pinched) nerve and give relief.

HEALTH CONDITIONS

The tree first blossoms, then it bears fruit. A perfect tree will, under normal conditions, produce perfect fruit. If under such conditions the fruit matures imperfectly, it is due to some outside agent. Should one injure the tree when the fruit is developing, the effect will be on the ripening process and will show in dwarfed and withered fruit.

In man, health is the normal condition. Where there is less than perfect health the source of health has been interfered with. The source of man's health is his nerves, as over the nerves the life principle courses. To impinge the nerve interferes with the source of health to the part it supplies. Chiropractic adjustments have the effect of releasing the pressure on the nerve, which is the cause of ill-health. To release such nerve pressure affords health conditions. As Chiropractic adjustments go directly to the cause of ill-health and result in restoration of normal condition to nerve structure, their value is clear and cannot be disputed.

MINERS' LATEST AND DESPERATE STEPS DOOMED

ATTEMPT TO INVOLVE 5,000,000 WORKERS IN GENERAL STRIKE CERTAIN TO FAIL, IT IS THOUGHT.

LITTLE SYMPATHY TO PROPOSITION SHOWN

LNDON, June 20. — (Canadian Press.) — The magnitude of the struggle which the leaders of the British miners are seeking to bring about may be judged by the computation that the membership of the unions which they hope to immediately involve, numbers nearly five million workers. Invitations are being sent to unions of all the organizations threatened with wage reductions to attend a meeting in London next week to consider the general strike proposition of the miners.

All public comment declares that the miners' move is absurd and foredoomed to failure.

Some labor leaders admit that the miners' policy is one of sheer desperation to compel nationalization and as the unions now negotiating or balloting on proposals for wage reductions have suffered much through the coal strike, it is hardly probable that they will be sympathetic to a continuance or enlargement of the dispute.

LIBERALS AND LABOR STAY OUT OF BATTLE OUT IN MEDICINE HAT

AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGNS BEING CONDUCTED BY GOVERNMENT AND FARMERS.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., June 18. —(Canadian Press).—In the huge federal constituency of Medicine Hat, which measures 192 miles by 77 miles, an important by-election is being contested by Col. Nelson Spencer, candidate of the National Liberal and Conservative party, and Robt. Gardiner, candidate of the United Farmers of Alberta. Polling is on June 27. It is estimated that there are about 15,000 voters in the constituency, of whom about one-third are in Medicine Hat City, and the population is somewhat cosmopolitan, with a considerable number of Scandinavians and Russo-Germans.

There is a good deal of speculation concerning the outcome, and both candidates are confident of success. The Liberal and Labor parties are not putting representatives in the field. The candidates are carrying on energetic campaigns, addressing public meetings and building up organizations as complete as is possible under the circumstances.

LINDSAY BANKER PASSES SUDDENLY

PETER KENNEDY WAS FORMERLY TOWN TREASURER,

LINDSAY, June 20.— (Canadian Press.)—A sudden death took place here this morning, when Peter Kennedy, manager of the Home Bank, passed away. He had been suffering for months, but was able to keep at office work, and Sunday attended St. Mary's Catholic church as usual. He was a son of the late J. Kennedy, a broker of Lindsay, and for a time was treasurer of the town. He was an enthusiastic curler, and at one time a champion tennis player. He was manager of the Home Bank since 1912, and was for years treasurer of the township of Ops.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

B. Stacey: What Peterborough most needs at the present time is Strong Men and Women (Leaders) who are "Bold enough to be Brave" and "Brave enough to be Bold"; who are willing to bury their selfish propensities; who are anxious to devote their surplus energies in directing and guiding, by example, persuasion, and precept, the thoughts of the people in the channels of unselfishness and stability.

What an effect the lives of a score of such would have in the upbuilding of our city in all its phases!

Important Changes in Catholic Diocese of Peterboro Announced

CHARGE OF PARISH OF LINDSAY GIVEN TO REV. FATHER WHIBBS, CAMPBELLFORD, WHO IS SUCCEEDED BY REV. C. J. PHELAN.

REV. FATHER COSTELLO NOW FIRST ASSISTANT

Some important diocesan changes were announced at the Cathedral yesterday by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. The charge of the parish of Lindsay, left vacant by the death of the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Casey, will be given to Rev. Father Whibbs of Campbellford, and Rev. C. J. Phelan, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, will go to Campbellford.

Rev. Father Whibbs, who was born in Douro, has been pastor of the parish of Campbellford for nearly seventeen years. He is a most devoted and highly educated priest, speaking Spanish and Italian fluently, and has done a great deal towards the advance of education in his district. Three new school sections and two schools have been opened, a third school is in process of construction and will be opened in September next, and the old Callahan property has been purchased, to be used as a convent for the sisters of St. Joseph. Last summer extensive improvements were made to the church in Campbellford, and, building upon the foundations of his predecessors, Father Whibbs has made this one of the most important parishes in the diocese of Peterborough.

Rev. C. J. Phelan, who was born in Peterborough, spent some time as a curate in North Bay and in Lindsay, was parish priest at Young's Point and Lakefield, has been for the past six years rector of St. Peter's Cathedral here. He is well known and liked throughout all parts of the city and by all classes, and, as Bishop O'Brien remarked yesterday morning, "his zeal, charity and devotion to duty have been manifested in every department of his priestly work, and he has done a great deal to promote the spirit of good-will and charity in the community." Although His Lordship regretted the departure of Father Phelan from the Cathedral, he was pleased to be able to offer so important a parish to so faithful a priest as Father Phelan.

His Lordship will himself assume the rectorship of the Cathedral, with Rev. P. Costello as first assistant priest. Father Costello has been attached to the Cathedral for nearly two years. Prior to that, he was for three years overseas as chaplain with the Canadian forces. He is a graduate of Toronto University where he obtained his B.A., later receiving the degree of M.A. at the Catholic University of Washington.

MERRITTON TIED WITH OTTAWA

CONQUERORS OF C.G.E. DRAW ONTARIO CUP SEMI-FINALS.

ST CATHARINES, Ont., June 20. —Thirty minutes overtime failed to decide the Ontario Cup semi-finals soccer game between Merritton and Ottawa here on Saturday, the score standing 1-1 at the finish. Merritton had decidedly the best of the first half of the match, and on the play should have tucked the game securely away, but although they had the ball in Ottawa territory two-thirds of the first period they were unable to score more than once. In the last half Ottawa showed better staying power and put up a good article of soccer, Merritton being decidedly fortunate in the latter stages of holding them to a tie.

CHEMONG ROAD HOLDS RECORD

CONTINUES TO BE SCENE OF ACCIDENTS—TWO HURT IN AUTO SMASH YESTERDAY.

DRIVER CHARGED WITH DRIVING RECKLESSLY

At a stage for motor car accidents and smash-ups, the Chemong Road continues to maintain its record.

Shortly before seven o'clock last night a collision took place between a Ford car, driven by Harry McKee, of the sixth line of Smith, and a Willy-Overland, owned by Charles Perry, proprietor of the American Hotel, and driven by John Macdonald, 429 Stewart street, at the intersection of the sixth line and the Chemong road. McKee lives on the sixth line and was going to church at Bridegnorth. There were two other persons in the car, his aunt and Miss Ruth NcKee and Evelyn Gillis. McKee was turning into the Chemong road when he was struck by the heavy car, which was coming from the park. The Ford was turned over and the driver and the two women thrown out. Harry McKee escaped injury, but Miss McKee was injured about the back, her thumb was broken, her arm wrenched or possibly broken and she was seriously shaken up. Miss Gillis' ankle was hurt. The car was badly wrecked and the damages will be great. The heavier was greatly damaged in front and both autos, telling the story of a serious smash-up, were examined with interest by hundreds of motorists on the road to the park last night.

Harold Archer and Mable Grant, of Smith, were in a buggy just at the top of the grade leading to the park, and according to them Macdonald was driving about 40 miles an hour. On this information High County Constable A. R. Moore has laid a charge of reckless driving against Macdonald and he will be tried by Magistrate Langley this week.

CHAUTAUQUA'S "BEST PROGRAM"

Peterborough citizens are to have the privilege of enjoying Chautauqua's "best programme" during the season in the city, and judging by the success attending the tour elsewhere, our people may confidently anticipate a rare intellectual and musical treat. A despatch from Mr. R. J. Alber, of the Chautauua management, dated Niagara Falls, 18th June, says:

"Have just seen entire six days' programme—the strongest, best balanced yet given. Cope, Stout, Poole, Runnells, and Norwood enthusiastically received. Music all fine. The play, "It Pays to Advertise," funnier than 'Nothing But the Truth.' The people here declare it's the best programme of the past four years."

IRISH SENATE, ALL UNIONISTS, IS CONVENED

MARQUIS OF DUFFERIN AND AVA, SON OF FORMER CANADIAN GOVERNOR-GENERAL, ELECTED SPEAKER.

SINN FEINERS ARE NOT REPRESENTED

BELFAST, June 20. — (Canadian Press).—The Senate of the Northern Irish Parliament, comprising twenty-two Unionists, who were elected without opposition on June 11, held its initial meeting to-day. Its first action was to elect the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, a son of the former Canadian Governor-General, as Speaker.

Three of the Senators are Unionist Laborites. When the elections were held the Nationalists and Sinn Feiners ignored them, although the Unionists had left seats open for those organizations. Accordingly, the Unionists nominated men for all the seats.

DISTRIBUTION OF MILITARY MEDALS BEING HELD BACK

DIFFICULTIES OVER ADDRESSES OF EX-SERVICE MEN SERIOUS PROBLEM.

OTTAWA, June 18.—(By Canadian Press) The address of ex-soldiers is decidedly the greatest problem of the Records branch of the Militia Department just now. In connection with the distribution of medals, 1,000 addresses as given at the time of discharge were tested out, and no less than 75 per cent. were found inaccurate. An insufficient address had been given or it had been subsequently changed. This means that if the addresses on hand were used by the Department, more than half of the medals would come back on its hands. Accordingly, in every post office in the country a poster is displaying advising those to whom medals are owing to secure a post card from the postmaster, fill it in with correct name and address and mail post free to the Militia Department, Ottawa. The posters brought in 34,000 postcards during May, and this paster scheme is being extended to take in all the railroad stations in the Dominion.

Actual figures as to the total number of Briish War Medals (silver) and Victory Medals (bronze) to be distributed to the Canadian forces are not available. Some 600,000 sets of documents have to be examined in order to establish eligibility, The former medal is awarded to every person who rendered approved service overseas, and the approximate number for Canadians is 418,000. Up to the end of last month 38,358 had been distributed, and the department had on hand at that time 43,796 more for delivery. Names sent to the War office so far number 253,844. The medals are coming in from Great Britain in monthly consignments, and daily large batches are being despatched to the veterans. During May $2,700,-00 was spent in postage for the mailing of medals and decorations.

About two thirds of the veterans will get the Victory medal, which goes to all who served on the establishment of an authorized unit in the field. Of the 5,000 approximately to be awarded to Canadians, 13,387 are in the hands of the veterans Naturally many quaified under this head several times, having served in more than one field unit, or having been returned to the front from a British hospital and entered on the establishment a second or third time The same is true of the Navy. Canadians who served with the British Navy or the Royal Air Force will get their medals from those organizations, and not from the Canadian Headquarters.

All these medals are being made in England, and the Secretary of State for War announced last year that it would take four years to complete the manufacture. His estimate takes into account medals for nearly 10,-000,000 men and women throughout the Empire. Nominal rolls are sent from Ottawa to the War Office in London, giving regimental number, rank, name, initials and service unit. The medals come back with these particulars stamped on the rim. Thus every individual medal has to be identified with the man who won it. In case of death the medal follows the will. Some of the medals will thus find their way to next of kin in odd corners of Europe and a number, of course, lacking precise information, will never be delivered. This will be true, too, of the handsome bronze memorial plaques and the artistic scrolls which have been got up to commemorate in the home men who died for their country.

In the order of distribution, first preference was given by the Records branch to those of the first Canadian contingent— men who left Canada in 1914. After that, batches of names have been sent in starting at eight different points in the alphabet, so that no discrimination is being practised.

The ribbon issued with each medal is sufficient for use with the medal, plus an extra length for use without. Recipients of the Victory medal who have also been mentioned once or more in despatches receive a large and a small bronze oak leaf—the first to be worn with the medal itself, and the latter to be worn with the ribbon only.

Of an approximate 65,000 Memorial Crosses (which go to the widow and mother, if both are alive, but to no one else( )some 50,000 have now been delivered. This is the only Canadian award which the Records branch is handling .

One more problem with which the Records branch is coping is the distribution of medals awarded to certain members of the Canadian Munitions board. The board was disbanded two years ago, and the Militia Department, as a matter of fact, never had the records of the munition workers.

Views of Dominions on Imperial Policy Wasted By British Government

SUCH IS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN EXPRESSED BY LLOYD GEORGE AT OPENING OF GENERAL COUNCIL OF BRITISH EMPIRE PREMIERS AT NOON—THEIR VIEWS ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS DESIRED PARTICULARLY.

DOMINIONS MAY RAISE ANY QUESTIONS THEY LIKE

BY GRATTAN O'LEARY.
(Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)

LONDON, (June 20.—Within the precincts of Number Ten Downing Street, the General Council of the British Empire began its sessions at noon to-day. There was neither pomp nor ceremony about the opening and a few minutes after the arrival of the last delegates, Lloyd delivered his opening address.

Following the British Premier's address the conference will probably adjourn for the day. All the Premiers present have statements to make, but it is understood they will delay their own utterances until they digest Lloyd George's statements.

The sessions of the conference are being held in secret like the ordinary sittings of the British Cabinet and it is therefore impossible to give an early outline of the British Prime Minister's speech.

It is understood, however, that the British Premier stressed the fact that his government had no desire to present a cut-and-dried programme. Far from desiring to impose a particular policy upon the Premiers from the Dominions, the chief concern of the British government is to obtain a knowledge of their views, especially on foreign affairs. Among these are the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, the composition of the agenda for the contemplated constitutional conference on migration within the Empire, Imperial communications by cable and wireless, the status of the natives of India outside their own country, and any other questions the Dominions themselves care to raise.

Sir,—At a meeting in the G.W.V.A. Hall on Friday night the question was asked how the increase in the construction assets in 1920 over 1917 was made up, and I said I would answer the question through The Examiner. With your permission I wish to do so. The following shows the increases:

EXAMPLE OF INCREASE TO CONSUMER.

Peterorough, 20th June, 1921.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of 17th June a letter appeared, signed by Mr. Common People, in which he attempts a comparison of the present water rates with those advertised as in effect 1st July. In his first example he quotes a 7-roomed house, equipped with bath, water closet, wash basin, and sink, and no lawn, while in his second example he includes 2,300 sq. feet of lawn. As he includes the lawn in his second example, he must be using water for the lawn at the present time, and should therefore include the lawn in his first example. Also the hot water taps have been counted as part of the equipment, whereas the tariff does not make any charge for these taps.

A proper comparison of these two examples is as follows:

	Present Rate
Dwelling-house, 4 Rooms and 1 Tap	$4.50
3 Additional Rooms at 50c each	1.50
Bath	2.00
Water Closet	3.00
Wash Basin	1.00
2,300 square feet Lawn and Garden	3.50
Total Gross Rate	$15.00
Less Present Discount of 33 1-3 per cent.	5.00
	$10.00
	New Rate.
Dwelling-house, 4 Rooms and 1 Tap	$5.40
3 Additional Rooms, at 66c each	1.98
Bath	2.70
Water Closet	4.02
Wash Basin	1.38
2,300 square feet Lawn and Garden	4.68
Total Gross Rate	$20.16
Less New Discount of 10 per cent.	2.02
	$18.14

The net increase to the consumer is $8.14, or 81.4 per cent., over what he is paying at present, and not 120 per cent., as stated by Mr. Common People.

The domestic water rates are a charge in themselves, and in no wise affect the assessment.

Yours truly,
W. G. HENDERSON,
Accountant, Utilities Commission.

UNIONISTS ARE URGED TO FREE THEIR POLICIES

POWERFUL MARQUIS OF SALISBURY ADVISES THEM TO BE INDEPENDENT OF BRITISH COALITION.

SAYS GOVERNMENT HAS LOST THEIR CONFIDENCE

LONDON, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—As a result of the defeat of Coalition government candidates in recent bye-elections by Independent anti-waste candidates there is just now a great deal of speculation in political circles anent the prospects of a general election in the near future.

A great deal of significance is attached to a letter from the powerful Marquis of Salisbury, who commenting on the result in East Hertfordshire, where the coalition Unionist, whom he supported was beaten, says: "The fact is that the government no longer possesses the full confidence of the Unionist party."

He therefore advises every Unionist Association to request the Unionist members and Candidates to henceforth consider themselves free from any binding obligation to support the Coalition government.

AND. BROWN HEADS LIST FOR BLIND

FIRST SUBSCRIPTION RECEIVED BY EXAMINER TO-DAY WAS FOR $25

The first contribution received by The Examiner for the fund that is being created for extension of the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was forwarded by Mr. Andrew Brown, who sent a cheque for $25.00.

Peterborough has been asked to raise the sum of $2,500. This is approximately ten cents from each person in the city. The campaign, which was preceded by accounts of the work of this splendid Canadian institution began to-day.

The appeal for public help has been carried to all parts of the Province this month, and Peterborough has been allotted a quota which, it is believed, will be speedily subscribed. Every person can afford some contribution. The cause is so worthy that it scarce needs recommendation to the public.

Those persons who have the full use of their sight cannot realise how utterly helpless and dependent are the blind in the first stage of their affliction. But through the Institute for the Blind they are gradually reclaimed to society, despair gives place to hope, and employment brings a comfort that is made possible only by the special training the Institute provides.

The Examiner will be glad to receive subscriptions for this public charity, and on behalf of the committee who are promoting this campaign to enable the work to be extended, the reminder may be thrown out that he gives twice who gives quickly.

WRITING DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATIONS TO-DAY

Matriculation and Other Classes Undergoing Test at Collegiate.

Matriculation Normal Entrance and Honor Matriculation classes at the Collegiate Institute are writing their examinations at the Institute and will not be finished till Thursday. Students writing their Departmentals got through on Friday.

The halls of the Collegiate are quiet now, excepting for the several classes in the throes of stiff 'exams,' the teachers have all departed and the stillness of death has just about settled on the school.

Public school students all have their eyes fixed on June 24, Friday, when school days are over for three months, and the height of gladness is reached on that day by most pupils. The High School Entrance examinations will take place on June 28, 29 and 30 for those of the Entrance class unfortunate in not being recommended.

YOUR EYES WILL TELL YOU.
If your eyes are laboring under an undue strain you must be conscious of something wrong. With normal sight you are never aware of "trying to see," the eyes performing their functions without effort. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George street. dtf

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 20.—(Canadian Press). — The week in stock market opened with new low records for the current movement. Crucible and United States Steels, Baldwin Locomotive, Harvester, General, Asphalt, Royal Dutch, and many of the rails were exposed to further pressure. Selling of Canadian Pacific, which broke sharply last Saturday, was resumed. Shippings, tobaccos, motors, and food shares were lower by fractions to 1 1-2 points. Coco Cola featured the minor specialties, rising more than 2 points at the outset but soon reacting. Metals, leathers and cheaper oils also established lower prices.

Offerings of Canadian Pacific in large volume during the morning forced down the price 4 points to 101, the lowest quotations in 20 years. Union Pacific lost 2 1-2 points and Reading 2 3-8. Illinois Central, St. Paul, Baltimore and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Missouri Pacific Preferred and Pittsburg and West Virginia fell 1 to 2 points. United States Steel at 72 1-2 was at a new minimum for 5 years and increased weakness attended the persistent selling of Bethlehem, Crucible and Lackawanna Steels, as well as Baldwin Locomotive and Harvester. Supporting orders steadied Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums, but Domestic and European Oils were heavy. Tobacco, Rubber, Leather, Textile and Food Specialties showed losses of 1 to 3 1-2 points. Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent.

Features of the further re-action at midday included Associated, Cosden, California, Houston and Sinclair Oils at losses of 2 to 4 points. Additions to the heavy rails embraced Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio and Southern Railway at 2 to 3 points decline. Sears Roebuck, May Department Stores and Virginia-Carroline Chemical were among the weakest specialties.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 20. —(Canadian Press.)—Favorable weather for harvesting together with depression in the stock market had a bearish effect to-day on wheat. Trade lacked volume and prices were easily influenced. Opening quotations, which varied from 1-2 to 1 1-4 cent lower, with July 127 1-2 to 127 3-4 and September 122 1-2 to 123, were followed by material further set-backs, and then something of a rally.

Corn declined in sympathy with Wheat. After opening 5-8 off to 1-2 up, including September at 63 3-4 to 64 the market underwent a moderate general fall.

Oats were governed by the action of other cereals, starting unchanged to one-quarter cents higher, September 39 5-8 to 39 7-8, and then undergoing a sag all round.

Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to the provision market.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Heavy selling was resumed on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with stocks representative of all industries recording severe declines, and in practically all cases establishing new low levels for the current movement.

C.P.R. was under heavy pressure and broke ten points from its recent mark at 124. Brokers are unable to account for the precipitate decline which was inaugurated in the New York Exchange last week. The stock opened at 119 this morning, and was sold freely throughout the session, reaching a low mark of 114. Nearly a thousand shares of Brazilian were marketed, the noon close at 25½ showing a decline of 2¼ points. Rumors of a cut in dividend sent Steel of Canada tumbling to 46, a loss of 2 3-4 points. Abitibi and Canada Steamships Preferred lost one point each at 30¼ and 47 respectively.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts heavy; trade slow. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $8.50 to $9; butcher steers, choice, $8.50 to $9; butcher cows, medium, $4 to $6; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $10 to $12; hogs, selects, $12.50 to $13.

ALLEGED THIEF FOUND STABBED NEAR WELLAND

MURDER BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN PLANNED IN HAMILTON —ROBBERY THE MOTIVE.

WAS SOUGHT BY POLICE

HAMILTON, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Hamilton's police had another murder mystery to solve on Saturday, when the body of James Saunders, of this city, was found in a field at Crowland, a short distance from Welland, Ont. That the murder was planned here, and carried out in Crowland to avoid suspicion, is the firm belief of those engaged on the case.

Saunders, a middle-aged Italian, was found with a stab wound through his left side, which pierced his heart. There is no doubt but that he was murdered, and the motive, so far as the police have been able to discover, was robbery, whether for money or whiskey.

It is alleged Saunders was being sought by the police for the theft of whiskey, valued at twenty-five hundred dollars.

RESCUED FROM WHIRLPOOL AT NIAGARA FALLS

BOY, CLINGING TO LOG, HAULED ASHORE AFTER NEARLY AN HOUR IN OUTER EDDY.

CARRIED BY CURRENT

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 20.—(Canadian Press). — Edward Denny, 16 years old, was rescued from the Niagara whirlpool Saturday afternoon after he had been in the water for nearly an hour. Denny saved himself by clinging to a drifting log, which was whirled around and around in the outer eddy of the big pool.

The boy, with a dozen companions, was swimming from the old Maid of the Mist landing on the United States side above the rapids, practicing floating. He was carried out into mid-stream, and was in the grip of the swift current before he realized his plight. His companions swam out as far as they dared, but were unable to reach Denny. They shouted to him to stop struggling and to hold on to the piece of drift wood. The boy managed to catch a floating log, and with it was hurled through the first of the lower rapids and into the whirlpool. Here he was swept around in a big outer eddy for half an hour.

One boy found a long rope, and ventured out as far as he dared and threw the rope across the path of the log. Denny caught it and was hauled ashore, badly frightened, but uninjured.

IN FOUR WEEKS ONTARIO IS TO GO "BONE DRY"

FOUR WEEKS FROM THIS MORNING IMPORTATIONS OF LIQUOR TO BECOME ILLEGAL.

ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

OTTAWA, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Practically the last official act of the Duke of Devonshire in Ottawa was to sign the Order-in-Council which will result in a dry Ontario on July 18. His Excellency signed the Order-in-Council on Saturday, prior to his departure for Quebec.

Right Hon. Sir George Foster, acting Prime Minister, stated last night that importations of liquor into Ontario would be illegal on the morning of July 18.

CAMPBELLFORD DOUBLED SCORE ON PETERBORO AT LACROSSE

WON SATURDAY'S GAME AT RIVERSIDE BY 20 GOALS TO 10—LOCAL TEAM LACKED BALANCE AND FAILED TO "COVER UP."

In the first local game of the Trent group of the Intermediate section of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, Campbellford defeated Peterborough at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon by the score of 20 goals to 10. For the first thirty minutes there was no seriously ominous sign of an impending rout. Campbellford finished the first quarter with a lead of one goal, and the score 4 to 3. Play had scarcely got under way again when Lou McCoy took a pass from Bert Todd and put Peterborough on even terms with the visitors. Cheers from the Havelock crowd, who were rooting for Peterborough, greeted this brief moment of encouragement and possible victory. Jim Skinner's men were then travelling at the height of their speed, and getting the breaks of the game, but right there Campbellford stepped into high and ran up a string of nine goals in a row before Peterborough managed to get another past veteran Pat Kelly. That monotonous stretch of the game doused the hopes of the local lacrosse fans, and from then on it was simply a question as to how wide the final score would be.

The expected happened anyway. The Peterborough management were well aware that they were lamentably weak on the defense. The game in Havelock proved that. Ed. Dillon was persuaded to turn out Saturday as a steadying force, and Pete Wallace was on at cover point. Both these men strengthened the team, and as the game progressed it was soon disclosed that the real weakness was in midfield, just as it had seemed in the previous game. The Peterborough team was simply unbalanced. Campbellford trailed a loose man all afternoon, following the game up and down, and while the defence tried to cover the visitors' home field they could not take care of the odd man too. That is the plain and simple answer to the big score.

Abe Jacobs wore a path to the Peterborough goal, so often did he race in unchecked. If the groundskeeper at Riverside notices the rather bare streak from the Texas leaguers' territory back of second base, reaching south almost to the long grass, and he should notice it, he can lay that against the dark-skinned Jacobs.

Campbellford made an effective shift in their line-up when they moved Jacobs out to centre and put Harte back on the home. Jacobs is fast. He gets the ball away neatly at centre, and with his experience he was practically a field captain as he led and directed the continuous attacks. Peterborough's centre field let him get away nearly all afternoon, and Jacobs took full advantage of his liberty. Running in from centre he would wave his signals to

CUBA SUCCEEDS US AS CHIEF SUPPLIER OF UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, June 20.—(Canadian Press). — "Canada has stepped down from her place as chief supplier of the United States last year," declared the New York World in a recent summary of international trade.

"Cuba furnished commodities to this country, amounting to more than $721,000,000 in 1920, which was in excess of imports from Canada by $110,000,000," the World continued. "Of the total imports Cuba sent almost one sixth, exactly 16.2 per cent., of the whole.

"Canada sent 11.63 per cent. of the total coming through our Customs Houses. We shipped to Canada 11.8 per cent. of our total exports. We got 9.73 per cent of our total imports from England, and to her we sent nearly a quarter of our exports, or 22.18 per cent."

ON EVE OF IMPERIAL CONFERENCE DISARMAMENT AND U. S. FEELING ADDS TO OPPOSITION TO RENEWAL.

TO BE BIG QUESTION

LONDON, June 20. (From Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — On the eve of the opening of the conference of Premiers, the advisability of renewing the Anglo-Japanese alliance looms up as a dominant question to be considered.

While the British press, possibly taking its cue from official sources, is restrained and cautious in its comment, and while Austen Chamberlain's speech in the Commons on Friday, evidenced scrupulous regard for the feeling of the Japanese, there is yet easily discernible an increasing weight of opinion against the alliance being renewed.

Thus, the Times, which so often reflects the views of the Foreign Office, has been carrying a series of remarkable despatches from Washington, obviously designed to influence the conference against the treaty.

There is no doubt that the American conception of the situation will play a trenmendous part in influencing the ultimate decision. With all Europe beset by prodigious difficulties, with the British taxpayer burdened by unparalleled taxation, with the industrial situation in Great Britain worse than for years past, there has arisen here a powerful sentiment favorable to reduced expenditures on armaments.

This reduction it is felt can be brought about only by the achievement of some kind of understanding with the United States, and hence the desire to take no step which might render such an understanding with all its attendant good effects, more difficult and perhaps impossible.

THE WATER RATES.

The public meeting called the other evening to discuss the heavy increase in Peterborough's water rates, passing a resolution asking that an independent audit be made of the books of the Utilities Commission and that the advertised increase in rates be suspended until the result of the audit is made public. Undoubtedly the raise is unexpectedly large; it was understood that the installation of a filtration plant would, of course, result in higher rates, and the public was prepared to pay them cheerfully, satisfied to have a water supply of unquestionable purity. But an increase of at least 80 per cent. was not looked for, and the recent announcement of the Commission has been received with natural resentment by may citizens.

The desire for further information as to the operations of the Commission and as to the justification for such a heavy increase is natural, and there is no reason why the information wanted should not be forthcoming.

THE PRICE OF MEAT.

Hon. F. B. Carvell's remark that the public would be interested to know how it is that when the farmers are only getting from six to eight cents a pound for beef, the consumer has to pay from 35 to 40 cents a pound for steak, is a repetition of what people everywhere are saying. There is a general feeling that the price of meat in Canada is unreasonably high; that there is an unjustified slowness in bringing the retail cost down in proportion to the falling prices of other products or to the price which the farmer receives.

The spread is too large, in the opinion of the consumers who have to pay, and it is time that this fact should be recognised. The special committee of the City Council empowered to investigate the bread situation should also be detailed to inquire into the cost of meat. The public is anxious to know the facts, and if the profits made are too large, it is well to have that fact officially established, thus paving the way for an effort to remedy the existing conditions.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM.

The answers to the question, "What is Peterporough's Greatest Need?" which have been appearing daily in The Examiner, have created a great deal of interest, and have been productive of some helpful suggestions. Probably the need referred to by Mr. F. H. Dobbin will strike the popular fancy as one of the greatest. Like many other centres, Peterborough is suffering from a scarcity of houses, especially of homes for the workers of the city.

Only half-heartedly have we endeavoured to grapple with the problem; yet the necessity of finding a solution is agreed to on all sides. Rents will remain high, while there are not enough houses to go round, and so the providing of two or three hundred small houses would be a valuable factor in helping to bring about lower rentals.

Mr. Dobbin has offered some suggestions as to steps that might be taken to assist in finding a way out of the difficulty.

Other readers of The Examiner doubtless have their views on this important matter. The Examiner will be glad to give publicity to correspondence in reagrd to the housing problem, provided it is not too lengthy, and provided, of course, that the writer is sincerely endeavouring to be of assistance.

A RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION

It was doubtless a new experience for the members of the Utilities Commission to have to face a none too friendly audience of ratepayers, and to have to give an account of their stewardship. However, such gatherings might be held more oiten, for they tend to make the officials realise the responsibilities of their position, and at the same time serve to create a more healthy interest in municipal affairs on the part of the ratepayers. The formation of a Ratepayers' Association, suggested the other evening, might prove an excellent thing for Peterborough, for it would afford an opportunity to discuss civic affairs and to keep the people informed on matters of public importance. There is on the whole too little interest shown in the business affairs of the municipality—it is only when people's pocketbooks are affected, as they will be, by the increase in water rates, that they realise that they are shareholders in the city's business, and as such have responsibilities and duties to discharge. Periodic public meetings at which grievances could be discussed and matters of moment to the community freely and frankly talked over would give a valuable index of public opinion, and prove an educational institution of considerable value. The experiment is well worth trying.

WHO WON THE WAR?

The following article, taken from The Sydney Bulletin, is an Australian view of the result of the war and the general international situation:

"At present Germany is the richest country in Europe; in fact, it is probably as rich as all the rest of Europe put together. Its factories are wholly intact, while those of Belgium, Northern France (the industrial part of France), Northern Italy (the industrial section of Italy), and of Poland and Russia are a ruin. And they are freshly equipped with machinery stolen from the occupied countries, which machinery the Allies are recovering by slow instalments. The Huns' coal mines are intact, while those of France and Belgium, which the retiring Hun wrecked with explosives, won't be in good order again for years.

"In fact, the war left Germany far richer by comparison with the states which won the victory than it was in 1914. It has no ruinously expensive fleet and army to keep up, and it doesn't feel the need for them, for the forbearance of the members of the League of Nations protects it. It has no longer a collection of wholly unprofitable colonies to finance. Its manhood is able to devote itself to money-getting, while other races, which have the peace of the world to maintain, are standing about in worn and faded uniforms and humping the white man's burden.

"Britain, which escaped devastation, is the only industrial rival that Germany has left in Europe, and Britain (England, Scotland, and Wales) is very small compared with the German republic, in both area and resources. Ireland, where the chronic civil war is, is no asset, but a liability.

"The Hun conviction is that the misguided soft-heartedness of the Allies, which he regards as sheer imbecility, won't allow them to collect their dues by the means he used to employ himself and the only means he understands. They don't take hostages, make the inhabitants of the occupied territory do compulsory labour in default of cash, shoot highly placed local officials against a wall at daybreak when assaults are committed on foreign residents, or give notice that, whenever an instalment of the indemnity is overdue, a city will be burned as Louvain was.

"The pride and joy of the Hun in his own military machine was based on the fact that it wore big jackboots and trod with them hard. It might respect, if not love, the Allies if they did the same. As it is, they are regarded as a futile lot.

France and Britain and Italy and fraction of that which crushes France and Britain and Italy and Serbia to the dust. The honourable Hun treasurer professes, with his tongue in his cheek, that the republic (vastly larger than the British Isles, wholly undamaged, and nearly free of defence expenditure) can raise only one-twelfth of Britain's revenue, and alleges that the deficit would melt the heart of a stone and reduce a cannibal to tears. None of the war criminals whose surrender was demanded has been surrendered or even tried locally, because the Allies didn't take hostages for them. Indeed, some of them have been promoted.

"The Allies, who are thirty thousand millions to the bad over the war and the senseless destruction, demanded an indemnity equal to about three and three-quarter thousand millions in cash, though when spread over 42 years, with moderate compound interest, it came to eleven thousand millions. Still in cash (and they had to pay in cash or kind), they asked only for about one-ninth of their losses. When the first instalment fell due, it was not paid. Instead, the Huns raised the Bolshevik insurrection—probably a sham insurrection—to emphasise their misery and helplessness, and asked the Allies to suppress it at their own cost.

"Yet there was money in abundance for local salaries. The wages of German foreign office officials were multiplied by 12 and the cost of the home office by 75 and the post office by more than 6.

"The Allies are trying to impress on the Hun that he isn't the victor by occupying another outlying strip of his territory, but as they treat the population better than it is treated by its own officials, and even allow the people to organise strikes, very little is gained. A few tons of dynamite may yet have to be dropped on Berlin to give the Hun the first real intimation that he didn't win the war."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Water Department of the Utilities Commission seems to be getting into hot water.

Now, if the cost of living would only drop as rapidly as our ball team.

The fact that 2nd July will soon be here is pleasing to many people who regard that date as important, because it will bring to an end the daily gush from the training camps of Dempsey and Carpentier.

Admiral Sims shouldn't have said what he did—but perhaps he would rather be right than Admiral.

Dr. Hastings advises against eating too much meat in the hot weather. He needn't worry—the price keeps most people from over-indulgence.

Buy Binoculars to See Fight.

(H. I. Phillips in the Ottawa Journal.)

The question now agitating fight fans who have bought anything under $25 seats for the Dempsey-Carpentier battle is whether Tex Rickard plans to number the fighters.

The ring, it is generally known, will be pitched in Jersey City, but the $10 seats will be about two miles east of the longitude of Ottawa on the west and a mile and a half this side of St. John, N.B., on the east. A few $5 seats will be located on a scow off the Azores if there is sufficient demand.

If there is no pronounced haze or fog, producing a condition of low visibility, these fans will be able to discern through good binoculars that a great cloud of smoke is rising from the 7-cent cigars of the ringside seat holders.

HOLSTEIN FREEDERS' PICNIC, TRENT RIVER

CENSUS PAPERS IN BRITAIN CARRYING ADVERTISING SPACE

LONDON, June 16.—(Associated Press.)—A new departure in government transaction in the disposal, for a cash consideration, of advertising space on census papers, a proceeding which the official mind would formerly have looked upon with horror.

Even now, a proposal of an enterprising advertising agency to pay the government £11,000 for the use of the backs of 11,000,000 forms to be used in the forthcoming national census, was at first summarly rejected by Dr. Christopher Addison, the Health Minister.

Sir Alfred Mond, First Commissioner of Works, and a keen business man, saw the advantage of drawing revenue from this source and persuaded the Minister to consent to the innovation.

Some time ago, the same advertising firm offered £50,000 for the use of empty space on ration books; but the authorities would not listen to the proposal.

PILING IT ON!

As if the high cost of living, the European tumult, and the world's industrial and social unrest were not enough, here comes a professor of medicine to pile another load upon the public back. He proposes that physicians, in addition to curing bodly ills, should look after ther patents' political and social beliefs. In his own words:

"By reasen of his intimate and fidential relations with all classes in the community, the hysician may administer not only to diseases of the body, but often can direct his patients in matters of public policy and antidote mistaken social theories."

A man comes to his doctor with a cold in his head. The physician, according to this professor, ought to ask him whether he is a Democrat or a Republican, whether he believes in a high or low tariff, and how he stands on the League of Nations. Should the patient turn out to be a Socialist it is the doctor's duty to point out to him the evils of his way. How the physicians themselves are going to learn just what the correct social theories are, the professor does not explain. — Los Angeles (Calif.) Examiner.

SEMENOFF WOULD SEIZE LEADERSHIP.

Adventurer Attempting to Evade Japanese and Enter Vladivostok.

WASHINGTON, June [illegible].—Japan has warned General Semenoff, Russian anti-Bolshevist Cossack leader, not to interfere in the situation in the Vladivostock area of Siberia, according to a statement by a high authority of Japanese circles here today.

Semenoc, who had a spectacular military adventure in Siberia since the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, was in Port Arthur when Vladivostock was captured recently by the so-called Kapell anti-Bolsheviki forces. He has since been trying to assume the leadership of the Vladivostock coup himself.

According to the Japanese statement here to-day, Japanese authorities in Port Arthur have warned Semenoff not to go to Vladivostock. The Cossack leader left, but on reaching Vladivostock he was again warned by Japanese authorities at that place not to inject himself into the already tangled situation.

Advices just received by the State Department from the American Consul at Vladivostock state that Semenoff, through his secretary, has presented a demand to the consular body at Vladivostock that he be recognised as the chief of the newly formed Government there and commander of the military forces.

This demand was refused by the body of foreign consuls.

FATHER WHIBBS TRANSFERRED TO LINDSAY PARISH

ANNOUNCEMENT OF HIS APPOINTMENT WAS A SHOCK TO CAMPBELLFORD PARISH.

Campbellford, June 20. — Miss M. Rellis, nurse in training, of Syracuse, N. Y., is visiting at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Forestell and daughter of Sterling, spent Sunday with Mrs. James O'Brien.

The services at St. Mary's church were very helpful and impressive on Sunday when about 40 children received their first Holy Communion, accompanied by all the children of the parish at eight thirty mass. A three days triduum was held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, by the Rev. Father Hill of Brockville, for these little children.

In the evening Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, assisted by Rev. Father Whibbs, pastor of St. Mary's, Rev. Father Ferguson of Warkworth, Rev. Father O'Sullivan of Port Hope, and Rev. Father Hill of Brockville, administered confirmation to 86 children. The children all looked lovely in their new white dresses and veils, and the boys with their white badges. Everything was suggestive of the purity and innocence of children. Bishop O'Brien addressed the children, and referred to the sacrament they had received. When speaking of Separate schools, he said that the pastor and parish were worthy of much praise in having three separate schools in one parish. He pointed out that at all the recent synods of all denominations in Toronto every educationist who spoke emphasized the importance of having religion taught in the schools because it trained the children to be better citizens and did great good morally. After all, it was the eternal things that count—not the temporal. He closed his address by announcing the change which is to be made very soon in the parishes of the diocese. Rev. Father Whibbs, who has worked so well and successfully, and who has won the love and respect of all for the past 17 years, is to be transferred to Lindsay to succeed the late Monseigneur Casey, and Rev. Father Phelan of Peterboro will succeed Father Whibbs in Campbellford. This was a surpise and a shock to the parish. Rev. Father Whibbs will certainly be missed by all.

Mrs. C. L. Owen is visiting her daughters, Mrs. C. Glenn Ellis, at Brantford, and Mrs. T. E. Bell, at Bradford.

Mr. J. A. Irwin returned on Saturday from Brantford, where he was a delegate to the Grand Lodge Convention of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

Mr. Ray Oliver has accepted a position in Cobourg and left to-day to assume his new duties.

Miss Nellie Turner, travelling secretary for the Woman's Missionary Society, spent the week-end in Cobourg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Malin, Jr., are visiting in Toronto.

Mrs. Waldon of Moosejaw, Sask., is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Keir.

Mr. W. B. Dickson and Mr. R. M. Spiers were in Peterboro on Friday.

The regular meeting of the W. M. S. of the Methodist church, will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner on Tuesday afternoon. This will be an interesting meeting as the delegates to the branch meetings will give their reports.

The pulpit of the Methodist church was very ably filled last evening by Rev. S. H. Bennett, the pastor of the Baptist church, who preached an inspiring sermon from the words found in Acts 16, verses 30 and 31: "What must I do to be saved? Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Circle will be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Denyes on Thursday evening, June 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Payne and Miss Grace spent Friday in Colborne.

THOUGHT SHE COULD STAND ON HER HEAD

One of Belleville's beautiful but not cautious maidens, about 20 years old, thought she could stand on her head and spin some in Trenton, without trouble. She did the spinning with the aid of some booze, which is good company when you are seeking a good time, and the law stepped in, and the "dear" was fined $15. She could not pay the fine and had one of our good looking officers for company back home, where she will remain in jail for a few weeks to cool off.—Trenton Advocate.

The last word of young Martin—who served as an ambulance driver during the World War— was that he was in charge of an orphan farm 300 miles from Constantinople. Long periods of silence led to fears for his safety, and his parents constantly appealed to the State Department to locate him but to no end. He had been given up as dead.

It is not known here that Martin knew Miss King before going abroad. It is believed the romance blossomed while the two were engaged in relief work in Asia Minor.

GIVEN UP FOR DEAD; HE'S GOING TO WED.

Groom's Wedding Announcement First News in 2 Years.

PESHTIGO, Wis., June 18.— Dispatches from Constantinople which told of the engagement of Edward F. Martin of this city to Miss Rachel King of Little Britain, N.Y., contained the first news of Martin his parents, who live on a farm near here, have had in two years. The dispatches also told of another romance, the engagement of the Rev. Joseph W. Beach of Bangor, Me., to Miss Blanche Easton of Ridgewood, N. Y., who were co-workers of Martin and Miss King in relief work at Kaisariyeh, Asia Minor.

WHITE COAL OF ONTARIO

In reflecting on the subject of fuel at a time when the industries of the United Kingdom are paralysed by the coal strike, S. Eldon Percival, Assistant to the Agent-General for Ontario, in The Empire Mail, refers to the favorable position in which his native Ontario is placed with regard to what has been called "white coal." He says:

Ontario is the chief manufacturing Province of Canada. Its important cities of Toronto and Hamilton are the centre of very extensive and important industries relating to the manufacture of iron and steel products of all kinds, motor vehicles, agricultural implements, furniture, electrical appliances, cement, musical instruments, etc., etc. The Province is also the headquarters of the Canadian paper and pulp industry, which has developed in such a remarkable way during the past few years, until it has now become the principal exporting industry apart from agriculture. There are also many hundreds of saw mills and wood working factories engaged in the manufacture of the immense timber resources of the Province. Ontario, as is also well-known, is the leading mining province of the Dominion. It produces about ninety-four per cent. of the world's output of nickel. It can boast of one of the largest and most profitable gold mines in the world, namely, the Hollinger, as well as other gold mines, which are immensely rich, while the silver mines of Cobalt constitute one of the richest mining camps ever discovered.

Work of Hydro-Electric.

When one reviews the immense progress which the manufacturing industries of Ontario have made during the last twenty or thirty years, that progress is all the more astonishing when one remembers that Ontario, otherwise so rich in minerals, has no coal mines whatever. To compensate for the absence of coal, Ontario possesses water powers aggregating six million horse power. One-seventh of this amount is already developed — and several big schemes of development are under construction. The greatest of these schemes is what is known as the Chippewa Canal scheme at Niagara Falls. This, like all the Hydro-Electric development in Ontario, is being carried out by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission—a Commission created and financed by the Government of Ontario under the chairmanship of Sir Adam Beck—to develop the water powers of the Province for the benefit of the people. The Commission acts as trustee and executor for the municipalities of Ontario, and it may be safely said that no other institution in the Province is so jealously guarded by enlightened public opinion, and none would more swiftly rally to the slogan "hands off Hydro" than its customers. This is hardly to be wondered at, perhaps, when it is known that the Commission possesses the almost unique distinction of having frequently reduced its charges to the public.

The commercial activities of the Commission commenced in 1911 with the sale of 4,000 horse power, and contracts in force with 12 municipalities. To-day the Commission is selling over 340,000 horse power at cost to some 250 municipalities. To meet future needs 500,000 horse power additional is being developed at Niagara Falls and elsewhere. One hundred thousand additional horse power will be available at Niagara by September of this year, the cost to manufacturers will be about $12 per horse power per year.

Wonderful Engineering Work.

The Chippewa development at Niagara is a wonderful piece of engineering. It will cost over five and a half millions sterling, and will probably not be completed until 1923. Two thousand men are at present employed on the work. The Falls themselves are over 150 feet high, but by taking the water from above the Falls thirteen miles across country by a new canal to Queenston, a total drop of 305 feet is obtained, thus furnishing 100 per cent. more power from the same amount of water. When the scheme is completed an addition of 500,000 horse power will be obtained from this source alone.

Long distance transmission lines are a valued feature of Hydro-Electric development in Ontario. The street cars and the city lighting in Toronto are operated by current from Niagara Falls—80 miles distant. Power from Niagara is also transmitted to numerous municipalities as far distant as 160 miles in another direction.

Ontario is certainly keenly alive to the necessity of developing her natural resources to the fullest extent in order to grapple successfully with the problem of power. Almost incalculable as these resources in water powers, raw materials, timber and minerals are, there is, however, no country more anxious than Ontario to link her future progress with the progress of the British Empire as a whole. It is the wish of the patriotic people of Ontario as the war proved, to pool their resources with those of the Motherland, and to facilitate in every way possible closer relations.

CAMPBELLFORD DOUBLED SCORE

the Campbellford home, while the local defence men had to watch their checks and the odd man at the same time. And of course it couldn't be done. Not often, at any rate.

The count against Fred. Goodfellow was an even twenty, and a few of them were easy. Several were batted in after he had made clean stops, another rolled in off his stick, but for the most part the shots that beat him were bullets. It was heart-breaking to watch Jacobs swing his stick over his shoulder and sweep the ball at the nets with rifle speed. Goodfellow stopped a lot of them, but he couldn't do the impossible. The blame for that was obviously plastered all over the midfield players, who let the Indian romp around until he was finally fagged in the last quarter.

On the other hand, Pat Kelly played a whale of a game in the Campbellford nets. In practice on Friday night a bounding ball knocked out one of his front upper teeth, an incisor, to be exact, and on Saturday he stopped two shots off Todd's stick with his mouth. The big score is not a correct indication of Peterborough's share of the play. Kelly made a lot of splendid shots, to the delight of the Campbellford supporters, but Goodfellow had the lighter session as far as the goal-keepers were concerned. One of the shots that beat him was a back hand toss from Harte, who took a pass in front of the nets and flipped the ball up into the corner. It was a neat play, trimmed with considerable luck.

W. Harcourt, secretary-treasurer of the O.L.A., refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams. There were only four penalties, and two of them were for trivial offences, Pete Wallace and Tom Thomas getting those. Grover Halpin took a five-minute rest for rapping Montgomery in a check. Pete Johnston was the only player who required the attention of Dr. N. H. Sutton, who is one of the officers of the lacrosse club executive. It was only a slight cut on the head, and Johnston stated that it was unintentional. Both teams played a clean game.

The Comfort Costs You Nothing

Usually you pay for comfort and style.

But not in Goodyear Cord Tires.

The comfort from resiliency of these fine tires is a bonus. On the basis of mileage alone they cost less to use. The saving in car-depreciation, the saving in gasoline, the easier riding, are all clear profit to you.

Ask any motorist who uses Goodyear Cords if you want to know what real comfort is. Look over the cars which have been run thousands of miles on Goodyear Cords and note their good mechanical condition.

Inquire regarding Goodyear Cord Tire mileage for economy's sake. Note the tremendous increase in sales of these tires—because they cost less to use.

Certainly truck-owners are not much influenced by comfort or looks in buying tires. But Goodyear Cords dominate the pneumatic truck tire field. That's because both truck and tires cost less in the end.

FREE TOLLS IN PANAMA CANAL

HARDING ADMINISTRATION PLEDGED TO THEM AND CANNOT DODGE THE ISSUE.

AFFECTS OUR SHIPPING

WASHINGTON, June 18. Canadian Press.) — Until now comparatively little attention has been given by this session of Congress to the question of free tolls for United States shipping through the Panama canal. However the question is looming up and a settlement of it cannot much longer be deferred.

The Harding Administration and the Republican party in Congress, are pledged to free tolls and cannot well dodge the issue. On the other hand there is a tremendous tide of opposition and as soon as the discussion over tolls legislation begins in the Senate or the House, this opposition will be clearly in evidence.

All the information in Washington agrees that every transcontinental railroad in the country is deeply interested and concerned over the free tolls. The railroads of the United States which span the continent are already actively at work to try to postpone or completely block legislation. In other words they insist that tolls shall continue to be charged U. S. shipping which use the canal, whether that shipping be on coastwise business or on foreign business. The Canadian transcontinental railroad interests are understood here likewise to view free tolls with apprehension, though they are understood not to be taking any active part in trying to influence legislation. They are believed here to be of the same view as the United States roads as to the general effect on transcontinental lines of free tolls—that the effect thereof would be to expand the Panama Canal trade and tend to cut down the volume of transcontinental railroad business.

The present indications, however are that Congress is going to provide for free tolls. It will at least provide for free tolls for U. S. vessels which ply through the canal between the Atlantic and the Gulf Coast on the one hand and the Pacific Coast on the other. It may extend to the U. S. shipping in general in whatever form of trade. The pressure for free tolls is very strong and determined especially from the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coast regions, where it is felt that free tolls would enlarge coastwise shipping business and counteract the high railroad rates of which the whole United States is complaining. Republican leaders cannot get away from the free tolls without squarely ignoring their promises and it is generally assumed theat they will not venture on such a course of scrapping their pledges thus early in their reign.

The best informed men in Congress on the subject of railroad rates and transportation problems, believe there is just ahead of the United States a large growth in the coastwise shipping business between the Pacific Coast ports and the Gulf of Mexico and Eastern ports. Signs of this are visible in many directions. California producers of fruits and vegetables without waiting for free tolls are already sending much of their produces to New York by water. They are clamoring for lower rail rates across the continent but do not get them—at least to the extent desired—and are laying plans for enlarging of water traffic. What is true of the California fruit and vegetable interests, is true of various interests along the Pacific Coast.

While Canadian producing and shipping interests on the Pacific coast and the east coast have not the same interest in free tolls as United States interests, there can be no doubt that Canada will be affected by free tolls and the expansion of canal business materially.

When Congress early in the Wilson administration provided for tolls on U. S. shipping there was felt here a great deal of opposition from Great Britain and the other maritime nations. Though it has since been alleged the opposition was exaggerated, now, however, such opposition is expected to cut little figure. One reason is the anxiety of the people of the U. S. to build up a merchant marine. Another is the feeling of the public that railroad rates are exorbitant and burdensome and water transportation must be encouraged.

PAY LAST HONORS TO PIONEER JOURNALIST OF MINING DISTRICT.

"Colonel" Lowery an Old-Timer in the Kootenay.

NELSON, B.C., June 18.—(Canadian Press).—Laid to rest in the city he selected for the honor by the hands of those who like himself were pioneers of the Kootenay, the body of Robert T. Lowery, late proprietor and editor of the Greenwood Ledge, famed throughout the Continent for its able and humorous editorial comment, now lies on the hill above Nelson. A beautiful rite, employed by the Kootenay Pioneers' Association for the first time, was exemplified at this funeral when 25 old associates of the early days each dropped into the open grave his tribute of British Columbia fir, with the parting injunction, "Rest in peace." This was founded on the custom of an Indian tribe in the Kootenay-Columbia valley many years ago of never passing a certain spot in the narrow trail at the head of the Columbia lakes, where once the men of the tribe died to a man in making a stand against an invasion, without depositing a fir bough, the pile of boughs being always green by this perpetual renewal.

"Colonel" Lowery's newspaper enterprises in British Columbia must have been a dozen in number. In the 1903-04 volume of his "Float," which he periodically collected in book form, he stated that he had up to that time "been the father of eight Kootenay papers," adding whimsically that his reward was "still coming up the pike." Since then he is known to have had three, and has probably had more.

Born in eastern Ontario, young Lowery moved to the Sarnia district with his family at an early age, and his first business venture was a partnership with his elder brother, John, at Petrolea, in a stationery and newspaper business. On May 26, 1891, thirty years later, he arrived in this district. When the townsite of New Denver was auctioned by the Government in 1892 he attended the sale, bought some lots and founded a newspaper. Almost immediately he moved to Kaslo, which then had a population of thousands, and started publication of The Claim, staying until the high water of 1894 coincided with the decline of the boom. One of the last issues was printed in blue ink to indicate the bleakness of the prospect and gave great offense to the people of that community.

Old-timers recall many incidents, amusing and otherwise, of the editor's life, some of which were due, to his trenchant comments on current affairs. He had numerous differences with the churches and once or twice with the bench. He was everywhere with the heyday of mining in the Kootenay-Boundary territory and left lasting word pictures of those early times. Of late years the "Colonel's" column of "Float" was the principal avenue through which he was known to the general plublic.

FLEW OVER ROCKIES.

Well-Known Canadian Woman Tells of Experience.

First, I wish to disclaim that in coming out over the mountains of one of our farthest-north rivers I did anything extraordinary. I did not come out by airplane because I wanted to, or had so planned, but because I had to. I was pressed for time to fulfill engagements. The motor-canoe which I had engaged to come down eight hundred miles of the great sweeping curve in the river across the divide had gone wrong far upstream beyond the reach of telegram or mail; and the fur trade steamboat which was to bring me out the next one thousand miles struck a sand bar in low water and sat down for the winter with her hull in the mud to await the heave of spring floods.

Then the schedule of the railroad which cuts across the half-circle of Peace river was changed at the last moment; and the result was a choice between the indefinite delay getting across to the north side of the river and out, or—a flight over delays and difficulties. Ordinarily you may motor from the south side of Peace river to the north side of the Great Bend; but the fall rains had set in, followed by frosts that cut the roads into sticky plow-furrows, and that way of exit was barred. The airplane was there; so I took it.

Yet only four years ago I sat in my office and used every persuasion in my power to prevent a young aviator trying to fly across the Rockies; it was unsafe; the atmospheric conditions and winds among the peaks created pockets of air into which the airplane might "lump" or fall; a dead engine, among the peaks meant certain death, for the fogs were thick as wool at cloud line. Hadn't I been caught in blizzards on Mount Stephen? Didn't I know? Didn't two of us sit roped to a Swiss guide or three hours in a snowstorm waiting for the air to clear, so we could come down? Didn't we strike the heavy timber line coming down after dark and have to do the rest of a six-mile bridle-path at a fast dog trot, stubbing toes and banging into trees where we failed to get "the feel" of open way ahead? I ought to know, for we put the old Swiss guide on the rope aft so he would brace us if we fell coming down over the iced rocks, and I had to set the pace to the fore through the dark, when we hit the timber line! What if your airplane went dead in that kind of a predicament? If you came down through a blizzard in that sort of a landing place, you would be smashed on the rocks, or amid the big timbers. I recall I finished up by advice to the young aviator: "Flying will never never be either possible or safe in the Rockies. I have climbed mountains all my life. I know."

That was four years ago; and here I was, doing exactly what I had said could not be done—doing it because I had to, not because I wanted to; and when I came down from thirty-five hundred to twenty-five hundred feet above the clouds lying in white banks between the high shores of Peace river, with my ears humming from the roar of the propeller making fourteen hundred revolutions a minute and the throb of a ninety horse-power engine making a distance of one hundred and sixty-five miles in one and a half hours, my first words were: "Safe as a rocking chair! Easier than a motor ride! The only way to do this north country of immense distances and mountain grades!"—Agnes Laut in Green Book.

SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder is Troubling You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

FIND NERVE TROUBLE CAUSED BY EXTRA RIB.

X-Ray Reveals Rare Abnormality in Female Patient.

YORK, Pa., June 18.—Discovery of an extra rib in the body of a woman patient of Dr. W. H. Treible and Dr. Ira S. McDowell, of this city, was announced by the physicians to-day. Presence of the odd abnormality was revealed when an X-ray photograph was taken in the hope of discovering the cause of a painful attack of neuritis in the right shoulder of the patient. The photo disclosed the extra rib on the right side attached to the cervical vertebrae and cartilaginously joined to the natural cervical rib. The case was declared to be extremely rare.

DOG DAYS---A MYTH

Business men are sorting themselves into two classes — the man who is submissive to conditions — and the man who is "making' conditions.

The former says, "What's the use?" or "Nothing doing," or "There isn't going to be anything doing for the next three months.

The latter says, "Business is picking up a bit; I'm going to stay right on the job so as not to overlook any opportunities."

If you could weigh the two classes, you would invariably find that the latter is the more successful.

They have been through "dog days" before. They know that most all the talk about dog days is just talk. They know that there are just as many people living in Canada and that their desires are no less to-day than they were last February, or than they will be next November. The current of desire may have changed a little—that is all.

And, if you are interested to look, you will see that all these firms whom you mentally class as successful houses are using Daily Newspaper Advertising with as much vigour and as much persistence as ever.

88TH ANDIVERSARY OF CHURCH AT KEENE

CELEBRATED BY PRESBYTERIAN CONGREGATION ON SUNDAY—A UNION SERVICE.

KEENE June 20. — From the small beginnings of 88 years ago to the present status of the splendid congregations that greeted Rev. D. D. McDonald, a former pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Keene, a fine record of service to the community is indelibly written by the good people of the Presbyterian faith in Otonabee.

This was Mr. McDonald's first visit to the pulpit after an absence of almost ten years, and the church was filled to its utmost capacity at all the services. The sermons were delivered with much earnestness, and were uplifting in their appeal to follow the Saviour of men.

The service of praise was a delightful part of the anniversary. A choir of 22 members, under the leadership of Miss Margaret Bryce led the singing.

One happy feature, auguring well for the further consolidation of the Christian forces in the future, was the withdrawing of the Methodist services. Practically the whole protestant population of the district gathered to hear and welcome one who had rendered faithful and influential service in the life of the community.

The business of this historic congregation is managed by a staff of 9 elders and nine deacons, with Mr. John Lang, as chairman, and Mr. Stanley Taylor as secretary. The present minister of the church is Rev. McEachern B.D., who has occupied the pulpit for nearly six years.

Excavations at St. Joseph's Hospital were commenced last week by the Castellini Company with a steam shovel. They expect to finish operations within a week's time. HOWARD VEALS WRITES TO THE OMEMEE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

OMEMEE, June 20.—The following is a letter from Mr. Howard Veals, now in China as a representative from the Lindsay District Leagues:

Chengtu, Szechwan, Apr. 11, 1921.
Omemee Epworth League, Omemee.

Dear Fellow Leaguers,—The fact that your Christmas greetings arrived on the 9th of April made them none the less welcome, and I was indeed glad to receive these tokens of your remembrance. Parcel mail is slow in China at the best of times, but in this case there was an unusually long delay, as, ordinarily, a parcel should come through in three months instead of five. When you remember, that perhaps a week carries a parcel to Vancouver and another three weeks carries it to Shanghai, the remaining two, or in this case, four months being spent in travelling inland, you will understand something of the rate of transportation into the interior of this country. I hope my return greetings reach you before the time once more arrives for the special remembering of our Saviour's birth. Your greetings reminded me especially of the splendid welcome you gave me when I visited the Leagues last summer, just prior to my sailing for this country. Such welcomes and your greetings assure us that we are all working together in one common purpose: the bringing of all peoples everywhere to a knowledge of the life and death of the Man of Galilee.

The Chief Task.

The chief task of the newly arrived missionary is, of course, to get as good a knowledge of the Chinese language as possible. Without that, one can do no effective work, not only because of his inability to talk to the people in their own language but also because of his inability to understand Chinese character and see the Chinese viewpoint, which seems to differ from that of the Westerner in almost every case. The Chinaman very seldom expresses on his face what is in his mind as we so often do—if you would understand what is going on in his think tank, you must go deeper than that. Often I have heard experienced workers say, "You never know just what these sphinx-like individuals are thinking about. You never know what is going on in John Chinaman's mind." The only way to understand the Chinese viewpoint at all seems to be, to constantly study and observe the people in their every-day lives. Undoubtedly they are a strange mixture if judged by Western standards; in some things they appear to be so shrewd and business-like, while in others, they are so foolish.

Anything But Logical.

But the Oriental mind is anything but logical—our rules simply won't work where a Chinaman is concerned. He is in most cases able to discern our thoughts and motives with an acuteness which is almost uncanny, and yet in superstitious belief he is as gullible as a child. Our children are often afraid of the darkness because some elder has told them stories of ghosts or wicked fairies who roam the world, sometimes to the hurt of little boys and girls, especially if they are naughty. Our forefathers, too, believed in elves and goblins, but these were playful and mischievous rather than malignant and harmful. The Chinaman goes through his whole life, believing that the world is full of malignant evil spirit, who continually work men woe. All sorts of catastrophes are put down as the work of these "gwee," as the Chinese call them. If there is a pestilence or a plague, the crowded and shockingly unsanitary conditions under which the people live are never blamed, but always the "gwee." If there is a fire, of course the "gwee" were responsible. If a man fails in business, most certainly it was not owing to any lack within himself but due to the "gwee." When a person is sick unto death, instead of being allowed to depart in peace, a frightful clanging noise is kept up with cymbals and tone-tones in order to frighten away the evil spirits which are hovering round, ready to pounce upon the spirit of the departing one as soon as it shall leave the body. It is believed that the "gwee' can fly only in a straight line, hence walls are usually built a few yards in front of temple or compound entrances in order to keep out these black minions. For the same reason, the outer and inner city gates are never in line. The Chinese delight to keep things as they are. Chengtu has four gates, the east, the west, the north and the south. At no other points may people come in and out of a city, roughly twelve miles in circumference, and containing within its walls about half a million souls. Some ten years ago two other gates were made in the wall at convenient places, but shortly after their opening came troublous times, and the people, believing that the spirits were angry at the innovation, closed the gates, and they have remained barred ever since.

Know a God.

So deeply rooted are these superstitions, and so long have they been held, that the people will not easily relinquish them—not until they learn to know a God of Love instead of a belief in capricious and malignant supernatural forces. The attack on this stronghold is chiefly threefold:

(1) By direct evangelistic appeal, the old, old story being the chief weapon.

(2) By the education of boys and girls in Christian schools, where they are constantly under Christian influences.

(3) By ministering to the needs of the sick in hospitals and dispensaries, thus, not only showing them an example of Christian charity, but also giving them some idea of medical science and shaking their faith in their old superstitions and vicious methods of caring for their bodies.

Many Crops.

Spring has been with us for some weeks in this sub-tropical land, and just now, the roses are out in all their glory — the wheat is in the shot-blade, and in two or three weeks, it will be spring harvest. After that the fields will be ploughed and then flooded for the rice crop, which is harvested in late summer, in time to plant the fields in wheat or vegetables for the winter crop. By the time this reaches you, our plains will be covered with innumerable little lakes, but with you it will be June, that queen of all the months, at home.

I shall be very glad to hear from any of you at time, as ever, your representative,

Howard J. Veals,
Canadian Methodist Mission,
Chengtu, Szechwan, China.

P.S.—Thanks very much for your Christmas box, which arrived on the same day as the letter of greetings (April 9th). Some of the things were shaken about a bit, but most everything was all right. The fruit cake was delicious. Please thank all who had any part in preparing the box, and also convey my special greetings to all the members of the home League.—Yours, again, Howard Veals.

WEEKLY PAPERMEN ENDED TOUR THIS MORNING, TORONTO

SUDBURY, Ont., June 19.—The representatives of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association entered on the last stages of their return journey on Saturday night when they boarded the C.P.R. special at Port Arthur shortly after ten o'clock, after spending an enjoyable dinner dance at the Prince Arthur Hotel as the guests of the Canadian Government Railways. The party was met at Fort William by the Mayor and representative citizens of the Twin Cities, where they were loaded into automobiles and given an opportunity of seeing the sights of the two cities, being subsequently entertained at the hotel mentioned during the evening.

Miss Hunt, the daughter of the general manager, sang two solos, which were loudly applauded. Later in the evening, in the special coach attached to the train, the company were entertained to a series of interesting stories told by Mr. A. B. Calder, the official representative of the C.P.R. This morning everybody was up bright and early, the weather being blazingly hot, and arrangements were made for a short stop at the quiet little station of Missanabie, where the Rev. A. H. Moore, of the New St. John's, Que., conducted a religious service, at which all attended. This was the finish of a perfect journey, and the party will break up at Toronto in the morning. Everybody expressed themselves as well satisfied with the comforts given them by the railway, and in future they would be in a position to better understand the situation.

IT TOOK ALL THE GRIT MASON HAD TO STICK IT OUT

"Every time I go out on a run now, I feel thankful to Tanlac for I'm convinced it kept me on the job," said William W. Mason, 1924 McClellan Street, Philadelphia, for the past nine years a motorman for the Rapid Transit Co.

"I had stomach trouble in a bad form for three years and was going down hill fast. Nothing I ate agreed with me and after every meal I was sure to have heartburn, dizziness, and sometimes awful cramps. I got in such a nervous condition my hand shook like a man with the palsy and at nights my sleep was broken and restless. In the mornings I felt so miserable I used to dread the time to come for me to take out my car, and it took every ounce of grit I could muster to stick until quitting time. Finally I got so weak and was so discouraged I was ready to give up.

"This was my condition when I started taking Tanlac and I owe all my present good health to this wonderful medicine and to nothing else. The first thing it did for me was to whet my appetite and I soon found I could eat anything without fear of bad after-effects. It's a fact, four bottles made a new man out of me. My nerves are quiet, I sleep like a log and wake up in the morning feeling fine. Then I eat a big breakfast and go to work whistling like I used to long ago. If people knew Tanlac like I do the clerks in the drug stores couldn't wrap it up fast enough to supply the demand. It's great."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Voice of the People

To the editor of the Examiner

Sir,—The statement now made by the President of the U. S. that he is in favour o freciprocity puts it up to Canada once more. Canada can have the U. S. tariff against her and be shut out from U. S. or Reciprocity, whichever she likes and it looks like the last time of calling. The National Liberal and Conservative party at Ottawa will draw on itself the fur yof Protectionists no doubt for letting slip the chance to go to the country but the much abused Hon. J. A. Calder did what he promised. He held the protectionists down and prevented raision ? and now he will have his reward in Reciprocity.

It is a great day for Liberalism and now the Farmers will be able to join in the new Union Reciprocity party.

HIGGINS TRIAL BEGINS JUNE 20.

Largest Jury Panel in Shiawassee's History Drawn in Girl's Death.

OWOSSO, Mich., June 16.—Forest Higgins, 22 years old, son of William Higgins, prominent Vernon Township farmer, will go to trial Monday, June 20, in Circuit Court at Corunna, on a charge of killing Lucy Wittum, his 19-year-old sweetheart, by poisoning.

First Believed Suicide.

Lucy Wittum was found dead in a lonely spot on the Grand Trunk main line three and a half miles east of Durand, the morning of April 1, by a train crew. The body lay in the ditch, face downward, with mud and grass clutched in both hands. Her face was horribly burned, and one hand was also burned, physicians testified, by acid.

It was believed to have been suicide until it was learned that Higgins had been keeping company with the girl, and that he had an appointment to meet her the night of her death.

Higgins had left home about 7 a.m. the morning of April 1 to go to St. Johns. En route he spent two hours in Durand, got his hair cut and discussed the finding of the body with the barber. He afterwards admitted that he saw the train stop from his home while dressing.

Sister Gives a Clue.

Higgins was arrested in St. Johns and taken to Corunna. He denied having seen the girl the night of her death, but admitted having met her and her younger sister in Duffield the night before her death.

Erma, 15-year-old sister of Lucy, said Lucy had told her that at Duffield, Higgins gave her $1 and told her to buy "carbolic acid gas," and to meet him on the railroad tracks the next night and they would go to Flint and be married.

Lucy went to a drug store in Durand the afternoon of March 31 and asked for "carbolic acid gas," which does not exist. She said she wanted it for an automobile. Erma said Lucy told her Higgins wanted to use the "gas" in his car.

After she left the drug store she was in Durand for possibly an hour, and then, as near as can be learned, walked down the railroad tracks three and a half miles to a wood on the Higgins' farm, which had for months been their resting place.

Lucy Told of Elopement.

Lucy, before going to Durand, told her older sister that she was going to be married and that Higgins told her not to bring any clothes other than those she wore, as he would buy her all she needed in Flint. She did not take any extra clothing.

On the day following Higgins' arrest two pairs of footprints were found along the railroad track to the spot where the body was found, and leading away was only one pair, those of a man. The two pairs were so close together as to indicate that the makers of the tracks were walking arm-in-arm. Higgins admitted that he wore boots that night. His boots fitted the tracks. Lucy's shoes fitted the other pair perfectly. Acid burns were found on Higgins' boots.

With the network of evidence slowly closing about him, Higgins late on the second night of his arrest sent for Under Sheriff L. N. Pardee and said he wanted to tell everything. He admitted that he met Lucy about 9:30 on the night of her death on the railroad tracks. She told him, for the first time, he said, that she was to become a mother and asked him to marry her.

Higgins said that they talked a while and that he promised to marry her. Then he told her that he had to go home as he had to get an early start for St. Johns in the morning.

Saw Bottle at Lips.

"You can think this over and I will see you Sunday or Monday night," he said he told Lucy.

With this, he started to climb the fence, he said, expecting that she was following. When a-straddle of the fence, he said he looked back and saw her with a bottle at her lips.

"What the devil are you doing?" he said he shouted at her and leaped to knock the bottle from her hands. He succeeded, but lost his balance and nearly fell to the ground. Before he could recover, she had picked up the bottle, he said, and drained it. She tottered for a moment and then fell, face downward, in the water in the ditch.

"I heard a gurgle and she lay still," Higgins said, without emotion. "I looked at her for a moment, and then went home, worked on my car, shaved and went to bed. The next morning I saw the train stop at the spot where I had left her, but said nothing, because I did not want it known that it was Lucy, for fear I would be blamed for her death.'

Had Been Engaged.

Higgins admitted that he and Lucy were engaged a year ago, but said he broke the engagement when her father objected, and that thereafter he never went to her house. He said this was the reason he always met her on the railroad track or in his father's woods.

The theory of Prosecutor Matthews is that Higgins tricked Lucy into taking the acid, by telling her it would relieve her condiion. He has abandoned the theory that the girl was forced to take the acid.

Attorneys Chandler and Pulver ridicule the theory that the girl could be tricked into swallowing the acid. They also believe it would be impossible to force the acid down her throat. Their theory is that she ended her own life; that because of Higgins' attitude she feared she would be an unmarried mother.

Lucy's parents are poor, very much in contrast with Higgins' parents. Higgins has been married once, and has a daughter 3 years old. His wife died two years ago.

HOW HOGS HAVE DROPPED.

COBOURG, June 20.—A Durham county farmer, speaking of the way the farmer is hit by the slump in prices, states that a year ago he sold 11 hogs, each one weighing about 240 pounds, and received therefor a cheque for $567.60. Just recently he sold 11 more hogs, and this time his cheque was $217, leaving a difference of $350.

EARLY FOR RYE.

BELLEVILLE, June 20.—Rye is ripe in the vicinity of Foxboro', on the farm of George Wickett. This is unprecedentedly early; indeed, it is rarely, if ever, that the grain is matured before July. The rye is well headed out. All the crops are premature. Timothy hay has come along wonderfully since the last rain.

The assessment roll as revised was confirmed.

The Court then adjourned.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council was then held.

St. John's Anniversary.

Appropriate services marked the 55th anniversary of the opening of St. John's Church, Lakefield. The 50th anniversary was not marked especially as it fell in the dark days of the war, and anniversaries were rather neglected. One especially pleasing feature of the service was the presence of a few of those who were at the opening so many years ago, and also of a good many of the fourth generation of worshippers in St. John's.

Decoration Day.

An ideal summer day marked the Decoration Day of the local lodge of the I.O.O.F. This has become a real community event, and several hundred people were in the Lakefield Cemetery and on the streets.

The procession, headed by the Salvation Army Band of Peterborough, left the Lodge-room at 2 p.m., and proceeded to the Hillside Cemetery, where the grave of their late brother, Milton Nelson, was decorated. From there they went to the Lakefield Cemetery, where they decorated about eight graves.

The ceremony was beautiful and impressive, and carried out reverently and with the true fraternal spirit which speaks highly for the Order. Year by year deceased brethren are remembered, and each year brings a larger number of people to show their respect to the memory of those whose earthly remains are in God's acre.

MAGNA CARTA DAY COMMEMORATED AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

REV. DR. BLAGRAVE ADVOCATED GOODWILL AND HARMONY WITH UNITED STATES.

Magna Carta Day was observed yesterday at St. John's church by the singing of special hymns, and special emphasis by the Vicar in his sermon on the subject of good will between the United States and the nations of the British Empire.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave chose for his text Luke 6:37, "Judge not and ye shall not be judged.....forgive and ye shall be forgiven," and went on to point out how this text contained a "multum in parvo" for the direction of social relationships. It does not mean that their ought not to be both judgments and condemnations in life and manners, as other Scriptures fully testify, but it is a warning against a particular temper or disposition to which the followers of Christ were particularly exposed.

"Judge not according to appearances but judge righteous judgment." We are enjoined not to assume an attitude of critical judgment, but to reflect upon our own shortcomings, inasmuch as our judgment of others usually condemn ourselves. The precepts urged in the text, including the whole passage, may be briefly summed up in those two excellent virtues which have long been recognized as peculiarly characteristic of British thought and life, namely, justice and mercy. Justice and mercy have constituted the key note in the development of British constitutional history. And these have been clearly derived from the teaching of the British church which not only influenced the political life of England for centuries, but was simply on the inside of that life. The long struggle for constitutional government was wrought out by the better elements of the home church, with the leaven of the Word of God. It was the righteous sense of justice and mercy that eventually developed the Mother of Parliaments and brought in liberty and democracy. The outstanding event in that development was the signing of Magna Carta on June 15, 1215.

Let it be observed that the first clause in that charter runs thus:—"Ecclesia Anglicana libera sit"—"The Church of England shall be free." The Church of England was known in its integrity as an identical unit, three hundred years before the Reformation. True, there were many fierce struggles yet to be fought through but justice and mercy were on the winning side for both Church and State.

It is to be noted that all the free nations within the Empire have inherited that temper for political and religious liberty which is consonant with constitutional integrity and individual right. More than that, the elder daughter that left the paternal roof to blaze her own individual trail has also come into the same inheritance. These virtues of justice and mercy which have made for freedom and greatness within the Empire are energizing also in the national life of the great Republic to the South. It is a happy augury for the permanent good-will of all, and between all the nations of the Empire and the United States that we should unite in looking back to the great day in 1215 when the clock of time struck out the hour of freedom for them and for us, and that the common recognition of this event should have its origin among our kinsmen across the line. The seven English speaking nations of the world are surely coming together along those lines wherein they have both a common heritage and a common aim. Magna Carta day bids fair to make a great contribution toward the cementing together of these several units for the purpose of transmuting into practical politics in national and international life the Christian principles of justice and mercy. The greatest good that could come to the distracted old world of to-day would be the glorifying of these seven nations in the maintenance of those ideals which the leaven of Christianity has slowly but surely driven to the top in the great programme of international comity.

But the realization of those ideals can never go beyond the regard in which they are held in the life of the people who make up our several democracies. It is just what we all think that will determine the great issues which are being woven out of the history we are making. The best contribution we can severally make is to interpret into our own life and conduct the precepts the word's Saviour has given. In doing that we are cultivating into our own life and in the life of those around us those qualities that make the kingdom of God. When the kingdom of God is our goal, then, and only then, will the kingdoms and comlunities of this world attain their highest and their best. Let judgment be tempered with mercy and forgiveness flow down as a healing oil. "Give, and it shall be given you, good measure, pressed down and running over."

SAY ILLEGAL FISHING.

PORT HOPE, June 20.—Having visited Rice Lake and adjacent waters, a government inspector, reports many complaints of illegal fishing, the bulk of which it is believed, has been carried on by Indians.

There has also been a small traffic carried on in selling speckled trout by visitors and residents. The names of a number who have been engaged in this were secured; and also the people who supply them.

Save Children From Blindness

8

FIFTY per cent. of all blindness—that most dreadful of all afflictions—is preventable!

A nation-wide organization formed from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is now operating in Canada in a worthy endeavor to eliminate all preventable blindness. We are laying particular stress on the need for proper care and attention of the eyes of infants at birth. Help us make those who are responsible see the great need for better care.

In Toronto, for instance, a special class has been formed of children with poor vision and defective eyesight. These little people use specially printed books. Their class room is arranged to give their eyes complete rest. Their sight is being conserved; they will retain vision throughout life.

We provide glasses and treatment for those low-sighted men, women and children who are unable to pay. Our expenses in this branch of our work are heavy and we must turn to you for assistance.

OVER EMBANKMENT INTO LITTLE LAKE

J. B. O'DETTE'S CAR BACKED ACROSS THE ROAD UNCONTROLLED.

The need for a protecting rail or bulwark of some kind on Crescent street around Little Lake was again shown on Saturday night when at 6.30 p.m. J. B. O'Dette, 39 Crescent street in bringing his car out of the garage backed over the embankment before the car could be stopped. Mr. O'Dette and his son jumped from the car before it slipped over the six foot bank into the water and he received a severe shaking-up, when he threw himself from the auto. When he was backing out of the garage Mr. O'Dette lost control of the car in some way and it jumped backward across the road and into the lake which is only a short distance.

Within twenty minutes after the car went in, it was high and dry on the land again. The difficulty of the steep bank was overcome by a runway of planks and the united efforts of eight men hauled the car up on to the roadway. The car was not seriously damaged it was stated.

The point where the car went into the lake is a favourite swimming place for south end urchins, but at the supper hour when the plunge was taken the youngsters were otherwise engaged. Had the accident occurred at almost any other period of the day, there would bathers injured if not killed, likely have been several of the

THE PETEC BLEW UP IN THE EIGTH AFTER HARD BATTLE AT OSHAWA

MOTOR TOWN CREW GOT SEVEN RUNS IN ONE BIG RALLY AFTER SEVEN HARD-FOUGHT INNINGS, IN WHICH NEITHER TEAM COULD PUSH A RUNNER OVER THE COUNTING STATION.

After a pitching duel for seven innings in which Harold Dainty, the Oshawa southpaw, and Lefty McElroy, the portside flinger of the Petes, were so stingy with their hits and were so cleverly supported in the pinches by their team mates, that not a solitary run filtered across the rubber, an outfield error in the eighth in the Central League game at Oshawa Saturday, placed the skids under the Peterborough team, and before they could realize the extent of the disaster, Oshawa had seven counters and the end of the engagement found the motor town gang with seven runs and top place in the League and the Petes without a single marker and down in fourth position in the percentage column. It was a sad or glorious—depending on whether you are a Peterborough or an Oshawa fan—ending to a great battle.

For seven innings neither team could push a counter over the home station. During those seven torrid frames, in which the two old rivals were dead-locked, both outfits threatened time after time to break away and put the game on ice, but always some clever pitching or sharp bit of fielding intervened just in time to prevent the coveted tally from getting across. It was a battle of southpaws, Dainty whipping a fast one through with rifle ball speed and varying his offering with an occasional curve that broke viciously, while McElroy was baffling the Oshawa batters with a tantalizing slow hook that kept them popping up easy flies or tapping rollers to the infield. It was a sharp contrast in style, Dainty retiring twelve of the Petes by the air route, while McElroy failed to whiff one of the enemy. But in spite of the difference in the strike-out column honours were even in those first seven innings, and the wise ones predicted, as the row of goose eggs on the score board grew steadily longer, that the first run scored would decide the issue and probably cause the team scored against to crack under the strain.

And that is just the way it happened. There was one out in Oshawa's half of the eighth when Rowden singled over second. The hit did not worry the Petes any, for the Auto gang had men on the bases frequently before that innings and failed to score. But what happened next did worry them. Dobson was the next batter and he lined over short for what should have been a single. Jackson, playing left field for the Petes, let the ball roll through him, however,and before it could be recovered Rowden had scored all the way from first and Dobson was camped on third. That run was enough to win, and what happened next was as unnecessary as it was unpleasant—for the Petes. On Petrie's tap to Ray Rose, Dobson was caught between third and home, and when Swanston chased him down the line towards third no one covered the home plate and he dodged past the Petes' backstop and had a clear run to the counting station. Three singles in a row followed and Jacobi put the finishing touches on by booming a homer to deep centre, driving two base runners in ahead of him.

It was a heart-breaking finish—especially for McEroy, for the little southpaw had been pitching grand ball and was working his head off to hold the Oshawa crew.

A record crowd saw the battle and naturally the Oshawa fans went wild in the eighth innings when their team broke the game wide open. It was to them a sweet revenge for the 14 to 3 trimming the Petes handed them last year, or for the 15 to 0 beating they sustained in Peterborough the year before. The umpiring of Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, behind the bat, and of Schultz, of Oshawa on the bases, left nothing to be desired. The work of the officials was the best the Petes have experienced this year.

There were a flock of good fielding plays by both infields. Cherrett retired the side in one innings on three nice plays, and Rose and Murray were both in the limelight. Swanston picked a runner off third at a critical moment, and the Oshawa crew had such a wholesome respect for his arm that they did not attempt to steal second.

First Innings.

Peterborough — Cherrett fanned. Murray rolled to Fair. Jacobi missed R. Rose's roller, but Rowden recovered in time to get the runner. No runs, hits or errors.

Oshawa — Gifford singled past Murray and went to second on a wild pitch. Fair was out, McElroy to Ross, Gifford being held at second. Jacobi hit to Cherrett and Gifford was out trying to go to third, Cherret to Murray to Cherrett. Dainty singled to right, sending Jacobi to third and going to second on the throw to the difficult corner. Rowden rolled to Murray. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Peterborough— Ross struck out. Swanston singled to centre and went to second on Jackson's sacrifice bunt to Fair. Swanston died stealing third, Belding to Fair. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Oshawa —Dobson rolled to Ray Rose. Petrie hit to the same player and was safe when Ross missed the toss. On a hit and run play, Legge singled to right as Rose ran over to cover second, and Petrie tore round to third. Swanston caught Petrie off third on a snap throw to Murray and Belding lined to Rose, a pretty catch by the second baseman. No runs, one hit, one error.

Third Innings.

Peterborough—Lowe was tossed out by Rowden. Pinnette doubled to centre. McElroy's drive was pulled down by Jacobi and Cherrett missed three. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Oshawa—Gifford flied to Pinnette. Fair was safe on McElroy's miss of his roller, but was forced at second, McElroy to Cherrett, on Jacobi's tap. McElroy tossed out Dainty on an easy grounder. No runs or hits, one error.

Fourth Innings.

Peterborough — Murray fanned. Ray Rose singled to right, and when caught off first by a quick throw from Dainty, reached second safely. Ross and Swanston struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Oshawa — Cherrett tossed out, Rowden on a high bounder. Dobson rolled to Cherrett. Petrie gave the Petes' shortstop his third assist of the innings. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Peterborough—Jackson singled to centre. Lowe bunted for a sacrifice, but Dainty mussed up the play and both runners were safe. Pinnette struck out and McElroy also missed three. A wild pitch moved up the base runners, but Cherrett's best was a roller to Rowden, who nailed him at first. No runs, one hit, one error.

Oshawa—Legge flied to Lowe. Rose grabbed Belding's high one. Gifford walked. Fair popped to Cherrett. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Peterborough— Murray rolled to Gifford. R. Rose lifted one to Jacobi. Ross singled to centre and stole second. Swanston was tossed out by Rowden. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Oshawa— Jacobi singled to left, a high fly back of short. Dainty's foul fly was nicely taken by Lowe, who made a running catch. Rowden singled back of first, and when Rose threw high to third, Jacobi reached the hot corner and Rowden went to second. On Dobson's bunt, Cherrett faked a throw to first and then caught Jacobi off third. Murray and Jacobi were hurt in the clash, but resumed after a minute's delay. Petrie rolled to Rose. No runs, two hits, one error.

Seventh Innings.

Peterborough — Jackson fanned. Lowe was safe on Petrie's miss, but was caught off first. Pinnette fanned. No runs, hits one error.

Oshawa—Legge was thrown out on a bunt to Murray. Belding bunted a fly which Swanston grabbed. Gifford was safe when Cherrett lost his roller. Fair singled to left. Rose was under Jacobi's high fly. No runs, one hit, one error.

Eighth Innings.

Peterborough— McElroy fanned. Cherrett flied to Petrie in centre. Murray walked and stole second, going to third on a wild pitch. Rose also drew a base on balls and stole second. Ross fouled out to Fair. No runs, hits or errors.

Oshawa—Dainty rolled to Ross. Rowden singled over second. Dobson singled to left, and when Jackson let the ball get away, Rowden scored from first on the play, while Dobson went all the way to third. Petrie hit to Ray Rose, who made a fine stop and nice throw home, heading Dobson off, but no one covered the plate when Swanston chased the runner back towards third and he finally ran past Swanston and scored. Petrie reached second on the play. Legge singled to centre, scoring Petrie, and Belding also hit safely to centre. Gifford popped to Murray. Fair's single to left sent Legge in. Then Jacobi slammed a homer to deep centre, scoring Belding and Fair ahead of him. Dainty, up for the second time, wasout on a grounder to Ross. Seven runs, six hits, one error.

Ninth Innings.

Peterborough—Swanston rolled to Fair. Jackson lined to Petrie in deep centre and Lowe fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

G.W.V.A. DEFEATED WOOLENS BY 4 TO 1

TOOK REVENGE FOR RECENT LOSS AT EXHIBITION PARK.

Winning from the Canadian Woollens by 4 goals to 1 in a City League soccer game at the Oval on Saturday afternoon, the Veterans tied with the fast Woollens for the City League honours. The Vets evened up for the trimming they got at Father Phelan's Fair, and put the Woollens away on Saturday with the same margin as they were defeated there.

The Woollens have a strong team but failed on Saturday to "get away" while the Vets were going strong from the first whistle. The Vets scored one goal in the first period, and their defence was airtight.

Sherman got the first counter for the Vets off a bounce from the goal post when Wilshaw kicked a fast grounder to the Woollens' citadel. The goal was slipped in by Sharman before the defence could get to the rescue. In the second half "Jim" Willshaw, the inside right for the Vets, secured two goals after he had worked hard all the game for them. Willshaw was one of the strong men for the Vets and both his counters were earned by hard and fast work. He had one fine chance to score again after his victories with none to beat but the goalkeeper, but he kicked wide. On a free kick Roberts sent in a long sweeping shot that Jones did not reach and the Woolens got their only goal. It was a pretty shot. In the last few minutes of play S. Young, a raw player, won his laurels when he scored the Vets last goal like an old timer. J. L. Howarth was referee.

LACROSSE NOTES

What is wrong with Brampton, people are beginning to ask. One of the Saint Simon's men probably provided the answer with his opinion yesterday. Brampton, he said, if you notice, has almost the identical team which they have carried for the past three or four years. Their players have nothing more to learn from each other; their style from long habit has become set, and they will become neither better nor worse than they are now.

As you see them in one game so you will see them in all their matches. It is only their opponent teams which have changed by including young fellows in their lineups who bring new life and ambition to the ranks. Brampton's team, all home boys, have been town idols so long that they formed a close ring, and no newcomer could get a chance. The consequence is they are suffering from extreme staleness, though the season is so early and can only hope to get back in the running by a vigorous shaking up all round with the addition perhaps of one or two new men.

Some of the local managers complain of the substitute rule which only allows a fresh player to be exchanged at the end of each quarter. They say that they should not be compelled to keep a new man on the field for 20 minutes if he does not make good, but appears to be a drag on his team. With all deference to this opinion, I think that this is a rule on which the spectators should also be allowed a word. There is nothing more confusing to a follower of the game than the sight of a continuous stream of players running to and fro to the bench during the match. After careful study of the numbers with the programme, one is just on the point of believing he has them mastered when presto — a new one appears, and again the whole list is mixed up. Besides, the season is far enough advanced now so that managers should have a fair opinion of the capacities of their fifteen uniformed men. — Murton in Toronto Telegram.

By the way if any old lacrosse fans have a dollar or two they can spare, a little financial help for the juniors will be highly acceptable. In giving lacrosse a new lease of life the burden should not be allowed to fall on Manager Sutherland and those who are actively interested in the second team.

THE BELLEVILLE TEAM WILL BE HERE ON SATURDAY NEXT

OLD RIVALS WILL CLASH IN CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE GAME AT RIVERSIDE PARK—NEITHER CAN AFFORD TO LOSE—SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Despite the fact that they have dropped three games in a week, the Petes are not yet out of the running in the first half of the Central League race. Their protest against the Port Hope game, if successful, and it is difficult to see how it can fail if the League executive have any regard for baseball rules, will cut one defeat off their list, and as three of their remaining games in the first half of the schedule are at home, they still have to be reckoned with in the League race.

The team has not got a break in its last three games, has not scored a single run as a result of an opposition misplay. The errors made by the opposing teams have not helped the Petes, while on the other hand, slips in the Peterborough defence have materially assisted the enemy. That is the way baseball runs, and aided by the Petes' weak hitting, the breaks have beaten them three tmes in a week.

On Saturday the Petes' old rivals, the Belleville team, will provide the opposition at Riverside Park, and it should be a memorable battle. Neither team can afford to lose and the fur will fly as it always does when Peterborough and Belleville clash. Last year the two teams battled twelve innings before the Solomon gang could push over a win, and on two other occasions extra innings have been played. The Belleville team has hit its stride after a bad start, winning four games in a row after dropping the first two, and with Goyer going strong they hope to wallop Peterborough on Saturday.

Dainty was a great pitcher Saturday, better than he was in Peterborough. His sharp breaking hook bothered the Petes' left-handed batters, and the right-handed hitters found his fast one equally as baffling. Harrison's batting was missed. The big fellow nicked Dainty for three hits in the Peterborough game and a blow at the right time Saturday might have turned the tide the other way.

Lindsay and Belleville were winners on Saturday, the former beating Cobourg and the latter Port Hope.

BELLEVILLE AND LINDSAY WERE WINNERS SATURDAY

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 19.—A Central Ontario Baseball League game was played here on Saturday afternoon between the G.T.R. team of this city and Port Hope. It proved to be a one-sided affair, with the play on the G.T.R. team side. In nine innings not a player of the Port Hope team crossed the plate and only two reached third base. The G.T.R. team secured ten runs in the eight innings they were at bat. F. Goyer for the winning team, pitched a wonderful game, having no less than 16 strikeouts to his credit, whilst Deer, pitcher for Port Hope, had four. W. Mills and his brother, H. Mills, each scored a home run and by so doing were winners of silk shirts, donated by an enthusiastic fan. Mr. Duncan, of Cobourg, was umpire on balls and strikes, and Rev. D. C. Ramsay, of this city, on bases. There was a good attendance of spectators at the game. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Port Hope—Guy, 2b.; Hill, 1b.; R. Chalk, c.; Moyes, s.s.; Fryer, r.f.; Fair, c.f.; Carter, l.f.; F. Chalk, 3b.; Deer, p.

G.T.R. —Ross, c.f.; Meagher and Symonds, l.f.; Weir, s.s.; W. Mills, c.; Frank Goyer, 3b.; Casey, r.f.; H. Mills, 1b.; Williams, 2b.; Fred Goyer, p.

Score by innings:

G. T. R. .. .. 05110210x—10
Port Hope .. .. 00000000— 0

AT LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, June 18.—The Graybirds easily defeated Cobourg here on Saturday by 11 runs to 1, hitting McDonald hard, while Oulette held the Lakeshore crew easily. Workman had four hits. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Lindsay	11	13	2
Cobourg	1	4	4

Batteries — Oulette and Logan; McDonald, Ecobichon and Tyson. Umpire, Alex. Kay, Peterborough.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

There was very little boxing in the heavyweight championship bout between Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn the Pueblo fireman, at Las Vegas, New Mexico, on the Fourth of July 1912.

Flynn attacked Johnson somewhat after the manner of a bull charging a Bolshevik banner. Johnson devoted most of his energy to holding Flynn's arms, like a ticklish person defending himself from a playful comrade. The police stopped the performance in the ninth round. The referee awarded his decision to Johnson as he had had the upper hand during those sporadic periods when it appeared that a boxing bout was taking place.

Flynn was strong on headwork, but it was of a physical character. Now and then he would ram his pate into the pit of Johnson's stomach.

Johnson complained that Flynn was behaving like a billy-goat and Flynn called the referee's attention to the manner in which Johnson was holding him.

In the ninth round the challenger became extremely peeved when Johnson grabbed his arms and clinched tightly. On the break he lowered his head and bored in for all he was worth, butting Johnson in the body and then jumping and crashing his head against Johnson's face.

It was then that the referee called a halt.

As a result both are a game in front of the Petes. The standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Oshawa	3	1	.750

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I would like to make a few comments in your valuable paper, in reference to the class of sport being exhibited in Peterboro. The Caledonians seem to be very bitter against the C.G.E. more so since the C. G. E. won the Gordon cup. There is a great deal of talk going the rounds that the next match between the above teams is going to be pretty rough play. Now if this is the type of sports we are likely to get in Peterboro, it is about time a stop was put to it. The last match between the above teams was a disgrace to the community and sports in general.

What we want is good clean sports, not a free for all fight. I wish to make reference to the game played recently between St. Kits and the C.G.E., it was one of the nicest and cleanest game played in Peterboro for some considerable time, the best team certainly won, and I take this opportunity of commending the C. G. E. on their sportsmanlike manner in which they took their beating. I might say, Mr. Editor that the executive of the C.G.E. and players entertained the St. Kits, until 1 p.m. at the home of one of the executive namely Mr. Samuel Jones.

In closing I would suggest that in future those responsible in our City, might be more generous in their treatment towards our visitors, our City is well worth advertising and I do not think there is any better way of doing it than treating our visitors well and entertaining them in a most fitting manner.

Had it not been for the C.G.E. executive the St. Kits team would have been wandering our streets from 8.30 p.m. until 4.30 a.m.

I trust this letter will be the means of awakening a more fraternal and commendable spirit towards each other, and our visitors.

Yours truly,
THOS. FAIRFAX.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a remarkable show to-night — Mary Pickford in "The Love Light," her newest picture; The Mona Silver Troupe, a wonderful 5-people vaudeville act—violin, banjo, guitar, piano and clever dancers and singers, from rag time and jazz to grand opera.

Frances Marion's original story, "The Love Light," in which Mary Pickford will be seen at the Capitol Theatre to-night, is not only a unique departure in the line of story for the "World's Sweetheart," but a gripping drama of unusual interest. Briefly the story is as follows:

Angela Carlotti presides over the house of her two orphaned brothers, Antonio and Mario, in a little fishing village bordering on the Mediterranean in Northern Italy. Antonio and Mario spend their days fishing off the lighthouse, Angela caring for the little stone house, the barnyards and gardens. They are all young, and boy-like, the brothers slip as much of the work as possible upon the apparently tireless shoulders of Angela. They have only to remark that a certain job is too hard for any woman and Angela flies at it and labors along while they recline in the shade, audibly marvelling at her strength and cleverness.

Angela is being courted by Giovanni Novella, who is held in contempt by the fisher folk because instead of handling the nets and row boats, he raises flowers for the perfume market of Genoa. In time Antonio joins the army of his country and a little later Mario also enlists. Giovanni is still at home and Angela voices her contempt at his apparent lack of patriotism; this decides for Giovanni that he should go, and he returns blinded. During his absence, Angela cares for his gardens and also takes the lighthouse keeper's place. One day Angela comes upon the unconscious form of a sailor, a big handsome foreigner, who claims to have deserted his ship. Angela falls in love with him and they are married. A little later she hears of the death of her two brothers. How the stranger proves to be an enemy of Angela's country, and how Angela sacrifices everything in order to protect not only her neighbors but her enemies, is presented in a series of startling and gripping situations which naturally must be seen to be appreciated.

Miss Pickford has surrounded herself with a splendid cast, the majority of the principal players having been selected by Miss Pickford and Miss Marion, her director, while in Europe, where many of the properties were also secured.

The production is lavish in its settings and the wonderful photography is credited to Charles Rosher who has photographed most of Miss Pickford's recent pictures. Stephen Gooson, noted art director, is responsible for the reproduction of the Italian village and beautiful interiors.

The big programme offered to-night is one of the best ever presented at this popular resort. The cooling and ventilating system at the Capitol keeps this cozy resort like an ice cave in the Arctic regions. The patrons are constantly complimenting the management on the cool and cozy atmosphere at the Capitol. The show offered to-night is big in every way.

AT THE ALLEN.

VERNON A SCREEN VETERAN, AND YET YOUTH IN YEARS

Bobby Vernon, who is the featured player in "Back From the Front," latest of the two-reel Christie Comedies which comes to the Allen Theater to-day, is one of the oldest of the Christie players in point of service, yet he has just passed the twenty-third milepost.

Vernon, who is a Chicago boy, started his stage career at the age of eleven and he was still well in his 'teens when the got his first real opportunity to attract attention. This was while he was appearing with Kolb and Dill in San Francisco. Max Dill was injured and Vernon took his place with such success that he was quickly made attractive offers by film companies. He first went with Universal and then joined the Keystone forces under Mack Sennett. He was only sixteen when he made his first film appearance and has been with Christie now nearly three years. He has appeared in more than fifty single reel comedies but when the organization began making two-reel specials he was quickly promoted.

Some of his most recent successes include "Kiss Me, Caroline," "Seven Bald Pates," "A Homespun Hero" and "Going Through the Rye."

Neal Burns and Laura La Plante also have important roles in "Back From the Front."

For tenseness of situation, for tremendous climax, for powerful characterization and for painstaking production there have been few pictures presented before a local audience which compare with "Outside the Law," a Universal-Jewel feature produced by Tod Browning, which brings Priscilla Dean to the screen of the Allen Theatre. It is the first production in which htis star has appeared since "The Virgin of Stamboul," but the public is rewarded for its long wait.

Much of the success of "Outside the Law," the super-photodrama starring Priscilla Dean, now showing at the Allen Theatre, must be credited to Tod Browning, who not only wrote the story, but directed its production. Browning is the man who produced Miss Dean's last feature, "The Virgin of Stamboul." He reaches even greater melodramatic heights in his latest work.

AT THE REGENT.

REAL DRAMA OF SOUL IS LOUISE GLAUM'S "LOVE"

You'll all love "Love."

That's the title of the Louise Glaum at the Regent Theatre.

It's a J. Parker Read, Jr. Production, different from anything this producer ever did before.

"Love" is a beautiful picture, an appealing production, and an ocular gem.

In "Love," the course of true love takes James Kirkwood in the role of Miss Glaum's sweetheart, to South America to find a fortune. True love—for her sister—takes the star into a devious path which will bring ease, joy and surcease from pain to the little sister, but to obtain which Miss Glaum makes a woman's sacrifice.

But the theme of "Love" is staunch and hews to the line.

Remember the line in our poetry book at school?: "And stony limits cannot keep love out."

So it is that the love of Natalie (Miss Glaum) and Tom (James Kirkwood) endures despite Natalie's transgression and we have a logical happy ending which caps the dramatic climax of introducing the faithful Tom to his sweetheart as the amoureuse of another man.

The production deserves the highest praise for its moral toning and the big lesson it holds. The "song of love" in this case is not a sentimental ditty but a very real melody of the soul.

20,000 BLACK BASS FRY FOR THE LAKES

Through theunited efforts of Mr. T .Tooms, M.P.P., and the Chamber of Commerce, 20,000 Black Bass fry were secured for Buckhorn and Balsam Lakes from the Department of Game and Fisheries, Toronto.

The fry came through in four large cans on the Port Hope train to-day, and will be taken by boat from Lakefield to their destination. The water in the upper lakes has receded sufficiently to make it desirable to put the fry in there now, and fishermen should reap the benefit of this action in the next few years.

FIRST COMMUNION CLASS AT SACRED HEART CHURCH

Forty Hours' Devotion Was Begun Yesterday.

The sacrament of the Holy Eucharist was administered at the church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday morning to fifty-five children, who had been preparing for their first communion for some time under the instructions of Rev. J. J. O'Brien, parish priest. Referring to the change which had been brought about by the late Pope Pius X., whereby the age at which children were admitted to this sacrament was reduced to seven years, Father O'Brien said that the Pope had followed Christ's injunction when he spoke the words, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not." The tendency had been to withhold the sacrament until the children were ten or twelve years old. At the 10.30 High Mass the Forty Hours' Devotion was begun and will continue until Tuesday evening. Rev. Father McCarthy of Norwood preached the sermon on Sunday night, Rev. Monsignor McColl will preach at the devotions to-night and Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore at the closing exercises.

FORT CARRY HORSE ARE BEING RE-ORGANIZED.

Is Winnipeg's Crack Cavalry Regiment.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 18.—The Fort Garry Horse, Winnipeg's crack cavalry regiment, and one of the three militia cavalry regiments of Canada, is in process of re-organization. In the re-organization of this regiment Canada perpetuates a regimental name which became synonymous for gallantry and dash during the war, and also affords an opportunity of training younger men in the best form of discipline and active sports. The regiment served with distinction in France as part of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade. At the battle of Cambrai, 1917, when the Canadian Cavalry Brigade was chosen to lead the attack of the whole British cavalry, the Fort Garry Horse was chosen to lead the Canadian Brigade. It was at this time that Major Harcus Strachan, V.C., won the Victoria Cross in his gallant dash on Meziers.

Lieut.-Col. P. J. Montague, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., is colonel of the re-organized regiment, and Hon. Robert Rogers, who has taken a deep interest in the success and welfare of the unit, retains his post of honorary colonel of the regiment.

General organization for camp is being carried out now, and camp will be held at Sturgeon Creek, a short distance from this city, early in July. When complete the regiment will consist of three squadrons of 100 men each.

ROTARIANS TO RENEW YOUTH

WILL ASSIST BOYS TO ATTEND SUMMER CAMPS AND SPEND A DAY WITH THEM.

The weekly lunch of the Rotary Club to-day was well attended. Visitors included a member of the Lethbridge, Alta., club, and Mr. R. Harstone and C. E. Jamieson, of city.

The usual song selections were given with Rotary emphasis. Mr. Jamieson put forward a plea in support of a matter already before the Club, that of the Scouts' Camp down the river in July next. He spoke of there being several boys who belonged to the local Troop and who would dearly like to have the privileges and association of the camp, but whose parents could really not afford to find the money. The Club offered to assist and in fact said that the matter was already in hand.

Then again the matter of the Y. M.C.A. boys' camp, also on the river at Walker's Point, came in for attention. There were boys who wished to attend, but whose means would not permit. After talking it over it was arranged that six boys should attend at the expense of Rotary. The expense is not so much as to bother the Club.

Other discussions broadened out the idea of assisting boys, from among those who could not otherwise go. It seemed from the suggestions that all the Rotary members wanted other boys to share, needy ones of course.

Presently it was broached that each member of the club should chip in to the extent of $25.00, forgoing a part or all of the member's holiday, and give it to the boys. This looked feasible. And it may be done. The matter was referred to the Executive, which will bring in a report next Monday.

When it was learned that Oshawa Rotarians were sending 6 poor boys, of the town to a camp for a month, then the local Club decided that really something would have to be done to hold up its end, and whatever that is will be performed.

It is proposed that the Rotary Club picnic, or jovial outing, will be held, likely at the time of one of the boys' camps and a fine afternoon spent. Members will go and be boys again. The ladies will also be asked to grace the occasion with their presence.

CENSUS ENUMERATOR LOSES WORK BY FIRE

BELLEVILLE, June 20.—Having just about concluded his duties, George McGie, of Stirling, suffered a double loss when his house and its contents were destroyed by fire. He was a census enumerator, and the returns he had compiled were burned, necessitating the work being done over again. The origin of the fire is not known. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

CHOLUS GIRLS OUT OF WORK

CHICAGO, June 15.—That army of curved and dimpled pulchritude known as chorus girls, is decidedly out of luck. The wave of economy now sweeping over the country has left, floundering in its wake, scores of beauties who formerly dazzled theatre audiences by their agility and other accomplishments.

Several shows in Chicago and other cities in the west have found it unprofitable to continue and have curtailed their engagements or abandoned their tours, with the result that many chorus girls and other employees find themselves stranded. And authority on the matter of destitute thespians says there are at least 200 chorus girls out of work in Chicago alone and that Milwaukee and other cities have their quota.

Most of them, it is said, are living as best they can at the cheapest restaurants and sleeping long hours. As one of them explained it: 'When you're asleep, you're not hungry." school doors closed behind them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir,—As a well wisher of the Peterborough Baseball Club, I should like to know whether there is any truth in the report that in the Oshawa game some of the Peterborough players who were in uniform but not in the game refused to obey Manager Solomon when he asked them to go out on the coaching line. If that is true, and I sincerely hope it is not, these men should be dismissed from the team without further thought. Indiscipline of that kind means just one thing, lack of the team spirit, without which a ball club or any other competitive organization cannot hope to win.

Yours truly,
BLEACHER.

THINK PIRATES ARE AFLOAT IN N. ATLANTIC

MESSAGE PICKED UP FROM CREW OF LOST SCHOONER CAUSES CREDENCE TO BE GIVEN THEORY.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS FATE OF MANY SHIPS

PORTLAND, Me., June 21. — (Canadian Press).—The theory that pirates are afloat in the North Atlantic has found credence here. The belief in this explanation of the fate of recently missing ships has grown with the establishment of the fact that a message picked up two months ago north of Cape Hatteras purporting to explain the disappearance of the crew of the five-masted schooner C. A. Deering, the mystery ship of Diamond Shoals, was written by Henry Bates, a member of the crew. The question of its genuineness was settled by handing experts who compared it with letters written by Bates. The message read, "Deering captured by oil-burning boat something like chaser. Taking off everything, handcuffing crew, crew hiding all over ship. No chance to make escape. Finder please notify Deering headquarters."

PUBLIC FAREWELL FUNCTION TO REV. FATHER C. J. PHELAN

CITY COUNCIL TAKES ACTION IN THIS REGARD---ASSUMES CAMPBELLFORD CHARGE IN FEW WEEKS.

That Rev. Father C. J. Phelan shall not leave the town without public testimony to his worth in this community as a citizen, apart from his clerical duties, was practically decided by the City Counil last evening, when on motion of Ald. Hamiltno and Whitehouse the reception committee were authorized to act with other bodies interested in preparing for a civic farewell function.

This question was raised by Ald. Turner, who extolled Father Phelan as a broad-minded citizen, deserving of the highest commendation for exemplary interest in all public matters affecting the weal of this community. He also referred in glowing terms to the reverend gentleman's interest in football and all clean sports, his activities on the Exhibition Board, the local Social Service Council and as President of the Children's Aid Society and of the Peterborough Health Association.

The City Fathers, who were in committee of the whole, were united in agreement with the sentiments expressed by Ald. Turner that in Rev. Father Phelan's removal to his new charge in Campbellford, effective July 17th, Peterborough will lose a citizen and priest who may possibly be raised to the highest position in the gift of his church.

PETERBORO DISTRICT GETS NEW MINISTERS

CHANGE MADE AT RECENT METHODIST CONFERENCE AT WHITBY

The Methodist Conference, known as the Bay of Quinte Conference, the annual meeting of which was held at Whitby Ladies' College, came to a close yesterday afternoon. The last day of the conference, which is usually devoted entirely to business, was relieved yesterday by an address of unusual interest delivered by Dr. Saleeby, a physician of world-wide note, who is chairman of the Executive Committee of the World's League Against Alcoholism. Dr. Saleeby's address dealt with great racial and national problems. It was a broad, scholarly, scientific discussion of the whole question of race betterment.

The final draft of the Stationing Committee was read at 2 o'clock, and the chairmen and other district officers were elected. The Conference consists of twelve districts, named after the leading centre in each. They are: Belleville, Napanee, Picton, Brighton, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Whitby, Cannington, Lindsay, Peterborough, Campbellford and Madoc.

The Rev. F. E. Malott was re-elected chairman of Peterborough District; Rev. J. F. Chapman, financial secretary; Rev. W. Harold Young, secretary of Social Service; Rev. J. E. Beckel, secretary of Religious Education, and Rev. S. T. Tucker, secretary of Education.

Three new men will come into the District this year. Rev. Richard M. Patterson is coming to Fraserville to take the place of Rev. M. W. Leigh, who goes to Enterprise; Rev. F. Gordon Weir, to Warsaw, in place of Rev. I. D. P. Knox, who is now stationed at Ameliasburg; and Rev. I. F. Ireland, who is appointed to Wesley Circuit.

INCREASED RAILWAY COAL DEMAND TO CUT INTO SUPPLY NEXT WINTER

OTTAWA, June 21. — (Canadian Press).—C. R. Moore, superintendent of car service for the Grand Trunk, this morning made some serious statements before the Railway Commissioners here to-day about the prospective shortage of coal for next winter.

Basing his remarks on actual figures, he showed that for the first five months of the year Canada imported from the United States 336,000 less tons of coal than in the same period a year ago. Moreover, last winter proved very mild and the snowploughs of the G. T. R. were hardly in use once during the entire season.

Mr. Moore added that Canada was confronted with one of the greatest crops of all kinds in the history of the country. A vast amount of railway equipment would be required in the West for moving the crop to the East. All this would require importation of extra railway coal.

MOTHER SLAYS CHILD OF TWO WITH A KNIFE

WOMAN NEAR ST. THOMAS KILLS SON AND THEN ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE BY CUTTING THROAT.

HAD BEEN IN POOR HEALTH SOME TIME

ST. THOMAS, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—A terrible tragedy occurred yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Charles McCallum, living at Black's Lane, Aldborough Township, near Rodiny, killed her two-year-old son with a butcher knife, and then attempted to take her own life by slashing her throat. The windpipe was completely severed, and she lies in a very critical condition, with slight hope held out for her recovery.

Mrs. McCallum has been in poor health for some time, and preparations were being made to send her to an institution for treatment. She is well-known throughout the district, being a life-long resident. A few years ago her little daughter was killed when stepped on by a cow, and another son died overseas from influenza. The loss of the children apparently affected her health, and she gradually grew worse.

FUND FOR BLIND

Three contributions to the Fund for the Canadian Institute for the Blind were received by the Examiner to-day. They were as follows: $5 from a Friend, 85 cents from another Friend and $1 from One Who is Thankful for Good Eyesight. With Mr. Andrew Brown's donation of $25 yesterday this makes the total this afternoon only $33.85. It was confidently felt that urban and rural Peterborough would have no difficulty in raising the alloted sum of $2,500, approximately ten cents a head. If the people would all give something according to their means this fund would soon be filled. The sense of loyalty to a Canadian institution that is performing a great public good should make this modest campaign a success.

TAKE STEPS TO INSURE SAFETY OF SOVEREIGNS

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS IN BELFAST TO PROTECT KING AND QUEEN AT PARLIAMENT OPENING.

EARL OF BANDON IS KIDNAPPED IN CORK

LONDON, June 21. — (Canadian Press). — King George and Queen Mary prepared this morning to leave for a port on the Irish Sea, where they will to-night go on board a steamer which will take them to Belfast, in which city they will preside to-morrow at the State opening of the Parliament of Northern Ireland.

Elaborate precautions are being taken by the police and Crown forces in Belfast to ensure the safety of the King and Queen while they are in that city.

Their Majesties will face a strenuous round of functions to-morrow, for, in addition to opening Parliament, they will be called upon to preside at a levee at Ulster Hall, where the King will confer honors upon a number of prominent Irishmen.

The confirmation of a rumor that the Sinn Fein will make a peace offer is as yet lacking.

CORK, June 21. — (Canadian Press). — James Francis Bernard, fourth Earl of Bandon, was kidnapped this morning from his residence in Bantry, County Cork, by a band of armed men. Castle Bernard, his home, was set afire, and early this afternoon was still burning. His whereabouts are unknown.

The Earl is seventy-one years of age, and has been King's Lieutenant of County Cork for many years. He is owner of about forty-one thousand acres of land.

20 FAMILIES ARE HOMELESS IN FIRE

$30,000 LOSS WHEN MONTREAL BUILDING BURNS—FIREMEN HURT BY FALLING WALL.

MONTREAL, June 21 (Canadian Press).—Twenty families were driven from their homes early this morning when fire broke out in a house under construction here.

The damage is estimated at $30,000.

Several firemen were slightly injured by a falling wall.

Owing to the high wind the fire was difficult to fight, and the firemen were obliged to turn in a second alarm, bringing out all the men and apparatus from the Northern, Eastern, and part of the Centre Divisions.

JURY FINDS NEGLIGENT DRIVING AND DAMAGES OF $300 AWARDED

After being out for two hours the jury in the case of McQuigge vs. John Hunter in the June sittings of the County Court yesterday afternoon found negligence on the part of the defendant and awarded damages of $300 to the plaintiff.

Mrs. Cora McQuigge of Havelock in this action claimed $2,000 for injuries suffered in a motor car accident in Asphodel Township on October 13, 1920, caused, it was alleged, by speedy driving of defendant's car.

The case opened on Saturday and considerable evidence was given by both sides. Evidence was adduced that Mrs. McQuigge was returning from the Norwood Fair to Havelock when Hunter's car was met near Logan's Hill on Havelock road. Defence claimed that Hunter failed to stop at a wide part of the road, but came straight on, heedless of the narrowness of the road, and a collision occurred, in which Mrs. McQuigge was severely cut about the face by glass from the windshield. There was considerable medical testimony in the case; Dr. Holdcroft, who was called by the plaintiff, gave testimony of the injuries and the repairs to the lacerations, and Dr. Young and Dr. Frederick testified that the doctor's operation was beyond reproach.

The questions given to the jury by His Honour with the jury's answers were:

1.—Were the damages to the plaintiff caused by the negligence of the defendant?

Answer—Yes.

2.—If so, in what did such negligence consist?

Answer—By not stopping in wide part of the road.

3.—If defendant was negligent, could plaintiff by reasonable and ordinary care have avoided the accident?

Answer—No.

4.—If so, what could or should she have done to avoid it?

Answer—Nothing.

5.—What amount of damages do you award the plaintiff, if any?

Answer—$300.00.

S. T. Medd appeared for the plaintiff in this action. Gordon & O'Brien represented defendant.

With the conclusion of this case, Judge Huycke and a jury settled the last of the jury cases for this sitting of the court. The jury cases all arose over automobile accidents.

The jury that heard the case was as follows:

Albert Tennyson, Peterborough; Daniel Sedgwick, Monaghan; Joseph Doran (farmer), Ennismore; Ernest A. Scott (farmer), Smith; Edward Hickey, Peterborough; W. J. Nixon, Peterborough; Robert Hoskin, Peterborough; Albert Hendren (farmer), Dummer; Charles McColl (farmer), Smith; Percy W. Elliot (farmer), Dummer; John A. Murphy (farmer), Smith; George Wilson (farmer), Foreman, Douro.

CONDITIONS IN BRITAIN STILL ARE IN CHAOS

SOME MINERS RETURN BUT NO GENERAL DRIFT YET—A FEW LEADERS CAST ABOUT FOR PEACE OPENING.

AWAIT THE TEST OF GENERAL STRIKE CALL

LONDON, June 21. — (Canadian Press).—Although some of the collieries have re-opened and a considerable number of miners have reported for work, there has been no general drift back to the mines.

The industrial situation continues as chaotic as ever, awaiting the test of the miners' call for a general strike of unions threatened with wage reductions. Some of the miners' leaders, doubting that their policy will receive endorsement, are said to be casting about to find fresh openings for peace talks, but no definite move has been disclosed as yet. Endeavors to stop the men from returning to work and to defer action until they know the results of the appeal to other unions have been successful to some extent, reports showing that many miners were persuaded or otherwise prevented from going to work yesterday.

The principal movements back to the mines occurred in Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire and Staffordshire. Apparently, the Scotch, Welsh and North Country miners are standing firm.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

4602 Brush Street, Detroit, Mich.,
18th June, 1921.

Editor of The Evening Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont., Canada.

Sir,—I live a long way from Peterborough, but have been exceedingly interested in the communications to The Examiner on "What is Peterborough's Greatest Need?"

F. H. Dobbin said in your issue of 14th June that the first need is two hundred five-room houses, and if Peterborough is like practically every other town in Canada and the United States that is true. For what shall it profit a city if it attract to itself many industries and spend its money on public improvements, if is citizens are forced to live in squalor or can find no place at all to live? That is not true prosperity.

Mr. Dobbin lays much of the blame for lack of housing facilities on the taxes, and tells us not to blame the landlord; and again he spoke the truth. We cry out that we must have more houses and then penalise every man who attempts to build one by taxing him in accordance with the money and effort he puts into this badly needed enterprise.

As long as we follow this stupid method, there will only be one possible solution for the problem, the one Mr. Dobbin suggests, that the municipality go into the business of constructing houses. But is that a real solution? I do not think so. Suppose Peterborough overcomes its objections to so Socialistic an activity and spends its public tax money on the construction of a number of houses on any street or block. What will be the inevitable result? The land values on all adjoining streets will rise at once, as any real estate man will tell you. And then the city or any individual who wishes to build on these streets will first have to pay an increased sum for the privilege of getting at the land for this purpose. And so on for ever—the situation getting worse all the time.

The fact must be recognised that taxing houses makes them scarcer and more expensive, while taxing land values makes land cheaper and more readily available for the man who really wants to use it for useful purposes. This is nice for everyone but the land speculator, who does not want to use the land or let anyone else use it until he has succeeded in forcing him to pay an unerned profit. This is world-wide problem.

The only real and permanent remedy would seem to be the relief of buildings and other improvements, such as factories, from taxation, and a shifting of a larger share of the taxes to the land values of a community, which after all are the creation and property of the community, which cannot carry on its programme of growth and improvement without automatically increasing these values to the benefit of the few, but at the expense of the many.

Nor is this remedy a thing to be feared or questioned on the ground of its being a rash and untried nostrum. This method of taxation is becoming increasingly popular in the Canadian West. It is as simple and useful as daylight. Lord Robert Cecil said in the British House of Commons in 1909:

"I do not think that anyone would suggest that the alterations (in taxation) from improved value to site value is Socialism, or any extravagant or novel proposition."

And yet it seems to be an unwelcome idea to some, whether because they are unwilling to think it through, or because they would rather see the public expenses paid by those engaged in useful production rather than by those who benefit by the perpetual income from and increase in the value of land, of the earth itself, on which we all must live, however high the price charged us for so doing.

Respectfully yours,

A. H. Jenkins.

Deferment of Increase in Water Rates Until January, 1922, Advice of City Council to the Utilities

50 YEARS MARRIED

A delightful reception was held yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collins, who celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

The house was beautifully decorated with roses, carnations orchids, marigolds, canterbury bells, and many other lovely flowers. Telegrams were received from members of the family and friends who were unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins were the recipients of several handsome presents. Friends rejoiced to see them in such good health and spirits.

BERLIN, June 21. — (Canadian Press).—Sixty-eight men were killed and seventy-three others injured through an explosion, due to fire damp, which destroyed a great part of the Mont Cenis Mine, near Herne, Westphalia, yesterday.

Three hundred men were in the mine when the disaster occurred.

MOTION OF ALD. TURNER AND WHITEHOUSE DECLARES SHRINKAGE OF OPERATING EXPENSES AND ADDITIONAL $11,000 CHARGED TO CITY FOR FIRE PROTECTION, ETC., WILL COVER DEFICIT AND INTEREST CHARGES ON FILITRATION PLANT DEBENTURES.

SAY INDEPENDENT AUDIT NOT NEEDED THEN

That the 80 per cent increase in water rates, advertised in the Examiner on June 17th, as going into effect on July first, is not warranted by conditions, was the assertion made by Ald. J. J. Turner in Committee of the Whole Council last night. And he figured it this way:

The $6,000 deficit in waterworks operations last year will be liquidated by reduced expenses this year, while their $10,500 interest charges on debentures for the filtration plant is already covered by the $11,000 additional charged the city for fire protection, etc. Ald. Turner said he had this information from reliable and authentic authority, inadvertently overlooked by the Commissioners, he supposed, who, no doubt, in their attention being drawn to these points would see that the 80 per cent increased rates is not necessary this year while in 1922 conditions may be relieved by further decreased cost of operations.

In support of his declaration that this year reduced operating expenses will take care of last year's reficit of $6,000, Ald. Turner quoted the Commissioners at the public meeting as admitting a saving in 5 months of $4,000 and he inferred that one might reasonably hope on that basis of reduced expenses for the remaining $2,000 to be liquidated by the end of the year.

Citizens' Resolution.

The above statements followed the tabling of the resolution demanding an independent audit of the Utilities Commission's books passed at the meeting of ratepayers last Friday night.

Ald. Whitehouse thought it might be as well to ask the people if they are on favor of an independent audit which would cost money.

Ald. Hay—"Just what are you going to ask the people? How do we know what an independent audit would cost? $500 or $5,000? Besides it's something broader than an audit which is needed—an expert's opinion as to the cost of operations and water, etc."

Ald. Gainey—"The Utilities Department should pay for such an audit; it is not up to the city. An accountant might have to audit away back for ten years.

Ald. Hamilton thought a chartered accountant could ascertain in a few days what water is costing today. That would not be such an expensive task.

Justify their Action

Ald. Turner—Let Council send in this statement of mine, which is authoritative; and ask that the commissioners postpone their increased tariff. If the statement is correct, then there is no need for an independent audit. They certainly must justify their action, in any event, if shown that their financing is wrong.

Ald. Phelan —"In the proposed plan of issuing debentures for 10 years with the option of renewing for another 20 years the Commissioners do not have to create a sinking fund for 10 years; therefore no sinking fund has to be provided for out of this years rates."

On motion of Ald Turner and Whitehouse, the Commissioners will be written that in the opinion of this Council the independent audit of their books asked for at the public meeting is not necessary because their deficit last year is being taken care of by a shrinkage in operating expenses (as outlined by Ald. Turner), and Council in paying $11,000 additional this year for fire protection, etc., is taking care of the Commissioners' interest, we believe if action re increasing water rates is deferred till January first, 1922, when new adjustments will be made the citizens will not press for an independent audit.

MOVE TO REDUCE OFFICE STAFF FOR HUNTER ST. BRIDGE

GRANITE CHIPPING MAY RUN THROUGH JULY—SOME OF THIS WORK WASTE OF MONEY, DECLARES ALD. GORDON.

Council's Committee of the whole, last night, on motion of Ald. Jones and Phelan, instructed the bridge committee to consider and report on the question of reducing the office staff on the Hunter street bridge construction, now nearing its finish.

In discussing how many workmen are yet to be retained, Ald Hamilton, chairman of the bridge committee, said the granite chipping would be finished in July.

Ald. Gordon—"Most of the money spent for chipping outside the north of the structure is money thrown away. Scarcely any person but the small boy, in bathing, will enjoy its beauty of surface.

Ald. Phelan thought Alex. Elliott, the City's bridge accountant, should be retained in office until the wrok is actually completed.

Ald. Crowe seemed to think that Graham and Haley of the office staff are no longer needed, and that Christie alone could look after the remaining construction work until completed.

Ald. Whitehouse pointed out that when taking the contract Russell-Townsend Companwy were to turn the bridge over to the city complete in structure, whereas the board of works had been called on to do the grading work. If this is charged up against the board appropriations, he would not be responsible for any overdraft carried by his committee.

Ald. Whitehouse was assured this work would be charged up against the bridge.

Ald. Jones reminded committee that the only office man for bridge construction under the city's jurisdiction is Alex. Elliott; and his motion, seconded by Ald. Phelan that the bridge committee meet Mr. Townsend and report on the question of reducing the office staff.—Carried.

Ald. Crowe would have committee notify Mr. Elliott that his services will not be needed after August first, but this did not go through Playgrounds' Grant.

The Board of Education's grant of $1500 to the Playgrounds Association not being legal in regard to the whole amount, as the board under the law, can only vote a grant to the association "for equipment", Ald Turner moved that the educational board change their grant to $750 for equipment, and that the city vote another $750 for other purposes than equipment. This carried. Ald. Turner explained that the Association only neds $750 for equipment, but they also require $750 to meet other expenses such as salaries of supervisors already engaged. Hence his action in this matter. They are also raising another $500 for general purposes by public subscription.

SUGAR STILL DROPS

Less than Half its Price as at July 1920, and Going Lower Still.

MONTREAL, June 20. — Another substantial reduction in the price of sugar may be expected this week if merchants pass on the decrease of half a cent a pound made by refiners on Saturday. All the large wholesale houses said this morning that they were prepared to sell at the new price of 9 1-4c a pound with 5c a bag extra for delivery. Sugar is now less than half its price last July, when it was as high as 23c a pound retail and the refiners were asking over 21c.

Lowell Sherman, wonderful screen "heavy," remembered in "Gilded Lady" and "Way Down East," will play in Mack Sennett's drama, "Molly O."

SINN FEIN TO MAKE A PEACE OFFER, REPORT

RUMORED THEY WILL MAKE KING'S VISIT THE OCCASION —OFFICER BRUTALLY MURDERED BEFORE GIRL.

SEVERAL MEN SHOT

LONDON, June 20. —(Canadian Press.)—The Parliamentary correspondent of the Central News says that a remarkable rumor is current that the Sinn Fein intends to signalize the King's visit to Belfast for the formal opening of the Ulster Parliament, by making a proffer of peace to His Majesty.

DUBLIN, June 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Second Lieutenant Breeze of the Worcestershire Regiment, was taken from the automobile in which he was riding Sunday near Dublin, accompanied by three young women, and shot to death.

The car in which Breeze and his companions were motoring was held up by armed men, who shot and badly wounded the lieutenant. Leaving two of the women by the raodside, the miscreants forced the third young woman to drive them with the officer into the Dublin hills, where they stood Breeze up against a wall and shot him to death.

The bodies of three military officers who were kidnapped Sunday while out walking near Fethard, County Tipperary, were found yesterday near Clonmel. It is officially reported the bodies bore a number of bullet and shot gun wounds, and that each man had been blindfolded before he was killed.

A soldier was shot dead Sunday in Carrick. At Rathcormack, County Cork, two civilians who failed to halt when challenged, were shot and killed.

Col. Lambert, in command of the brigade at Athlone, was fatally shot last night at Moydrum.

THIS YEAR TO-DAY IS LONGEST DAY, THOUGH CONTRARY TO WIDE BELIEF IT IS NOT ALWAYS SO

TORONTO, Ont. June 21.—(By Canadian Press)— Popular to-day June 21, is the longest day of the year. Technically it is actually so, though only by a margin of a few seconds. As a matter of fact the longest day sometimes falls on June 22. The almanac compilers thus describe it.

June 21. Sun enters the sign of Cancer (Summer Solstice 23h. 36m. —or in other words at 24 minutes to midnight.

It is all made perfectly clear by the following scientific explanation Though there is but slight difference in the length of the interval between sunrise and sunset on the days about June 21, there is in general one of these days which is a few seconds longer than any other. This is the day on which the Summer Solstice falls, and at the end of a century is June 20 or 21, whist at the beginning it is a day later, and June 21 or 22 is the longest day. The reason for this difference in date may be briefly stated. Because the Tropical Year is not an integral number of days the solstice falls later in the calendar year by year by six hours nearly It is not permitted to be very late because the intercalation of the extra day in leap year brings it back one whole day. This whole day is too much, because the solstice is later yearly by not quite six hours, and hence, on the whole, it falls earlier in the calendar year as the century progresses and the dates of the longest day at the beginning and end are as stated. In this year it happens that the solstice occurs only 24 minutes before midnight of June 21, and the difference in length of the two days is scarcely appreciable.

This acceleration of the date during the century is corrected by the omission of the intercalary day in the centennial year, which puts the date a day later. But this does more than is necessary, and a further compensation is made by making the fourth centennial year a leap year.

U.S. IMMIGRATION SERVICE WATCHES CANADIAN BORDER

FEAR ATTEMPTS TO EVADE PORT OFFICERS BY TRAVELLING VIA CANADA.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—The United States Immigration Service plans to increase its force of inspectors along the border between this country and Canada. It was stated by high officials of the service to-day that this step would be taken. The reason for it grows out of the enactment of the new emergency immigration restriction law, which heavily curtails immigration from Europe and some other parts of the Old World. Enforcement of this law is putting a heavy burden on the Immigration Service.

While the new law has almost nothing to do directly with immigration from Canada and imposes no restrictions on arrivals from the Dominion additional to the old law, it is a fact that inasmuch as many thousands of persons in Europe who would like to enter the U. S. will be shut out from direct admission, there is certain to be a tendancy to try and enter by indirection through Canada and Mexico. This tendancy is already marked, in fact.

In the case of Mexico, by reason of the unsettled conditions and the lax enforcement of law, great numbers of persons from Europe are arriving there and seeking to cross into the U. S. secretly. Many have been apprehended and deported, but the trouble has only begun.

With respect to Canada, the new law makes provisions under which aliens from the countries covered by the law—not Canada, because that country is not included, in the restrictions—who have lived in Canada under one year and desire to enter the U. S., are taken account of in making up the quotas from their respective nations. There will be no difficulty about this. The real difficulty will be that many immigrants, it is expected, will try to enter Canada with the object of ultimately finding their way into the U. S. The immigration officials have already apprehended some persons who have tried this plan. However, the difficulties are by no means as great as in dealing with Mexico, for the reason that this country has inspectors at the Canadian ports, such as Montreal and Quebec, and for the reason Canada itself has strong immigration laws.

Nevertheless, increasing pressure on both the Canadian and Mexican borders to enter the U. S. is certain, and more inspectors will be necessary to watch over the border if the attempt at restriction is to succeed.

The new law provides that immigration from any of the European countries and from Africa, Australia and Southwest Asia shall be limited to 3 per cent. of the number of natives of each such countries in any fiscal year, the number of residents to be set by the 1910 census. It has been in effect less than a month. It has caused great confusion and congestion at Ellis Island, New York and other leading immigration stations on the Atlantic coast for the reason that the steamship companies, in some cases, have brought over large numbers of immigrants in excess of the quotas allowed by law. Thousands of these people have been detained, with the result that appeals to allow them to come in are flooding the Immigration Service. The House Immigration Committee has taken the subject up, and some of its members have charged the steamship companies with internationally ignoring the law and bringing over immigrants—or would-be immigrants—on what one Congressman described as "a gamble that they will be admitted." It is probable that this procedure, which has caused great suffering and confusion at Ellis Island and elsewhere, will soon be checked and the law soon set to running smoothly. Demands are going in Congess, in fact, to provide by laws for severe penalties against the steamship companies that bring over migrating passengers in numbers obviously in excess of the allowed quota.

There is a wide difference in the view here about the wisdom of the new restriction law. Not a few students of the proposition declare it is shortsighted and that it is going to result in giving Canada great numbers of desirable citizens, developing the Canadian northwest more rapidly and hurting the U. S. by shutting out people who would in time make good and industrious citizens.

VENETIAN TOUCH TO CAMPBELLFORD CONCERT ON RIVER

CITIZENS ENJOYED PROGRAM OF MUSIC PLAYED BY THE TOWN BAND FROM NEW SCOW IN MIDSTREAM — A. H. M'KEEL AND R. T. COWELL GAVE PEOPLE A TREAT.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 21.J The people of Campbellford were greatly pleased on Monday evening when Mr. A. H. McKeel took the entire band, under the able leadership of Mr. Cowell, out upon the river. To do this he used the new scow which he has built for purposes of transportation through the canal this season and towed the scow with his beautiful forty-foot yacht. The boats anchored in mid-stream and the band proceeded to render a concert which was gratefully received. The bridge and banks were thronged with eager listeners and the music sounded mellow coming in over the water. The river was also doted with other motor boats and pleasure craft. Mr. McKeel and Mr. Cowell are certainly deserving of hearty thanks for the concert so excellently rendered.

Mr. Runnals of the Upper Canada Bible Society, then gave a very interesting and instructive address on the work of the Bible Society in the Gaspe Peninsula, in Quebec, Northern Ontario, the Indians and in the foreign districts of the west. The speaker in a few general remarks showed how the Bible Society is today bringing the world together and how it helps governments in matters of education. The people of Africa are to-day clamoring for God's word. The Bible Society is the right hand of the missionary. For every dollar given to missions, 10c. is needed to furnish Bibles for the missionary's use. The opportunities of the Bible Society are unparallelled. The circulation of Bibles in Europe is now five times greater than before the war. In Canada to-day the Bible is printed and read in 110 different languages. The speaker showed the difficulties of the colporteurs in Quebec and Gaspe due to the poor roads. The lecture was nicely illustrated by lantern views and at the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks, voted by Rev. C. E. Clarke and seconded by Rev. H. S. Bennett, was tendered Mr. Runnalls for his most helpful address. After a few brief remarks by the president-elect, Rev. Mr. Clark, the meeting was dismissed.

They were Milton Hudson, Robert Trammel, William Stragin, negroes, and Steve Schiop, a foreigner. It was the first time in many years four men paid the death penalty in Pennsylvania for the same crime.

Friendly Co-operation With U.S. is Cardinal Principle in Dealings

THIS, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE, MUST INFLUENCE ATTITUDE TOWARD RENEWAL OF ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE—RE-AFFIRMED HEIGHTENED CONSTITUTIONAL STATUS OF DOMINIONS.

WILLING TO CONSIDER DISARMAMENT

(By GRATTAN O'LEARY, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 21.—A memorable speech by Lloyd George yesterday set the Imperial Conference in motion. The British Premier, who, according to those who heard him, created a profound impression, struck two dominant notes. He made it clear that in considering the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance the position of the United States will be a salient factor and he reaffirmed with the greatest possible emphasis that the Motherland whole heartedly welcomes the heightened constitutional status of the Dominions. "We look confidently to the Government and people of the United States for sympathy and understanding, "He said, dealing with the Japanese Alliance, and then added:

"Friendly co-operation with the United States is for us a cardinal principle, dictated by what seems to us the proper nature of things; dictated by instinct quite as much as by reason and common sense. We desire to work with the great republic in all parts of the world. Like it, we desire to avoid the growth of armaments whether in the Pacific or elsewhere, and we rejoice that American opinion is showing so much earnestness in that direction at the present time. We are ready to discuss with American statesmen any proposal for limitation of armaments which they may wish to set out, and we can undertake that no such overtures will find lack of willingness on our part to meet them."

This passage in the Prime Minister's speech, may well be taken as the first step toward the possibility of a British Empire—American—Japanese conference to deal with the limitation of armaments in general and the problems of the Pacific in particular.

WHAT WOULD MILTON HAVE SAID OF THE INSTITUTE FOR THE BLIND?

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL INSTITUTE GIVES HOPE TO THE ONCE HOPELESS AND TASKS TO THE ONCE HELPLESS.

Our readers will agree with us that no apology is needed for a word here in favor of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

For a moment's thought and a little imagination, are enough to remind us all that no cause could be worthier of help and sympathy, from us and from them; since no class of suffering people are more deserving of sympathy and respect.

We may add that no organization in the world can be compared, in enlightened ambition and practical sympathy with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind

The war has indeed lamentably increased the number of sufferers from the most dreadful of all afflictions.

But, while the Institute devotes the tenderest care to the assistance of the blind heroes, it does not confine its efforts to them. It deals with the blind as blind, wherever they may be found and whatever they may be.

Teaches Blind Children.

It rears and teaches the blind child who in the old days would have been left to grow up nearly impotent for all the practical purposes of life. It trains the groping fingers to find their way to useful work, and by so doing it develops the thwarted brain. It takes the grown man or woman and helps him or her to be useful in many professions and trades. It trains poultry farmers, mechanics, masseurs, handicraftsmen. But as a preliminary to this, in the cases of those born blind, it guides and teaches to read—and so to think—all who were once doomed to wander in darkness "irrecoverable."

And all this it does by direct precept or imitable method, for all men all over the world. Its technique and system are a model for all analogous institutions.

But what would the greatest of blind Englishmen, what would Milton, have said, of this beneficent labour of restoring the helpless to self-help?

When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with my useless . . .

No! To-day, no longer "useless." It is the glory of the Canadian National Institute that in these times it gives hope to the once hopeless, tasks to the once helpless; that, within its means, it draws use out of the once "useless" child or man or woman.

To-day, therefore, in good hope, we beg our generous readers to enlarge those means, to increase that power for help ,and by subscribing liberally to the Institute, to enable it still further to "lighten the darkness" of those whose only fault is their handicap.

Instructs and Consoles.

Besides instructing, it consoles, besides teaching, it delights. It gives the blind reader his Moon or Braille type, and a library of the world's great books. It gives the blind musician his scores. To the useful work it adds the pleasures of art, without which life loses its very essence.

Through this devoted effort alone, "music"—in the full sense used by the Greeks—comes to add recreation to the labours of the blind.

IF NO UNFAVORABLE DEVELOPMENTS IT WILL EXCEED 300,000,000 BUSHELS.

OTTAWA, June 21.— (Canadian Press).— Conditions through the Dominion are being watched very closely by the Agricultural Department. If there are no unfavorable developments, a crop of three hundred million bushels of wheat is anticipated, which even at an average of $1.25 would bring in over four hundred million dollars.

G.W.V.A. BAND GETS NEW BLUE UNIFORMS

The G. W. V. A. Band has reverted to its original identity after a temporary dual service with the Veterans and the 4th Machine Gun Brigade. The Examiner was informed to-day that the connection with the 4th Machine Gun Brigade has been definitely severed. The G.W.V.A. has ordered new uniforms, which will be here in plenty of time for the annual Decoration Day ceremony at the Little Lake cemetery on Sunday, July 3rd, and at St. Peter's cemetery on the following Sunday. The uniforms are a navy blue broadcloth with red neck band and gold braid. The caps have already arrived.

Bandmaster Perryer has a strong organization under his direction and it is understood that the Veterans now designate it as the G.W.V.A. Citizens' Band.

LONDON HAS 'SUNBURN DAY'

Air Cleared by Lack of Coal and Populace Suffers.

LONDON, May 24.—(By Mail.)M Whit-Monday was sunburn day in London, says the London Times. It was the most severe for at least fifty years, for, thanks to the coal stoppage and the holiday combined, the London atmosphere had become so clear of smoke that the burning rays of the sun—the so-called violet and ultra-violet rays—were no longer filtered out. You could get a good, honest sunburn in Bond street or Piccadilly.

It is an interesting scientific curiosity, and, in these days of smokeless atmosphere, worth knowing about—if one wishes to avoid red arms and face—London normally is quite safe from sunburn simply because the burning rays, which are invisible and occur at the "violet" or rather "ultra-violet" end of the spectrum, are shut out by the smoke in the city asmosphere. In the country they are not shut out, and so the town dweller soon has his pale face reddened and then tanned when he goes outside the city borders.

A great many girls got quite severe sunburns in London, and were astonished thereby. They had never experienced such a thing before. Some men, too, complained of smarting faces, "like the first day at the seaside."

TO BE SHOT THRICE HE ESCAPED FINALLY

WARSAW, June 21. — Three different times Captain Merion Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., while in a Bolshevik prisoners' camp in Russia for nine months, was notified that he was to be shot at sunrise. Then, for hours preceding the time set for the supposed execution, Cooper was grilled by Soviet authorities, who pretended to believe that he was a representative of the American Government. When the hour of execution came round, no Bolsheviki appeared, but Cooper was never notified otherwise, being left in suspense day after day until he escaped.

A FORLORN HOPE.

If the British miners were to succeed in their endeavors to launch a general strike to force a nationalization of the mines, the result in industrial and business circles would be disastrous. They are negotiating with unions whose membership totals nearly five million workers, seeking their aid in a sympathetic strike on behalf of the miners, but fortunately for Great Britain their desperate attempt to tie up the industrial activities of the nation are doomed to failure. Indeed it is to be wondered at that the leaders of the miners should have undertaken such an enterprise in view of the fact that their first move in this direction was a flat failure, and conditions are such now that the chances for success are infinitely less than they were at the beginning of the present trouble. The finances of other unions are close to exhaustion, and the members have no desire to risk starvation to help the miners. It is a forlorn hope, this general strike plan, and is a failure before it has even been fairly begun.

A COMMUNITY LOSS.

It was with a distinct sense of loss that the citizens of Peterborough learned of the fact that Rev. Father Phelan is shortly to leave the city to become parish priest at Campbellford. In many activities Rev. Father Phelan will be missed, for few citizens have done so much in the public interest. He has been always ready to help along every good cause and has never failed to respond to a call upon his services. For the second year he is president of the Children's Aid Society, while he is also president of the Peterborough Health Association, and further proof of the many-sided nature of his interest in public affairs is shown by the fact that he is honourary president of the Peterborough Athletic Association, honourary president of the Peterborough Football Association, an honourary director of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and a member of the finance committee of the Citizens' Memorial Fund and of the Social Service committee of the Chamber of Commerce. He has been a friend and patron of the various branches of athletic sports, particularly of lacrosse, a game in which, in his younger days, he ranked as one of the ablest local exponents. No citizen of Peterborough has been more consistently active on behalf of the community than has Rev. Father Phelan, and regardless of class or creed, the people generally will regret his departure and look upon his going as a blow to Peterborough. Of his work as rector at St. Peter's it is not necessary to speak in these columns, for the regard in which he is held by his parishioners is too well known to need any reference, but the Examiner desires to voice the appreciation of the community of Rev. Father Phelan as a citizen rather than as a priest. Recently a representative gathering of citizens helped celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the priesthood. The hearty tributes that were paid to him on that occasion formed an eloquent testimony to the value placed upon Rev. Father Phelan's services and now that it is known that he is soon to depart from the community in which he is so greatly esteemed, the people of Peterborough will even more keenly appreciate the asset that he has been. Campbellford is to be congratulated that his enthusiasm and energy and interest in his fellow citizens are to be available, while Peterborough can ill afford to lose such a citizen.

"STICKING THE GOVERNMENT."

The other day at Ottawa a man named Robinson, formerly a captain in the Canadian Army, and a Government employee, was tried on charges of "grafting" large sums of money from the Department of Militia and Defence. Although there was little doubt of the conclusiveness of the evidence implying Robinson's guilt, a jury acquitted him. The outcome of the case has caused a good deal of a sensation in the east, largely through the remarks of Judge Gunn to the jury after the verdict had been brought in. The finding of the jury, said the Judge, dealt "a cowardly blow, an assassin's blow to the administration of justice in Canada." He had no hesitation in telling them that they had violated their oaths. Serious as was the offence of Robinson, he considered it a lesser one than that of the jury in voting for his acquittal. "I would rather be in your shoes, Robinson," said the Judge, "with the awfulness of the consequences of that charge, disposed of in that way, than in the shoes of one of that jury that acquitted you."

A reading of the case indicates that Robinson was acquitted on sentimental grounds, and sentiment of a queer order. The jury appears to have gone on the theory that there is nothing much wrong in stealing from the Government—if you can get away with it. This fits in rather neatly with the viewpoint of a good many people that the Government is fair prey. It has the money, it can get more, it will never miss it, it is careless with its money at the best.

It is bad enough for an individual who proposes to do some stealing either directly or through a contract or by loafing on the job or by means of any of the half-dozen ways that are used to "stick the Government" to go forward on the assumption that it is all right to fleece the State, but how about the minds of twelve taxpayers who condone stealing from themselves and from their neighbours? For that is precisely what it is. Every cent the Government has, comes from the people. When the Government is 'stuck," the taxpayers themselves are "stuck." Governments have no magic way of picking revenue out of the air. This is so elementary a principle that everyone should know its exact working. But events show otherwise. —Manitoba Free Press.

THE WEEK-DAY CHURCH.

The biographers of Premier Lloyd George lay stress on the strict Sabbatarianism of his early training. They record that he was brought up by a relative who demanded of his charge the fulfillment of the decalogue to the strictest letter and held strong views on Hell, damnation, and original sin. These influences of his boyhood years have left an indelible mark on his character, and they have been a potent factor in moulding his course of action throughout his career.

These influences and their reflexes on his character must, therefore, be taken into account when the Premier speaks on matters of church discipline and church practice. As Prime Minister he speaks from his head with an eye to political effect, and in words that are tinged with experience and tradition. As a regular worshipper in the church of his boyhood he speaks from the heart.

It is important to recognise this distinction in reading the speech made by Mr. Lloyd-George to the General Assembly of the Calvinistic Methodists of Wales. As if to emphasise the difference between Premier and Lay Reader, Mr. Lloyd-George speaks to the Assembly in Welsh, the tongue which he must seldom hear save when he is among his own people and in his own place of worship.

At the Assembly the Premier is reported to have declared that the "great controversies of the future would rage around the relations of Capital and Labour and how to create and how to distribute wealth. Once they introduced the debate upon these into the churches they would inevitably divide and destroy the churches for the greater purposes for which they ought to exist." What those greater purposes are the Premier does not seem to have told his hearers, but it is a fair inference from his remarks that it would be unwise to discuss the great economic and social questions of the day in the churches, lest rivalries and antagonisms should arise within the fold, creating dissension and schisms.

The idea is not a new one. There are thousands of people who would say Amen to such a faith, and the view has developed with increasing force in the recent centuries. Yet, to many laymen, in this doctrine seems to lie the chief weakness of Christianity to-day. The church to millions of people, of many different creeds, is a thing apart from the ordinary everyday life of the individual. It is a Sunday Church, and not a Monday Church.

There has been much criticism directed against the Christian Church in recent years because of its failure to give the nation a lead during times of crisis. In the days of the great Hebrew prophets and in the days of the primitive Christian Church there was no such separation. Going to war, the levying of tribute and big schemes of migration and colonisation were the concern of the leaders of the people—the priests of the Lord. In Messianic times civil and family disputes were brought before the Rabbis for adjudication, and the questions of the day were dsicussed in the Temple.

Many persons hold the strongest conviction that the Church to-day is neglecting her tremendous responsibility of giving a lead to the nations of the world on the chief economic and industrial questions of the day. If, as Mr. Lloyd-George says, the great controversies of the future will rage around Labour and Capital and the distribution of wealth, then it is high time that the Church prove her usefulness and take er rightful place as the leading spiritual power in the world.

Whatever concerns the daily life of the people should be the concern of the Churches and the greater the question and the more widespread their influence the greater the responsibility of the Church.

The nations demands leadership from the Churches to-day, and not seclusion.—Montreal Star.

ATLANTA, June 17. — Proposals for the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to select some central city for a permanent convention, has failed of approval at the convention here, the sentiment seeming to favor meetings in different cities.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTION SEEN AS INEVITABLE SOCIAL CATACLYSM

PROFESSOR ROSS TELLS IMPARTIAL STORY OF EVENTS FROM FALL OF CZAR TO RISE OF LENINE IN HISTORY THAT READS LIKE A ROMANCE.

THE RUSSIAN BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION, By Edward Alsworth Ross, Published by the Century Company.

Professor Ross has written the book that we have long been looking for in vain, a history of the Russian revolution that isn't a piece of disguised propaganda for some particular faction or viewpoint. Isolating himself from the slogans and catchwords of the various contending parties, he gives a magnificently impartial interpretation of that great social upheaval from the standpoint of an American democrat.

The author's freedom from bias may be ascribed in large measure to his conception of the revolution as a product of irresistible social factors, rather than of good and bad deeds of individual men. This conception, set forth in the preface, is so important for a proper understanding of the work that it may be quoted in full:

"As I now see it, most of the developments of the eight months between the March revolution and the November revolution were not caused by leaders, but were inevitable given the background of experience of the Russian common people. If the train bearing Lenine and eighteen other Bolsheviks across Germany to Russia had fallen through a bridge on its way and all had perished, events in Russia would have taken much the same course. The peasants would have seized the estates and the soldiers would have quit fighting. The robbed and oppressed masses —a hundred millions of men and women —moved toward the goal of their long unfilled desire like a flow of molten lava that no human force can dam or turn aside.

"It was a majestic and appalling social phenomenon, as elemental almost as an earthquake or a tidal wave."

In the present volume Professor Ross confines himself to a narrative of the events from the downfall of the Czar to the dispersion of the Constituent Assembly by the Bolsheviki. He has reserved the story of the subsequent development of the Soviet republic for another book.

The eight months from the overthrow of the Czar to the fall of the Kerensky government are crowded with events. It is a period of flux and confusion. Nothing is stable. Ministries resign and are reconstituted overnight. One device after another is employed in an effort to stem the growing power of the Soviets. The political and economic disorganization of the nationa life proceeds with increasing rapidity.

Professor Ross sketches this troubled period with masterly skill. Instead of attempting to give a strictly chronological outline of events, which would necessarily be confused and difficult to follow, he devotes separate chapters to the most salient and significant aspects of the revolution. Writing in a vivid popular style, he conveys to his readers a full appreciation of the significance of the great historical drama which he unfolds.

The author's second chapter, entitled "The Background of the Toiling Masses," is as striking as Dickens's memorable picture of conditions under the French old regime in A Tale of Two Cities. After reading this chapter is is easy to understand why the Russian workers, peasants and soldiers acted just as they did after the downfall of the Czar.

The Russian workman in pre-revolutionary days was habitually spied on and oppressed, maltreated by his foreman, forced to work very long hours for very low wages. If he attempted to strike or organize a peaceful demonstration he was likely to be shot by Cossacks or gendarmes. It is not surprising that he listened readily to the heated oratory of the agitators who assured him that the "capitalist" was the source of all his troubles, and that all wouold be well if the factories were only handed over to the charge of the workers themselves.

The Russian peasant for generations had seen himself compelled to toil for a mere pittance, while the best land was held by the Czar, the Church and the wealthy nobles. It is not surprising if he, too, was only too eager to follow the advice of the revolutionists who told him to take the land he had coveted so long without paying any one for it. In fact, if there had been no professional revolutionists the chances are that the peasants would have seized the land anyway.

The Russian soldier had fought for almost three years under the most heart-breaking hardships. He had often been forced to face the withering fire of German shells, with nothing but a stick for a weapon. He usually had only the vaguest idea of what the war was about, for the Czarist government was not anxious to spread enlightenment of any kind among its subjects. He was often abused by his officers, who belonged to a different social class. And so it scarcely required the defeatist propaganda of the Bolsheviki to start a stampede homeward in the ranks of the war-weary and disillusioned army.

Against the sullen, rebellious masses of workers, soldiers and peasants the weak Russian middle class was helpless. From the very beginning the provisional government possessed only the shadow of power; the substance rested with the Soviets, the revolutionary organs of the workers and soldiers. All Kerensky's desperate efforts to avert a social cataclysm at home and to keep Russia in the war proved fruitless. As is usual in revolutionary situations, power steadily gravitated toward the most fanatical and extreme group, the Bolsheviki; and this group took advantage of General Kornilov's failure to restore order by means of a military dictatorship and of the growing impotence of the Kerensky government to seize the reins of authority for itself by means of the November Revolution.

Professor Ross has evidently enjoyed access to a considerable stock of new historical material. Milyukov's speech immediately after the March Revolution, the detailed description of Lenine's arrival in Petrograd and of the Moscow Conference, the fascinating accounts of the November Revolution by three active Bolshevik participants and leaders, Antonov, Kamenev and Podvoisky, all these things are important fresh contributions to our knowledge of the revolution.

One is sometimes tempted to wish that the author had included more documentary evidence, extracts from contemporary newspapers, reports of speeches, etc., instead of quoting so liberally from the works of other authors, some of which are of rather doubtful historical value. This criticism, however, is of slight importance when the numerous admirable features of the work are taken into consideration. Professor Ross shares with very few other historian his remarkable capacity to combine scientific accuracy with popular appeal in his work. His treatment of his subject is doubtless still further humanized because of the fact that he was traveling in Russia at the very time when the stirring events he narrates were taking place. His book is far and away the best history of the Russian Revolution that has yet appeared in English.

A Danger Warning —Bleeding Gums

Are your gums tender? Do they bleed when brushed? If so—watch out for Pyorrhea.

This disease of the gums, which afflicts four out of five people over forty, not only destroys the teeth, but often wrecks the health.

In Pyorrhea, the gums become spongy, then recede; the teeth decay, loosen and fall out—or must be extracted to rid the system of the infecting Pyorrhea germs which breed in pockets about them. These germs lower the body's vitality and cause many diseases.

You can keep Pyorrhea away. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums prevents Pyorrhea—or checks its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums firm and healthy—the teeth white and clean.

Start using it today. If your gums have receded, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

CITY OF "RARE OLDE CHESTER."

Retains Distinct Flavor of Medieval Age—The Beginning of English History There Traced.

Few cities in England retain so distinct a flavor of medieval times as Rare Olde Chester, on the river Dee. Winchester is hoary with age—so are Gloucester, Canterbury, Coventry and coutless other places in the United Kingdom, writes Katharine Shepherd Smith in the Springfield Republican.

But should one disembark at Liverpool with a mind intent upon studying English lands, people—and above all, English history—Chester, 16 miles distant, would be an ideal place in which to set out upon such a pilgrimage.

There, more easily than almost anywhere else, one can trace the very beginnings of England. Chester's ancient walls still surround the site of the Roman deva, or Devana Castra (camp of the Dee). The Anglo-Saxons call it Seaster.

The Romans, whose occupancy lasted four centuries, selected this high, picturesque spot overlooking the river and the mountains of North Wales for the station of their famous Twentieth Legion.

Excavating the solid rock to a depth of 4 to 10 feet, upon which to found the camp, they built round-about their defensive walls.

The Roman camp was in the form of a parallelogram and Chester followed the same lines in the original streets of the city. The four principal thoroughfares now cross at right angles the rocky Roman oblong.

After the Romans there came, in turn, the Welsh, Saxons, Danes and Normans. Chester was not taken by William the Conqueror until 1070.

In viewing the city the walls claim one's first attention. The present residents seem to live in a phantom city of the past, and almost to be a part of the medieval period in which they are so well versed. They tell you, apologetically, that only on three of their four sides do the walls follow the exact lines of those built by the Romans, and that they are not of earlier date than the fourteenth century.

But a stroll of two miles upon these great arms of masonry, which have encircled the city for seven hundred years, whould satisfy the most exacting antiquarian.

As one traverses this now peaceful promenade, frequent reminders of a turbulent past are encountered. The most impressive of these—perhaps because the most tangible—is the Phoenix or King Charles tower, hearing an inscription recording that from this tower King Charles I., in 1645, viewed the battle of Rowton Moor. A local chronicler relates how the king "witnessed with growing mortification and despair the defeat of his army and the overthrow of his last field force."

Besides the King Charles tower, others bordering the parapet of the old walls are the Bonwaldesthorne and the water tower; then there are those known as Morran's Mount and Pemberton's Parlor.

During all the assaults made upon Chester these and other watch towers, long since dismantled, were vantage points for the guardians of the old city, who, when scanning the valley of the Dee and the mountain passes of nearby Wales, gave little heed, we can believe, to the buty of the panorama spread out before them, which today claims the attention and delight of every beholder.

Bonwaldesthorne, clothed with vines and reached by the greenery of swaying tree tops, is by far the most picturesque of towers.

Chester castle is rather disappointing, but much as one wants a castle to be up to the mark, everything else in Chester is so satisfying that this one "fly in the ointment" should be overlooked.

The only remaining relic of the Norman period, during which time the castle was built, is the Julius Caesar tower, a square keep, which, having been incased in red sandstone, has now no adequate appearance of age.

Chester cathedral, like many others in England is interesting, both in itself and for its history. Since the time of the Roman deva the ground is the center, not alone of religion, but of learning, also.

In 1541, after the dissolution of the monasteries by Heary VIII., the abbey church became the cathedral of Chester, and remains of Norman construction, dating back to 1093, are incorporated in the cathedral, but most of its dates from the twelfth to the sixteenth century. Since 1819 restorations have been made at intervals, as is the custom in practically all European cathedrals.

In monastic times the abbey was rich and of much importance. The "Chester mysteries," or miracle plays, were performed each year before its gates, when a fair was held on the feast of St. Werbergh, the patron saint of Chester. A curious custom among the builders in the middle ages was that of carving grotesque figures—not only on the exteriors of churches, like gargoyles, but often on their interiors. Perched covly in a corner, high up on the wall of the north aisle in Chester cathedral is such a joke, known as "The Chester Imp."

A wonderful work of restoration to be seen in Chester is that in the Church of St. John. This was a cathedral church and dates from the late eleventh century. It was occupied by a Norman bishop in 1073, but in a few years he removed the seat of his bishopric to Coventry. The church as restored today—a gem of Norman architecture—includes only sections of the nave and transepts that belonged to the original structure. Standing apart from it are the picturesque ruins of the ancient choir.

"SISTER SUE"

"Sister Sue," by Eleanor H. Porter, Thomas Allen, Toronto, Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston and New York.

The story of joy that came through self-sacrifice is the story of "Sister Sue," the book which Mrs. Porter, the author, completed just before her death, and which she considered the best story she had ever written.

The heroine, Sue Gilmore, has remarkable talent as a pianist, and dreams always of the time when fame will descend upon her through the medium of the concert stage. Her ambitions to be something more than a household mainstay, however, never materializes. Through the failure of her father's banking establishment, she is forced to take upon herself the burden of the entire family, the mind-enfeebled father, the careless young brother, and the pretty, frivolous sister. She sends her brother through college by teaching piano lessons, only to have him abandon the planned-for career for marriage with a grocer's daughter and partnership in her father's store, she sees her younger and lovelier sister steal away her own sweetheart, and rather aggravatingly, insists on even making the ungrateful sister's trousseau, she refuses an offer to accompany a brilliant violiniste on tour as his pianiste, so that she may remain with her broken-down father, and finally, when her parent dies, decides to return once more to her beloved music. Her former teacher's pronouncement, however, that dull teaching and advancing years have robbed her of the fame that might once have been hers, is never heard, because her conscience has spoken once more, and she has returned to attend to the demands of a sickly sister and sister-in-law. That the tale has a happy ending seems more of an accident than anything else. Her lover carries her off, but the reader wonders if he will keep her or if her tiresome family will claim her again for further service.

THE BIRCHALL-BENWELL MURDER

BAFFLING MURDER MYSTERY IN OXFORD COUNTY STIRRED THE WHOLE COUNTRY IN EARLY NINETIES; REGINALD BIRCHALL HANGED AT WOODSTOCK FOR CRIME, SOLVED BY DETECTIVE MURRAY.

The Birchall-Benwell murder case, which stirred not only the whole of Western Ontario, but the whole of the English-speaking world in the early 'nineties, is being referred to so often in connection with the recent hanging of Norman Garfield that reference to it is timely for the enlightenment of those who do not remember the circumstances, as well as to freshen the memories of those who followed the case at that time.

The following account is taken from the record of world's famous detective cases.

In a lonely part of the forest of Princeton, in Ontario, is a still lonelier swamp, known officially as Blenheim Swamp. To the inhabitants all round and later on to the world, it became known by its sinister nickname of Dead Man's Swamp.

It was one day in February, 1890, that two woodsmen, brothers named Joseph and George Eldridge, were chopping wood on the edge of the swamp. One of them stepped on what he casually took for a half-submerged log, slipped, and then recoiled with a cry of horror.

"My God! There's a dead body here!" he cried to his brother.

Reverently the two lifted the body clear of the tangled undergrowth, and suddenly George Eldridge saw the dark stain on the back of the dead man's head.

"Look!" he whispered. "He's been shot! Joe, it's murder!".

Without any loss of time the two woodsmen carried their terrible sagging burden to the neighboring town, but it was not recognized by anybody there. As happened with every case of murder, the local police at once telegraphed to Detective John W. Murray in Toronto, who arrived at few hours later.

British Clothes.

The body was that of a young man, clean shaven, and from his appearance clearly a man who had not been accustomed to manual labor of any kind. The first thing that the detective noticed was that the clothes and underclothing the dead man was wearing were British made from their cut, but the name of the tailor and any other marks of identification had been carefully removed.

"There was not the slightest clue on the body which might have helped me," said Murray afterwards, "and, in fact, the only thing I could deduce was that he was probably fresh from Britain by the cut of his clothing. The murderer had even cut off any buttons which might have helped me, and the label from his brown Derby hat had been removed. I knew then that I was up against a murderer out of the ordinary, and that it would need all my wits to run him down."

Murray was always a great believer in the aid of the newspapers, and he had the dead man photographed, and sent copies to all the principal newspapers in Canada, the United States, and Great Britain, with an official description and a request that it should be published.

"I hoped that some one, somewhere in the world, seeing the face of the unknown dead, would recognize it, and thus solve the mystery of his identity," said Murray, when he was relating afterwards the steps he had taken to track down the author of the crime.

In the meantime the detective went down to Dead Man's Swamp, and searched the ground where th3 body of the unknown had been found. It was only by the merest accident that the two woodsmen had stumbled on it, and but for that accident it might have been lying there to this day.

To show the persistence of the detective, and to emphasize what immense patience he had, he spent no fewer than three days crawling over the ground on his hands and knees in the wet, marshy ground, getting his face scratched by bushes and his clothes covered in thick, black mud.

Search For a Clue.

"I was looking for some clue, some bit of a label, some little button, some shred of his past life," said Murray to a newspaper reporter, but it was not till the third day I found it. Then I came across a cigar-holder, with an amber mouthpiece marked F.W.B. It had been stepped upon, and was lying practically buried in the swampy ooze."

It was that inch by inch crawl of "Old Never-Let-Go" which had provided the first clue! Meanwhile a post-mortem had revealed the fact that he had been shot in the head by a revolver, the position of the wounds making it impossible for them to have been self-inflicted.

On the sixth day after Murray had begun investigating the death of the unknown Britisher, for he was convinced by now that he was British, a stranger and his wife arrived at Woodstock, the county town, and asked to see him.

"My name's Birchall, Reginald Birchall, of London, England," he began. "I saw a photograph of the young man who was found in Blenheim Swamp, and it struck me that it was very like a young man I met casually coming over in our ship."

"What was his name?" asked the detective.

"Bentwell or Benswell," replied Birchall. "I am not quite sure. I only met him quite casually."

"What ship?"

"The Britannic, of the White Star Line."

"When did you last see him alive?"

"He was on his way to London, Ontario," answered Birchall, "and was we were traveling to Niagara Falls our way was the same. I last saw him at the Falls. He had a lot of luggage with him."

"You'd recognize the luggage?" asked Murray.

"Oh, yes."

"You say he was going to London, Ontario?"

"That's what I understood," replied the other.

"It's a curious town for a man fresh from Britain to go to," said the detective. "It's one of the worst towns in fact. They'd kill a man there for a few shillings. That may account for his death."

Murray's Suspicions.

It was then that Murray got his second clue, one which might not have struck a less observant man, but one which he was quick to follow up. As he spoke he happened to glance at Birchall's wife, and the expression of relief on her face at once struck him as suspicious.

"Have you ever been in Canada before?" he asked suddenly.

"Oh, yes," replied Birchall.

The detective asked the well-groomed, calm, debonair Englishman a few more apparently trivial questions, and then he produced his notebook:

"Do you mind repeating what you have told me?" he said. "I must make a few notes in case I forget."

As a matter of fact Murray had one of the most remarkable memories, and he could have repeated word for word everything Birchall had told him. But that look on Mrs. Birchall's face had made him feel suspicious, and he had so little to go upon up to the present that even if he had misjudged it wouldn't matter so much.

"You say you said good-bye to him at the Falls!" he said. "Did you happen to hear from him at all afterwards?"

"Just a line," replied Birchall.

"Have you got it?"

"Have I got Fred's note, my dear?" said Birchall to his wife.

"I don't know," replied Mrs. Birchall.

The fact that Birchall had called a casual stranger to him, as he asserted, a stranger whose surname he wasn't even quite certain of apparently by his Christian name, at once put Murray more than ever upon his guard. He felt certain that there was more behind Birchall's story than he had told.

Valuable Help.

His first step was to obtain a list of all the passengers on board the Britannic in order to interview them to see if any could throw any further light on either Birchall or Benwell, for that turned out to be the dead man's real name. One of the first names he came across was that of a well-known Canadian lawyer who had been on a visit to Britain, and had returned on the White Star liner.

"Oh, yes, I remember both Birchall and Benwell," he said. "They were great pals, always in one another's company. Inseparables, in fact!"

And Birchall told the detective that Benwell was such a casual acquaintance that he couldn't even be sure of his correct name! If the detective had had any doubt about whether Birchall was telling the truth or not, he no longer had. But before taking the decisive step of arresting him, for he had nothing really to go upon except the merest suspicion, he visited London, Ontario, and went to every hotel, lodging-house and apartment inquiring whether Benwell had stayed there, as Birchall had asserted he was able to say that any one remotely approaching the murdered man had visited the town, and Murray was satisfied indeed that he hadn't. He did not hesitate any longer, but arrested Birchall and his wife, "pending inquiries."

Another traveller on the Britannic, a young man called Pelly, gave Murray some more valuable data.

"Mr. and Mrs. Birchall, Benwell, and myself came over in a party from Britain," Pelly told Murray. 'Birchall and Benwell left us one day, and Benwell did not come back again. The next I heard of him was when I saw his photograph in the paper, and I told Birchall that I was sure the murdered man was Benwell, and that he ought to go and make sure."

"Why were you all travelling together?" asked Murray.

"Well, I came over to be a partner in Birchall's farm," replied Pelly. "He's got a large farm about a mile and a half from Niagara Falls."

"How did you come to know him?"

"I saw an advertisement in one of the London newspapers. As it so happened.

The Trap.

The advertisement ran as follows: Canada.—University man having farm wishes to meet gentleman's son to live view to partnership; must invest five hundred pounds to extend stock; board, lodging, and 5 per cent interest till partnership arranged. Address, J. R. Birchall, Primrose Club, 4 Park Place, St. James', London.

"When I saw the advertisement, I wrote, and later called at the Primrose Club and saw Birchall. He told me all about his farm, and explained that the business carried on was buying horses in the rough and grooming them to sell at a profit."

"Have you seen the farm yet?" asked the detective.

"No," answered Pelly.

"No, and I don't think you will!" said the detective grimly. "I'm beginning to see light in this affair.

Murray cabled to Scotland Yard asking them to make full inquiries about Birchall, and also about a reference Birchall had given to Pelly as a guarantee of his good faith. The reply he got from Scotland Yard only confirmed all his theories. The cabled reply told him that Birchall had had a reputation for being wild while at school and at Oxford University, and that the reference Birchall had given knew nothing whatever about his farm in Canada.

While waiting for the cable Murray made inquiries about the farm, and found, exactly as he expected, that there was no farm at all belonging to Birchall!

Reconstructing the Murder.

Step by step he had proved Birchall was a liar and a swindler. His next step was to prove him a murderer! First of all, it puzzled him why no one in Blenheim township, near the scene of the murder, had recognized the dead man, and he inquired of all the conductors of the trains which ran in that direction if they remembered any passengers, strangers, who got off the train anywhere on Feb. 17, the day Pelly had told him Benwell and Birchall had gone off together.

"Yes," replied a conductor named Poole. "Two passengers got off at Eastwood, about four miles away from Blenheim. We stopped at Eastwood just after eleven in the morning."

"Do you remember any regular passengers in the train that morning?"

"Several," answered the conductor. "There was Matthew Virtue, the Woodstock bailiff, for one, and Miss Lockhart, of Blandford, was another."

Murray called on Mr. Virtue.

"I'm sorry I can't tell you much," the latter confessed. "I only casually noticed there were two rather obvious-looking Britishers on board the train, and they got out at Eastwood and started walking in the direction of Blenheim township."

"That's enough," replied Murray.

Miss Lockhart was able to help him still more.

"They were sitting just in front of me," she said. "I remember them both well, because one man was telling the other what magnificent fields we were passing through. I've lived here all my life, and the fields won't grow anything. They're some of the poorest round here."

"Would you recognize them again?"

"Well, I would one, because he wore an astrachan cap."

Birchall wore an astrachan cap!

Murray's Activity.

Murray never ceased his inquiries. Everybody who had been within three or four miles of Blenheim Swamp on the day of the murder was talked to and questioned. Up to a little after twelve he traced the pair—the murder and his victim—going towards the fatal spot and his next information came from a farmer who was cutting timber with two men about 1 o'clock on that afternoon, about a mile away from the swamp. He told the detective that he heard the two pistol shots in quick succession, but attached no importance to them at the time.

And step by step from the swamp Murray traced Birchall alone. At 2.30 he was seen on the road between Eastwood and Blenheim; at 3 o'clock he was seen in Eastwood. From there he caught a train back to Niagara Falls, near where he was staying! There was no doubt who was the murder of the man found in Dead Man's Swamp!

That Birchall meant to murder Pelly as well was pretty evident to Murray, too, from what Pelly told him.

"Soon after our arrival," said the latter, "Birchall invited me for a walk to see the Falls. He told me there was a stairway built down the cliffs there, and where we could see the water better. I noticed when we went down there it was very unsafe, and a slip might have meant falling into the roaring waters.

"When we got to the bottom we found another visitor already there looking at the Falls. I turned and went up the stairs again immediately, and Birchall hardly spoke the rest of the day."

Guilt Certain.

But the detective got an unexpected link in his chain of evidence against the murderer which clinched his guilt, as nothing perhaps could have done. This was no less than a cable from London saying that Colonel Benwell had had a letter from Birchall, written three days after his son had been murdered. In this letter Birchall said: "I have been talking to your son today about arrangements, and he is so well satisfied with the prospects here that he is ready to go into immediate partnership."

When Birchall wrote those lying words his victim had been dead three days! The postmark and the date of the letter were only too damning evidences of Birchall's guilt!

Sensational Trial.

In the course of his inquiries Murray found that Birchall had been in Canada previously, and had posed as Lord Somerset, swindling people right and left, and leaving suddenly owing money everywhere. As Lord Somerset he had visited Blenheim township and Dead Man's Swamp, and in fact spend a considerable time in the neighborhood, evidently laying his plans for murders which he had intended to commit in the future.

The trial of the murderer caused an immense sensation both in Canada and Great Britain. Cable connections were made direct from the court in Woodstock, where the trial took place, to London, and not only British newspapers, but French, Italian and German newspapers printed columns about the case daily. The murderer was convicted solely on the evidence of Murray, who had patiently reconstructed his movements ever since Birchall had turned up in Canada with his vistim, and particularly on the day of the murder.

The reason the case caused such an immense sensation was that at the time there was a big emigration boom from Great Britain as well as the Continent to Canada, and it was seriously suggested in many quarters that there was an organized gang, of which Birchall was only one, to lure rich emigrants over to Canada and kill them! There was no truth in the story, however, though it became very widepsread, and was believed in by many pople.

Mrs. Birchall, it need hardly be added, knew nothing about her husband's murderous schemes, and she was released before his trial.

SICK MAGAZINES

Every profession these days has its consulting experts, journalism no less than medicine and engineering. Thus it has come about that one of the most handsomely furnished offices in Grub Street is that of a specialist who diagnoses fo ailing popular magazines. His fees are as high as any famous surgeon's and he is as deft with the scalpel as the brothers Mayo.

The other day a visitor dropped into this expert's operating room in the course of a consultation. The parent of an invalid popular weekly anxiously paced the floor while his pale brain child lay stretched on the expert's operating table undergoing examination for the cause of a perilously feeble circulation.

The expert had decided that in this instance it would not be necessary to use the X-rays.

"A simple case of anæmia," he announced, "due to lingering muckrakei is. Have that removed, change the patient's diet and immediately the whole tone of his body will improve. I'll show you what I mean"——

The expert opened a cabinet and picking out six popular magazines from its crowded shelves, laid out the selection on the top of his desk.

"These six magazines," he observed, "were in their day—a dozen years or more ago—the sensations of the magazine world. They all built up their circulations chiefly upon a diet of articles. And nearly all of these articles were by muckrakers.

"But look at them today and note how times have changed. The biggest money maker of the lot, this fat monthly, was given up to die barely five or six years ago. One of our experts saved it by a major operation. Today it has won back all its old popularity. How? By becoming a helpful manual of inspiration to business men. It is the very hymn book of success.

"This next one saved its imperiled existence by going in for sex fiction and other raw pabulum alluring to the adolescent mind. Rarely now does it print more than one or two articles at the most. And these never have the slightest suggestion of muckraking.

"And now consider this weekly, once strident of voice and kicking at our doors with hobnailed boots. Now it pads its way softly and speaks in dulcet whispers—even when addressing its old arch enemy, Big Business. Serials and short stories take up twice the space proportionately as in the days gone by.

"Here next is a monthly, a famous thunderer in its prime and named for muckraking's greatest militant apostle. In the last few months it has, as you may have observed, taken a new boom. But how? Not by a return to the old methods, but simply by catching up with the times in the fashions of popular fiction.

"This next example puzzles me yet, so many years has it clung to its old dress. But my information is that next month it, too, will cast all that away, dispense entirely with illustrations and then appear as a magazine of all fiction. Everywhere the writer of articles is being cast adrift.

"Our final example underwent only last month the inevitable operation necessary to save its life. It now is on the stands in an entirely new garb, with every line of its text (except a few pages of dramatic criticism) cast in the form of fiction."

The expert gathered up the six examples and tossed them back into his cabinet.

"My advice to you, my friend," he concluded, "is that you hasten to profit by their experience. Forget the muckrake. Print no information of any kind that is heavier than a cream puff. In short, catch up with the fashions. Muckraking is no longer permissible except in books, and even in book form its only legitimate field is England. There Margot Asquith and Lieutenant Colonel Repington successfully bear onward bold Tom Lawson's rake. But even these celebrities dare not touch anything really ticklish. They assault only the envied lions of high society, persons who never were and never could be popular with the rabble."

The magazine editor got heavily to his feet, clutched his brain child to his breast, bowed his head in sad deference.

"Perhaps you're right," he muttered. "Put me down for another appointment with you before the end of the week."

GASOLINE THIRTY-EIGHT CTS.

Further Decline of Two Cents Locally.

Further reductions in the price of gasoline and coal oil have been made by the Imperial Oil Company, and to-day motorists were buying "gas" at 38c a gallon. For some time "gas" has sold at 40c. With to-day's drop the momentum-impelling fluid is ten cents cheaper than last year. Users of coal oil were smiling to-day, too, for it went down in price to the same extent as its more potent brother.

Lighten Their Darkness

9

BLIND, Canadian men and women, old and young, in all parts of Canada, are to-day carrying their pathetic affliction with far greater ease—even with happiness—thanks to the heroic efforts of the Home Teaching Branch of this Institute.

These Home-Teachers, themselves blind or partially blind, call regularly on those blind, who, through sickness, infirmity, or domestic reasons, cannot leave their homes. With infinite patience and care, they instruct their blind pupils how to read and write the special embossed print for the blind. They teach them how to carry on various forms of light handicraft.

Thus the dull, dark hours of these people are transformed into hours of happiness. Their idle hands are turned to useful effort.

It is not sufficient to say—"let them be occupied." We must assist them to that end. It is your opportunity. Funds are required, and we turn to you for your generous support.

Relieve Your Rheumatism For 25c.

NR does it by improving digestion, assimilation and elimination—the logical way.

NR Today—Relief or No Pay

There are three vital processes of human existence,—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of the waste.

Let anything interfere with these processes,—let them be interrupted or improperly carried on, and sickness of some kind follows.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism,—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons,—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

And Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the whole system. You'll feel like a new person when you've taken NR Tablets a week. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

NEST OF THE BOLD BUCCANEERS

Few people may realize it but the West Indies offer more genuine buccaneering history than any other single portion of the world.

The very "birth nest" of western hemisphere piracy is to be found in the Caribbean today. On the small island of Tortuga actual buried pirate treasure recently cropped out in golden reality to revive the past. This island is a few miles off the northern coast of Haiti and was named "Tortuga" by Columbus because it so much resembled the shape of the great sea tortoises—plentiful in the tropic vicinity.

A short time ago an old man from the tiny seaport of St. Louis, on the Haitien coast, sailed his dory across the choppy channel to Tortuga and anchored in the mouth of a small stream which tumbles down from the sand hills. He was seining for small fish bait when glittering objects in the shallow water of the stream bed diverted his attention. He picked them up and they proved to be golden "pieces-of-eight." Here was actual booty from the Spanish Main, spoils cached in the coves and hills of Tortuga by the buccaneers of the seventeenth century.

The term "buccaneer" originated on the Island of Tortuga. It is derived from the French word describing men who cured meat by the "boucan" process, a system of smoking the flesh on green sticks.

As early as 16 0 the Island of Hispaniola, which is today the Island of Haiti, began to find French, British and Dutch settlers arriving there much against the will of the Spaniards, who controlled the territory to the announced exclusion of all other nationals.

The interlopers first tried their luck at planting, but eventually abandoned this vocation to become "boucaniers," because of the great prevalence of wild oxen, cattle and wild boar. The vicissitudes of interloping, however, were such that many of the settlers fled to the Island of Tortuga, which was separated from the main island by a strip of channel water seven miles wide. Tortuga offered less territory for the "boucaniers," but more security. Perhaps seven miles wide and twelve miles in length, the island was a virgin hunting ground, rather of piracy—was one Rock Brasiliano, a Dutchman, who took this nom-de-plume by reason of long residence in Brazil. Rock's procedure discloses why he withheld his right name. He was a real pirate, a true maker of present-day tradition. Though an excellent leader in combat "howbeit, in his domestic or private affairs he had no good behavior nor government over himself," says his chronicler, who added. "Many times being in drink, he would run up and down the streets, beating and wounding whom he met, no person daring to oppose him or make any resistance. To Spaniards he always showed himself to be very barbarous and cruel . . of these he commanded several to be roasted alive on wooden spits."

Pirates were generally a pretty bad lot, agrees pirate history. For example, they would spend two or three thousand pieces-of-eight in one night not leaving themselves peradventure a good shirt to wear on their backs in the morning. Rock Basiliano was only one of those given to swash-buckling, and his particular pleasure was to buy a whole keg of wine, which he placed in the middle of the main thoroughfare, threatening to "pistol" all who refused to drink with him. On other occasions he varied his diversion by procuring barrels of ale or beer, which he scooped out with his cupped hands on all who passed.

Possibly the cruelest of them all was Francois L'Ollinais, a Frenchman, who outfitted the first ship for his piratical career on Tortuga. The enemies of this terrible Gaul received no quarter, and he became known as a true terror of the seas, amassing great wealth. Once the Spanish governor of Cuba sent an expedition against L'Ollinais, who had captured a city on the southern coast of the island. Several hundred buccaneers, led by the terrible Frenchman, met the Spanish force and annihilated it.

Sacked and Burned Towns.

L'Ollinais, with his fleet, sacked and burned several towns on the coast of Central America and Cuba and put most of the inhabitants to the sword More prizes were taken at sea, and at the end of two months there was so much loot on hand that the fleet sailed to the Isle de la Vache (Cow Island), south of Haiti, to divide 4,060,000 pieces-of-eight, tons of jewels, silks, linen and other commodities of trade. The fleet then sailed for Tortuga, where the available supply of rum and brandy was soon entirely inadequate for the celebration of the most successful buccaneer cruise in the history of buccaneering.

There was no Temperance act in force on Tortuga at the end of this champion pirate cruise. The price of liquor was dictated only by the law of supply and demand, the former overwhelmed by the latter. A gallon of choice brandy soon jumped to the unheard-of price of four pieces-of-eight and rum was soon at a premium at the profiteering demand of from two to three pieces-of-eight for four full quarts. The celebration only waned when all the liquor was consumed at these unprecedented prices. The inebriated pirates gambled their shares away with reckless abandon until the whole rested in the hands of a few. These secretively watched their chance to bury the loot in the valleys, caves and troves of Tortuga for future reference. Who knows how many of these treasure burying pirates lost their lives on subsequent cruises, breathing the secret of the trove to their most intimate private pal at the last gasp or scrawling the rough chart on a bloody piece of paper as death stiffened the fingers? Who knows how many of these treasure chests lie buried under the jungle soil of Tortuga today?

ADVERTISING BUILT IT

WRIGLEY BUILDING

Wrigley's new office building in Chicago is at the new Boulevard Link Bridge, Michigan avenue and the river and heads the vista looking north on Michigan avenue, so Mr. Wrigley chose a beautiful design which makes the building a decorative feature of the Chicago lake front and harmonizes with the Chicago Beautiful plan.

The main building is 16 stories high, surmounted by a tower 42 feet square and rising 398 feet from the street level. This tower will contain a clock with dials on four sides, each 20 feet in diameter and will be surmounted by a searchlight lantern 9 feet in diameter.

The building is covered with enamel finish terra cotta on all four sides. It is regarded as one of the most beautiful buildings in Chicago and people and press are enthusiastic about it. The Chicago Tribune published a picture labeling it "A Jewel of the Link."

Wrigley recently completed new factories at Chicago and New York, and the Canadian and Australasia Wrigley companies have built new factories at Toronto and Sydney.

All this new construction work in the space of a few years is certainly a tribute to the power of advertising and the accumulative effect of a multitude of 5-cent sales.

DIRTY GAS LINE TROUBLE MAKER

When the motor of Mr. Motorist stops dead, the first question he usually asks himself, either in plain or profane language, or both, is: "How did it get that way?"

He may ask himself that, he may question his passengers, if any or he may stop innocent passersby to get them into an argument. Sometimes he gets busy and finds the trouble, thus answering his own question; sometimes he gets some good passing Samaritan to come and see why the wheels won't go 'round. What every motorist should learn to do is diagnose his own car's ailments.

The gas line from the tank to the carburetor is one great trouble maker. Dirt, water and rust from the tank walls get into this thin line and cause all kinds of worry before the actual trouble is discovered. When the motor stops from a stopped feed pipe the only thing to do is to clean it out. But how? Suppose your engine quits with some funny sounds from the direction of the carburetor. First see that there is gas in the tank and if there is your trouble is a dirty carburetor or a clogged gas line. Open the petcock at the bottom of the carburetor and see if the gas is in float chamber. No gas coming out? Well, disconnect the gas line leading to the carburetor and if gas comes out, the trouble is a clogged screen just in front of the line connection. Here is where many gas lines become clogged.

To clean strainer, unscrew plug and drop connection, remove dirt until flow is free and then make connection again. If then the gas does not flow, the trouble is farther back, probably in the screen right at the gas tank, near the water pocket. Clean this out by disconnecting. Considerable trouble can be eliminated by draining the tank occasionally through the pet cock provided for that purpose, under the gas tank.

Cars provided with vacuum tanks have another strainer on top of the vacuum tank where the gas line connects. To clean this strainer, make disconnection in usual manner, the loosened coupling and line discovering the business end of the screen.

If all the strainers are clean and no gas comes disconnect the line and blow through the pipe. Sometimes a mighty blast from compressed air is necessary to completely free the line Then the motor spits like a cat. The line needs attention. On cold mornings a little attention to the carburetor will prevent trouble. If the engine spits and pops, adjust the carburetor by closing air valve one-eighth turn.

The other reason for a sudden quitting of the motor is ignition trouble, a case when the motor dies without murmur or spit. Ignition troubles may be caused by neglected connections, loose or exposed wires, loose-fitting brushes, loose battery connections, or circuit breaker not breaking right. If ignition runs from the battery, test out system by stepping on starter and watching dial on dash. If ammeter does not quiver and the starter does not kick 'er over, look at your battery connections, particularly the ground wire, which can be found by "getting under" the place where the battery is kept. See that these terminals are securely connected and free from corrosion. The battery should be refilled with distilled water every two weeks.

Clean battery connections by unscrewing plug on end of wire connection and scrape with a knife. Treat both connections this way. Another place to trace trouble is a loose wire connection on ground coil. Sometimes trouble may be traced to the key connection. By working starter and wiggling key round in its socket this can be remedied temporarily, although expert attention should be given the part as soon as possible.

EXCHANGE CAUSES BIG LOSS TO MANY.

Unfamiliarity With Foreign Conditions Serious Drawback.

RIGA Lativa, June 21.—(Associated Press).—Millions of dollars in ready cash are going to English, German and Dutch firms from the Baltic States because of the almost unbelievable unfamiliarity of even the largest American firms with foreign trading conditions, and even geography, say Americans here.

Dozens of big orders, for which cash was actually in the banks in New York, have been lost to America because of what American representatives in the Baltic States term absolute stupidity.

"It is time," said one of these Americans in Riga who has had to place many orders in Germany and in England when America could have had them, "that the heads of American firms realize what the subordinates in charge of their foreign trading departments are doing to them.

"Most of them, brought up on so-called American efficiency systems that may work well at home but are absolutely hopeless abroad, try to do business in Europe according to 'form 22' or 'form 24,' or whatever form they would apply to similar deals in America.

"To illustrate, not long ago I had an urgent cash order for 40,000 suits of underclothing for a Baltic State. I telegraphed to a big American firm: 'What your price 40,000 suits heavy underwear cash against documents New York.'

"Two or three days later, when some bright young credit man had tried to digest this telegram, I received a cable saying: 'Wire your credit rating and references.'

"Now, I suppose his 'form 22' required him to do that, but I wired back. 'My credit references are cash in New York bank. What are your prices.'

"Some days later I received a telegram saying: 'Price dollar twenty,' or something like that.

"More valuable time was lost in an exchange of telegrams asking what they meant, per garment or per suit. The result was that I wired an English firm. My answer from it was complete, just what I wanted. The telegram gave the price per suit, weight of shipment, probable date of delivery, and everything that I wanted to know. The English firm got the order and took the cash in the New York bank.

"When I write American firms for catalogues I get catalogues without prices. I suppose they think it is undignified to print them. Then I write for price lists and get price lists without catalogues.

"German or British firms print complete catalogues, giving just what one wants to know. They save valuable weeks of mail correspondence and get the orders."

Another American in trade in Riga showed the correspondent a cablegram from one of the biggest oil companies in America, in reply to his telegram, which said: 'Quote me price refined coal oil delivered Riga." The answer read: "Crude oil has gone up 20 cents a barrel."

"Now," said this American dealer, "I didn't want to know about crude oil and I haven't time to figure out what effect a rise in its price would have on coal oil that was badly wanted by my buyer.

"In many of such ridiculous cases I have telegraphed directly to the heads of firms in America explaining the situation and have received prompt satisfaction. But I haven't the time to write all of them. So the Germans and English get the orders."

Incidentally, perhaps half of the letters sent by American firms to the Baltic States bear only two-cent postage stamps, causing indignant prospective buyers to dig down in their pockets to pay postage due in rubles or marks of whatever the unit happens to be.

Some of them bear fantastic addresses, such as "Riga, Russia, via the Pacific." One letter in reply to request to ship for cash a big consignment of goods from New York to Riga said the firm was sorry "but had no shipping facilities on the Pacific."

THE WORKER'S WORST ENEMY

Dr. Charles A. Eaton, associate editor of Leslie's Weekly, has some very pointed things to say about the present labor unrest in the world. Dr. Eaton, who was once pastor of a Baptist church in Toronto, speaks his mind in a most vigorous way. This is what h writes in a recent number of Leslie's:

"This pallid and moonstruck notion is the worker's worst menace today. It is bad for everybody, for it takes the joy out of life, creates physical, mental and moral flabbiness, substitutes self-pity for self-respect, self-help and independence of spirit; and sets everyone to crying for the moon—wishing with tears that they might be what they never can be.

Work is the best gift of God to men. There is no such thing as degrading work in itself. The coal-heaver and garbage-gatherer are doing just as clean and honorable a service, in itself considered, as the teacher, the artist, or the banker.

The spirit in which work is done is what counts. Slaves are slaves because they have a slave's soul, not because they do hard work.

If we admit the truth of the idea that manual work is an accursed slavery, we are driven logically to the conclusion that it is the duty of every manual worker to quit work, and that idleness is the ideal of a happy life. This noble ideal put into practice would freeze and starve the world to death in a few weeks. There is no possible existence for those who won't struggle or it. There ought not to be.

And suppose manual labor is hard and dirty; what of it? Bearing children is the hardest work in the world. Learning to read, write and cipher is drudgery. Shall we therefore abolish all study and sink into unanimous illiteracy? Every foot of land yielding food represents toil and sweat. Shall we quit producing food? Every home was built by labor. Shall we become cave men, and go back to nest with the animals?

A society which becomes too sentimental, lazy and fat to do its own hard work is not ripe, but rotten."

The only "increase in fare" we want in our town is

"BYNG'S BOYS"

TORONTO, Ont. June 18.—(By Canadian Press).—Here is a little story about Lord Byng, the new Governor General, and Sir Arthur Currie, who after the Battle of Vimy succeeded Sir Julian, as he was then in command of the Canadian Corps. They are close personal friends and Sir Arthur, in public and private, always gave full credit to Byng for the work he did in knitting the Canadian Corps into the formidabe fighting machine it became, animated by a keen Corps spirit and a just pride in its achievements.

It was towards the end of September 1918, when the Corps after storming the famous Drocourt-Queant line, part of the Hindenburg system, on Sept. 2, had been since lying entrenched facing the Canal du Nord and exposed to a constant harassing fire from the other, or east side of the canal. First Army wanted the Corps to make a frontal attack but this the Corps Commander regarded as a useless waste of life. Instead, as is well known, he proposed that the Corps should "side-slip" to the south of Corps right to where at Inchy-enArtois there was a dry stretch of canal of about 2,500 yards; after storming this the Corps was to spread out fanwise on the other side of the canal, our left taking the German defenders to the north in rear and our right pushing on up over the entrenched slopes against the crowning position of Bourlon Wood, on the far side of which lay the city of Cambrai. All this programme, by the way, was carried out successfully on Sept. 27 and the days following, resulting in the fall of Cambrai and retreat of the enemy.

Byng was in command of the Third Army on the immediate right of the Corps, and in the previous November had himself undertaken his celebrated surprise attack on Cambrai, pushing up from the south and just failing to consolidate his notable victory through lack of proper support. On Sept. 23 he came over to Canadian Corps headquarters at Neuville Vitasse, in the heart of No Man's Land, lunched with Sir Arthur and talked the plan over. He was immensely struck with its audacity and brilliance, but he warned his old friend of the terrible result of failure, when the Corps cooped on a narrow frontage would be cut to pieces. "In my opinion," he said, "you are planning the most difficult manoeuvre yet attempted on a battlefield in this war. But you know your men—I know them too. If any troops in the world can do it, it is the Canadian Corps. Good luck to you." And after the battle he was the first to telegraph his congratulations. "Byng's Boys" had once more made good.

Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.

We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

BRITISH GOVERNMENT MUDDLED, BUT IT GETS RESULTS, ANYWAY

MASTERMAN WRITES HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT, POKING FUN AT METHODS AND MARVELING AT ACHIEVEMENTS OF LAW-MAKING BODY.

LONDON, May 20.—(By Mail.)—The American who comes to England on pleasure bent this summer probably will be more interested in such practical details as the confusing similarity between a half-crown and a florin, or the hours during which the "pubs" (saloons) are open, than in a study of the mechanism by which the British Empire is managed. He may even go back home with the conviction that it isn't managed at all, but that it simply muddles along somehow.

If, however, on his homeward journey he reflects that the muddling along process apparently is being accomplished with some degree of efficiency it would be well for him to read a slender volume just published here. How England is Governed, by the Right Hon. C. F. G. Masterman. And if the American is not coming to England at all he may enjoy the book even more. Its author knows his subject so well that he canafford to joke about it, and so, instead of the dry-as-dust compendium which eventually is stuck between the encyclopedia and the Bible in the great Anglo-Saxon household, he has turned out that rarest of books, an entertaining history.

"The government of England," says Mr. Masterman in effect, "isn't a government at all. It is a mess. And yet we get along nicely with it, thank you!"

For instance, the author writes, referring to local government:

"The map of an English town, compared with that of a new American city, exhibits a contrast almost between a drunkard's paradise and a community from the first 'Pussyfoot.' In the latter are the firm, straight, rectangular streets, numbered regularly inorder, First Street to 175th Street up and down; and First Avenue to Eightieth Avenue, side by side. In the other the roads go merrily reeling around non-existent barriers, writing and curving like snakes, opening into useless wide spaces at one point, narrowing into intolerable and dangerous crevasses at another, and bearing not regular numbers but all sorts of artificial and flowery titles. So that it is quite impossible for the stranger, without a map and the kindly policeman, and the always affable passerby, to find the 'Acacia Villa' or 'Beaconsfield Terrac' where he wants to go.

"And the same zizag and tortuous inheritance of time is exhibited in the local government of England. No sane man would ever dream of imposing such a system upon a new country."

And so on, though the functions of local, county and imperial government. Mr. Masterman explains without undue seriousness why and wherefore. The judicial and financial systems of the country are treated as the man in the street would regard them.

There is a graphic picture of the end of an all-night session of the House:

"At intervals nothing will be left in the chamber itself but sheer lassitude and boredom, while in the dining rooms below members, in little groups, often drawn from both parties, are eating pleasant little late suppers or early breakfasts of melons and stewed kidneys and grilled bones; or, in a breath of fresh air on the terrace, engage in friendly discussion of the fight inside, while the dawn flames up from the Surrey side of the river."

Finally, after this amazing dissection, there is the conclusion drawn by the author, who has many Parliamentary under-secretaryships, who has filled other government positions and who has been a Cabinet minister:

"The institutions of England work. That is their chief justification. There is no logical perfection about them. There are a thousand faults and anomalies within them. Nothing is more easy than to poke fun at them. Yet they work. It is a magnificent platitude that government can only rest on the consent of the governed."

CREATION OF LIFE IS NOW THE ONLY MYSTERY TO SCIENCE.

Can Construct Organisms Bu Can't Make Them Work.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—If you are living a couple of hundred years hence don't be startled if you see a sign something like this, "Smith, Jones & Co., Manufacturers of Rats, Birds and Humans. Name your species. Prices reasonable."

Professor Austin Clark, head of the biological department of the Smithsonian Institute, declared that scientists of the future will be able to "manufacture men."

Clark was asked to comment on the announced discovery by French savants of a method of creating organic life from certain quartz and meteoric stones.

"Maybe it's true, maybe not," said Clark. Many able scientists have been fooled into believing that they have created life. Nearly every other salient mystery of biology has been solved except this one supreme puzzle. It is now possible to construct all the organisms of a living creature. They are chemically and anatomically perfect — but they won't work when it comes to 'living.' If this problem has not now been solved, it will be some day.

"If a primitive form of life can be created, we now know that we could modify and develop that form to any form of higher animal life. The external circumstances that created the different species of life are now known and can be artificially applied. The reason that we cannot take the so-called simple forms of life now and develop them into higher animals is that there are no real primitive forms of life left on the earth. The simplest animacule has developed from the common starting point into a tremendously complex being. A hundred million years of heredity has fixed its life form and traits until artificial modification is now very limited.

"This would not be true of newly created life. Such an organism would be tremendously impressionistic. It would mould and develop under the stimulus of artificial conditions as artistic clay in the hands of the sculptor. Practically any form of life now existent could be created from this primitive cell.

"It would probably take a couple of million generations to produce an animal like a dog or man," said Clark. "But the length of the life of each generation could be speeded up, and the whole transformation got through within say 200 years.

"No doubt a lot of monstrous freaks would be created by mistakes in administering the stimulus."

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GREY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

GREAT BRITAIN IS USING FUEL OIL AS COAL SUBSTITUTE.

Huge Power Plants Converted Into Oil Burners in Few Days.

LONDON, June 20. — King Oil has suddenly come in for widespread popularity here and King Coal's dictatorship over the British industry is a thing of the past, according to expert opinion.

England's great coal stoppage was responsible for popularizing fuel oil.

All over the country factories, railways, power plants, hospitals, turned to foreign-produced fuel oil the minute their coal bins were emptied, when 1,200,000 British miners refused to accept drastic wage reductions and stopped work.

Fuel oil—one of America's favorite fuels but hitherto virtually unknown in England, has come to stay, according to authoritative prediction.

British public services and industry will never again be wholly dependent on coal.

Unacquainted with the simplicity of installing oil burners, the British people were rather astounded to learn that immense power plants could, in an emergency, be converted in a very few days from coal to oil.

That's just what happened. When the coal pinch caused widespread embarrassment, fuel oil firms were consulted and assured all inquirers big stocks of fuel oil were being held in the country and quick deliveries could be made from abroad to replenish the great tanks.

Large stocks of oil burning equipment were also at hand.

England's general public was highly gratified. Presence of fuel oil meant continuation of great lighting plants and power plants providing juice for street car systems.

PRINCE GIVES REBUKE TO MAYOR OF EXETER.

Draws Attention to Omission Regarding the Ladies.

EXETER, June 21. — "I think, Mr. Mayor, I perceive an omission in your address," said the Prince of Wales on receiving from the Mayor of the ancient city of Exeter, an address of welcome on the occasion of his tour of the west country. The Mayor had said much about what the men of Exeter had done in the war, but he hadn't mentioned the ladies. Hence, the tactful rebuke of His Royal Highness.

"This omission is perhaps inevitable," the Prince continued gallantly, "for the women of Exeter have never vaunted the part which they played in the war. I am glad to have this opportunity of assuring you that it is not forgotten. Whether solicitude for the prisoners of war, or in the hospitality shown to troops from overseas, they rendered services of which the city may justly be proud."

The Prince's last engagement before leaving London for Exeter was at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, where in a fete he rode on the wooden horse of a roundabout. But this was only one of his activities. Beginning by reviewing the cadets, he inspected the college and chapel, made the tour of a "country fair," which was held in the grounds in aid of the memorial to the 4,000 cadets who fell in the war, witnessed a musical ride, kicked off a football match, and finally presented medals to the footballers.

WILL ONLY PAVE GEORGE STREET SOUTH, IF ANY DONE THIS YEAR

ALDERMAN HAMILTON ADVISES A HALT IN THE ISSUE OF DEBENTURES—STREET PAVING ADVERTISED WOULD $89,908 09, TO WHICH WOULD BE ADDED $10,000 OR $15,000 FOR SURFACE DRAINAGE.

Unless the Board of Works change their minds, there will be no paving done this year, but the section on George street south form the C. P. R. to Romaine street, and even that work is not altogether certain yet. The furthest the committee went last night in the matter, after receiving City Engineer Parson's analysis of the tenders for different grades of pavement opened last Wednesday, was to instruct that the Warren Bitulithic Paving Co. be asked if they would contract to lay 6700 square yards alone, comprising George street from the C. P. R. to Romaine street, with bitulithic pavement on a five inch concrete base at the same pro rata price based on their tender for the 20,000 yards in all for which tenders had been invited.

Paving Tenders Opened.

The tenders opened last meeting, figured out as below for paving George street south, from the C. P. R. to Romaine street; Water street, from Brock to Dublin street; McDonnel street, from Aylmer to Reid street; Simcoe street from Water to Queen street; Queen street, from Simcoe to Hunter street—20,000 sq. yards of streets in all.

NOTE—The Warren People's price of $89,908.09 was for a five inch concrete base and $93,707.14 for a six inch concrete base. The Archibald Co's tender, $67,809.29, did not include grading. R. Sheehy & Sons' lowest bids were on government specifications.

It will be seen from the foregoing table that bitulithic pavement on concrete base, recommended by the Engineer as the most durable, would cost for the streets mentioned $89,908.09, to which would have to be added an additional $10,000 or $15,000 for storm drainage; and the thought of expending $100,000-odd this year on streets disturbed the Board of Works considerably, and impelled a policy of postponement in their subsequent cogitations.

Call a Halt.

Ald. Hamilton took the floor and contended that Council would make a mistake by going on with this paving this year, at a time when debentures cannot be disposed off readily or on reasonable terms. He asked his colleagues to reflect that the city is already committed to issuing $33,000 of debentures for the Riverside Park, $350,000 of debentures for a filtration plant, and nearly $250,000 of debentures for the sewage disposal plant; and he urged it's time to call a halt in swelling the community's indebtednes, this year. If this matter of street pavement were submitted to the people, he continued, you all know they would turn it down. Then why go ahead with it? As for hard times, we have not entered them yet. Next year unemployment will be far more acute than now; and then such paving work as tabled to-night will come in opportunely for the unemployed, he contended.

Ald. Whitehouse — "There is an awful amount of unemployment just now; and each day sees quite a procession to the site of the new filtration plant of men seeking work."

Ald. Jones—"What are you going to do next winter? Is the city to then keep these men who can't find work now?"

His Worship concluded that the Council must in some way or other provide work for the enforced idle.

Ald. Crowe would in any event pave George street south now, especially as the council have committed themselves to the street railway company in that regard; we should go ahead with the work, he said, and should do it by day labor.

The City Engineer pointed out that this pavement at least should be asphalt on concrete, but the city has no plant for such work. To Ald. Hamilton, he replied that were the pavement to be even an all concrete one, the city would have to buy a paving concrete mixer at a cost of $4,000.

Ald. Crowe insisted that the George street pavement should be of concrete to give work to the greatest number of men. Do it ourselves, he said, and see that it is laid right. He was not in favor of letting concrete pavement by contract.

Ald. Jones—"Even if it costs more?"

Ald. Crowe—"Yes."

Curtail the Quantity.

Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Crowe here moved that no paving be done this year except George street south, and the motion carried.

In debate, Ald. Turner agreed with Ald. Jones that unless men can find work now they will have to be helped over the winter by the city, and it's not charity that they want but employment, he asserted. And he asked his colleagues to consider that should it cost the corporation, say, $10,000, to carry unemployed over the winter, for lack of unemployment on paving this summer, that would mean in reality adding some 10 per cent. to the cost of the pavement when done next year.

Ald. Hamilton replied that it is not, in the main, such men who would be engaged on asphaltic or bitulithic paving the city would have to carry over the winter were all or most of the streets named not paved this summer.

Ald. Gordon leaned to the view that the unemployment situation was exaggerated; and a start in street work in September, even, might carry men well on into December, perhaps, and thus aid them materially in tiding over the winter?

Winter Work Cheap.

Ald. Gainey did not see why sewer

PARIS BOOS LONDON STYLE.

PARIS, June 20.— A half dozen English mannequins sent to the races at Auteuil by London dressmakers to show the latest cross-Channel styles were booed and hooted by hostile racegoers to-day when they paraded.

The English mannequins wore one white stocking and one black slipper and on the other leg a black stocking and a white slipper, daringly low cut corsages with transparent backs, and gigantic jade jewelry. They carried square parasols and wore enormous plumed hats.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Many additions to the long list of low records in the Stock Market were registered at the heavy opening of to-day's trading. Leaders of the further re-action included United States Steel, Balwin Locomotive, and Mexican Petroleum. U. S. Steel opened with a transfer of 3,100 shares at 70 3-4 to 70½ against yesterday's final price and new minimum of 71. Other steels, as well as Equipments, Rails and Oils, were irregularly lower, as well as such specialties as Tobacco Products, International Paper, Coco Cola. Gains ranging from fractions to a point were made by Studebaker, Great Northern, New York Central, Royal Dutch, United Fruit and Sumatra Tobacco.

Stocks strengthened within the first hour, responding to a five per cent. opening and renewal rate for call money. This was the lowest initial rate for such loans in almost two years. Rails, Equipments, Shippings, Motors and Oils led the rally. Northern Pacific rose almost 3 points and gains of 1 to 1½ points marked short covering in other transcontinentals as well as Grangers and Coalers. Baldwin Locomotive, Pressed Steel Car, Pullman and General Electric gained 1 to 1¼, and U.S. Steel rallied 1 point. Gains were largely reduced before noon, however, when another sinking spell occurred in Bethlehem Steel, Mexican Petroleum, Houston Oil, American Woollens, American Tobacco and Coppers.

Oils, rails, equipments and motors were leaders of the more vigorous rally at midday. Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch, General Asphalt, Canadian Pacific, Harvester, General Electric and Studebaker showed gains of 2 to 3 points and U. S. Steel rallied 1 1-2 points.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange heavy; demand 3.75 1-8. Canadian dollars, 11 3-4 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Bullish field reports from the spring crop belt led to advances in the wheat market to-day after a hesitant start. Aberdeen, South Dakota, messages from a leading authority said the fields were fareing badly in spots, and that in some places the crop had been entirely destroyed by drought. It was also asserted that wheat was heading very short and would not recover with a rain. Opening quotations, which varied from a half decline to a 1 cent advance, were followed by material gains all around, and then something of a re-action.

Corn rose with wheat, opening 1-8 to 5-8 cents higher. A slight re-action ensued, but then the market went higher than before.

Oats were firmer in response to the action of other cereals. After opening a quarter off to a like advance the market sagged a little, and later scored a general upturn.

Higher quotations on hogs tended to strengthen provisions.

Apprehension of drought damage continued to be a bullish factor in the Corn. The close was strong, July 63 7-8 and September 64 7-8 to 65.

Reports of a severe drought in France counted later as a bullish influence in wheat and there was also talk of exporters being after wheat in volume. The market closed strong, July 128 1-2 to 129 and September 123 to 123 1-4.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts medium; trade draggy. Quotations: Heavy beef steers $8.25 to $9; butcher steers, choice, $8.25 to $8.75; butcher cows, medium, $4 to $6; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $12 to $14; hogs, selects, $13 to $13.25.

EGGS AND POULTRY.

Toronto firm, tendency higher, jobbing specials forty-one two extras thirty-nine, firsts thirty-seven, seconds thirty-two. Montreal strong, specials forty-two, extras forty, firsts thirty-six, seconds thirty-three four. Chicago current firsts twenty-four four half, storage packed extras twenty-six half, firsts twenty-six. New York current extra firsts twenty-eight thirty, firsts twenty-eight thirty, firsts twenty-five half seven half. London cable (June 20) prices still rising, English 24s-27s, Danish 24s-26s, Dutch 25s-27s, Irish 23s-24s, Chinese 17s-18s. Poultry trade slow, prices easier, chicken 1-9 2-6, survey 2-9 3-3.

TORONTO

TORONTO, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Influenced by the changed sentiment on the New York Stock Exchange, trading on the local market this morning was in direct contrast to that of the past few weeks when continued liquidation led to material recessions in the prices of Canadian stocks. With only one or two exceptions stocks this morning advanced steadily making partial recoveries. Steel of Canada rebounded rapidly on the exploding of the talk of a dividend cut, climbing up 5 1-2 points to 48 1-2. C. P. R. moved up three points to 118 and Toronto Street Railway was higher by 1 5-8 at 73 5-8. Canada Steamships preferred shared in the advance to extent of 2 1-2 points at 46 1-2 but the Common stock was weak at 18 3-4. Atlantic Sugar Lost a point at 25 and Quebec Railway a good fraction at 21 1-2. Two thousand shares of Brazilian, said to be for a local account, changed hands, a gain of 7-8 being recorded at 26 1-2.

WILL ONLY PAVE GEORGE ST. SOUTH

work could not be done in the winter; Lindsay, he said, had constructed sewers cheaper in winter than in summer. But most of the committee were doubting Thomases in this regard. However, Ald. Gainey supported the proposition to pave George street south this year. And so did Ald. Phelan, who was strong for a section of street paving being done each year.

The motion to go ahead with George street pavement here carried.

Kind of Pavement.

And now, enquired Chairman Ald. Whitehouse, what about the kind of pavement?

The Mayor—"To tell you the truth had I my way, I would not do any paving this year."

Discussion then elicited the fact that aspahltic concrete on concrete base or bitulithic on concrete base, for George street south, would cost about $30,000, and it was questioned if a paving company would bring in a plant for that one section at the same prorata price as tendered for the whole 20,000 square yards.

Ald Gainey and Gordon moved that George street south be paved with concrete.

Ald. Crowe—"I move in amendment that we do the work in concrete and undertake it ourselves." But no seconder to this was forthcoming, and the motion was lost on a division of 5 to 4.

Ald. Jones and Hamilton moved that the Warren Paving Co. be asked if they would pave George street south with bitulithic concrete on the same price basis as their tender for all the streets advertised. This carried.

Ald. Gordon and Corwe's amendment that the Mayor inquire if the Hydro-Electric (for the street railway) would agree to the paving of George street south being left over till another year, was lost.

Committee in majority agreed that bitulithic pavement is the most economical in the long run for the streets that are heavily travelled, and it will be noticed that the Warren Company's tenders for bitulithic and asphaltic oncrete figured out the same.

A Painting Job.

Ald. Jones' suggestion that the roof of the market scales and the roof of the market office be painted by Alex. McLeod at a cost of $42, was approved of.

There were present Chairman Ald. Whitehouse, Mayor McIntyre, Ald. James Hamilton, H. Gainey, G. L. Hay, R. Jones, R. Morrison, Jos. Crowe, J. J. Turner, G. N. Gordon, Nagel Phelan.

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this Poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of Corrosive Sublimate, methyl-hydrate, and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

HON. DR. REID MAY OPEN NEW BRIDGE

COUNCIL WILL INVITE MINISTER RAILWAYS AND CANALS TO BE PRESENT.

Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, and D. M. McIntyre, Chairman of the Ontario Railways and Municipal Board, will be invited to be present in Peterboro at the formal opening of the street bridge, as being planned for Civic Holiday, Monday, August 8th.

This was the motion of Ald. Hamilton and Jones in Committee of the Whole City Council last evening.

What the Bride-to-be Should Write

Dear Fred:

Father says you have not provided any life insurance protection for me.

Father thinks no young man has the right to take a young girl from a good home and not provide protection for her according to his means.

Now, Fred, don't you think father is right?

Mary.

WESTERN FARMERS TRYING TO ANTICIPATE THE GRAIN PRICE

THEY ARE ANXIOUS TO AVOID LAST YEAR'S LOSSES WHEN GRAIN WAS HELD FOR HIGH PRICES THAT DID NOT MATERIALIZE.

ROBERT HARSTONE HOME

Mr. Robt. Harston, who has just returned from a seven weeks' trip through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, considers the outlook for a good crop the best it has been in 25 years in the month of June. It very closely resembles the June forecast of 1915, when a bumper crop was realized in the Canadian West. There is a greater amount of wheat sown this year, with less than the usual quantity of oats and flax, and this season sees a larger increase in the breakage of new land,owing to the fact that more rain has fallen so far than in the last five dry years, when the farmers found it unprofitable to break much new ground.

Apprehensive of Prices.

The atmosphere of depression which prevails to a certain extent through the Western provinces is due to the disappointment experienced last year in the marketing of their crops. The marketing of the grain is engaging the attention of the Western farmers just now, to the exclusion of worries about the tariff or kindred issues. They are exceedingly anxious to work out some plan by which they may be enabled to judge the probable price to be received for their products, and thus govern their overhead expenses and prevent the mishap of last season, when grain was held in the hands of speculators for a rising market, which failed to materialize, and the farmers were compelled to take the attendant losses. The Government has appointed a commission to make investigations along this line, and the Saskatchewan government, working with the Co-operative Elevator Company, have a plan on foot to guarantee the farmers to the banks and stand behind the organization of grain sellers. In the election of last month, when Saskatchewan followed the example of Ontario in electing a farmer government, thus, the governing majority of the people of the west came into its own.

During Mr. Harstone's western trip, he passed through the Battle River district in Alberta. Seventeen years ago, on the occasion of his first visit to this part of the country, it was practicaly uninhabited. Now, it is traversed by railroads and settled much more quickly than would have been possible in the east.

Although business is rather quiet in the cities, there seemed to be comparatively little unemployment. Butter which was selling at seventeen cents per pound in the country, with eggs at fifteen cents per dozen, was bringing a higher price in the city, the middlemen getting the profit instead of the producer.

The great need of the West, according to Mr. Harstone, who regards it as the granary of the Empire, is for settlers of the Anglo-Saxon race who have a practical knowledge of farming and are possessed of a little money to start in with.

SAYS CHURCH IS ANAEMIC AND IN NEED OF PHYSCIAN

REV. G. E. ROSS DISAGREES WITH RECENT STATEMENT OF REV. BYRON STAUFFER AT WHITBY.

Splendid congregations and excellent music characterized the services both morning and evening. The subject of the morning sermon was, "A Conquerer and More," and was based on the text, "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us," Romans VIII. 37. The following is an outline of the sermon:

The Returning Hero and His Double Trophy.

It was a great day for Israel when David returned from the conflict with the head of Goliath in one hand and the sword of the giant in the other. We learn from the science of fisticuffs, a "knock-out" is a victory. Now David was victor the moment the giant fell; but he was more than a conqueror when he came into the tent of King Saul with these mighty trophies of conquest. Not only had he overcome his enemy, but he had saved his father's house and the whole nation from disgrace, humiliation and slavery. David becomes God's hero and the darling of the whole nation in a day. It is wonderful how quickly God can elevate a man, so that half a world will lift its hat as he passes. Just honour God and see how it works. Remember, the man who honours God is not after the plaudits of the world; and he would not give a smile from his divine Master for all the encomiums of a flag-waving universe.

Note the Things in Which We Are Conquerors.

The enemies of David and Paul were very different. David's foe was a giant and he could see every movement of Goliath. The enemies of Paul were spiritual and invisible. Tribulation is a mighty force in our lives, but it is an invisible force. The greatest powers of nature are invisible, but we feel their energy. Electricity, magnetism, heat, light, sound and gravitation are all invisible, but they are the most potent powers in the universe of God. Now Paul says that "tribulation worketh the patience, and patience experience, and experience hope.' If, then, the finished product of tribulation is "Patience," and we conquer tribulation, are we not more than victors? We have not only overcome our foe, but we have developed the glorious quality of patience. All our great enemies are unseen. Avarice, greed, fraud, passion, lust, appetite, graft and thirst for unholy pleasure, are all invisible foes. Now, to conquer any one of these is to gain the opposite quality. Let a man conquer selfishness and he finds himself in possession of the quality of generosity. Thus, he is more than conqueror. Let a man overcome the devil and that man has gained Christ, and is more than a conqueror.

We Usually Gain Small Victories at First.

David had great conflicts before he met Goliath of Gath. He slew a lion and a bear and saved a lamb. By killing the wild beasts he became a conqueror, but when he saved the lamb he was more than victor. Then he slew a giant and saved an army and a nation, you see he is a conqueror, plus the salvation of an army and the emancipation of all Israel. Then David conquers himself and wins the encomiums of the centuries and gains immortality. Paul over comes his "breathings of threatenings and slaughter" against the early church, meets Jesus on his way to Darmascus, conquers his own spirit of persecution, and becomes the flaming evangel of all the centuries. Now, if we will drive everything from our lives that will hurt our influence as Christian men and women, we will find that we have gained a grip on life that we never knew before. Yes, and a grip on men. I do not agree with that popular preacher, who tells us that the church is like a sick man feeling his own pulse and getting his own blood pressure, and condemns the sick man for doing so. The sick man who would not try to discover the cause of his disease and find a remedy, would surely act the fool. No, the churches in this city and all cities is sick, and it needs an expert to take the blood pressure right away. Let us call in the Great Physician. The honest man, whether preacher or laymen, knows that the whole church is anaemic, and needs new blood. This disease seems to rise from a deficiency of vital energy in the system, either constitutional or brought on by want of nourishment, breathing impure air, or great loss of blood. Let us get an infusion of the rich, red blood of Him who shed His life blood for the church.

Beware of False Optimism and Undue Pessimism.

"Boost your business whether it is a lie or the truth" is the cry of today. "Boost the church or we are a goner," says the hireling. You notice that David and Paul did not belong to the booster club. The head and sword of the giant were David's credentials. Why should we cry "victory" while Goliath, the representative of all evil, stalks the plain with proud and haughty mien, defying the church of the living God? The giant of society, so-called, walks into our camp, flings down the gauntlet, challenges the mettle of our sword, dares us to the conflict, tramples upon the holy things of God, tears our morals and our Sabbaths into atoms, and flings the fragments in the dust. Is there no David to meet this proud boaster? Yes there is, and he is crossing the brook with swift and glorious stride.

But Society is Not All to Blame. Have We Been True?

Have we been true to the man whom God has blessed with wealth and power? Did not David confront the giant with his sin before he slew him? We must not only prove that a man cannot cover up a wicked and unclean life with bank notes, but if we would be more than conqueror, we must get him to put on the robe of Christ's righteousness.

Embarassing Hairs Can be Quickly Cured

(Beauty Culture.)

Hairs can be easily banished from the under-arms, neck and face, by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on the hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off; wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one dose is sufficient. To avoid disappointment buy the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.

ANTI-BOLSHEAIK TROOPS TO HAVE AID OF WRANGEL

WASHINGTON, June 16.—About 4,000 troops of the remnants of General Wrangel's anti-Bolshevik forces, now scattered throughout Turkey, probably will be sent to the Vladivostok area of Siberia to join forces there opposing the soviet, adccording to official advices here today.

This information has been given to allied officials in Constantinople by the general staff of the Wrangel forces, which were severely defeated by the Bolsheviks in Southern Russia.

While the Wrangel general staff admitted that about 4,000 troops, only a small part of the old anti-Bolshevik forces, may be sent to Siberia, it denied to allied officials that any large part of the old Wrangel force was going to Siberia under Japanese support. The Japanese high commissioner in Constantinople also has denied such reports.

Outside Aids.

This latest development in the tangled Siberian situation was considered significant here, as it is obvious that none of the old Wrangel troops could be sent on the long journey from Turkey to Eastern Siberia without some outside aid.

It is assumed here that should the Wrangel forces, or a part of them, be sent to Siberia, this would be for the purpose of joining either the Semenoff or Kappel anti-Bolshevik forces. The Kappel forces have captured Vladivostok and other points in Eastern Siberia and have overthrown the Socialist government of Vladivostok.

Japan's Hand Seen.

There is a feeling in certain diplomatic circles here that Japan has had something to do with the Kappel coup, and it is pointed out significantly that dispatches from the far east have announced that the Japanese have postponed their reported decision to evacuate Siberia because of the capture of Vladivostok.

The Russian soviet government at Moscow is reported to have protested to the allies against the seizure of Vladivostok, by the Kappel forces, charging it was inspired by the Japanese, and the state department here is understood to have received informally similar protests from Siberia.

Secretary of State Hughes is watching the muddled Siberian situation closely.

BYRNE'S MILLIONS LOOK MYTHICAL TO NEW YORK BANKERS

HAVE INVESTIGATED HIS CLAIMS AND FIND THEM TOO UNCERTAIN TO WARRANT ANY ACTION —BYRNE'S FAITH IS UNSHAKEN

NEW YORK, June 16.—New York banking interests have been investigating the strange story told by the Rev. David S. K. Byrne, a mission worker of Montreal, now at the Claridge Hotel. He says that a fortune of at least $20,000,000 was left him by a grateful capitalist whose wayward daughter he reclaimed by prayer in Chicago fourteen years ago, and that when he gets it he will use it to build rescue homes for other girls.

Banking clients asked the law firm of Olcott, Bomynge, McManus & Ernst to check up the clergyman's expectations so that they might know whether to undertake to help him in collecting the assets of the estate, supposed to lie in many countries.

Terrence J. McManus of that law firm has had a talk with Mr. Byrne and inspected his legal papers, and has caused inquiry to be made in Florida. He has compared his conclusions with those of another bank which has been looking around on its own account. The result is, Mr. McManus said lately a recommendation from him to his clients that the "matter is too uncertain to warrant any action on their part."

The investigators, as far as they have gone, have not located the rich oil and timber lands, stocks and other properties which are the bulk of Mr. Byrne's reputed inheritance. They have seen a paper indicating the existence of a small propery in or near Pittsburgh. They have been unable to obtain a clear mental picture of Wellington G. Byrne, the minister's benefactor, or to ascertain the sources of this obscure millionaire's large estate.

They are puzzled by the fact that the many papers filed by Rev. Mr. Byrne in a Florida court, including the will itself, are not originals but certified copies. They have not succeeded in getting Mr. Byrne to tell them where the original will is, nor was the New York Herald more successful, for his answer was: "It's filed; everything is filed and proven."

Mr. Byrne apparently believes with all his soul in the reality of his great heritage. Under the appointment of a Florida court he is the sole executor, and under the will itself is the sole survivor and beneficiary of the will of Wellington G. Byrne. For years he has been going up and down the earth collecting his "proof" and upturning obstacles that lay in his way. He says now his story is true to the last line and that the trouble with the banks is they want to take everything, which he doesn't propose to let them do.

SINCERITY.

Whatsoe'er I be or do,
Let me honest be and true.
Never wear a false pretence.
Never speak with double sense,
Claim a thing I have not got,
Or look the thing that I am not.

New Drug Will Make Millions of People Well

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY —NUMERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our Livers. When the Liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your Stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach, or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicines act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep waking in the morning feeling 100 p.c. better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed, and ready for a good day's work.

Tanated Calomel is sold in Peterborough by F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

SOME PROMINENT MEMBERS of THE CANADIAN AUTHORS' ASSOCIATION.

Although only a short time in existence, the Canadian Authors' Association has already proved itself a very active organization, and has done substantial work for the benefit of the Canadian Author and Canadian literature. The Association grew out of a recent Convention held in Montreal, which was attended by over one hundred Canadian writers, many of whom have attained international fame—such as Basil King, Stephen Leacock, Arthur Stringer, Frank L. Packard, Bliss Carman, Archibald MacMechan, Robert Stead, Madge Macbeth, etc. It has received the cordial support of many who could not personally be present, such as, Ralph Connor, L. M. Montgomery Nellie McClung, Judge Emily Murphy (Janey Canuck), Harvey O'Higgins, Isabel Ecclestone MacKay, and a host of others whose names are household words in Canadian magazines. Librarians were there, such as Dr. George H. Locke, W. S. Wallace and Hector Garneau —also many of the Toronto publishers. A considerable number of French-Canadian Authors were present, including M. Louvigny de Montigny, and Madame Huguenin, whose writings published under the pen-name of Madeleine are exceedingly popular with the French-Canadian population.

The remarkable interest taken in this Association is no doubt due to the growing spirit of national pride, which has evidenced itself so strongly in Canadian life, while a special reason for the Association could be found in the Copyright Bill before the Canadian Parliament, which appeared to endanger the rights of Authors as they had never been endangered before.

A Committee was appointed to study and take action on this Bill, and within a fortnight a report was issued which undoubtedly has carried considerable weight with the Government. Other Committees have since been appointed to promote a number of practical schemes, with the object of increasing the percentage of book-readers in Canada and of enlarging the interest in Canadian literature. Thus, for instance, the publishers have agreed to co-operate with the authors in organizing a Canadian Book Week for next November when the attention of the bookloving public will be concentrated on works by Canadian Authors. This is a month in which a great many people get books to send overseas as Christmas presents, and it is planned also to encourage people in the West to send books by Western Authors to friends in the East, and people in the East to send books by Eastern Authors to friends in the West.

The Association anticipates that if the book-reading and book-buying public is increased in this country, the Canadian author will no longer be tempted to desert his native country for the more populous centers of New York or London, but will find a sufficiently appreciative public at home. Already conditions in this respect are improving, and several Authors such as Arthur Stringer have come back from the United States to live in Canada. A nation without a literature is as hopeless as a man without a country, and the object of the Canadian Authors' Association to promote a distinctive Canadian literature is truly national in its scope.

GREATEST GATE IN HISTORY OF SPORT DRAWN FOR DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER BOUT

NEW YORK, June 21 (Associated Press).—The Dempsey-Carpentier boxing bout for the world's championship at Jersey City, 2nd July, will draw the greatest "gate" in the history of sport.

A month before the fight, Promoter Tex Rickard announced that the seat sales totalled $650,000. Since that day, the sale of all seats has gone on briskly except for the $50.00 pasteboards, which are exhausted, and the general admission seats, to be placed on sale the day of the fight. Rickard estimates that approximately 65,000 persons will pay $1,000,000 to view the ring action at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Those figures will eclipse by far all previous records for ring contests or any other sport in this country. The Willard-Dempsey battle at Toledo, O., which established the previous record drew $451,000 at the box office, a puny figure as compared with what the coming spectacle will attract.

The Harvard-Yale football game and the Indianapolis Speedway Races are annually reckoned among the largest and most widely patronised sporting events in this country. Last fall, 79,000 persons were jammed into the Yale Bowl when Harvard met the Bulldog and the total receipts were approximately $250,000 —about one-quarter of the amount which will be paid for the coming fight. The attendance at the Indianapolis Speedway event usually ranges between 100,000 and 125,000, but the total receipts fall short of what Rickard and his assistants will have gathered in when the gong sounds for the first round of the Jersey City battle.

Tex Rickard started his career as a promoter of championship bouts on a large scale when Joe Gans met battling Nelson in Goldfield, Nev., in 1906. The receipts for that memorable battle were $69,715. That figure was topped when Jack Johnson fought Tommy Burns in Australia, on Christmas Day, 1908, but Rickard again established a high mark in 1910 when boxing fans from all over the country paid $270,775 to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno, Nev. Figures for the Willard-Dempsey bout at Toledo, 4th July, 1919, supplanted even that large total, and Rickard, in the coming Jersey City match, has entered the select circle of "million-dollar business men."

Figures on the leading bouts follow:

Principals.	Gate Receipts
Willard-Dempsey	$452,521
Johnson-Jeffries	270,755
Willard-Moran	x140,000
Johnson-Burns	97,000
Gans-Nelson	69,715
Willard-Johnson	x68,000
Jeffries-Sharkey	66,300

CARS WASHED AND STORED

CARPENTIER ONE OF THE MOST UNUSUAL BOXERS WHO EVER ENTERED TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Associated Press).—Georges Carpentier, challenger of Jack Dempsey, is one of the most unusual boxers who ever competed for the heavyweight championship. In temperament and intelligence, there has been none like him among aspirants for heavyweight honors. He will be outweighed by Dempsey when they clash. Other physical measurements may also appear to be to the disadvantage of the Frenchman, but the essential item of courage will not be included in these shortcomings.

Carpentier, born in the coal mining district of Lens, France, fought as a youngster of 12 years and progressed steadily through the various weight classes, meeting the best boxers of France, England and America until he now stands near the pinnacle in pugilistic sport.

A survey of the opponents Carpentier has met in the ring and sketches of several battles in which he revived from a count of nine to outpoint or knock out his rivals in subsequent rounds convinces one of his ring courage. He has fought among others Joe Jeannette, Frank Klaus, Billy Papke, Jeff Smith, Harry Lewis, Bombardier Wells, Joe Beckett and Gunboat Smith. Some of them he met when a youth in his late 'teens. His fights with Frank Klaus and Billy Papke when he was only 18 are declared to have been the most grilling in his career. In victory or defeat throughout his ring campaign, Carpentier has been guided by Francois Descamps toward the heavyweight championship goal which he will endeavor to reach at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on July 2. The list of opponents Carpentier has met is more impressive than that of Jack Dempsey's rivals. In ring experience, Carpentier is by far the older.

The first battle with Bombardier Wells at Ghent is declared to have been one of the most impressive exhibitions of courage by the young Frenchman, who was outweighed many pounds. He took the count of nine in the first round, to come back and knock out his opponent in the fourth. Before they met the second time, he predicted Wells might last one round, but the Englishman was knocked out in less than one minute.

Harry Lewis, in the fourth round of a bout, broke two bones in his right hand, hitting Carpentier on the cheek bone with a smash that cut a deep gash under the eye. Carpentier came back to outpoint Lewis in 20 rounds. When he lost a 15-round decision to Joe Jeannette, Carpentier was sent to the mat two or three times, but refused to stay and dropped the negro twice for a count of nine.

But this anomaly of boxing game has done his most important fighting outside the ropes. The cockpit of an army combat plan has seen his most thrilling engagements and greatest demonstration of courage. Cited for heroism several times in the World War, Carpentier wears the Croix de Guerre and the Military Medal, of all decorations, the most prized by the French soldier.

Comrades of Carpentier relate how they had watched him thousands of feet in the air attacking an enemy or swooping low over a Boche camp or airdrome while German anti-aircraft guns tried to make a sieve of his plane. Often, they say, they mournfully uttered good-byes to the youth, only to see him a few minutes later climbing out of the ship wearing the smile that spectators at Jersey City undoubtedly will see when he enters the ring to meet Dempsey.

PETES WILL HAVE TO BE AT THEIR BEST SATURDAY

FREDDY GOYER IS IN GREAT FORM AND THAT MEANS A BATTLE ROYAL WHEN G.T.R. TEAM VISIT HERE ON SATURDAY.

That Freddy Goyer, the Belleville southpaw, is at the top of his form, is shown by his last two starts, in which he held Lindsay to three hits and one unearned run, and shut out Port Hope. In the game against the Ontarios he whiffed sixteen men, so it is evident that he is going along as good as ever, and that means the Petes will have to be at their best Saturday when the Belleville team play a Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park if they hope to stop the Easterners. The Petes are not disheartened by the bad breaks they got last week and are out to stop their slump on Saturday at the expense of Belleville. It should be the choicest battle of the year, for a Belleville-Peterborough clash always means fireworks. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

The executive of the Central Ontario League will meet at Oshawa tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to consider the protest entered by the Peterborough team in connection with the Port Hope game last week. Manager Jake Solomon will represent the Peterborough club at the meeting.

The Lindsay Post says: It is understood that Peterborough has protested the game played in Port Hope last week, when the Petes were trimmed by 3 to 2. We had hoped that this would be a clear-cut win for Port Hope, not because they defeated Peterborough, but because our sympathy goes with the team in the cellar position. However, if the protest is won it simply goes to show that the best officials in the league should handle the balls and strikes and also the base umpiring. In aftc the Central Ontario League should adopt a rule whereby the umpire in chief should be that in every sense of the word, and have the power to overrule bonehead decisions on the bases.

LACROSSE NOTES

In his report in the Toronto Telegram of the Orankeville-St. Simon's gram of the Orangeville-St. Simon's day, "Sport" Murton offers a helpful criticism that may be of local interest. The home players on both teams, he says, did not play enough" on the run."

His suggestion continues: "They depend too much on the odd man coming up from centre field, and play too much of a standing waiting game. They seem to forget that it is not the man only who has possession of the ball who must move, but that many openings can be made by the rest of the home criss-crossing and mixing up the defence when the ball is at their end. They will find that this will open up a defence much more than crowding in on the nets in covered pairs, and blocking the goal. Then they must improve their passing and catching a good deal, while on the run, and also their shooting."

In their game here on Saturday Campbellford worked the odd man very effectively, and Abe Jacobs was usually the odd man. At the same time this player, with Kerr, showed occasional flashes of the running attack that would have made a brilliant game had it been closer. The juniors should be coached in this game, and to that end Manager Sutherland should provide enough balls to give the youngsters lots of the fast running passing game.

As Ed. Dillon recalled, it was the custom in his younger days for each player to have a ball and to practice at home in spare moments. Lou McCoy's early training was helped by shooting at a knot-hole in a barn door and also taking the rebounds.

A slip in the report of Saturday's game said that Goodfellow, the Peterborough goaler, had a lighter session than Pat Kelly, the Campbellford net guardian. The opposite was of course intended.

It is a good thing for Bill Brinkman, of Havelock, that Peterborough lost. He pledged himself to rolling a peanut all the way home if Campbellford was defeated.

The Havelock game in Campbellford next Friday should be a gingery one. Some of the Peterborough lacrosse fans will be on the side lines for this battle. It will undoubtedly be one of the best games seen in the Trent district in years. The rivalry between the two communities has broken out afresh this year and is sharply expressed on the lacrosse field. Both teams are determined to win, and both are anxious that the game shall be clean, but the competitive spirit has engendered a degree of antagonism that may blow up at any time, especially if the game is close. Some of the local team believe that both a referee and judge of play should be engaged for the Campbellford-Havelock engagement.

JERSEY CITY POLITICIANS ARE STRONG FOR THAT MANLY STUFF JULY 2

GOV. EDWARDS' BROTHER HEARTILY FAVORS THE FIGHT IDEA; HE GETS $250,000 CONTRACT TO BUILD ARENA; OTHER ENLIGHTENING NOTES.

JERSEY CITY, June 21.—Politics is kind of dead hereabouts. But the politicians aren't.

Mayor Frank Hague's political organization, which is credited with elevating Edward I. Edwards to the Governorship, is composed of men who subscribe heartily to the idea that healthy sport is profitable when viewed with discriminating eye.

C. S. Edwards, Gov. Edward's brother, has landed a nice contract which affords work for a large number of the boys during the dull season. Mr. Edwards got the $250,000 job of building the arena for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, scheduled for July 2. Faithful Jerseyites are happy over the $4,000 to $5,000 a day payroll, as many of the boys haven't had a thing to do since election day.

Gov. Edwards, too, is a firm believer in good manly sport. He takes no stock in the reformers' agitation against the world's championship fight. The Governor believes Jersey City citizens will profit much through the undertaking.

The Jersey politicians who own the ground on which the Dempsey-Carpentier amphitheater is being built are beginning to worry over what they will do with the place after the fight. Boyle's Thirty Acres which is to be the scene of the big scrap wasn't good for much before the improvements necessary under Tex Rickard's arena plans. These improvements, together with the vast amount of lumber used, will make it quite a place. The owners can't see how the property will be of any use to Rickard after the fight, and they are willing to accept the improvements for their trouble. They are hopeful that a general real estate boom may be started, but if this falls they will try to utilize the place for bicycle races or some other sport.

* * *

Harry Ertle, who stands high in his particular political circle, is, at this writing, the leader for selection as referee of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. Ertle holds the job of City Marshal of Jersey City, but is not averse to taking on additional emoluments.

His title alarmed fight enthusiasts when he was first suggested. Several made a pilgrimage to Jersey to learn whether as Marshal he stood for half of 1 per cent. enforcement. Inquiries about his Marshal functions seem to tickle the town sages unduly.

"Marshal, well, well," chuckled one. "It does sound dangerous, doesn't it? Historically I suppose a Marshal did have something to do with enforcing the law. But it's like policemen in other cities, that function is out. Now Ertle——"

The authority was at a loss for a moment. Another sage helped him out:

"Why, he gets the flag out every holiday and dusts it off. I guess he locks up the city at night, too."

* * *

Feeling is running high among Jersey office holders over the scandalous operations of New York City ticket speculators, who bought large blocks of tickets for the Carpentier-Dempsey go. It is reported that these speculators are holding the choice seats for big premiums. Some of the $50 tickets, it is said, will be retailed for $100 or $150. Jersey City politicians hold the fair name of their city very dear and are determined to do their utmost to minimize the scandal. The office-holders are in possession of a large number of the best seats, compliments of Tex Rickard, and they are prepared to sacrifice them at $75 apiece to prevent ticket speculators shaming the State. It is understood that there was some protest at Mr. Rickard's office over the number of extra tickets the politicians insisted on. Since the development of the ticket scandal, the politicians are pluming themselves that the wisdom of their precautions has been abundantly proven.

GIFT OF CANADIANS GIVES LONDON WORRY.

R. A. C. Does Not Know What To Do With Fund.

LONDON, June 21.—A somewhat embarrassing situation has arisen through Canada's gracious act of appreciation of the hospitality shown by the Royal Automobile Club during the war, when it was thrown open to officers from overseas.

After the armistice a proposal was adopted on behalf of each of the Dominions for a fund to be started to enable those who benefited by the R.A.C.'s action to show their appreciation.

Gen. Currie, commander of the Canadian corps, collected over £500 from the officers in the Dominion and forwarded it to the high commissioner in London. Sir George Perley has held this money now for over a year and is still at a loss to know exactly what to do with it, as the other Dominions have not announced the amount of their own collections.

Moreover, those officers who promoted the fund are now scattered over the earth's four corners, and nobody seems definitely to have been authorized to an actual spending of the money for the purpose for which it was subscribed.

MUSICAL QUINTETTE NEW CAPITOL FEATURE

CAPACITY HOUSE MARKED THE WEEK'S FIRST NIGHT.

The Capitol Theatre was filled last evening for the fine programme which is being offered there the first three days of this week. The Mona Silver Troupe, a quintette of clever musicians, was repeatedly encored. A wonderfully precocious young piano player, with a difficult and brilliant solo, a girl who does some fine step dancing, a vocal duett with banjo accompaniment, a jazz number with piano, guitar, saxaphone, violin, and banjo going full tilt in a burst of syncopated sound a violin number, make up the excellent programme given by this group of talented young artists.

Mary Pickford has rather a unique departure in her latest vehicle, "The Love Light." She is just as sweet and winsome as ever as the young Italian girl who suffers so much by the loss of her brothers in the great war and her marriage to a man who is afterwards discovered to be a German spy. Her realization of his identity causes her, in a burst of patriotism, to reveal his secret hiding-place to her neighbors, and, in trying to escape, he throws himself from the cliffs and dies on the rocks below. When Angela's baby is born, she loses her reason temporarily, and the child is taken from her by a war-wracked mother whose own child and husband are dead. The real mother's recovery of her baby from a blinded returned soldier, make some powerful scenes, in which Miss Pickford shows that her capacities as an emotional actress are just as pronounced as her former curl-capped offerings in hoydenish, madcap pictures.

NEW UNDERWORLD THEME IN FILM AT THE ALLEN

Priscilla Dean's Best Role

The crook dramas of recent years that are really great, may be counted upon the fingers of one hand or named with one breath. But a place among them is earned by the newest story of the underworld. It is "Outside the Law", a film feature written and produced by Tod Browning, in which Priscilla Dean is starring on the screen of the Allen Theatre to-day.

The struggle of crooks to go straight is an old theme—but the struggle of Silky Mo? and Dapper Bill Ballard to live their own lives, is a part, but not the theme of Tod Browning's picture. It is merely the dramatic skeleton that sustains the comely flesh of human heart drama in which Miss Dean, Lon Chaney and Wheeler Oakman are the principals.

The real theme runs through the story like the undercurrent of a mysterious river. It is the passion of an old Chinese philosopher for his ideals —principles of right and wrong, that are fundamental and not sections and paragraphs from quibbling statute books. In his oriental devotion to what is right, E. A. Warren shows the Chinese dealing a justice "outside the law".

A young star named Stanley Goethals, Ralph Lewis, Melbourne Mac Dowel and Wilton Taylor are exceedingly well cast in important roles.

BACK FROM THE FRONT" MARKS NEAL BURNS' SIXTH SCREEN YEAR

With the completion of "Back from the Front", latest of the two reel Christie Comedies in which he appears along wih Bobby Vernon and Laura La Plante and which is at the Allen theatre to-day, Neal Burns celebrated the end of his sixth year in motion pictures. After scoring a hit in stock and in musical comedy, Burns first appeared on the screen in 1914 with the Ince forces. Then he went to Universal and was afterwards seen in National Comedies before joining the Christie forces, where he has become one of the leading comedians.

"Love" acclaimed one of the year's most elevating dramas of the silver-sheet — a "poignant drama of the soul," at the Regent Theatre to-day.

SUCCESS OF AUDACIOUS IS CREATING RACING SENSATION---CLIPPED SECOND FROM GREAT MAN O' WAR'S RECORD

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—The success of the Foreign Stables' racing sensation, Audacious, is causing a great deal of comment among United States track enthusiasts. The horse is owned by Mrs. W. Viau, wife of the late Wilfred Viau of Montreal.

Audacious clipped a fifth of a second from Man o' War's record for the mile in winning the Mineola handicap at Belmont Park, June 1. The new record is 1.35 3-5. This feat astounded track experts, but Audacious proved he was a real stake horse when three days later in the Suburban handicap, at a mile and a quarter, he beat Mad Hatter in the sensational time of 2.02 4-5. Audacious is a five-year-old.

It is hoped here that Louis Feustel's plans to have Man o' War return to the track will receive the endorsement of the owners. Racing folk would like to know what the big horse could do over the Belmont track, which is at its fastest now, owing to the continued drought of the early summer.

Mrs. Viau in producing Audacious is keeping up the record of the stables established by her husband, who owned Omar Khayyam, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1917.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

In the long list of decisive ring battles through which the mantle worn by Sullivan has passed down the years to the bronzed shoulders of Jack Dempsey, there is no page to compare with that recounting the clash between Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries in a sun-scorched arena at Reno on July 4, 1910.

Tex Rickard reared a great wooden saucer out on the plains of Nevada to accommodate the thousands who gathered from all over the country to see the tilt. He hung up a purse of $101,000, an unprecedented prize in those days.

Jeffries had not fought in more than five years. In the days of his reign in the ring, none had been his master, and he had retired voluntarily with no defeats recorded against him. He was 35 years old, an age often reckoned as dotage in the realm of sport. The attempt on his part to restore the championship to the white race was an effort to which he had been induced by a constant clamor from those who despaired of Johnson ever being beaten by the crop of white hopes then seeking matches with him.

It was a great throng that assembled for the battle. Fringed around the great arena packed were rows of "birds' nests," built to shelter the sweet sisterhood from the Reno divorce colony. To them the fight was a charming break in the monotony of serving time. Jeffries trained down to 225 pounds to meet the sleek opponent three years his junior, and then in magnificent physical trim. There was vigorous fighting at the start, with Jeffries crouched into serious mein and his opponent erect, grinning and talking as usual.

In the fifth round Jeffries sent a stray left that rocked Johnson and momentarily wiped away his smile. But the worried look on the black face passed, big white teeth again gleamed, and through them came the admonition, "Don't rush, Mistah Jeff, doncha heah what A'hm tellin' you?"

"Come on, Jeff, it's easy," he repeated often through the bitter rounds.

Age and five years of freedom from the rigors of training told on Jeffries and the power of his blows grew less strong as the battle went on. In the 15th round—the last one—Johnson sent him to the ropes with a savage uppercut. Against the drooping head of the weary white man the black fighter then pounded away with one uppercut after another.

The challenger had tried and failed, and he fell taking punishment. His manager hopped into the ring to stop the slaughter, whereupon Rickard held up Johnson's hand in signal of victory.

RING BATTLES OF DEMPSEY AND CARPERTIER

(No. 1.)

William Harrison "Jack" Dempsey born in Manassa, Col., June 24, 1895, is a novice in ring affairs when compared with the fistic experience of Georges Carpentier, his challenger. Carpentier's earliest ring engagements date back to 1907, when the Frenchman was but a slip of a boy. Dempsey's first official battles were fought in 1915.

A contest with one Kid Hancock, whom Dempsey knocked out in a single round, is the first official engagement credited to the conqueror of Jess Willard. Dempsey, however, tells, with evident delight, of an earlier battle.

Dempsey himself was the promoter, ticket-taker and a principal on that boxing program, which grew out of an argument with another youth at Montrose, Col. They were about to settle the difficulty in the usual American style, with fists, when Dempsey, showing a certain business acumen that has been noticeable in both him and his manager in later days, suggested that they hold the bout indoors, and charge admission. A few days later, they pitched a ring in the town dance hall. Dempsey sold and collected tickets at the door until it was time to fight. They split the $50 "gate" and declared it was "easy money."

That bout started Jack Dempsey in the profession which was to make him subsequently the highest paid athlete any sport has seen.

He fought 27 battles during 1915 and 1916, winning 18 by knockouts and 5 on decisions. He fought 3 draws and was defeated once, by Jack Downey.

* * *

How Georges Carpentier, taken from a Lens brewery, where he worked as an office boy, won his first battle by knocking out Francois Descamps, his instructor, when Descamps attempted to chastise the youth, is one of the choice legends of boxing. Descamps' keen perception on that day, as well as his shrewdness and perseverance, has been a most important factor in bringing the French boxer to the prominent position he now occupies.

Three four-round contests constituted Carpentier's first year of ring activity in 1907. Two of these he won, defeating on points Bourgeois and Wetinck, French boxers whose only claim to fame is that they once met Georges Carpentier. There was more opposition in the third battle, and at the end of four rounds Carpentier was the loser to one Mazoir, another Frenchman who has sunk into obscurity. Carpentier's total ring earnings for that year are said to have been $184.

The following year was more successful. Twice in his 15th year the young Frenchman won by knockouts, stopping Moinereau, a fellow countryman, and Salmon, an Englishman, the first in three rounds, the latter in 18. In another bout with Salmon Carpentier won on a foul in 13 rounds. He then defeated Lepine in six rounds and fought two draws. Descamps had been bringing his youthful protege along carefully, and already he was showing excellent form among France's best bantamweights.

(No. 2.)

Dempsey, in 1915 and 1916, when next week's meals were not always definitely scheduled, travelled on brakes and beams, rather than in cushioned compartment cars, on his journey from one fistic engagement to another. His travels took him to New York in the late months of 1916.

While in New York, Dempsey met his first opponents of any class, boxing with Andre Anderson, Wild Burt Kenney and John Lester Johnson in 10-round, no-decision bouts, all going the limit. Dempsey was credited with beating Anderson and Kenney, but the veteran negro, Johnson, knew a bit too much for this "diamond in the rough" from Colorado. Johnson cracked two of Jack's ribs in the second round and Dempsey showed ring gameness by standing up to the negro for the remainder of the fight.

Dempsey and his manager now talk in the hundreds of thousands when discussing purses. For his first bout in New York City, with Anderson, the westerner received $16. For boxing Kenney, he was given $43 by the promoter. He signed to box John Lester Johnson for $500, but received only $100. In those days there was no Jack Kearns present to haggle for the boxer, and he decided that New York was not the gold-filled city that western stories had led him to believe. The young fighter returned to the west and to obscurity for a few months.

* * *

The second and third years of Georges Carpentier's ring career started him off like a future bantamweight champion of the world. In 1908, he fought six battles, winning two by knockouts, one on a foul, one on points, while each of the other two resulted in a draw. Descamps gradually became more daring in choosing opponents for the 15-year-old boxer. Salmon, the Englishman, whom he defeated by a knockout the first time in 18 rounds and again on a foul in 13 rounds, was among the best of the English bantamweights. Legrand, one of the shiftiest of the French bantams, twice held him to a draw, once for six rounds and again at 20 rounds.

The following year promised to be even more successful. In one of the earliest bouts he knocked out in one round Wetinck, who had nearly held him even in one of the 1907 contests. Four victories by knockouts and nine bouts won on points, including triumphs over Charlie Ledoux and Paul Til, both famous bantams, comprised the record for the year until Carpentier ran into Gloria, a veteran, who stopped him in six rounds.

This was the first time that the Lens youth had taken the count. Defeat at the hands of a more experienced boxer did not discourage either Carpentier or Descamps, for, on the whole, Carpentier's development had been phenomenal and none recognized that fact better than the shewd little man who has piloted the boxer to his present pitch of prominence.

WAR CANOE CREW BEGINS TRAINING

WILL REVIVE AN AQUATIC SPORT THAT WAS DISRUPTED BY THE WAR.

War canoe racing, which was becoming so popular around Peterborough before the war, is likely to be renewed this season. There were several good crews around Peterborough in 1914. The outbreak of the war resulted in the crew being broken up, with the result that no races have been held since then.

About a week ago some of the members of St. Paul's Young Men's Bible Class got out their old canoes for a paddle, and will have their first regular practice to-night from the Peterborough Canoe Company's premises. This is the crew that won practically all the races in 1912, '13, and '14, including the Stoney Lake championship three years in succession. It also holds the cup for the Chemong Lake championship, and expects to be ready to defend it this year. Some of the old members of the crew are still available this year and there is a fine bunch of new material ready. The practice to-night will start at 7.30, when a full crew is expected.

It is likely that the Y.M.C.A. will have a crew, and it is reported that Lakefield may put a crew on the water this year for the first time. If the sport arouses the interest that seems likely, it is probable that some new fast racing war canoes will be purchased before long in order that crews may be sent to some of the big outside regattas.

C.G.E. PREPARE FOR O.B.A.A. RACE AND SIGN PITCHER C. M'CARNEY

HAMILTON'S WITH NEW TEAM PLAY Y.M.C.A. THIS EVENING IN CITY LEAGUE

Chris. McCarney, the St. Michael's College hockey player, and a baseball pitcher of considerable promise, has dropped into town and signed a certificate to play with the Canadian Generals in the City Baseball League. He is a brother of Jack McCarney, playing in the outfield with the local Central Leaguers.

The C.G.E. gang expect to win the City League, and with McCarney's assistance, travel far in the O.B.A.A. play-offs.

The Generals have a real fight ahead of them. The unexpected may happen in the City League. Hamilton's, with a re-organized team, are said to be a big improvement over the former squad, and the Y.M.C.A. must also be considered. Should the honors go to the C.G.E., they must then be prepared to take on the winner of the Mercantile League. Cressman's are picked to win this division on the strength of their showing to date, not having lost a game. With Cressman's as the opposition, the C.G.E. will need all the ball players they can get. The performance by the store nine has been one of the few bright spots at Riverside this season.

And the East Peterborough League winner must not be overlooked. It is this League that produces real batters. After another month of play, the "U.F.O." teams will be in good shape to go against high-class pitchers, and any local club that is discounting the East Peterborough League winner is making a big mistake.

Lakeviews Vs. Generals.

Bankers have won the first half of the juvenile series, and the schedule of games for the second half is being prepared. Lakeviews and Generals have been given the first contest on Friday evening. The City League did fine work when this series was organized. All the games have been well-contested, and the young players are deriving great benefit from the encouragement and coaching that accompanies the games.

City League To-night.

This evening's twilight attraction will bring Y.M.C.A. and Hamilton's together in a City League game. The teams are out to make an honest effort to give the fans an interesting exhibtion of the summer pastime. Hamilton's may use Gibbs at first, Russell at third and Thompson, a Church Leaguer at short. Lawrence is billed to work behind the batters and Cousins will pitch.

Battle in Prospect.

Westclox get thier last chance on Thursday evening, when they meet Cressman's in the Mercantile League. A win for the clock makers will put new interest into the league race, and will give all four teams a chance for the second half. With Al. Doughty pitching for Westclox, and Bergoine backstopping for Cressman's the teams will be at the top of their strength.

Raye Dean, leading lady with Bert Lytell in "A Message from Mars." last week married Max Gordon, well known vaudeville agent.

ST. CATHARINES ROSE SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

The members of the Peterboro Horticultural Society and local rose growers in particular will be interested to know that the Rose Show held in S. Catharines last week and which concluded on Saturday was an unbounded success. Rosarians from Rochester, Buffalo, Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener and many other cities declared that St. Catharines had made an achievement in this branch of floriculture that was unsurpassed in this country. The city has also a rose garden that is said to be unique. Incidentally one of the gentlemen who have been its most ardent promoters in W. B. Burgoyne, editor of the St. Catharines Standard. The membership of the St. Catharines Horticultural Society has a membership of 1315. "Mrs. George Mariott" one of roses shown by Mrs. Arthur Blundell was adjudged the finest specimen in the show.

TABLET TO POE.

To be Erected on his Grave on June twenty-fifth.

PARIS, June 20.—Count de Byren Kuhn, young Polish artist, poet, and archeologist, will place a bronze tablet executed by himself to the memory of Edgar Allen Poe on the Americans' poet's grave June 25. The tablet is the gift of more than 2,000 literary men and women of France, members of the French Literary Society and the Alliance Francaise and bears the inscription "To the memory of Edgar Allen Poe, eternally dear to the hearts of his French friends, this small tribute to his genius is dedicated."

The Count, who is an enthusiastic sportsman, has been requested by several athletic clubs to present Georges Carpentier with a French flag in the event of his defeating Jack Dempsey in the heavy-weight championship bout.

CHEAPER BERRIES NOT LOOKED FOR

Discussing the strawberry situation a local dealer to-day told the Examiner that the market was stiffening up and cheaper berries could not be looked for. The Toronto market was advancing and the crop around Peterborought was small, he said, so prices of local grown stuff are high. Prices of berries in the shops to-day ran from 20 to 25 cnts. To the trade they were selling at 15c. and 17c. but Thursday the growers announce that they will ask 16 to 18 cents. Niagara cherries are appearing in the fruit shops. Sweet black cherries are selling at $2.50 a six-quart basket and red cherries are bringing $1.75. Some of the dealers got cherries in the last week and some early this week. Pineapples are going off the market and leaving room for other stuff that is coming on. Green peas, locally grown, are making their debut this year at 18 cents a quart.

THE WEATHER

To-day is the longest day of the year. This morning the sun rose at its highest point north of east, and this evening sets at its most northern point in the western sky. At noon it was at the nearest point overhead it reaches on this parallel of latitude. From to-day until the 21st of December the day will gradually shorten. Though tempted to do a little moralizing here I will forbear. The highest temperature yesterday was 82 degrees, but to-day is a little warmer. Few really warm nights have yet been experienced, the thermometer almost nightly going to 48 or 50 degrees.—W. P.

Children Burned to Death, Father Showed Heroism

TWO DAUGHTERS OF JAMES F. ELLIOTT, FORMERLY OF PETERBORO, PERISHED IN BROCKVILLE TRADGEDY.

OTHERS WERE SAVED

BROCKVILLE, June 22.— Dorothy ageed 14, and Phyllis Marion, agd four, daughters of James F. Elliott, were burned to death in a fire which at 5.30 o'clock this morning destroyed their home, a frame building, at the corner of Amy and Ormond streets. Mrs. Elliott went downstairs to prepare breakfast by means of a coal oil stove. She lit the stove but it blew out. Without turning off the flow, the woman returned up stairs to resume her dressing and on going back to the lower floor she found the kitchen in flames.

Her screams awakened her husband who went downstairs and attended to the removal of his wife and youngest child, Albert, aged two from the House, when he attempted to go upstairs he found the stairway in flames, and was unable to proceed. He then tried to reach the upper rooms from the roof of the verandah and succeeded in getting George, aged nine and Stanley aged 7, from their room. As he reached Phyllis aged four, he was overcome by smoke at the same time as he heard Dorothy aged fourteen, calling him. Elliott slipped and fell from the verandah and the two children perished in flames, their badly charred bodies being distinguishable when the fire was put out. The elder girl was born in Peterborough, where her parents formerly resided and the younger girl here.

Elliott went overseas as Bugle Major of the 156th Battalion and is now Bugle Major of the Brockville Rifles. One other daughter, Florence is employed at the General Hospital and was not in the house. The father was severely burned about the face and arms in his efforts to rescue his children but will recover Coroner Dr. Harding opened on inquest this morning.

FIRST CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAMME TO-NIGHT

NIAGARA FALLS FIRST PLACE ON CIRCUIT HIGHLY PLEASED.

The first programme of the Chautauqua has set the standard high for the whole week. Mr. Claude Kinnick, of the staff of English teachers, Queen's University, Kingston, is superintendent this year. He has the following to say about this year's programme.

"I have just come from Niagara Falls, Ontario, where the first Chautauqua on this circuit opened. I have known much of the Chautauqua talent on the American platform for several years. The array of talent and the character of the programmes rendered are among the best I have ever known. In fact, I have never known a week's programme as uniformly good as the Peterborough people have the opportunity to hear this week. I could not find any dissatisfaction with any part of the programme at Niagara Falls, and enthusiasm was manifest. In making arrangements for next year I did not encounter a dissenting voice."

At The Theatres

REGENT — Louise Glaum in "Love," Parker Read production, even greater than "The Lone Wolf's Daughter."

ALLEN—Sensational photoplay of the age, "Outside the Law," starring the dazzling Priscilla Dean and Lon Chaney.

CAPITOL—Mary Pickford's latest production, "The Love Light." Two big comedies. Also the Mona Silver Troupe, 5 people, in singing, dancing and instrumental numbers.

COLD TO COMMUNISTS.

British Labour Refuses to Affiliate Motion Was Defeated.

BRIGHTON, England, June 22. — (Canadian Press). — The British Labour Party, at its conference here to-day, rejected a proposal introduced by the radical wing to allow the Communist Party to affiliate with the Labour Party.

COMMON LABOR MOST REDUCED BY NEW WAGES

RAILWAY OFFICIALS ARE NOW BUSY REVISING PAY CLASSIFICATIONS—NEARLY SAME AS IN U.S.

MONTREAL, June 22. Canadian Press. Office staffs in railway headquarters are busy this week completing the reclassification of wage schedules which will be presented to Canadian railway employees, probably this week, for acceptance on July 1st.

Maintenance-of-way and shop crafts will probably not receive their definite schedules until next week, as the matter of their wages is still under advisement by the United States Railway Labor Board and no decision is expected for a few days. When it does come it will have to be made to conform with Canadian schedules before the unions receive their advice. They have already been notified however that the revision is pending and is expected to become operative at the same time as other reductions.

Nearly Same as in U. S.

Canadian schedules vary very slightly from those effective in the United States, and so far as the running trades are concerned there is slight difficulty in working out the reductions which are proposed.

The clerical staffs present a more complex problem. The advances granted last July, and which are now to be cut by approximately 46 per cent. were not distributed on a percentage basis. Owing to the lack of uniformity in clerical labor a lump sum equal to 20 per cent. of the total payroll was handed over to department heads and apportioned as was considered most equitable. In the downward revision a similar policy has to be kept in mind and the procedure is necessarily much slower than in the case of trades where the reduction is on a straight percentage basis.

Cut Laborers Most.

Common labor will receive the heaviest cut from a relative standpoint. The entire increase of 8½ cents per hour which was granted last year is scheduled to be wiped out. Freight truckers' average pay will range under the new schedule about $97 per month, and track laborers at approximately $77. Sectionmen are expected to receive $3 per day under the revision. According to the running trades, it is declared, the new schedules will provide an adequate livelihood.

What Trainmen Make.

The last averages taken in Eastern Canada show the following results the figures having been obtained by taking ten men from each branch of labor at random from various roads

Ten passenger engineers averaged $311 per month; ten freight engineers averaged $286 per month; ten passenger firemen averaged $223; ten freight firemen averaged $206; ten passenger conductors averaged $286; ten passenger trainmen averaged $205; and ten freight trainmen (brakemen) averaged $190. These averages were struck before last year's 20 per cent. increase was granted. The new reduction will still leave the schedules 8 per cent. higher than they were when these wages were earned.

Some important revision is likely in the wages paid to clerical help joining the railway staffs. The existing schedule is upward of $100 per month and is likely to be revised to $70 per month for the first six months and $80 for the second six months. Employees in this class are usually youths and young women under 20 years of age.

SUMMARY OF ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY

Great Britain and Japan first entered into alliance in 1902. The Treaty signed in that year resulted from the joint action of Russia, France, and Germany in depriving Japan of most of the fruits of her victory over China in the war of 1894-1895 and from the subsequent Russian exploitations in the Far East. It bound the contracting Powers tmaintain the status quo and general peace in the extreme East, and especially to maintain the independence and territorial integrity of Korea. In case either should, in defence of its interests, become involved in a war with a third Power, the other was to maintain strict neutrality and to endeavour to prevent other Powers from joining in hostilities against its ally. In case of attack by other Powers, the neutral ally would be obliged to enter the war.

Britain Neutral in War With Russia.

Under this agreement Great Britain remained neutral in the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-1905. On 12th August, 1905, while the peace conferees were still in session at Portsmouth, the alliance was renewed. It was broadened so as to apply to India. The neutrality provision was eliminated. Article 2 stipulated that "if by reason of unprovoked or aggressive action, wherever rising on the part of any other Power or Powers, either contracting party shall be involved in war in defence of its territorial rights or special interests mentioned in the preamble (i.e., in the regions of Eastern Asia or India), the other contracting party will at once come to the assistance of its ally."

The Treaty is thus defensive in character, and leaves it open to the ally not first involved in the war, to decide whether the war was or was not due to unprovoked and aggressive action on the part of an outside belligerent. Italy exercised a similar judgment in 1914 under the terms of her defensive alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary. The revised Treaty also recognised Japan's paramount rights in Korea.

Treaty Was Renewed in 1911.

On 13th June, 1911, the alliance was again renewed for a term of ten years. It was then modified by the insertion of this clause: "Should either high contracting party conclude a Treaty of general arbitration with a third Power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail upon such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the Power with whom such Treaty of Arbitration is in force."

SYMPATHY FOR IRISH NATIONALISTS BUT NONE FOR IRISH REPULICANS

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOUR BY AN OVERWHELMING VOTE TO-DAY REJECTED RESOLUTION OF SINN FEIN SYMPATHISERS.

DENVER, Colorado, June 22 (Canadian Press).—The Sinn Fein sympathisers, supporting a resolution calling for a boycott against British goods, were overwhelmingly defeated to-day in an attempt to have the Convention overthrow the ruling made by President Samuel Gompers, which prevented the reconsideration of their proposals.

The Convention then disposed of he Irish question by adopting a mild resolution expressing sympathy for the Irish Nationalist cause.

The debate started yesterday when the Resolutions Committee reported a substitute for the four resolutions introduced by Irish sympathisers, which ignored the effort to initiate a boycott against British manufacturers and imports.

The Committee's report disposed of the Irish question by asking the Convention to reaffirm its sympathy for the Irish cause, by urging recognition of the Irish Republic and by urging trial and punishment for British Army men guilty of atrocities in Ireland.

STATISTICS OF ASSISTANCE TO RETURNED MEN

OTTAWA, June 22 (Canadian Press).—What Canada has done for her returned soldiers is summarised in a report covering the activities of all departments dealing with returned men, which has been prepared and placed before Sir Jams Lougheed, Minister of the Interior, who has had charge of the returned soldiers' affairs.

The summary shows that in the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 108,161 men were treated, 50,521 vocationally trained and 109,493 placed in employment up to 31st December, 1920.

110,702 Pensions.

The Board of Pension Commissioners awarded to the same date 110,702 pensions, and the annual pensions in force were $31,169,520.

The number of returned men placed on farms by the Soldier Settlement Board to the end of the last year was 20,122, and the total of loans granted $81,345,948.

The amount of policies in force under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act at 31st December was $5,250,000. This total has been increased to over $10,000,000 to date.

The extent to which returned soldiers were placed in employment by the Civil Service Commission up to the end of last year is also given. A total of 29,684 returned men had been given employment to that date.

Gratuity Cost.

A total of $164,000,000 was paid in war service gratuity, and 47,000 dependents wer returned from overseas at the conclusion of the war.

The cost of cashing sterling cheques at par to 31st March, 1920, was $524,335,43.

Dealing with unemployment relief given to returned men and their families, the report states that $7,058,980,34 was spent during 1919-1920, and $1,500,000 during the past winter.

BETHEL NEWS

BETHEL, June 22.— About fifty members of Bethel Epworth League gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Carew on the evening of Monday, June 13, and gave their daughter Lulu and Lockhart Wright a shower before their marriage, which took place the following Wednesday. The following address was read, after which made speeches were made by officers of the League. The evening was spent in singing and playing games. A dainty lunch was served.

The Address.

"Dear Fellow Epworth Leaguers—We, the members of Bethel Epworth League have met together to-night to express our good wishes for your future happiness, health and prosperity in your coming marriage.

"We have always been pleased to have you as members of our League. Lockhart has been good to help at our garden parties, while Lulu has helped in all ways, faithful in the choir, Sunday school and in attendance at League meetings, as well as serving on the executive of the League a number of times.

"We are glad that you purpose residing in the community, and trust that you will both continue to take an active part in all church work.

"We trust, too, that in starting life together God may go with you, and that you will take him as your daily guide and constant companion, ever seeking to do his will. Our prayer is that the rich blessings of God may attend you throughout life; that your life may be long and happy together, and that its parting here may be only to meet again at the feet of Jesus.

"And now as a work of our good pleasure we present to you these few gifts."

Signed on behalf of the League—
H. B. Herrington, Pastor.

MEMORIAL UNVEILED AT WARSAW

IN HONOR OF THE SOLDIERS FROM DUMMER TOWNSHIP WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES IN THE WAR.

DRAGOONS PRESENT

Dummer township's splendid memorial to twenty-two of her sons who made the supreme sacrifice in the great war was unveiled in Warsaw yesterday afternoon, following speeches fitting to the occasion and sacred observance of the ceremony which marks the conclusion of a splendid service by this township during and following the years of conflict.

Hundreds of men, women and children attended the unveiling. Erected across from Choate's store it stands in an open plot in the centre of the village. It is a beautiful memorial of granite and on it are inscribed the names of the honoured dead. The monument was erected by the municipality and by subscriptions. Mr. Donald Munro was chairman, Rev. Knox, of Warsaw, opened the ceremony with prayer, and the following speakers, all of whom served during the war, gave addresses: Capt. Rev. J. Rollins of Peterborough, Capt. J. Dewart of Dummer, Col. Birdsall, of Asphodel, Col. T. J. Johnston, Otonabee.

Sounded Last Post.

After the memorial was unveiled, Trumpeter Layfield, of the 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoons, sounded the Last Post, bringing to a close a deeply impressive service.

During the afternoon the band of the Peterborough Rangers gave a musical concert that made the programme complete. The Women's Institute of the village kindly entertained the detachment of dragoons who attended the service, to dinner and supper along with those who took part in the programme, and the guests were united in praise of the hospitality shown them.

Dragoons Present.

Forty men of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, under the command of Major E. R. Hughes, trekked to Warsaw yesterday, leaving the camp at 8 a.m., and were present at the unveiling. Owing to some doubt about the route, the men took a longer course and did not reach the village till after scheduled time. In spite of their 22 mile canter over rough roads the horses were in fine condition and the ride home was made in good time, the detachment clattering down George street about 9.45, looking a trifle jaded, but the trooper picked up their spirits when they reached the camp and found Quartermaster Hon. Capt. J. A. Abraham had a piping hot dinner ready for them. Needless to say they did full justice to the meal.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday's highest point was 86 degrees in the shade. To-day is somewhat warmer, and will surpass yesterday's figures by several degrees. Conditions are now right for a thunderstorm, if not here, in the neighborhood. There have not been many severe storms pass directly over Peterboro for several years, while both north and south of us there have been some bad ones. The one that passed over here about a week ago was particularly severe around Campbelford and Hastings, while the one the preceding week was destructive around Buckhorn and as far north as Apsley.—W. King Pleads With Irishmen in His Visit to Belfast

EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT HE MIGHT BE THE HERALD OF GOODWILL AND UNDERSTANDING AND THAT THE SOUTH MAY ESTABLISH ITS OWN PARLIAMENT.

ULSTER'S WELCOME

Belfast, June 22.— King George and Queen Mary departed from Belfast for London in perfect safety at four o'clock this afternoon.

BELFAST, July 22.—King George and Queen Mary, journeying from England, for the occasion of the tenth anniversary of their coronation, presided at the state opening of the Ulster Parliament here to-day. It was the first time in nearly twenty years that Ulster had the opportunity of receiving the sovereigns of the British Empire, and its welcome helped to make the occasion a memorable one.

The ceremony of the opening was similar to that attending the inauguration of the British Parliament, and was a brilliant spectacle. It was regarded as marking an epoch in Irish history.

"I speak from a full heart," said His Majesty in his opening speech, "when I pray that my coming to Ireland to-day may prove to be a first step towards an end of strife among her people, whatever their race or creed."

"In that hope I appeal to all Irishmen to pause, to stretch out hand of forbearance and concoliation to forgive and forget and to join in making for the land which they love a new era of peace, contentment and goodwill.

"It is my earnest desire that in Southern Ireland, too there may ere long take place a parallel to what is now passing in this hall that there similar occasion may present itself and similar ceremony be performed."

Royalty Welcomed.

Their Majesties were given a right royal welcome on their arrival to-day. From the moment their yacht dropped her escort at the entrance to Belfast Lough the King and Queen were the objects of an enthusiastic demonstration by the loyalists of Ulster. As the yacht steamed past the ship yards the cheers of thousands of workmen mingled with the shrieks of sirens and whistles.

A squadron of police headed the procession through the streets and the carriages of the Royal pair were followed by those of officers and dignataries. The escort of honor was chosen from the Tenth Hussars. Lord Lieutenant Viscount Fitzalan and Lord Pierrie, who represented the city, received their majesties at the dock.

On each side of the streets were stationed nearly six thousand regular troops, standing shoulder to shoulder and separated from the crowds by a heavy railing.

Following the ceremonies the King and Queen were driven again through decorated streets to Ulster Hall, where they received addresses of loyalty.

PREMIERS AT VARIANCE ON BIG PROBLEMS

HUGHES, OF AUSTRALIA, IN FAVOR OF CONTINUING ALLIANCE WITH JAPANESE—MEIGHEN OPPOSED

(By GRATTAN O'LEARY, Staff Correspondent Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 22.—That the conference of Premiers is not going to arrive at any conclusions without passing through sharp controversies is evident from the verbatim reports of the proceedings of yesterday's sessions. Thus, while General Smuts of South Africa made a characteristic plea for disarmament and strongly advocated a conference with United States and Japan respecting the problems of the Pacific, the Australian Premier leaned heavily towards a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, advocated naval expenditure upon a per capita basis, and concluded by depreciating the need for constitutional conference.

Premier Meighen is still to be heard on these subjects, but it is a practical certainty that he will be an ally of General Smuts. The weight of opinion here indicates that he will fall in with the idea of disarmament and a conference on the Pacific question.

CANON SEAGER NEW HEAD OF TRINITY

ELECTED AS SUCCESSOR TO THE REV. DR. MACKLEM AS PROVOST AND VICE-CHANCELLOR.

TORONTO, June 22.—A special meeting of the Corporation of Trinity Colleeg was held yesterday, with a large attendance, both from Toronto and other parts of the province. The meeting was called to receive a report from the committee appointed some months ago to make nominations for the election of a successor to Rev. Dr. Macklem, whose resignation as Provost and Vice-Chancellor of Trinity College takes effect on September 30 next.

After a thorough review and discussion of the whole situation, Rev. C. A. Seager, D.D., was elected to this important position. As Dr. Seager is out of town and is not expected back till Friday, it is not yet known whether he will accept this call from his Alma Mater.

Canon Seager is at present rector of St. Matthon's church here.

A comparison of wages was made between those paid by the townships to men and teams and those paid on the provincial highways, the county men expressing dissatisfaction.

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL CHILDREN AND THEIR PARENTS PLAYED TOGETHER

ENJOYABLE PICNIC ON THE SCHOOL GROUNDS UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION — PARENTS DELIGHTED WITH AN OUTING THAT BROUGHT THEM INTO CLOSE TOUCH WITH CHILDREN.

The Home and School Association of Queen Mary School held a most delightful treat for the mothers and children yesterday afternoon and evening. Nearly 300 children gathered on the beautiful grounds, and had a rollicking good time on the swings, running races, and consuming ice cream cones, supplied at cost, in enormous quantities. The little boys and girls played in the sandpiles, and each family brought its own basket, little groups of picnickers dotting the ground on every side. The mothers and fathers entered into the day's enjoyment with just as much zest as the tiniest child there, Messrs. Stacey, Brown, Dick, McDonald, Webber Turner, Boddy, C. Sisson, Wagar, Trussler and Robinson, distinguishing themselves in mighty efforts on the baseball field, where a match between the fathers and the boys was in progress, the final score being a tie. A mothers' race, which was substituted for an anticipated nail-pulling contest, was won by Mrs. Percy Blade, and the races for the children were as follows:

Girls' race, 8 years and under, Gwen Sorby; Boys', Ronald Asquith; Nine and ten years, girls, Marion Armstrong; Boys, Les. Dyer; Eleven and twelve years girls, Grace Koster; Boys, Claude Bishop; Thirteen and fourteen years, Girls, Greta Welbourn; Boys, Wilson Dunlop; Fifteen years and over, Girls, Minnie Gray; Boys, Kenneth Graham.

The bag of flour given as a prize for the largest family on the grounds was won by Mrs. Foster with seven children.

The ladies in charge of the affair took great pains to make it a complete success. Every person on the grounds, young and old, was having a good time. Those children who were minus a basket, like the little boy, whose supper "fell down" were looked after from the surplus of more fortunate mortals, and one lady had a great deal of enjoyment from a box of old fashioned creams scattering them amongst the children, who scrambled in all directions for the pink and white and yellow sweets. An atmosphere of carefree joyousness pervaded the grounds during the happy gathering, which was certainly a great testimonial to the good work done by the Home and School Associations in bringing together for a day of joyous fun the parents, teachers and chilren of the school.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. John, tea was supplied for the occasion and Messrs Fitzpatrick and Geraghty donated the bag of flour for the largest family on the grounds.

1130 CHEESE SOLD ON BOARD TO-DAY

G. A. GILLESPIE TOOK THE ENTIRE OFFERING.

At a meeting of the Cheese Board this morning, with Mr. T. Braden in the chair, and Messrs. Sprague, Flavelle, Ivey, Thompson and Gillespie representing the buyers, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, at a price of 15 13-16c, was the successful bidder for the whole board of 1,130 boxes, as follows: Warminster, 85; Selwyn, 90; Villiers, 112; Warsaw, 180; Westwood, 100; Ormonde, 260; Young's Point, 112; Lang, 57; North Dummer, 60; Killarney, 74.

A motion was passed to set the Board fee for 1921 at $2.00, and to make a grant of $10 to the East and West Peterborough Exhibitions, and $5 each to Keene and Lakefield exhibits for colored cheese, on condition that they put up an equal amount. The Board adjourned for two weeks.

PREMIER MEIGHEN TELLS CONFERENCE OF CANADA'S NEED OF REPRESENTATION

FEATURE OF TUESDAY'S SESSION OF THE PREMIERS OF THE EMPIRE—BUSINESS AND OTHER ADVANTAGES FROM A REPRESENTATIVE AT WASHINGTON.

LONDON, June 22 (By Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—The sittings of the Conference of Prime Ministers yesterday were chiefly taken up with statements by representatives of the various Dominions. The speeches were of a preliminary and general character, and were guarded in their references to matters over which there is likely to be controversy, the speakers preferring to reserve more specific observations and statements of policy until subjects on the Agenda come up for consideration.

The most important event of the latter sitting was a statement by Premier Meighen on Canada's decision to have a Canadian Minister in Washington.

While the official report of his speech is not yet available, it is understood that Premier Meighen's remarks followed the general line of his speech on this subject in the Canadian House last session. He told the Conference that this action by the Dominion of Canada is first of all based upon the need for a purely Canadian representative at the American capital, with more intimate understanding of Canadian conditions and problems, and with greater capacity for transacting business with more rapidity than is the case at present, owing to the ever-increasing business relations between the two countries. Moreover, he believed that, in addition to the advantages to be obtained in a business way, the presence of a Canadian representative at Washington would be a step toward fulfilling Canada's mission of acting as a bridge, which would lead to a greater friendship and better understanding between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon people.

Premier Meighen's statement, the Canadian Press is informed, was heard by the delegates with profound interest and satisfaction.

The idea of a Canadian Minister in Washington has had a somewhat disquieting influence in British circles, it being feared it was a step in the direction of Empire disintegration.

Premier Meighen's statement, therefore, will go a long way toward clearing up the misunderstanding.

WASHINGTON WOULD WELCOME IT.

WASHINGTON, June 22 (Canadian Press).—It was intimated yesterday that the administration officials would welcome a revival of the suggestion that more formal diplomatic relations be established between Canada and the United States by the appointment of a Canadian diplomatic representative to Washington.

Reciprocal action by the United States in appointing a Minister or Ambassador would require legislation, it was explained, but pending such authorisation, a diplomatic commissioner could be sent to Canada.

BUILD NEW HOTEL BETWEEN HEALEY FALLS AND TRENT BRIDGE SHORTLY

FINE GOLF COURSE IN CONNECTION AND MODERNLY EQUIPPED IN EVERY PARTICULAR—"PINE LODGE" THE NAME.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD, June 22. — Mr. F. McCune has purchased a large tract of land between Healey's Falls and Trent Bridge where he is building a fine large hotel in which there will be 28 finely equipped rooms with running water. He intends building a golf course and making a real up-to-date place out of it and will have cars meeting all trains in Havelock. The new hotel will be known as "Pine Lodge" and will surely be popular.

Big Success

The Lawn Social held on the Rectory lawn on Tuesday evening in Aid of Christ Church was a great success. The conveners of the evening were Mrs. A. Jenkins and Mrs. F. Linton and those in charge of the various booths were: ice cream, Miss Moffat and Mrs. Benor; the fish pond Mrs. Neal; Fortune table, Mrs. Humphries and Miss Martin; the Candy Booth Mrs. Caddy; tea table Mrs. Burling; the Side Show, Miss Colville, Miss Maynard and Mrs. Archer; Soft drinks and cigars, Mrs. Tait and Mrs. Nadoo Home Cooking Mrs. F. Bonnycastle and Mrs. C. Bonnycastle; Flower table, Mrs. Den mark an dMrs. Bedford, Fortune Telling, Mrs. Wilsher. The grounds were very nicely decorated and the 40th regimental band rendered excellent music. There was a very large crowd present and all had a very good time.

Shipped Calves

Messrs. Scott and Kent shipped 111 calves for which they paid from 8 to 10 cents and a car load of hogs during last week. Two of the hogs weighed 700l bs.

ATTEND UNVEILING

The officers of the local company of the 40th have received an invitation to attend the unveiling of a memorial window to Major Boulster of Cobourg in St. Paul's Church Cobourg on Sunday next.

Personal Mention

Dr. C. Stillman and Mr. H. Brightman of Rocheestr, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Stillman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. O'Brien of Toronto are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O'Brien.

Painted White.

The Standard Bank Corner now looks like the corner of King and Yonge strets, since it has been painted clear white.

Mrs. C. W. Smith and little son Charles are visiting Mrs. Smith's parents in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Rickey, of Peterborough, formerly of Campbellford, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Alma, to Mr. George H. Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Post, Brighton. The marriage will take place the latter part of June.

Rev. H. B. Kenney has returned from Whitby, where he was attending the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Improving Bank.

The upper stories of the Standard Bank building are being much improved in appearance by a fresh coat of paint. The bank building is now quite up-to-date, both in exterior and interior, and ranks quite as well as many of the larger city branches.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Douglas and son Gordon spent last Sunday in Havelock, visiting the latter's brother, Mr. Samuel Burkitt.

Mr. Samuel Johnston has purchased a lot at Trent River, and intends to commence operations for the erection of a bungalow.

Messrs. J. C. Birmingham, J. Saunders, M. Mulhearn, and J. Blute were in Peterborough on Monday.

Garden Party.

The garden party held on the Rectory grounds last evening was an unqualified success. With weather conditions all to be desired, fine moonlight, and the band rendering charming music, one could not help wending his way inside. Once inside, the decorations and the booths laden with good things to eat and see, the happy hours passed all too soon. The side-shows were inviting, and the crowd was one of the largest ever attending a garden party in town. The people of Christ Church feel very gratified over the success of their garden party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wrigley and Miss Mary Stephens left on Friday for a week's motor trip to Bowmanville. They will also visit friends in Toronto and Niagara Falls.

The United Farmers of Ontario (U. F. O.) held a meeting in Castleton yesterday. Two motor loads from town attended.

A very interesting as well as profitable time was spent at the W. M. S. meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner. Twenty-one ladies were present, and the reports of the delegates to the district and branch conventions were excellent.

APSLEY HOME BURNED WHILE PARENTS OUT

MOTHER WAS AWAY PICKING BERRIES AND CAUSE OF THE FIRE IS UNKNOWN—NOTHING SAVED FROM THE HOUSE—HUCKLEBERRY CROP IS PROMISING.

APSLEY, June 20. — Fire this afternoon destroyed the frame house on the Holbrook Estate, near Apsley, occupied by Mr. William Johnston. Mrs. Johnston was away picking berries, but there were children, her own and a neighbors, at home. It is not known how the fire started, but when first seen the house was one mass of flames, and in less than half an hour nothing was left but the smoking ruins. Not a single article of any description was saved, and the Johnstons and their little ones have absolutely nothing except the clothes they are wearing. A subscription list has been started in the village for the benefit of the unfortunate family, who are highly respected, and it is hoped that help will be forthcoming from outside sources also.

Many Sheep Killed.

The Chandos Municipal Council met on Saturday, June 18th, and were confronted with a long list of claims for sheep killed. The Council spent about two hours in discussing the question, and finally decided to lay the matter over until the fall. The number of sheep and lambs killed amounted to thirty-four, and the Council evidently were reluctant to admit that dogs were responsible for all the killings.

St. George's Church annual picnic, whcih was to be held on July 1st, has been postponed until July 8th on account of the big day at Lakefield, which will prevent a large number of Lakefield people from attending.

A miscellaneous concert by William Crosby and company from Coe Hill was given in the Parish Room at Apsley on June 17th.

Several tourists from the States have been making Apsley their headquarters the past week, with daily fishing excursions to Jack's Lake, Coon Lake, and other lakes in the vicinity. Bass are biting well, and good catches have been made.

Huckleberry Crop Promising.

Wild strawberries, contraty to earlier expectations, are plentiful, and a good many quarts have been picked during the last few days. Indications are that there will be a bumper crop of thimbleberries and blackberries. Huckleberries also promise to be plentiful, as also do raspberries. A drop in sugar prices would be very acceptable to the housewife at the present time.

PROVINCE CAN'T INVESTIGATE THE PRICE OF BREAD

DEPUTY ATTORNEY-GENERAL ANNOUNCES OPINION THAT DOMINION GOVERNMENT SHOULD EXERCISE CONTROL.

LEGISLATION ON BOOKS

TORONTO, June 22.—(Canadian Press.)— Deputy Attorney-General E. Bayly has rendered legal opinion to the effect that the province has no longer any power to conduct an inquiry into the price of bread, such as is demanded in London. The Board of Commerce Act and the Fair Prices Act of the Dominion, he says, seem to him to have taken over almost everything in the way of food price control. In London, Hon. W. E. Raney had been accused of "side-stepping" the requested inquiry into prevailing bread prices.

IRISH VILLAGE IN RUINS AFTER RAID, ARMED ATTACK

ONLY THREE OF ITS FIFTY HOUSES ESCAPED FLAMES — FUSILADE OF BULLETS.

PRESBYTERY SAVED

DUBLIN, July 22. — (Canadian Press.)— The burning of virtually the entire village of Knockroghery, near Roscommon, by armed men, was reported here yesterday. The village contained about fifty houses, only three of which were left standing, the report stated.

People of the village rushed from their houses in terror amid a fusilade of rifle and revolver bullets, and ran through the fields. Later the children and aged persons found refuge in a presbytery, which the raiders attempted to burn, but failed. The village is a mass of smoulering ruins.

PITCHED BATTLE NEAR BOLTON BETWEEN BANK OFFICIALS AND BANDITS

ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP MESSENGER CARRYING $3,000 FOILED BY COUNTER ATTACK—ONE MAN TAKEN PRISONER BELIEVED TO BE GANGSTER.

BOLTON, Ont., June 22 (Canadian Press).—A lively battle with holdup men occurred near here yesterday, when five desperadoes were foiled in their attempt to rob officials of the Imperial Bank.

The bank manager, his assistant, and two other men engaged the masked ruffians in a revolver battle, which ended in the rout of the bandits and the capture of an alleged member of the gang.

The bankers' party outwitted the ambuscade. They had been warned that suspicious characters were waiting at Cedar Mills for them, and left here prepared for the encounter. Although much shooting was done, no one was injured.

The man arrested gave his name as Robert Wesley Jones, of Hamilton.

The bank manager was warned that five suspicious characters were waiting at a deserted flag depot for the arrival of the messenger on his way to the Palgrave branch of the bank, which is opened two days a week. The messenger was to carry about three thousand dollars.

A posse was immediately formed, and they took the war into the enemy's country, with the above results.

EAST EMILY HAPPENINGS

EAST EMILY, June 22. — St. John's church held their annual gorden party on the church lawn on Thursday night last. A very enjoyable time was spent by the large crowd assembled, in spite of the wet evening. The supper and program were much enjoyed by all. The program consisted of a speech given by Rev. Mr. James of St. John's church, Rev. Mr. Craw of Springville, and the Rev. Mr. Scott of Omemee; and also a play entitled "Oak Farm," presented by a number of young people from All Saints' Church, at Peterboro, which was much appreciated by all.

June Wedding.

The marriage took place on Wednesday last at home of the bride's parents, of Miss Lulu Carew, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Carew, and Mr. Lockhart Wright, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, both of East Emily. Miss Sadie Kerr made a charming bridesmaid, and Mr. John Carew, brother of the bride, was the groomsman. The bride was prettily dressed in white charmeuse satin, wearing the groom's gift. A most enjoyable evening was spent, after which Mr. and Mrs. Wright drove to their home in East Emily. The many beautiful and costly presents which the bride received testify to the high esteem in which she was held in the community.

EXPRESS OFFICE AT OMEMEE WAS ROBBED TUESDAY

BURGLARS MAKE OFF WITH GOODS VALUED AT $250.

OMEMEE, June 22.—Burglars effected an entrance into the G. T. R. station here about 2 o'clock on Tuesday morning by cutting the glass in the window, but found nothing, as the station agent, Mr. Percy Stinson, had fortunately taken all the cash home with him. They then broke into the Express office in the station building and made away with $250 worth of valuables, including parcels from the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., Toronto, 2 suit cases and a case of wet goods. The village constable, Mr. Harry Nattrass, heard an automobile racing east just about tris time, but took it to be a party of joy riders. G. T. R. detectives are investigating the case.

Legal Liability For Spreading Disease

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY UPHELD BY COURTS IN SEVERAL STATES; OKLAHOMA MAN GIVEN FIVE YEARS IN PENITENTIARY.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Personal responsibility for the transmission of venereal disease has now been upheld in several different phases of both civil and criminal courts, says the U. S. Public Health Service. In Oklahoma a man has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for infecting a girl with syphilis. In Nebraska the court upheld a doctor who warned a hotel keeper that one of his patients, a guest of the hotel, had syphilis and had refused treatment and was consequently a menace to the public health. In North Carolina a woman has been awarded $10,000 damages against her husband for a similar infection and the Supreme Court has upheld the judgment.

The Nebraska case is important because it asserts that a physician's duty to protect the public health may, under certain circumstances, transcend his duty to hold his patient's confidence inviolable. The North Carolina case is also important because it sets aside in this particular case the legal barrier that prevents a wife from testifying against her husband and bringing suit against him.

Wrong Idea.

All three cases are valuable in counteracting incorrect statements, often made, that the venereal disease law falls almost exclusively on women and lets men go free. State laws, of course, govern in all such cases, but the fact that every State in the Union has now adopted many, if not all, of the venereal disease laws, gives ground for expecting similar action in other States. Certainly the wide dissemination of the three decisions should go far to curb diseased persons who deliberately expose others to infection.

Curiously enough the District of Columbia is the only part of continental United States that has no venereal disease laws. Congress, which makes the laws for the District, has not yet acted.

The fact that the North Carolina decision makes it likely that marriage will henceforth be no adequate defence against a suit for transmitting infection will probably hasten the adoption by the States of laws requiring every applicant for a marriage license to present a certificate by a reputable doctor certifying that he is free from venereal disease and providing that without this no license shall be issued.

20 States Adopt Law.

Twenty States have already adopted laws forbidding persons with venereal disease to marry, seven of three—New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Washington and West Virginia—having acted during the present year's sessions. A similar bill is now pending in Florida.

All of the twenty States do not require medical examination and certification that the applicant is free from venereal disease. "Such a certificate should be required in every State," insists the Public Health Service. "Any decent man with an uncured infection who marries does so either because he does not realize the seriousness of his action or because he believes that he is cured. The necessity for an examination should bring its seriousness home to him and should be welcomed by him as a protection for his wife and children. No real man should object to a medical examination required by law.

"Policyholders Month"

The Canada Life Man

1. He points the way to success for the young man.

2. He stops the busy city man and persuades him to think of the real objects in life.

3. He urges the farmer to protect the home.

4. He pays a Widow's claim and finds the money is sorely needed.

Each year the Canada Life sets aside a Special Month for calling upon Policyholders where that is possible.

The present month may bring the Canada Life Man to you, but the large number to be seen may make this impossible in your case.

Our Mission

To keep the home together; to afford means to bring up the children and give them a chance in life; to clear off a mortgage or other obligation; to protect personal and business interests generally—that is the great need which it is our mission to fill.

Finding this need all around him, the Canada Life man tries to fit the plan of insurance to the individual need, just as the experienced lawyer is expected to give the best advice to his client or the physician the best course of treatment to his patient. His sympathy and advice are indeed very important factors in his success.

Our Representatives are trained for special service.

For Instance

You may not be fully informed as to what your life insurance will do for your home, or your personal and business interests.

Your Canada Life policies may require to be altered to suit new conditions.

You may wish to arrange to have your life insurance paid as a monthly income, or you may require new policies adjusted to your partnership or business interests.

Group insurance on your employees should perhaps be engaging your attention.

All these subjects are part of the special training with which the Canada Life man is furnished for your benefit.

A Suggestion

Why not, without the slightest obligation, consult our nearest representative, or write to the Home Office of this old, tried Company, which has abundant evidence of success, is experienced in life insurance, pays large dividends to policyholders, and safely and sanely manages the business entrusted to it by the public?

FOR THE BLIND.

So far the donations received by the Examiner for the fund for the Canadian Institute for the Blind have not been as numerous as the merits of the cause, on behalf of which the present appeal is being made warrants. The great which the present appeal is blind Canadians such as is now being conducted here, should succeed in raising the desired quota without any trouble. $2,500 is the amount Peterborough is asked to donate to the fund, and the sum should be readily forthcoming. The contributions need not be large, but everyone is asked to give according to his means, and small donations will be received just as joyfully and acknowledged just as promptly, as the bigger subscriptions. The Examiner once more calls the attention of its readers to the campaign that is being made and to the fact that subscriptions will be received at the office of this paper.

A SPLENDID CHOICE.

The Ontario Government is to be congratulated upon its choice of commissioners to fill the vacancies on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontaroi Railway Board, caused by the death of Commissioner J. L. Englehart and the resignation of Hon. Dr. Preston. The two appointees, Col. John I. McLaren of Hamilton, and Lieut.-Col. L. T. Martin, of Ottawa, are both veterans of the great war, Col. Martin raising and commanding the 7th Battalion, Canadian Railway Troops, and on account of their service overseas their appointment will be most pleasing to war veterans generally. In addition both are successful business men, whose training should make them valuable members of the board and fit them for splendid service on behalf of the McLaren's Limited and has been twice Mayor of Hamilton, while Lieut.-Col. Martin is a railway engineer by profession and has had a long experience in railway and general constructnon work. The two men are well qualified for the important posts to which they have been alloted and the Ontario Government has, in selecting them, ignored the claims of political friends and made their selection upon merit. Appointments of that kind will gain friends for the U.F.O. administration.

THE COUNCIL'S ADVICE.

Undoubtedly the action of the City Council in recommending to the Utilities Commission that the proposed increase of 81 per cent in water rates, advertised to go into force on July 1st, be deferred until January 1st, 1922, is in line with popular opinion, and if the commissioners accede to the request, the independent audit suggested at the recent public meeting of the citizens is not likely to be strongly pressed. Ald. Turner's statement to the Council woud seem to show that there is no justification for the proposed increase at the present time, for, as he pointed out, the $6,000 deficit in waterworks operations last year will be made up by a reduction in expenses during 1921, while the interest charges of $10,500 on debentures for the filtration plant will be taken care of by the additional $11,000 the city is being charged for fire protection. If the facts are as stated by Ald. Turner, there will be some difficulty in showing that an increase on the scale mentioned is needed, and in convincing the public that the new rates cannot be left in abeyance until next year, by which time operating expenses may be found to be considerably lighter.

SAFETY FIRST.

The verdict in favour of the plaintiffs, returned by a jury in a case at the local County Court sittings, should be marked by every motorist, for it concerns a very common happening along every narrow road in these days of heavy automobile traffic. This jury has virtually decided that when two cars are approaching each other on a narrow thoroughfare and the driver of one who could stop at a widening in the road and allow the other machine to pass but fails to do so, he is responsible for any accident that may happen as the result of an attempt to pass the other car where the road is not wide enough to permit it being done in safety. Henceforth, motorists may find it cheaper, as well as safer, to wait a minute or two in a situation such as we have outlined, rather than risk a bad accident and the danger of facing a jury. There are many narrow roads in the Peterborough district and every motorist can recall adventures along the highway in which an accident was narrowly averted, and in which lives were in danger because drivers of cars were either two careless or too selfish to exercise common sense. There is no more reason why a motorist should run by a safe place in the road and risk passing another car in a narrow roadway than there is in trying to rush across a railway crossing in front of a rapidly moving train.

RECREATION AND THE CHURCH.

It is said that one of the initial directions given by medical specialists for forms of ailment characterstic of a nerve-consuming modern life is to relax. The bow of Robin Hood, if continually strung to a high tension, could not retain its resilience and arrow-driving power, nor can human nature, under like conditions, sustain its capacity for effective service in any pursuit, or even for the lighter forms of legitimate enjoyment. Indeed, the intensity with which people sometimes pursue their occupations and their diversions rack and often wreck the machine. A craving for thrills may become almost as chronic as dope taking. If habits were more normally balanced and the human structure more sensibly nourished, there would be less appeal to heroic treatments. In order to give natural rstoratives a fair chance, the physician frequently advises a change of air, scene, and activity. It is worth while remembering by those who haunt resorts that amusement is not necessarily recreation, which, in its best sense, implies restoration or a recreation. Unregulated, the former may easily pass into a form of dissipation.

Aaron Burr is credited with saying that he made pleasure the business of his life, and naturally from such a lop-sided conception his career landed him in one of the blackest tragedies of history. Good old George Herbert warned against the pleasure with a sting to it—the one that bites to-morrow. This may arise from its very nature or from over-indulgence. The distinguished French woman, Madam Maintenon, gave a useful test that those diversions were commendable that did not culminate in regret. In real helpfulness some of those which cost the least bring the most satisfying returns, such as a stroll in the park, a ramble by the river, angling, or an hour in the flower garden. There is no cut and dried scheme. One is helpfully entertained with a camera, another with a phonograph or a book, and a fourth with a dramatic recital or a golf stick, but an American writer who went the limit declares that for economy and general benefit amateur farming has the golf links beaten.

That the attitude and relation of the Christian Church to recreaton is one of grave concern is manifest by its insistent consideration at important gatherings. It so vitally affects the home, the church, and society in general, that the subject can neither be ignored nor evaded. Assurdly, the essential function of the church is to nurture religion, but religion is not something to be shut up in a water-tight compartment. Rlationship and intercourse with the Divine Being have to do with life in every aspect, and in all its recesses. Having in mind the lessons of centuries, were the church disposed to camouflage the issue or express no counsel upon it, leaving entertainment to agencies governed by commercial returns, then, if the consequences prove unfortunate, she cannot escape moral responsibility. She becomes a sort of accessory before the fact. The prophet who for popularity stifles his voice, will hardly hold the respect even of those who may not like the message. The issue will be approached in different ways, and one person or organisation need not make reflections upon another. Through enlightened public opinion pressure may properly be exercised in order to suggest the character of professional entertainment; or the church may, through her own facilities, express herself and create an atmosphere by making provision under wholesome auspices of opportunities for physical, social, and intellectual activities. In young people particularly, the gregarious instinct is strong. Normal folk do not flock by themselves. This is true of rural sections, and more so of the crowded cities and towns. Now, while it is a truth never to be neglected that the home or family is the ideal social unit, rather than the community, the latter type of life will continue, and has its advantages in social betterment or economic movements; so it must be reckoned with. It involves serious tasks, but surely not beyond the sanctified intelligence and Divine grace at the disposal of the church in her share of the all-embracing Redemption commission. Jesus himself took cognisance of physical needs: "I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days and have nothing to eat."

There is no indication so far that humanity has passed the stage of bitions, but the church has not halted with injunctions. She is confronted with a condition that calls for constructive effort and judicious leadership. Considerations such as the foregoing doubtless determined two influential courts of the Canadian church lately to urge ministers and officials to undertake the lead in promoting under wholesome auspices of facilities conducive to spiritual life, which surely embraces a well-rounded-out and cheerful type of existence.—London Advertiser.

"Clear the Way!"

KILLED THE COBRA.

A cobra in the act of "mesmerizing" a king crow in a field near Calcutta was attacked by a mongoose, and after a fierce struggle killed.

The cobra was so intent on capturing its prey that it did not notice the mongoose, which pounced on its neck from behind, just as it was about to strike the bird. The cobra fought furiously; but the mongoose won. The mongoose then disappeared as quickly as it had come. When the bird was picked up there were no marks on its body, but it was dead—apparently from shock.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Speaking financially, modesty is on the upgrade. Now the girls are covering their faces.

Our chief delight in reading certain classes of novels comes when we reach the end.

And as Ring Lardner says, the mystery about many mystery stories is how they got printed.

Perhaps when the druggists refuse to fill liquor prescriptions they will offer "something just as good."

Portland despatches intimate that pirates are operating in the North Atlantic. Perhaps some of the war profiteers are taking an ocean voyage.

The people who habitually peddle scandal naturally object to the newspapers publishing it, and thus infringing on what they regard as their monopoly.

And while we are speaking of scandal, we note that a number of the most ardent gossips consider public steps to abolish certain conditions immodest.

Looks as though the bootleggers might find it necessary to again wear badges in order to keep from selling to each other.

Among the sweeping reforms that are advocated is lengthening skirts to a level with the pavements.

Some of the people who were gifted with taking ways now view the world through barred windows.

Talk about town leads us to warn local representatives of Toronto newspapers that there may be a few bricks coming their way some of these dark nights.

But, of course, this danger of bricks we refer to is merely another outgrowth of Peterborough's respect for the freedom of the press.

And we have noted how freedom of the press to most people in this city consists of being free with the phrase, "The press will please omit this."

ANCIENT ROME DISAPPEARS BEFORE TRADE INCURSIONS

The Corso Is Losing Its Ancient Character.

ROME, June 22.—Slowly the god of commerce is grinding away a little at a time the romance and antiquity of this cradle of civilization.

The Corso, from the time of Roman emperors, the busiest thoroughfare of the city is losing its ancient character. The four huge triumphal arches which once spanned the street, were destroyed centuries ago. Palaces and churches were left, but the palaces are falling before the irresistible demands of commerce.

Two huge old palaces occupying a site half-way up the Corso have already gone down before the commercial onslaught. In their places have been reared two big, gaudy structures to be occupied by banks, which stand out in bold contrast to the quiet coloring of the ancient gems of architecture.

When the palaces are not torn down, they are modified in such a way that the interior decoration, some of which has stood the test of centuries, is effaced and sometimes plastered. Numerous alterations are made to suit the necessities of business.

In the quarter where the church of St. John Lateran is located, a new amusement company has taken possession of a large square of vacant ground and had erected carrousels, roller-coasters, ferris-wheels and side shows. The romance and beauty of the spot has vanished.

Guarding the Blind Flock

10

ONE phase of the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind that requires extra careful attention is the "After Care" of those Canadian Blind men, women and children enrolled as members of this Institute.

Their trust and confidence in those who are leading them to active days and happiness is appealing in its absoluteness.

They buy from us at cost the raw materials from which they make the willow and wicker work, reed work, netting, the rugs, kimonas, aprons, door-mats, etc. They ship the finished articles to us and we buy it from them, afterwards selling to the public at the same price.

We must show the blind how to do the work properly; see that they are kept busy, give all manner of advice, and make arrangements for any special services.

They depend on us—absolutely! We must not fail them. To you, therefore, we must turn for generous help in this most noble work.

OLD AGE PENSION IN SPAIN.

Workers Rejoice at Announcement of Start of System.

MADRID, June 21.—The widespread display of posters to-day announcing the introduction of infirmity and old age pensions for workers was received with rejoicing in labor circles. The plan includes in its scope workers of both sexes between the ages of 16 and 65 earning less than 4,000 pesetas annually Persons reaching the age limit of 65 obtain the right to a minimum pension of 365 pesetas yearly, and a pension of the same amount can be granted before the age limit is reached in the event of infirmity caused by the individual's employment.

The employers, it is provided, must make contributions toward the cost of the pension system to the extent of three pesetas monthly for each worker, the Government adding one peseta monthly to this sum for each person. The contribution of the workers themselves varies according the desire of the individual insured, the payment of a higher amount bringing a higher pension.

Corsets Lose Out in the Race of Fashion.

LONDON, June 21.—All stays abandon, ye who wear smart frocks.

That is the command issued on the threshold of a new dress season and the woman who intends to follow fashion's decree will roll up her corsets and give them to the char-lady to light the fire with.

If she keeps them round her form, she can't get the "correct" line which Paris says must be long with easy movement at the hips.

This is to be a "swish" year, but a non-rustle one. That is, soft satin is to be the popular fabric, while taffetas and other rustling silks are to be given a rest.

Mayfair salons are already bright with gaudy colors. Mustard tweed coats have silver braid for decoration, while vivid jade is modeled in a suit with a high collar of blue and white checked satin. Real old tartan plaid is everywhere in evidence, and the color epidemic is spreading also to hats. Quite the favorite color for headgear is tomato red and every other tone of red, including scarlet. In fact, the woman whose wardrobe does not include a red hat might just as well have no hats at all so far as being fashionable is concerned.

FORCE NEGRO TO CLIMB A TREE; THEN RIDDLE HIM WITH BULLETS

McCORMICK, S. C., June 20. — Herbert Quarles, a negro charged with attacking a white woman of this county, was lynched here on Sunday afternoon.

The negro was captured by a posse of citizens and following identification by the victim he was forced to climb a tree and was then riddled with bullets.

Dear Marie,
I'm worried! Really I am. It may sound funny—but it's true! I don't see why I can't do something useful in this world.
Marie, you've simply got to come and visit me—even if you are an old married woman! I'll fix you up with some of my Campana's Italian Balm—till you'll think you're sweet sixteen again!! And then we can trip around till Doug sends a Telegram for you!!
Campana's really will smooth your furrowed brow! The kind makes your face and hands real white and smooth—oh yes, you'd better come and let me show you!
As ever,
Peggy.

GREEKS BECOME BURDENED WITH SERIES OF WARS

ALLIES WILL PROBABLY STEP IN AND DICTATE TERMS OF PEACE.

LONDON, June 22. — When Greece and Turkey have become thoroughly "fed up" on war, and either one or both countries are on the verge of physical and economic exhaustion, the Allies will step in and dictate the terms of peace—regardless to the desires of either of the combatants.

This, in effect, is the strategy the Big Four have adopted to the warfare in the Near East, according to Downing street officials.

Greece launched her attack against Turkey after the London Conference, against the advice of the Allies. Turkey invited the attack by refusing to compromise with the Greeks on questions which would undoubtedly have been settled in favor of the Moslems—chiefly because the Greeks were the parties concerned.

Although the offensive of last January and the recent one have both proved disastrous for the Greek army Athens has informed the Foreign Office that she is far from through and that the Hellenic troops under the leadership of King Constantine, will yet float the royal emblem over St. Sophia's in Constantinople.

No importance is attached to their boast either in London, Paris or Rome, first, because the venture is an impossible one for the Greek arms, and, secondly, because it is greatly undesired by the Entente. The Allies have long since decided that the Turks shall be allowed to remain unmolested. Also, it has been decided that Greek domination of Smyrna and possibly Thrace is an "Allied impossibility." Consequently, even though the Greek army may vanquish the Nationalists—an extremely improbable supposition—the mediating Allies will decree its withdrawal from Asia Minor.

It has also been established that Athens is fighting the Turco-Greek campaign on pure air. Paper money, unbacked by even promises of allied loans, is paying the bills. The Greek drachma, before Venizelos' repudiation, was quoted at approximately six to the dollar. Now you can buy nearly fifteen. And the end is not yet in sight.

Reports of a British loan to the National Bank of Greece have been repeatedly denied in London, and the admission by Controller Maximos that "negotiations were provisionally unsuccessful" constitute additional proof that the Gounaris Cabinet is riding towards disaster. Greece already is groaning under eight years of continuous war and more than a score of years' maintenance of government by borrowed capital.

Allied notes, already dispatched, have intimated broadly the futility of continuing the warfare in the Near East, and Entente protests against "slaughter of innocents" and "disregard for the rules of civilized warfare" have been dispatched to both Sami Bey and the Gounaris Cabinet.

INTEGRITY IS VITAL IN CHINESE TRADE.

Bank Finds Oriental Standards Demand a High Degree of Commercial Honor.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Predicting that China is approaching an era of vast commercial development with opportunities beckoning American traders, the Guaranty Trust Company in a survey of trade conditions there, points out that high standards of business integrity are essential to success in this Eastern market, which already does an annual business of more than $1,000,000,000. This indicates an advance of more than 100 per cent. in the last ten years, if figured in gold dollars, while in Chinese taels it has advanced about 33 per cent.

"With an area of about 4,300,000 square miles," continues the survey, "one and a half times the area of the United States, excluding Alaska and our outlying possessions, with about 93 persons to the square mile, with only about 6,000 miles of railways compared with our 260,000 miles, and with one-half of the population without wheeled vehicles, China is today at the inception of a vast modern industrial development and will require railway materials, mining equipment, electrical plants, public utilities, machinery and factory equipments, and metal products in great abundance. American ships, American capital, American organizations, must be provided for the expansion of American trade in China.

"It is a vast field of opportunity that has hardly been searched—a field that will yield a rich harvest to the American who cultivates it with intelligence and understanding, because the position of the United States in China is peculiarly advantageous. China regards our country as friendly in the desire to protect rather than despoil her territory. But to meet competition we must have a powerful organization, a base and rallying point, a tangible something besides more labels on boxes or bales as representing American force. It must be remembered that the Chinese makes his judgment largely on the outward visible signs, and that he has a natural tendency to deal with the strongest firm.

Honesty a Big Factor.

"America's manufacturing capacity to-day, as a result of war-time expansion and increased efficiency in production, is so large that the output of our plants at full time is much greater than America's market can continuously and regularly absorb, and if we are to avoid periods of unemployment of large bodies of workers we must get our share of foreign trade to dispose of this surplus production. The Chinese market will be a great factor in solving this problem.

"Three basic elements govern Chinese business—personality, education and honesty. Regarding the first, your representative in China must be a man of education and tact. The quality of aggressiveness which makes for success in the United States must be toned down in dealings with the Chinese, a dignified race that abhors the breeziness of a certain type of salesmen. On the other hand, they have a profound reverence for a man of learning and, if he is familiar with their customs, business relations will proceed smoothly and profitably.

"An outstanding feature of the Chinese character is his commercial honor, and he demands an equally high standard from the foreigner. One deviation from absolute integrity on the part of your representative would probably destroy your business in China. The Chinese merchant is noted for his liberality in all his dealings, is tenacious as to all that is material, with comparative disregard for trifles, never letting a transaction fall through on account of punctilio, yielding to the prejudices of others wherever it can be done without material disadvantage. Judicial procedure being an abomination to respectable Chinese, their security in commercial transactions is based as much upon reason, good faith and non-depudiation as is that of Western nations upon verbal finesse in the construction of contract."

The bank points out that trade representatives in China should be familiar with the language and customs, adding that the success of Europeans learning the language can best be judged by the statements of the Shanghai manager of the British-American Tobacco Company. According to this statement, the company has sixty men living in the interior studying Mandarin.

Japan Gains in the War.

In the war Japan exerted every effort to extend her markets in China. In most lines she has made great headway, due primarily to the proximity to the market and shortage of tonnage at her competitors' disposal. But the goods supplied, in many instances, have not given entire satisfaction and her present commanding position in the China field is far from secure, it is said.

With a view to active participation in the development first of the northern part of China, the Asia Banking Corporation was recently formed under the laws of New York State. It is capitalized at $4,000,000 and has a surplus of $1,100,000.

The Far Eastern territory where the Asia Banking Corporation is now centring its activities comprises mainly the northern part of the central Provinces of China and Manchuria and the Philippine Islands. It covers an area of about 2,800,000 square miles, with a population of approximately 340,000,000. Eighty per cent. of the foreign trade of the entire Chinese nation is transacted through the seaports of this territory.

"We must make goods that will please the Chinese and not necessarily ourselves," says the survey. "If we are selling print goods we must make them of Chinese designs, even though to our mind our designs are more beautiful. Many a tale is told of American obstinacy in the Chinese market. A representative of an Ohio hardware firm obtained a trial order in China for $5,000 worth of screws in blue paper. The company cabled that its goods were always wrapped in brown paper, and that it could not alter its practice. The order, perhaps the entering wedge of an enormous business, went to Germany. The archives of our Consulates are full of similar examples.

"Another bad practice is the sending of all manner of descriptive literature without any reference to price. If the product is used in China the all-important factor is how much it will cost the local importer, and if the manufacturer's letter gives that information the local merchant is in a position to know at once if business is possible.

"American goods will sell in China if they are given equal opportunity with the output of other nations. The American community in Shanghai has more than doubled in the last few years, and there is a larger variety of American goods visible in the shops than before. But the national fault of Americans in their attempt to obtain foreign trade is impatience. In the domestic market we are accustomed to capture trade by rapid advances, by brilliant assaults. In the foreign field and especially in China, the slow seige is the better plan."

SWEEPING PROBE PLANNED INTO NAVY DEPARTMENT.

$130,000,000 Spent, U. S. Has Only One Modern Submarine, Senator King Says.

WASHINGTON, June 20. — A sweeping investigation by the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate into the situation in the Navy Department, with respect to construction of submarines and construction of aircraft and the development of submarine and aircraft activities in connection with the navy, will be demanded by Senator King, of Utah, Democrat, and a member of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Senator King said he would introduce a resolution providing for an inquiry, both into the submarine policy and the air policy of the Navy Department.

What he is aiming at especially is to find out whether this country is abreast of the times in utilizing the best types of submarines and of aircraft or whether it is behind the times.

Testimony before the Naval Affairs Committee has already been given, Senator King said, by Admiral Sims and Admiral Fullam, to the effect that, although enormous sums have been expended by the navy for submarines, the total being $130,000,000, it has only one thoroughly modern submarine.

"It is asserted by competent officers," said Senator King, "that our submarines do not compare with the submarines used by the Germans. The engines we are using are much inferior to the engines used in the German submarines and in other resnects our submarines are said to be inferior. It is shocking and indefensible that after expending the amount of money we have, we should be in such a condition."

WHO WILL BUY?

WORLD'S BIGGEST BOND ISSUE ABOUT READY

(By CHAS McCANN, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 22.—Germany's new reparations bonds will be marketed—if they get that far—at a price between or below and 65 per cent. of their face value.

The highest estimate—60 to 65 per cent.—is given by Government officials. The other—45 to 50—is an optimistic financial one.

Though Germany will deliver to the Reparations Commission the initial installment of her $33,000,000,000 in bonds on July 1, there is so far no information as to what really is to happen to the world's biggest bond issue.

Officials point out to potential investors that the bonds are backed by the entire resources of the German Empire. Financiers point out that the bond market is bad and that Germany's reparations record so far is not dazzlingly good, or likely to become so for quite a time.

Two things will help largely to determine the price of the bonds, when and if marketed.

First, Germany's record from June 1, when the first installment of reparations—$250,000,000—is due, to the time the bonds are marketed.

Second, investors' confidence in Germany's ability and intention to pay the interest and principal.

Prospective buyers probably will ask themselves: First, is it to Germany's advantage to make the issue attractive when the lower the price the cheaper Germany, or individual Germans, could buy them back, thus discounting heavily the reparations bill?

Second, is there any means by which Germany could repudiate the issue at some future time?

Third, if the bonds are all marketed, would the Allies protect investors at any cost in the event Germany attempted to evade payment, inasmuch as they are not backed by allied credit?

Official and financial replies to the first question are, No. To the second and third, replies vary.

Investors may comfort themselves with the thought that, if the issue is the biggest in history, the holders, no matter what or who they are, will be the largest body of creditors in history. If it is possible to market only 1 per cent. of the bonds, 99 per cent. will be held by allied Governments to whom they represent in some cases a practically sole barrier against bankruptcy. If 99 per cent. are marketed, they will be in the hands of individuals who presumably would do their best to force their Governments to take active steps to make the issue good.

The Allies hope it will be possible to market most of the bonds, if the price is "high" enough. They say Germany will be made to pay. They hope, also, that either the original or subsequent buyers will be Germans. The inducement is a heavy reduction in the actual total of reparations to be paid to outsiders, and knowing the financial power of Germany (there are many who believe this will be the solution. If this is the case, it will be years before Germany actually benefits, as the bonds are to be issued by the Reparations Commission, as Germany is able to pay interest and sinking fund on them from her stated annual payments of $500,000,000, plus a 26 per cent. tax on her exports.

To the investor the inducement will be a $100 bond, 5 per cent. bond, marketed at perhaps fifty, "backed by the entire resources of the German Empire." His response presumably will be in proportion to his success in satisfying himself that there will be collectors willing and able to keep the necessary portion of the Empire's resources at the command of the bondholders.

HOUSE PRICES ARE AT LOWEST LEVEL

PRESENT WINNIPEG VALUES WILL PREVAIL THROUGUT SEASON.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 22. — Persons who are deferring the purchase of homes in the hope that prices will be lower this fall are doomed to disappointment, in the opinion of A. T. Liddle of Liddle Bros., and president of the Winnipeg real estate exchanges. Mr. Liddle believes that the present prices of houses will prevail throughout the year. The situation, he says, is that it costs from 40 per cent. to 50 per cent. more to build homes now than in pre-war times, but there are still some homes that can be purchased as cheaply as in the days before the war.

The demand for houses has fallen off somewhat, but sales are quite number of families at the beaches and summer resorts has created a demand for houses for rental and there is no shortage in this regard. The shortage will come with the return of those families in the fall.

TRUCK SERVICE LINE ADJUDGED PUBLIC CARRIER.

Proprietors Win Case Though Opposed By Railway.

A case recently heard before the Public Service Commission of Nevada illustrates the superiority of truck transportation in economy, utility and speed of operation.

Two Italian brothers who have been operating a small motor truck haulage company for some time applied to the commission for a certificate of public convenience. The application was opposed by a short line railway company operating on the same route as that served by the Italians.

The railroad had a strong moral argument. It was in possession of right-of-way, had been operating satisfactorily, and was paying considerable taxes. The investment in the railroad was very large. It was estimated that its scrap value was $450,000. It was argued that the addition of a competing carrier would depreciate its revenue and would result in poorer service and higher charges. The railroad claimed that the truck company could not operate all the year round. It asked that the truck company be compelled to adhere to tariff schedules, to be made to erect depots and be ordered to deposit bonds in the amount of $10,000.

The two Italian brothers simply argued service. Their partnership owned a few high-grade motor trucks. With them they covered a fifty-mile route in three and one-half hours, picking up and delivering freight at residences, farms, mines, warehouses and stores. Deliveries were direct. Railway freight shipments took as many days as they took hours. Their truck service had actually been affected less by weather conditions than the railroad had been. A great many customers supported the statements of the brothers, saying that the service rendered was superior to that of the railroad and that a volume of local business was dependent on the truck haulage, and the commission ruled that the truck service was necessary to the agricultural, live stock, mining and commercial industries of the community.

GREAT WHITE BEAR STIRS ITSELF ACROSS RUSSIA'S DISTANT STEPPES

PARIS, June 22. — "Russia will dominate Europe within fifty years, politically, culturally, perhaps even militarily, just as Spain, Sweden, France, Germany and other western powers did during centuries past."

This is the expressed opinion of a surprisingly large number of well-posted observers of current history here, in both academic and diplomatic circles. Frequently the admission comes grudgingly, if the interviewer be French, for no Frenchman will willingly admit that his country's "day" is setting. But few will deny this trend of events.

The day of the western European powers is already on the wane and the centre of gravity of European civilzation will soon shift across the Carpathians. Russia will be the next great nation to make its master contribution to mankind and Russia's day is coming soon, these men say.

There are many factors which place Russia in a particularly favorable position as regards the rest of the continent.

Is Strong Physically.

Physically Russia is by far the strongest economic unit in Europe. She is the only nation on the continent that can be absolutely self-supporting, as the term is used in the relative sense applied to the United States. She has her own coal for her industries and railways; raw products for her factories and plenty of grains and foods for her population.

Despite the conditions said to prevail in some of the larger cities at present, Russia has not been weakened by the war as have France, Italy and Germany. Nor has the Bolshevik regime permanently depleted or drained the deep reservoir of national reserve power. Figuratively speaking, Russia has simply received a hard rap that stunned temporarily.

Given time to reorganize industries—not a lengthy process, broadly speaking—given peace, both internal and external, Russia will quickly represent the most powerful economic force on the continent.

Feel Political Awakening.

Russia is already undergoing a political awakening. For years European statesmen have secretly realized the tremendous power latent the other side of the steppes and trembled at the thought of the time when it should become active.

The Bolshevik revolution sent thousands of former or prospective political leaders in foreign lands where they knowledge of practical world affairs has been enlarged and their eyes opened to their own country's possiblities. When this tide of immigration flows back into Russia it will have a profound effect on Russian policy.

The reign of the Red has also stirred the minds and hearts of the peasant masses as they have never been moved before. The returning exiles will find far more attentive listeners and ready followers than they might have found had it not been for such cataclysms. For the Slav mind works deeply and slowly and is not disturbed by purely surface stimuli.

Will Enjoy Progress.

Political observers predict an unprecedented era of progressiveness in Russia during the next few decades. Unrestricted by the weight of tradition encumebring the western European countries, Russia will offer an unusually favorable field for development of new and constructive ideas. Artistically, Russia is already the "coming" nation of Europe. Russian music is the vogue in concert halls and drawing rooms and there is every reason to believe that, as Italy, Germany and France in turn held the place of prominence in the musical world, so Russia is about to hold the world's ear.

The next great contribution to civilization's wealth of philosophy will probably come from Russia, many insist. Rome, France and Germany have all made their gifts and have little more to add. Russia, the largest body of humanity on the continent, has not—as yet.

The Slav mind, meditative, dreamy, patient, has for centuries been absorbing the best ideas produced by the best brains of all lands. Russian writers, such as Tolstoi, Turgeneff, Tschekoff, and others have already won a seat for their country in the halls of literature.

MOST CARS WILL TAKE MORE THAN ONE SIZE OF TIRES.

Many motorists are ignorant as to how to figure out the different sizes of tires that will fit their cars. Because a car is equipped with a particular size of tire it does not necessarily mean that a tire of that particular dimension is the only one that will fit it.

Take, for instance, a tire marked 37 x 4½. The overall diameter of this tire from tip of thread to the top on the opposite side of the thread is 37 inches. The 4½ means that the diameter of the tire from the tip of thread to where it fits the rim is 4½ inches. To ascertain the size of the rim all that is necessary is to subtract 2 x 4½ from 37 to get the answer. Thus 37—2 x 4½ is 28 inches, the size of the rim. To find the sizes of other tires that will fit this rim you will have to find a size that, when worked out by this method, will give you 28 inches. As an example, a 36 x 4 will fit on a rim that has been carrying a 37 x 4½.

SIX COMMANDMENTS FOR MODERN CAPITALIST

Don't Be Content With Life of Ease Is the First Given to Spanish Societies.

JEREZ DE LA FRONTERA, Spain, June 22.—Six commandments for the modern capitalist were laid down in an address here to-day before a gathering comprising representatives of all the societies of employers and workers. They were as follows:

First—To give an example to others and not content himself with a life of ease.

Second—Not to despise the efforts of the workers to improve their condition.

Third—To use his wealth in a natural way by employing it to increase the prosperity of all.

Fourth—To apply himself to production for the general benefit, instead of thinking duty is fulfilled by regular churchgoing and the saluting of the national flag, while at the same time he appropriates the major portion of the products of the earth.

Fifth—To respect the associations of the workers.

Sixth—To avoid the adoption of ing sent to unions of all the organviolence, because repression engenders revolution.

PLAN TO WIDEN LONDON BOUNDS NOW DISCUSSED.

County Councils Agree On Necessity of Incorporating Large Suburban Area.

LONDON, June 21.—In its 2,000 years of history, London has enlarged its borders four times. The first was in the time of King Alfred; the last time was in 1855, when the present boundaries of the area known since 1889 as the County of London were fixed.

In the 18th century Tyburn, then the place of execution, and now within a few yards of the Marble Arch, was two miles from London. In the forties of the last century, only a dozen years before the date of the large enlargement of London, Belgravia was covered with fields, forming part of a swamp that stretched as far as Fulham. A hunting pack "found" in the fields of Pimlico less than a hundred years ago.

The London of 1855, which is the London of to-day, is to be enlarged to the London over which the Metropolitan police have control — the real metropolis. The London of 1921 will cover 692 square miles, nearly 700 times the size of the London of Queen Elizabeth.

For 20 years London reformers have been agitating for the extension of the boundaries of London, and for as many years the governing bodies outside the county, but within the boundaries of Metropolitan Police London, have resisted the proposal.

In all that time the movement of population outside London has been increasing, until to-day there is virtually as many people living outside the County of London, but within the Metropolitan Police London, as there are in the county itself.

Politics and sentiment, which have tied down the boundaries of London since 1855, have been swept out of consideration. Necessity counts to-day. London must take within herself the whole of the population lying between Richmond and Romford and Barnet and Purley, or give up the task of providing the ordinary amenities to which every aggregation of human beings is entitled.

Agree to Enlargement.

The two parties on the London County Council have agreed to the necessity of an immediate enlargement of London to an area of nearly 700 square miles; the governing bodies outside are agreed that something of the sort must be done if public necessities are to be met, and Parliament should find in the next session an easy task in planning a new London.

Unless that is done, and very quickly, the pressing problems of housing, transit, power and subsidiary concerns cannot be solved. Central London is built over; practically the whole of London north of the Thames is covered. There must be clearances in the congested districts.

Areas for building houses exist only in the south-eastern part of London, but before anything can be done in the way of house building the linles of communication, rail and road, must be greatly increased.

Depends on Transit.

The housing problem, which is the most pressing, cannot be settled until the means of transit are made adequate.

The London population moves to and from its work like no other population on earth. The transit problem cannot be settled by a hundred and one local authorities which have no power to do anything outside their own boundaries, but must be dealt with as a whole.

The town planning schemes of the outer districts must be co-ordinated and devised to fit in with a complete system of transit, including tube, railways, tramways, steam and electric railways and 'bus services.

It is impossible to build houses for Londoners with any hope of meeting real needs until and unless the transit is there ready for the use of the new inhabitants.

The whole future of the new London, which will come into being soon, depends upon transit, and that in turn depends upon single control. It may be a traffic board—although London has had more than enough of boards, especially those which are not directly in touch with the electorate — but whatever may be its composition it must be armed with great spending powers and be left free even by Parliament to develop the new London on broad, comprehensive lines designed to make the empire metropolis the easiest and best city in the world for the movement of population.

C. P. R. CONDUCTOR CELEBRATES HIS 36TH YEAR'S SERVICE

WINNIPEG, Man., June 22. — Charles P. Rapelje, 693 Preston ave., a conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway, this week celebrated the 36th anniversary of his service with the company.

During more than a third of a century of railroading in western Canada, Mr. Rapelje has witnessed many changes in the methods of handling trains. When he first entered the service of the company as a brakeman hand brakes were used, and 14 cars was considered a good load for a freight engine to haul. He has been a conductor on the Fort William passenger run for nearly 20 years and is well known to thousands of travellers who have passed over this line.

REV. MILLER RESIGNS FROM RIDLEY SCHOOL.

Had Been Principal of College For Thirty Years.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., June 22.—Ridley College held its prize day functions to-day. The president, George H. Gooderham, announced that the Principal, Rev. J. O. Miller, had tendered his resignation to the Board, after thirty-two years of service, and that he would be succeeded by H. C. Griffith as Principal of the Upper School, and H. G. Williams as Principal of the Lower School.

Bishop Ridley College, St. Catharines, was founded in 1889 by Rev. J. O. Miller, and has developed into one of the four large residential schools for boys in Ontario. Dr. Miller is a well-known writer and publicist, and he will be free to enjoy the leisure which he desires. Mr. Griffith is an "old boy of Ridley," having won his colors in cricket and football there about 1895. Later he graduated from Trinity University, Toronto, with honors in Moderns. From 1907 to 1911 he was Professor of French in Trinity, but the rest of his active life has been spent as an instructor at Ridley. He is an authority on sport, and was honorary coach of the Varsity football team for many years. His educational work at Ridley has been of the highest scholastic standing. Mr. Williams, the Principal of the Lower School, has also been connected with Ridley since 1891.

Ridley is being enlarged this year by the addition of a new dormitary, to be known as Gooderham House, and a new Memorial Chapel. It has now accommodation for sixty boys in the Lower School and 150 boys in the three houses of the Upper School.

A MODERN MIRACLE

What Mr. Robert I. Buchanan, of Sarnia, Ont., has to say:

It is with great pleasure that I can testify to the great curative qualities of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment.

The summer of 1902 I took typhoid fever which left me with inflammatory rheumatism. My legs used to swell and the pain at times was almost unbearable. In January, 1903, I was compelled to go to bed and one month after my leg broke open at the knee. I was removed to Sarnia Hospital, where I spent almost one year and during that time had four operations. A part of the femur was removed from my leg and they made an incision through the other leg which went right through the bone. I left Sarnia hospital in February ,1904, and started to treat with other remedies but they failed to do me any good. In November, 1906, I was taken to Toronto hospital. At that time my right leg had gone back knocked-knee and straightened it. I came They put a Thomas splint on to straighten it up and opened up the wound again. I left the hospital in February, 1907, and remained at home until July, 1907, when I returned to Toronto hospital again. They broke my leg just below the knee and straightened it. I carle home in December, but the sore in my leg was still open. I was then using the cupping treatment which helped a little for a time. I tried a number of different Ointments, but they did not appear to help me.

In July, 1908, your agent left me a box of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment. After using them for about six months my health has been fully restored and the four different sores on my leg are completely healed.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets and Hou-Tan Ointment are for sale at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough. Herb Tablets 25c, 50c, and $1.00 per box. Hou-Tan Ointment 50c.

We Announce a Clearance of All Our Silk, Satin and Georgette Dresses in a Sale, Commencing To-morrow

And Ending Monday, June 27th

Many of Them Are House Sample Garments Purchased at Favourable Prices

Here is an example of the magnitude of the reductions of a Clearaway Sale in the Cressman Store.

There are no half-way measures—no setting this or that aside and saying it is too good or too new to be reduced.

When we make a clearance, it is a real clearance of everything from the highest to the lowest. We accomplish our purpose in this way and have no regrets. Those who purchase have none either, for the goods are always of the highest order.

These Dresses Are the Finest Values in the City of Peterborough

They are the most fashionable and up-to-the minute models, too. If we could have every woman in Peterborough who needs a Dress of Silk, Satin or Georgette, see them, we know there would not be enough to supply one-hundredth part of the demand,

Yet There Are Ninety-Eight Models to Select From

The Sale will commence Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and continue until 5.30 p.m. on Monday.

SIX
$74 to $95 Models for $59.95

The materials are charmeuse, crepe meteor, taffeta, georgette and tricolette. They follow the styles of the present season with overskirts, ruchings, pleatings and wool or beaded embroidery work.

One particularly fine garmet is of grey crepe meteor. It has wide panels on each side and they are edged and frilled with knife pleating. The bodice crosses over and shows a knife pleated vestee. French blue piping relieves the grey and the girdle is garnished with a corsage bouquet of French flowers.

NINE
$52 to $67.50 Models for $47.50

This lot is made up of plain blacks, black and white, brown, ivory and grey. The materials are charmeuse, crepe meteor, taffeta and georgette. The styles are varied and fashionable. Most of them came to us just a few months ago.

We mention one of black charmeuse. It has a circular skirt and the bodice just above the soft girdle is interestingly treated with lacings of black,one-inch moire ribbon run through eyelets. The effect is a basket weave. The same is worked on the sleeves just above the flare cuffs and the cuffs are lined with rust georgette.

TWENTY-FOUR
$50 to $59 Models for $39.75

This lot presents a wide variety of fabrics,colors and styles. Most of them are this season's garments, but none of them are at all out of style or nearly so. There is a range of desirable colors—black, navy, grey, taupe, brown, ivory and Pekin blue.

Some show the fashionable eyelet work in many pleasing forms and others exemplify the wide overskirt, tuxedo collars with pretty vestees and square and round yokes are much to the fore.

THIRTY
$42 to $49 Models for $34.50

At this price all nearly are brand new goods. There are many in black and one or more in the following colors: navy, taupe, brown and ivory. The materials are good qualities of Canton crepe, taffeta, crepe de chine and georgette.

There is one particularly attractive model in navy blue Canton crepe. It is trimmed with navy fringe down the sides. It is very novel and quite correct. We just received it a few days ago and it was intended to sell at $48.

EIGHTEEN
$35 to $41 Models for $29.50

There is a fine array of light colors in georgette, taffeta and crepe de chine. Some of the colors are coral, maize, rose pink, white and sky; also a few black and Copenhagen blue.

There is splendid choosing for the style assortment includes eighteen distinctly different types. The quality of the fabrics is real good, and the little touches that only ingenious designers think of, give them an air of distinction that is found only in garments of real worth.

THREE
$29 to $34 Models for $26.75

Two of them are of navy blue taffeta and the other is white georgette. One of taffeta in the navy blue is made unusually effective with a basque waist and two large round eyelets through which passes a ribbon girdle and fastens at the back. The overskirt is panelled with much frilling.

Both of the other models are worthy of a detailed description, but unfortunately there is not sufficient space here to do them justice. If $26.75 is the price you wish to pay, it will be well to come early as there are three only.

EIGHT
$22 to $28 Models for $19.95

These are dark colors: navy, black and prunella. The materials are taffeta, crepe de chine and satin. They are smart garments and are certainly unusual value at the $19.95 price.

They are dressy enough for many occasions, and yet they are not more expensive than organdie or voile or some other cotton. Even if you consider your wardrobe complete, we dare say you could use one of these for a utility garment.

EXHIBITION BOARD ASKS THE COUNTY COUNCIL FOR $2,000

DEPUTATION OUTLINED THE IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED FOR THE FAIR GROUNDS THIS YEAR —OTHER APPEALS AT OPENING SESSION.

A deputation from the Peterborough Exhibition Board made a request to the County Council on Tuesday afternoon for a grant of $2,000 toward the cost of constructing a new cattle barn at the fair grounds, of an addition to the grandstand and for other improvements planned for this year. The Directors composing this party were R. Denne, President; R. H. Turner, Harry Webber, J. W. Fraser, W. H. Merrell, C. E. Moore and Sam Oke.

"According to our programme, we have planned and expect to spend $6,400 on the Exhibition this year," said Mr. Denne. "The city has given us $3,000 and citizens have subscribed $1,455. This is a total of $4,455. We ask you for the same grant you made last year. We have let the contract for the cattle barn to James Finnie and the work was started to-day. We have asked for an amount equal to last year's."

"You have made it possible to put the Exhibition where it is," said Mr. Turner. "We are now asking you to continue the financial assistance you gave us last year."

Mr. Moore and Mr. Webber spoke of the need of increased facilities for cattle exhibitors at the Peterborough Fair, and also of the economical way in which the grants of the last two years were expended.

The deputation's petition was referred to the Finance Committee.

A request from the Navy League for $2,000 was similarly disposed of.

Increase Interest Rate.

W. H. Dunsford, manager of the Bank of Commerce in Peterborough, informed the Council that the interest charge on loans to the county for 1921 would have to be increased from 5½ to 6 per cent. There were no municipalities he knew of getting money at 5½ per cent, and most of them were paying more than 6 per cent. Even the Provincial bonds were around 6½ per cent.

This notice was passed on to the Finance Committee.

Public School Inspectors R. Lees and G. E. Broderick wrote that their allowances from the Council for travelling expenses were quite inadequate. It was their intention to refer this matter to the County Judge if the Council refused to increase this appropriation.

Ask for $500.

A letter from the City Council asked for a grant of $500 for the maintenance of Victoria Park. Referred to the Finance Committee.

LAKEFIELD FEELS URGE FOR A BAND

VISIT OF ADJ. BUNTIN'S MUSICIANS AROUSED MEMORIES OF OTHER DAYS WHEN THE VILLAGE HAD ITS OWN BAND

LAKEFIELD, June 21. — The A.Y.P.A. picnic, which was held at Strickland's Point on Monday evening, was a splendid success, and all present had a jolly time. A bountiful supper was served at 6.30, after which a programme of races, under the direction of Mr. Stenner, was run off. Mr. E. T. Shewen won the needle and thread race, and Mr. Braden Blewett the sack race. Miss A. Watson and Mr. T. Leggott were winners in the potato race. The tug-of-war between the ladies and gentlemen was very exciting, as every inch was hotly contested. The first trial resulted in the ladies being victorious, and the second made the score a tie. The final result was left in doubt.

A baseball game was played before supper, and "league rules" prevailed. Both teams played a good game.

The picnic was postponed from Friday last, and was so successful that it is hoped to have another in July.

Mr. E. T. Shewen, one of the guests, proposed three cheers for the A.Y.P.A., and they were heartily given.

Feel Need of Band.

A good many citizens who enjoyed the music of the Salvation Army Band on Sunday wondered why Lakefield has no band of its own. Years ago, when the village was much smaller, there was an excellent band in Lakefield, and band concerts were given occasionally and were much appreciated. There is undoubtedly an opening for a band and also sufficient talent to sustain one. One special reason for the lack of a band is the fact that the instruments were destroyed in the old Town Hall among other valuable village properties. A little push in the right direction and Lakefield would soon rival the neighboring towns and villages.

PRICE OF BREAD IN PORT HOPE 24 CENTS.

Port Hope Guide: The Peterborough Council has appointed a special committee to investigate the prices being charged for bread. The public of Peterborough have been at a loss to know how bread manufactured in Peterborough sold for twelve cents per loaf, while bread made in Port Hope and sent into Peterborough by express could sell for ten cents per loaf. The inquiry, they hope, will throw some light on the question.

Port Hope will, no doubt, be quite interested in the result of this investigation. While Port Hope bread (sanitary wrapped) is selling in Peterborough and Cobourg at ten cents per loaf, Port Hopers are obliged to pay twelve cents per loaf and without the sanitary wrapper. A similar investigation by our Council should be in order.

NO IDLENESS AMONG THE CZECHO SLAVS

BELLEVILLE, June 22.—"There is not an unemployed man or woman in the whole country." This statement was made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer of Czecho-Slovakia to Mr. William Ward of London, England, President of the Brotherhood Federation Movement, who has just returned from that new country, and spoke at Bridge Street Methodist Church here. The people have secured that for which they have striven—religious and civil liberty.

"We have been the means of circulating thousands of copies of the Scriptures," said Mr. Ward. "There is a famine of gospels in that land as it was an offence to have a gospel under the Austrian regime.

"I've been in most religious movements in the past fifty years, but I have never witnessed anything like that which is taking place in Czecho-Slovakia. Since January of this year there have been four thousand converts to one congregation, and it is practically impossible to gain admission to the places of worship, so great are the crowds of worshippers."

FLESH TORN FROM SIDE AND SOLE OF HIS FOOT

PORT HOPE, June 22.—Mr. Ernest Bowden of Newcastle, employed on the C. P. R. section, met with a very serious and painful accident on the track this side of Weslevville. With a number of other men, Mr. Bowden was coming east on the pumper when the axle of the pumper broke and they were thrown off. Bowden's left foot was caught in the wheel and the flesh from the sole and side of his foot was torn off to the bone. The injury was very painful and Mr. Bowden will be confined to the hospital here for several weeks and a grafting operation will be resorted to.

GENERAL INSPECTION OF HOUSE REFUGE PROPOSED BY WARDEN

Representations of the Grand Jury Received Special Attention in Warden W. E. Griffith's Address to the County Council at the Opening of the June Sessions on Tuesday—Committee to Consider His Suggestion

The Grand Jury's sweeping criticism of conditions at the County House of Refuge, near Lakefield, following their formal visit to the institution last week, was directed to the attention of the County Council by Warden Wm. E. Griffith, Reeve of Belmont, in his address at the opening of the June sessions on Tuesday afternoon. The question of better accommodation for the inmates should be seriously and immediately considered by the Council, Warden Griffith proposed, and in his reference to the Grand Jury's report, his expression was virtually a direct request that the Council visit the House of Refuge in a body for the purpose of thoroughly inspecting the premises, and of ascertaining whether the representations of the Grand Jury were warranted.

"I have made two visits myself this year," he continued, "and I found the House thoroughly managed from the financial standpoint. I haven't a fault to find with those in charge of it. The House of Refuge is a credit to its founders, but it may be necessary to make certain improvements in the construction and plans and perhaps in the system of management."

Warden Griffith stated that the accommodation was apparently not all that it might be. There was no private ward for those inmates who became sick or who were dying and needed special attention. He suggested that two private wards could be set out, and that the Council might consider arranging for a nurse to attend those inmates whose condition called for special care and treatment. If the Council would visit the House of Refuge in a body they could inspect all the beds and mattresses and generally enquire into the conditions reported by the Grand Jury as demanding improvement.

Warden Griffith also recommended that the Council exercise economy in their disbursements at this session, and that each application for money be considered on its merits.

His address was referred to a committee, composed of Reeves Nicholls, Eason, McIntosh, Coughlin, Strickland, Curtis and Scott of Asphodel.

Voice of the People

THE PRICE OF BREAD.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With your kind permission I would like to say a few words on the question of the price of bread as it is sold in the city of Peterborough to-day. Bread is sold in this city at twenty-four cents a large loaf now. Let us see how this compares with several other cities and towns in this Province. Toronto, 20 cents; Hamilton, 20 cents; London, 20 cents; Brantford, 20 cents; Galt, 20 cents; Owen Sound, 20 cents; Brockville, 20 cents; Ottawa, 20 cents; Lindsay, 20 cents; Oshawa, 20 cents, and, last of all, comes along Belleville with 18 cents.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to ask, as the father of a very large household, by what factor of multiplication the bakers of this city charge the enormous price of 24 cents a loaf? It is a well-known fact that flour since 1919 has dropped nearly 50 per cent. in price, and wages in all lines, bakers as well as others, has also been lowered from 10 to 20 per cent. I would suggest that the women organizations of this city get together and talk this matter over at once as they are the ones vitally interested. I would also ask the women to just sit down and figure out what it costs for one year to feed a family of, say six people, at from four to six cents on every loaf of bread consumed, and when you are through I am satisfied that you will feel somewhat alarmed, at what you have to hand out in good cold cash over and above what they are paying in the other cities and towns throughout the Province.

It has been rumored this last few days that it was just possible that the price of bread would take a drop of possibly two cents. Let me say to the profiteers that this will not do. What we want, and what the women must demand, is a twenty-cent loaf and nothing else.

Thanking you for the space.

Yours respectfully,

HOUSEHOLDER.

CALL FLAPPERS BOON TO NATION.

Reformers' Critics Say Girls Have Given U. S. Edge in Beauty.

NEW YORK, June 22. — Should the flapper, with her elaborate make-up, her daring clothes, her bold and confident carriage, be suppressed as a menace to the nation's morals, or celebrated as its chief claim to art and beauty?

The flappers assert that they have done nothing less than to add to the joy and the beauty of the world by learning how to make herself attractive. You have only to look at some old pictures, they say, to realize what an enormous transformation has been worked in 20 years, and even in ten. Who, they ask, really wants to go back to the days of cotton stockings, skirts dragging in the dust, hair pulled tight and shiny nose?

Scores Reformers.

"All this hue and cry about cosmetics and clothes is outrageously silly, in my opinion," declares a New York society matron, whose subdeb years occurred about the time of the Spanish-American War. "It's worse than that; it's base ingratitude. Why, the new flapper has performed a great service for her country by raising the standard of feminine beauty. You should have seen us back in 1890—plain and prim and proper. It was all right if you happened to be born beautiful, of course, but if you didn't happen to be there was not a thing you could do about it. Rouge and lipsticks were out of the question, while hair dye was unmentionable even in the family circle.

"Here, look at these," she said, handing us an old-fashioned album containing laughable portraits of the pompadour period.

"There I am at 18," said the hostess, pointing to the photograph of a sad-eyed damsel, bearing with a patient smile the weight of a tremendous, straight pompadour. "I hate to confess it, but that is who it is. That expression of patient sweetness must have belonged to that period. I am sure it couldn't be reproduced now. Well, there is some consolation in growing old these days—the older we grow the better looking we become.

Beauty of Past.

"Guess who that is," continued the hostess, pointing to another photograph of an old-fashioned flapper with large eyes, straight, finely chiseled nose and rather heavy chin.

"Rather pretty, but insipid," said some one.

"That's Lillian Langtry," explained the hostess laughing. "They did not think she was insipid then. The greatest beauty of all ages, they called her the 'Jersey Lily.' The woman who was one of the first to have perfumes and boots named after her, songs dedicated to her and the men of two continents at her feet. And now, to-day, you say, 'a trifle pretty,' but you would not have given her photograph a second glance."

As far as can be ascertained from a study of the files of old periodicals, the new type of flapper first began to appear about 1910. At that time face powder was placed openly upon the feminine dressing table, often brazenly accompanied by a tin box of theatrical rouge. For the first time, also, silk stockings became popular for everyday wear among the women of the middle class. Before that they had not been considered altogether respectable. With them came the merry widow hat, the slit skirt, bright colors and curly hair. In the old days, if a young woman's hair was straight, it was considered an affectation to curl it.

In the old days, if a flapper had dull, mouse-colored hair or a sallow complexion, she was saddled with those handicaps for life. Today a girl can choose her own complexion and coloring, and buy them at the nearest beauty parlor.

Nation of Beauties.

As a result, the United States today is noted for having the largest supply of feminine pulchritude in the world. No other nation can compete with us in this respect. It is our one distinctive form of art. At least, such is the rather doubtful compliment paid us by our foreign visitors.

When questioned as to what he considered the most striking features of this country, a recent celebrated English visitor promptly replied:

"Those of the young women. I have not seen one actually homely girl."

Paul Helleu, a noted French portrait artist, whose specialty is painting beautiful women, has a similar view.

"There are no girls of any other country, even my native France, whose beauty equals that of the women of America," he says, "and I have found the most beautiful among what you call your middle class. Above the middle class beauty is rare—you will find it, to be sure, among society's elite, but it is a long, tiresome search.

"In all my travels on the continent I have yet to find any class of women to compare even favorably with the American girl. The great melting pot may be an answer to that, but whatever it is beauty may be found in America where it can not be found elsewhere. There seems to be an inexhaustible supply of beautiful women in this country."

MAN'S FOOT TO BE A HOOF.

His Toes One-Jointed Digits, Due to Tight Shoes and Motor Cars.

BOSTON, June 22.—If men and women continue to wear high heels and narrow vamp shoes the human foot will become a hoof like that of a horse, Dr. Edward H. Kellar, of Schenectady, N.Y., told the members of the Massachusetts Chiropody Association in convention here.

Dr. Fred T. Reis, President of the association, called attention to a new disease which he styled "limousinitis."

"Everybody nowadays owns a flivver," he said, "and instead of walking a block they insist on riding. Our little toes have become one-jointed digits from disuse."

SINGLE ENGLISH JUSTICE GRANTS 138 DIVORCES IN SIXTY SECONDS

LONDON, June 22.—America has so long been regarded as the home of quick and easy divorce, that it has come as a distinct shock to staid Britishers to learn that the divorce courts in London are churning out decrees at the rate of one every seven and a half minutes of working time.

Further, there is a waiting list of some 2,000 persons seeking divorces, when the judges have time to spare.

The British divorce court is part of the High Court of Justice, headquartered in London, and "The Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division" as it is called, is run by Sir Henry Duke, President of the Division, and two High Court judges. One of these is always required for Admiralty or Probate (wills) cases, so that hitherto there has hardly ever been more than two courts working at the same time. British High Courts sit from 10 to 4 p.m. week-days except Saturday, and the intervals between the various law terms are lengthy. So tremendous has become the congestion that strenuous measures have had to be adopted. Wherever possible spare judges have been loaned from the King's Bench Court, the Lord Chief Justice and even the Lord Chancellor have lent a hand, working on Saturdays as well. Lord Birkenhead was the first Lord Chancellor to tackle divorce cases.

Out of Retirement.

Lord Mersey, the retired octogenarian law lord, and one of England's greatest divorce judges, also come out of his retirement and volunteered to lend a hand, disposing of cases with astonishing speed. Now as many as six or seven courts are grinding out divorces at an unprecedented rate. Justice Hill recently broke all records by "unmarrying" 138 couples in one minute. He accomplished this by taking his entire list of "decree nisis." The final divorce decree after the statutory period of six months from the trial, when the divorce is pronounced "absolute" and pronouncing them "absolute" in one bunch, after the clerk had read out the names.

The Divorce Courts have never worked very rapidly, and were usually in arrears in pre-war days, but the enormous increase of petitions for dissolution of marriage is attributed to the fading of war-romances, the huge proportion of "undefended" cases, proving the failure of many hasty war weddings. The process of "unmarrying" is expensive in England, the cheapest "undefended" suit costing over fifty pounds. In the case of very poor people, a certificate may be obtained enabling them to plead "In forma pauperis" for about fifteen pounds.

Disturbs Social Workers.

The fact that there were over 2,000 cases in the last term list proved very disturbing to the clergy and social workers, and it has been alleged that such a system makes divorce too easy. On the other hand, a very strong body of public opinion insists that British Divorce laws are too complicated and distinctly unfair on the wife. A divorce is far from being easy for a wife to obtain, it being necessary to prove cruelty, and, or desertion, as well as misconduct, while misconduct alone is sufficient ground for the male petitioner.

After the "decree nisi" has been pronounced, there must be an interval of six months, during which period an official known as "the King's Proctor," is supposed to look into the case to see whether there is any evidence of collusion, perjury, or criminal offenses. Usually the King's Proctor ignores the suit unless the judge calls his attention to any unsatisfactory features.

200 VESSELS THE TOLL OF GRAVEYARD

Strip of Land on Which Esperanto Struck Appropriately Named.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 22.—(Canadian Press). — The wreck of the Gloucester fishing schooner Esperanto, winner of the International ocean races, held off Halifax last fall, on a bar to the south of Sable Island, some hundreds of miles off the Nova Scotian coast, has recently directed the attention of the shipping and sporting world to that sinister little strip of sand, appropriately called "the Graveyard of the Atlantic." The Esperanto is the latest of the victims of the "Graveyard," which during the past five hundred years has been the bane of over two hundred vessels of various sizes and nationalities. Their bones lie scattered all about the Island, and are a menace to fishermen and ships wandering out of their courses in that neighborhood. The Gloucesterman may possibly have come to grief on the machinery of the State of Virginia, a noble old boat that foundered on the South Bar in 1879, or she may have run into any Vampire, Weather-gauge, Stranger Hope, or Tantling. The schooner died with her sea-boots on, but died with her sea-boots on, but modern fishing interests are not noted for their maudlin sentimentality, and in spite of the somewhat seemly "end" of the Esperanto, she is to be resurrected with cables for the Gorton-Pew Fisheries of Gloucester, Mass.

First historic mention of a wreck on Sable Island occurs during the reign of that illustrious patron of the sea, Queen Elizabeth. Sir Humphrey Gilbert, one of Elizabeth's most gracious courtiers, and ablest seamen, and a half-brother of Sir Walter Raleigh, lost a ship of his squadron on the North-East Bar. Shortly afterward Sir Humphrey was drowned when his own vessel foundered on the Grand Banks. In 1598 the French landed forty convicts on Sable Island and left them to their own resources. Seven years later twelve of them—all that were left alive—were taken back to France, and told a dismal tale of the hardships they had endured in their desolate exile.

When shipping became more accustomed to the waters about Sable Island, wreck followed wreck in quick succession, and the place was the abode of wild characters who preyed on unfortunate vessels that came within reach of their treacherous sand bars. Times grew more settled, however, and fishermen frequently resorted there to replenish their food supplies. Herds of cattle roamed over the low hills and there were numbers of black foxes on the Island.

In modern days the British Government established life-saving stations on all its coasts in view of the fact that the place was such a menace to shipping, and when the wireless proved itself it became an important centre in the Marconi system.

HOW TO REVIVE THE DROWNING

Lay the body face down. See that the mouth is open, even if you have to place a stick between the teeth. Straddle the person's hips. Place both hands on the back and sides about the region of the floating ribs. Press down, then relax suddenly. Do this at the rate of about 15 presses a minute. This will force water out of the lungs and stomach and induce air to return to the lungs.

Do Not Give Up.

Do not give up if a person does not respond. Keep it up for two hours. People under water for 30 minutes have been restored in this way. Send for a physician. Remove wet garments. Cover body with dry clothing and keep body warm.

Do not let people crowd around. Have plenty of free space, for the person needs the stimulation of a cool breezez.

Dr. Young warns parents against allowing their children, especially the smaller ones, to go in bathing unless they are watched by some older person who is an experienced swimmer. Even where the wtaer appears to be quite shallow, the child may fall into a hole and drown almost immediately, he said.

The Time to Swim.

He also warned all persons against going in the water until two hours after they had eaten. If the occasion is the first dip of the season, Dr. Young declared that the time limit of the swim should not exceed 20 minutes. The length of time in the water should be increased gradually as the person becomes hardened. This will avert a cramped condition, and will be the means of saving many lives.

Persons whose lips turn blue after a short time in the water should come out immediately, he said. They have poor circulation and should not overtax their strength.

"Learn to swim if you would go in the water, but go in at the proper time," Dr. Young declared.

Look Younger

Care-worn, nerve-exhausted women need Bitro-Phosphate, a pure organic phosphate dispensed by McDermid & Jury that New York and Paris physicians prescribe to increase weight and strength and to revive youthful looks and feelings.

The myrtle and the leek are regarded as luck-bringers, and in Wales they say a leek growing on a wall will keep off witches.

DRAGOONS' CAMP GREAT SUCCESS, SAYS COLONEL

MEN WERE ENTHUSIASTIC AND ENTERED INTO TRAINING WITH FINE SPIRIT—DISPERSED TO-DAY.

Early this morning the camp of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons at Exhibition Park was broken up, and to-night officially marks the end of the camp. This year's camp has been very successful and the objects aimed at have been accomplished. It proved that a cavalary unit such as the dragoons is immensely popular and that as reorganized the dragoons are an efficient troop. It gave the men a touch of real soldiering that leaves them polished down for next year's camp. The unit were put through military manoeuvres, were strictly disciplined and were taught a cavalryman's care of his mount. In every way the officers crowded an unbelievable amount of training into nine days and there have been few spare hours for officers and men. Col. Johnston, camp commandant and O. C. of the Dragoons, was highly pleased with the first camp of his unit to-day. He remarked upon the success of the reorganization and the fine esprit de corps that had been developed and he felt sure the dragoons had a bright career in the militia ahead of them. In referring to the success of the camp he pointed out that this was the first held since the piping days of 1914. The unit was broken up during the war and is now, so to speak, just getting on its legs again. Col. Johnston spoke gratefully of the absence of sickness in the camp and also of their preservation from any fatalities or serious accidents.

Up With the Birds.

Reveille was sounded at 4.30 a.m. to-day and men and officers alike had to respond and prepare to break camp. Kit inspection was held to check off each man's equipment and breakfast followed at 6.00 afim. "B" squadron from Pontypool, Bethany and Millbrook, under the command of Major Powell, left about 8.30. There were over 90 men in the ranks. The Pontypool section will not reach home till late to-night.

After 7 a.m. fatigue parties began to pull down the tents, and within a few hours the canvases were down and cots and camp equipment all packed up ready for the ordinance sergant's inspection.

Features yesterday at the camp were a sham battle between "B" and "C" squadrons on the field in the centre of the ring, in which "C" won after an hour and a half's manoeuvring and shooting at the rifle ranges in the morning by the entire unit.

The men will be paid off at 6.30 to-night at the Armouries as they turn in their equipment. Pay Sergeant McClellan said to day. Sergt. McClellan has been guarding the money that will reimburse the men for their nine days' work. The total pay for men and horses amounts to about $5,200, of which the rental of 123 horses at $18 each for nine days represents $2,214. Horses were worth more than men, for the men in most cases receive only $13.50. Out of the entire unit, only three troopers—and these were from "C" squadron—lost pay for A.W.O.L. Two of the troopers were absent without leave two days and one was away four days. Their pay for these days was docked.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 22.—Further recoveries from recent depression were made by many popular shares at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. Equipments, Motors and Rails were the sustaining features. General Asphalt, Harvester, Studebaker, Reading and Sumatra Tobacco scored early advances of 1 to almost 2 points. Canadian Pacific, Great Northern, Rock Island, Erie, Industrial, Alcohol, United States Steel and Baldwin Locomotive also were firm to strong.

The feature of the trading during the mid-session was Chicago Pneumatic Tool, which sustained the extreme loss of 9 points on reduced dividends. Sears Roebuck extended its loss to 4 points. Selling for profits cut into early gains, Mexican Petroleum re-acting 2½ points.

The market experienced a violent reaction in the final hour. Fresh liquidation, mainly in steels, coppers and motors effected extreme reactions of 2 to 7 points. The closing was heavy.

NEW YORK, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Shorts were severely pushed in broader and more comprehensive advance of morning. Mexican Petrolemum was the central feature, rising almost 7 points to 115, or 12 points over its recent low. General Asphalt, Common and Preferred, Pan-American Petroleum and Houston Oil rose 3 1-2 to 6 points. Steels, Equipments, Motors, Rubbers, Leathers and Food Shares gained 2 to 4 points. Chemicals and Fertilizers also rose sharply, Virginia Caroline Chemical advancing six points. Rails were active at gains of 1 to 2 points, junior as well as investment shares. Sears Roebuck at a loss of almost 3 points, was the only conspicuous laggard. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

NEW YORK, June 22. — (Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange heavy. Demand 373 7-8, Canadian Dollars 12 1-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)—New upturn in wheat prices took place to-day as a result of generally dry, hot weather. Bullish sentiment was also broadened out on bulges and kept the market from becoming one-sided during the opening quotations, which ranged from half to 1 1/2 cents higher with further gains and then something of a reaction.

Corn hardened with wheat, opening 1-8 to ¼ cent higher, and later scoring an additional advance.

Oats were firmer, reflecting the action of other cereals, after starting ¼ to 1 1-8 cent higher. The market continued to rise.

Provisions averaged lower, influenced by weakness in the hog market.

Corn receded later with wheat. Prices closed unsettled, 1-4 to 7-8 cents net lower, with September 64 1-8 to 64 1-4.

Subsequently wheat buying orders dwindled, and the market declined. The close was unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-4 cents lower, with July 128 1-2 to 128 3-4, and September 122 1-2 to 122 3-4.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 22—(Canadian Press).—The local Stock Exchange during this morning's session strengthened considerably. Abitibi went up another half point, but Brazilian lost its early half point gain. Brompton went down another quarter point and closed at 28½. Dominion Steel strengthened a quarted to 24½. Laurentide was also fractionally stronger at 82 1-8. National Breweries registered a gain of a point and a quarter at 50¼, and Riordon was a half stronger at 10. Spanish River remained unchanged at 62, and Wayagamack was fractionally weaker at 66 3-4.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—The rally in New York stocks failed to enliven the proceedings on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with the exception of the activity in C.P.R., the market being dull and uninteresting with price changes insignificant.

C.P.R. was in demand and rose 2 points to 121, the noon closing being strong at this figure. Fractional losses were registered by Brazilian at 25 7-8, Canada Cement at 49, and Consumers' Gas at 66. Spanish River gained slightly at 62¼.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts light; trade steady. Quotations: Heavy beef steers $8.25 to $8.75; butcher steers, choice $8 to $8.75; butcher cows, medium $3.50 to $6; calves $9.50 to $11.50; lambs $12 to $13.50; hogs, selects $13.25 to $13.50.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

The French cabinet yesterday authorized the War Minister to begin demobilization of the entire class of 1919 on June 25. The decision to demobilize this class was reached upon receipt of a report that the classes of 1920 and 1921 had been trained adequately.

Sixty-eight men were killed and seventy-three others injured through the explosion, due to fire damp, which destroyed the greater part of the Mont Cenis mine, near Herne, Westphalia, on Monday. Three hundred men were in the mine when the disaster occurred.

Herr Schober, police president of Vienna, has been requested to form a new Ministry by the Christian Socialist party, which voted unanimously in favor of extending the invitation to him. It is understood he has stipulated he must have a free hand in the selection of his Ministry, and that this has been agreed to.

Vice-Admiral Sir William Nicholson was granted a divorce yesterday in London, Eng., after hearing of a suit which his wife did not defend. The co-respondent named was a Captain George Jones of the U.S. Air Force. The Admiral said his wife had told him she desired a divorce. The Nicholsons were married twenty-one years ago, and have three children.

MOTHER WHO SLEW INFANT IS INSANE

SUCH IS VERDICT OF CORONER'-JURY IN ALDBOROUGH MURS DER CASE.

ST. THOMAS, Ont. —June 22.—Coroner's jury investigating the death of the two year old son of Charles McCallum in Aldborough township found that that it was murdered by its mother, Mrs. Edith McCallum, while she was temporarily mentally deranged. Crown Attorney McCrimmon will take no action until the mother's condition is improved. It is stated today that her chances for recovery from self-inflicted wounds are bright, but it is doubtful if she will ever be again normal mentally.

OIL WELLS NEAR PETERBOROUGH

Are there fortunes to be made near Peterborough? Many people are convinced that the tests now being made by the British Transvaal Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company will bring astonishing results. This is borne out by geologists who have studied the rock, one of these, we have the best of reasons to believe, is an employee of the Government with a high reputation as a geologist.

On top of this, we have the opinion of Edward J. Cowain, M.E., of Marmora, who has a method which he has successfully used in Essex County, in Pennsylvania, and in Oklahoma.

To see him demonstrate it is in itself convincing.

That some of the citizens of Peterborough have been enterprising enough to secure, under Mr. Cowain's experienced direction, a large tract of land, not a farm, of which best stands the tests for oil, should be appreciated by the people of Peterborough.

A charter is being applied for, and our citizens and others will have an opportunity of investing in the most unique oil venture ever brought to their notice. There are few who do not know of the wonderful possibilities in oil as an investment.

DRY GOOD STORES OPEN ON THURSDAY

To clear up a misunderstanding in regard to Thursday half-holidays, the dry goods merchants wish to remind the public that their stores will be open to-morrow afternoon and also on next Thursday afternoon. The midsummer half-holidays do not affect the dry goods stores until July, and will then continue during July and August.

BURGLAR THROWN OUT BY WOMEN.

Mother and Daughter Put Him Out of a Window.

WINDSOR, June 21. — Breaking into the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkie, 821 Moy Avenue, Windsor, in the early morning, a masked burglar was thrown through a window by the united efforts of Mrs. Wilkie and her eighteen-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Wilkie, who recently came from Scotland, was awakened shortly after 3 o'clock by the noise of a window in her bedroom being thrown up. Shouting to her two sons, who were in an adjoining room, she rushed to the window in time to seize the burglar before he could climb into the room.

Crying out, "Get back, ye bad man," in the broadest Scotch, Mrs. Wilkie clutched the man's arms, the daughter giving her mother assistance by throwing a sheet around the visitor's head. The rest was easy for the defenders. The aid of the sons wasn't needed.

MORE CROWN TROOPS TO BE SENT TO IRELAND

LONDON, June 21.—More troops are to be sent to Ireland, according to a statement by the Secretary of War, Sir Laming Worthington Evans, in the House of Commons to day in reply to a motion for adjournment on the question of adequate protection for officers in Southern Ireland, as evidenced by recent murders.

"Extra battalions,' said the secretary, "went last week, and more are going as quickly as possible. It is necessary to support the troops in Ireland, who are doing duties which are often distasteful to them, with the full might of England. Therefore all troops available should be sent to their support."

BELLEVILLE SALARIES TO BE CUT 10 PER CENT.

Double-Platoon Plan is Adopted For Fire Department.

BELLEVILLE, June 21.—A reduction of 10 per cent. all around in salaries paid civic officials and employees is the recommendation of committees. If possible, the 10 per cent. cut will not be applied absolutely, but there will be a readjustment of salaries downward. Workmen on the streets are earning 40 cents per hour. The cut in this case would mean 35 cents. The highest paid official is getting $2400.

The double-platoon system was decided on for the Fire Department. This means adding five men to the brigade, at a cost of more than $5000 per year. The new system goes into force on July 1, and all details are left to Chief Brown as to reorganization of the department.

JUNIOR LACROSSE TEAM WILL PLAY CAMPBELLFORD HERE TO-MORROW

The Junior lacrosse players who have been practising faithfully for two months, in preparation for the opening of the district games, will make their bow at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock with Campbellford as the opposition.

Here is a team that has proved itself worthy of support. The youngsters have assumed part of the expense in providing players' equipment, and have also demonstrated their interest in the game by giving much time to practice. The team is fit, and ready for a hard game.

Campbellford will bring a strong team, and an interesting game between two well-balanced teams is assured.

Fred Goodfellow will referee.

SPORT GOSSIP

The local Central League team will take a trip to Lakefield to-morrow evening for a game with the Lakefield E. P. L. team at six o'clock. Dave White, the portsider hurler for the Northerners will work against the Petes. The game should be beneficial to the locals in view of their week-end contest with Freddy Goyer & Co., of Belleville.

Cressman's won an exhibition game with Keene at Keene last evening. Local teams going to the Otonabee capital receive fine treatment at the hands of President Pollard's club, and are always ready for a return trip.

Due to the inability of the Y.M.C.A. management to get a team together last evening, C. G. E. were brought into action against Hamilton's.

After the game on Saturday afternoon, the Lacrosse Club was about thirty dollars on the debit sile. The local patronage was such that it has been practically decided to play the remaining home games in the other towns of the circuit. This applies only to the Intermediate games.

To-morrow afternon the juniors will play Campbellford juniors here at three o'clock. The youngsters have gone through a lot of hard work preparing for the opening of the schedule and are confident that they will not disappoint the fans.

De Laval were lucky to get through with a tie score in their game with Comrades last evening. In the last five games, De Laval have not been able to put their regular team on the pitch.

The Westclox-Cressman's game for to-morrow evening will be an exciting battle. Both camps will have a large following of supporters. Cressman's may start Freddy Scates. Westclox are relying on Doughty.

Norwood will play Lakefield at Lakefield on the morning of Dominion Day, at 10.30 o'clock. It is the first game in the second half of the East Peterboorugh League.

The teams in the De Laval league are making good use of King Edward Park, where all league games are played. Mr. Ben Stacey, who managed the De Laval hockey team last winter, is playing with the Office team, after a long, long absence from the game.

POPULAR MUSIC HARD TO COMPOSE

NEW YORK, June 22.—It's much harder to compose popular music than it is music in the classical style.

Rudolf Frimi says so, and he ought to know, seeing that he has turned out a number of operettas that have won wide popularity during the last few years, his latest opus being "June Love."

"It's very difficult for me to write tunes with the desire for getting the public ear," he said, "for I was educated in the classics, having studied at the Prague Conservatory, where I prepared myself for a piano virtusoso's career.

Believes Taste Improving.

"I believe the general taste, so far as light opera is concerned, is constantly improving, and it is my wish to contribute as much as possible to the movement. One has to be careful, however, not to write over the head of one's audience for light opera is one thing and grand opera is another. Speaking of grand opera, it is my ambition to try my hand at that sort of composition."

Giving Up Being Pianist.

He, however, gave up his work as a pianist to devote himself to composing, and while he is still in his early 30's, he has a number of works to his credit, including "The Firefly," "High Jinks," "Katinka," "You're in Love," "Gloriana" and "The Little Whooper."

He has also written in the classical music form and performed his own piano concerto with the New York Symphony Orchestra several years ago.

"I am making my home in New York," he said, "and have no desire to return to Europe."

CENSUS TAKERS REGULAR GOSSIPS

In Quebec, It is Said, Some Give Away All the Secrets.

MONTREAL, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—As spreaders of information the census takers are apparently rivalling the town gossips in some of the country districts, it is alleged. One irate party related his experience with the census enumerator to-day. It appears that the enumerator in his town speaks no English, while most of the people from whom he gathers statistics do not speak French. Suspecting that the man was showing the returns, he decided to test him. Accordingly, when the enumerator came to his house, he said: "I don't understand this—let me see the sheet myself." Instead of handing him a blank sheet the enumerator handed over a sheet half filled with information regarding the villager's neighbors, although the census taker is obliged to swear that all the facts he gains will be kept secret.

According to this man, if the enumerator did not like the answers given in reply to his questions he substituted others.

BUSINESS GIRLS HELD HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL FETE.

G.W.V.A. Lawn Was Beautiful With Lanterns and Many Colors.

The mid-summer fete under the auspices of the Business Girls' Club, held yesterday afternoon and evening on the lawn of the G.W.V.A. was very successful. There was a good attendance in the afternoon, and during the evening, the several attractions were well patronized, while the dance hall was filled with a merry throng until nearly midnight. The weather was ideal for such an undertaking, and the young ladies in charge spared no pains in making it a success. The lawn was beautifully decorated with flags, long lines of bright-colored pennants, Japanese lanterns, and huge bowls of daisies. The tables for refreshments were charmingly draped in white with colored ribbon streamers, daisies, and ferns, and the surprise table, where yellow, pink and blue dainty little packets waited in a golden basket for lucky winners, was surmounted with a graceful rainbow arch of fluted yellow, pink and green paper. The table where strawberries and cream were dispensed, in charge of Mrs. D. Drummond; the candy and ice cream, presided over by the Misses Hall, Foote and Saunders, and the gypsy tent, where the Misses Horsefield, Nicholl and Rae, in appropriate costumes, dispensed sentimental advice to fortune seekers, were busy centres. Miss Muriel Gladman was in charge of the surprise table. Miss Grace Evans of the dancing, Miss Agnes Horsefield of the card-tables, and Miss Jessie Waddell made an efficient gate-keeper.

A feature of the entertainment was the dancing on the lawn in the evening. A group of girls in quaint old-fashioned costumes danced a minuet, and Mrs. A. A. Perrin, who directed their efforts, gave an old-style dance with Mr. Jock Renwick. Music on the lawn was supplied by the G.W.V.A. Band, and Mr. Follis' orchestra played in the dance hall. The cake which was raffled at the surprise booth was won by Miss Eva Moore, the lucky number being seventeen.

C.G.E. TEAM WIN IN FIRST GAME IN THE SECOND HALF

CHRIS. M'CARNEY MAKES SUCCESSFUL DEBUT IN BOX FOR ELECTRICIANS, HOLDING HAMILTON'S TO THREE HITS AND WHIPPING THEM---FINAL SCORE WAS 8 TO 5.

Chris. McCarney, the Peterborough boy who starred with the St. Michael's College hockey team last winter, was on the rubber for the C. G.E. outfit in the opening game of the second half of the City League race at Riverside Park last night against the Wm. Hamitlon team, the Electricians getting the decision by 8 runs to 5. McCarney held the losers to three hits and struck out ten men in seven innings. He is a sturdy youngster with a fast turn of speed and should be a decided help to the C.G.E. on the form he showed last night.

There were some new faces on the Hamilton team last night, or rather some familiar countenances were back again, O'Heron, Gibbs, Lawrence and Thompson having been added to the squad since their last game, and outside of the third innings, when they bunched four errors to assist the C.G.E. in making a cluster of five runs, the team played much better ball than on its last appearance. Cousins fanned eight men and was not hit hard at any stage of the game.

C. G. E. scored two in the first. With one out Barrie singled to centre and stole second. Corrin also hit safely. Barrie scored when Russell lost Lawrence's throw to third, and after Frost had flied to O'Heron, Corrin registered on Gibbs' miss of Cousins' throw on Foley's tap to the pitcher.

The losers got one back in their half. Kennedy started with a single to right, was sacrificed to second by O'Heron, stole third, and counted when Thompson hit to Barrie.

The third was a big session for C.G.E. Gibbs' miss of Thompson's throw gave Rutherford a life, but he died stealing third. Barrie walked and stole second and Corrin singled. Frost singled to right, scoring Barrie. Foley hit to Callaghan, whose throw to the plate was in time to nip Corrin, but Lawrence dropped the ball and the run counted. Thomson's error on Dugan's rap scored Frost. Franks struck out but Lyons beat out an infield hit, and when Gibbs missed the throw, Foley and Dugan scored. McCarney fanned to wind up the innings.

There was no more scoring until the sixth, when Hamiltons sent four runs over. Kennedy missed three, but the third was a wild pitch and he reached first. O'Heron walked, and after Thompson had fanned, Callaghan smashed a single over second scoring Kennedy and O'Heron and taking second on the throw to the plate. Russell singled, scoring Callaghan, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on a wild pitch. Kitchen roled to McCarney and Lawrence popped to Barrie.

The C.G.E. scored a totally unnecessary run in the seventh. Corrin beat out a roller down the first base line, stole second and scored on Lawrence's bad throw to third.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

Some people think Jess Willard defeated Jack Jonhson because he was the better fighter. Others feel sure that Johnson was beaten by his own methods of living and by the irresistable slowing-up process that times imposes on every man after he passes the crest of physical perfection. And there are those who believe L'il Artha' was not so anxious to beat Williard, anyhow.

Whatever the course, the star of Jack Johnson's' ring career flicked not at Havana on April 5, 1915, that day, for the second time in his life, Johnson was knocked out. The first enforced nap had mattered not. It was taken at Galveston in 1901 at the hands of Joe Choynski and John son was almost unknown beyond the island where he lived. But when the big negro arose from this second, he was a has been.

Williard was 37 years old, two years the junior of the champion and both his height and reach exceeded those of Johnson. The dusky title holder apparently put forth his best efforts in the early rounds but he could not topple the giant to the canvas. Williard was slow in his movement, fighting on the defense and with great care manifestly biding his time.

His time kept him waiting quite a while. Johnson was a little fatter, a little slower and some of the old walop was gone from his arms but his ring generalship ,his mastery of tactics had not forsaken him. He was still the most clever boxer of them all.

The early rounds showed him to be the same teasing scrapper he had always been. "Why don't you come ahead and fight?" he frequently blurted at the caulous Wiliard.

Later, the signs of leg weariness were apparent in the champion's movements. In the 18th round he suddenly seemed to become exhausted, while the Kansan was still fresh and glowing.

Plainly tired and worn out, Johnson kept up the fight for seven more rounds. Leaving his corner at the gong for the 26th round, he glanced at his wife with a look of distress and despair that warned those near the ring of his impending fall.

As soon a he met Williard, almost the cowboy's right arm shot out and struck Johnson flush on the chin. He sank down and a new champion was proclaimed.

THE BELLEVILLE GAME IS ATTRACTING FANS FROM ALL OVER THE DISTRICT

The visit of the Belleville team to Peterborough on Saturday is looked upon as one of the biggest events of the baseball season and the fans will be out in droves to see Freddy Goyer and Company in action against the Petes. Neither team can drop this game without practically putting themselves out of the running for the first half of the League race, and so the battle promises to be on a par with other clashes between the two teams, who are never beaten each other by a bigger margin than three runs and who are generally closer together than that when the final returns are counted up. The game will get under way at 3 o'clock and delegations of fans from all over the district will be on hand to see the clash between the two old rivals.

The Peterborough team will visit Lakefield for a practice game on Thursday night.

COMRADES ATTENTION

Junior Comrades are requested to be at the Exhibition Grounds Thursday evening, at 6:30. This is urgent.

COMRADES TIE WITH DE LAVAL

DE LAVAL WERE OVERTAKEN WITH TEN MINUTES TO PLAY AND GAME ENDED 2 TO 2.

Some lively football was played by De Laval and Comrades in a league game at Exhibition Park last evening, but neither team was able to claim victory, the full time score being 2 to 2. At half time the teams were also on even terms with the score at 1 to 1.

De Laval took the lead in the second period and were pressing hard. Comrades back division relieved well. With ten minutes to play, Comrades tied it up. On top of this score, practically the whole De Laval forward line broke through, but failed to beat Post. Fast work by Comrades returned the ball into De Laval territory, where Comrades missed an open chance.

Two penalty kicks developed during the game, Comrades beating Hillman and De Laval failing to score. Jack Clarke was referee. The teams:

De Laval—Goal, Hillman; backs, Leach and Crowe; halves, Darling, Humpage and Long; forwards, Hanson, Bell, Abraham, Stott and Thorpe.

Comrades — Goal, Post; backs, Cowie and Mallison; halves, Bolan, Joliffe and Warman; forwards, Roberts, Dunkley, McDougall, Lee.

THE REASON WHY

Excellent Grounds for Advising A Base Runner to Take it Easy.

Emmet C. King, who plays the part of Richard Fletcher in "Habit" which will be seen at the Allen Theatre on Thursday attended a baseball game at the penitentiary. The game was close and one of the spectators had bet on the losing team. When the star base runner of the winning team was making a home run this bettor arose and yelled:

"Take yo' time, man; take yo' time! What's yo' hurry? Yo' got twenty years ahead o' yo' man! Take yo' time."

WILLIAM J. BURNS, NOTED DETECTIVE, AIDED IN MAKING "OUSIDE THE LAW"

With the O. K. of America's greatest detective on the script, many of scenes filmed in the actual localities in San Francisco's slums, and others in an accurate reproduction of the Bay City's Chinatown, "Outside the Law," offers an authentic picture of crime life in its western hotbed.

William J. Burns was present, during the filming of part of Tod Browning's picture at Universal City. He examined the script with apparent interest and offered several suggestions, two of which were accepted by the author-producer, after explaining the reason for the other scenes thoroughy to the detective. Mr. Burns also coached Lon Chaney in some of he "holds" used by denizens of the underworld.

Although four blocks of Frisco's Chinatown, were built at Universal City at a cost of $90,000, Tod Browning took his star, Priscilla Dean, and Lon Chaney Wheeler Oakman, Ralph Lewis and E. A. Warren to San Francisco to shoot stuff in other parts of Chinatown, on the waterfront and on board a tug in the bay.

As a final touch of realism, while she was in San Francisco, Priscilla Dean attended the convention of the National Traffic Officers Association, was elected an honorary member and was awarded a gold star. Since that makes her a full-fledged traffic cop, she is "outside the law," in real life, as well as in the Jewel feature, showing at the Allen Theatre for the last time to-day.

THRILLING STATISTICS

The production of a great serial photoplay such as 'The Son of Tarzan" which is being shown exclusive ly at the Allen theatre this week, is a great event in motion pitcure producing circles as well as of utmost interest to theatre-goers and to those who have made a study of dramatic art and photoplay mechanics.

Some idea as to the stupendousness of 'The Son of Tarzan" serial photoplay may be gained from the following production notes, taken at random from the "history sheet" at the studios of the National Film Corporation of America.

Over a hundred wild animals were used throughout the entire production, three of which were actually killed by the actors, following the story by Edgar Rice Burroughs to the most minute detail.

At times five motion picture cameras recorded the action, especially during the swift-moving and furious jungle combats between men and beasts.

Ten special animal trainers, one for each group of beasts, were at all times at the call of Director Harry J. Revier.

Five actors were seriously injured during the filming of marine scenes on the Pacific ocean.

The entire cast of principals was "hand-picked' 'with due regard to their abilities to "take chances" with death.

The author, Edgar Rice Burroughs, was present practically at all times during the production of "The Son of Tarzan."

Special steel screens, with loop holes for the lens, were built to protect cameras and operators from the rushes of the jungle animals.

Elephants were goaded into fury and allowed to uproot trees and at all times during the production of "The Son of Tarzan."

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capital offers a splendid picture and vaudeville program for the last three days of this week commencing to-morrow night.

Commencing to-morrow night the Capitol will give the first run of their new program for the week end, many splendid short reel picmencing to-morrow night.

The charm of Mary Miles Minter as a little daughter of the circus; the clever sub-titles by Avery Hopwood and the delightful atmosphere of life under the Big Top—all of these factors enter in to make "The Little Clown," one of the most delightful entertainment of the current screen years.

"The Little Clown" is by Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer," "The Gold Diggers", and a score of other famous comedy successes. Certainly this circus story is up to the best standard of Hopwood's work. He has mingled humor, pathos and human nature, with a whole menageries of animals thrown in for good measure, to make a play that will appeal to all ages from six to sixty.

Last night's quota of youngsters giggled themselves into perfect content over "Mr. Chico", the monkey the camels, the elephants, and the bears, not to mention the antics of Miss Minter and Neely Edwards as clowns, and Jack Mulhall as the daring bareback rider.

As far as the star herself is concerned, the role of Pat, the little circus girl, fits her to a "t". It has just that combination of humor, mischief and heart appeal that makes a perfect Minter vehicle. And after several productions in which her tures, serials, a funny Mack Sen- black and brown "transformations," glorious hair has been hidden under her local admirers welcomed the re-

The supporting cast present a number of popular players whose turn of her own blonde curls. Dunbar and Winter Hall are delightful as a dignified old Southern couple while Lura Anson and Zelma Maja did pleasing work.

FOOTBALL NOTES

A special meeting of the Peterborough Football Association was held in the G.W.V.A. Hall Tuesday night and every member of the Executive was present.

Reports were brought in and dealt with, and one, which took up considerable time, was in regards to personal remarks which are being cast at both officials and players during the progress of a game. This is dealt with more fully in another column.

Communication was received from the Willys-Overland Club, Toronto, for a game here on July 1, but being unable to secure the ground on that date, it is left over.

Regarding suspension of players, cases were dealt with fully and the original motion stands in the case of players S. McMullan and W. Calder, the former suspended to June 30, the latter until the end of the year.

On Thursday night the original first round between the Canadian Woollens and Canadian General Electric teams meet in the Phalen Charity Cup series. The game will attract a large crowd as the proceeds are devoted to charity. The game is called at 6 o'clock sharp. Referee, Mr. J. L. Howarth.

The C.G.E. team for Thursday night will be as follows: Griffith, McDonald, Marsh, Bestard, Mason, Mann, C. Hotston, Parkins, Hensby, Bartley and E. Hotston.

Many a man's popularity is due to the fact that he isn't aware of it.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Sporting Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I would like to utilize a little of your valuable space in the sports column regarding spectators attending the football games.

Reports were brought into the Executive meeting last night in regards to a few persons who will persist in throwing personal remarks at both officials and players while a game is in progress.

This is bad sportsmanship, and the Executive ask for a discontinuance in this respect.

We hope this letter will take the form of a warning, otherwise someone will be held up for an example, as this practise will not be tolerated.

Any person is at liberty to pass remarks with regard to the game as they desire, but when "personalities" are brought in, then it is overstepping the laws of football, and must be dealt with as the case warrants.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Football Association.

THE GRAND PRIX TO BE A BATTLE OF "EIGHTS"

FRENCH ROAD CLASSIC HAS 15 OUT OF 19 ENTRIES WITH 8-CYLINDER IN LINE ENGINES; AMERICAN TEAM HAS ONLY OUTSIDE CHANCE TO WIN LEMANSR ACE.

Fifteen out of the 19 cars in the French Grand Prix, at LeMans, on July 25, will be powered with "eight in line" engines. The exception to this rule are the entries of the Italian Fiat and the Mathis factories. It is understood that these are to be four-cylinder power plant cars, although Fiat may at the last moment substitute the new eights, which have been going through tests at the Turino factory.

Like the Indianapolis 500-mile, the 321-mile road speed battle will be a battle of "eights," but to a greater degree than in the Hoosier classic, where 15 out of the 23 starters, on Memorial Day, had eight cylinder engines, all with the cylinders in line. The first cars entered for the French classic were four Ballot eights, the product of Ernest Ballot, the originator of the "eight in line" power plant. Judging from a distance, Ballot's quartette should be the best bet for the annual French classic. Ballot's cars are the equal, if not superior, to anything in the race. In addition to having probably the fleetest cars on the course, he will also have the pick of the drivers, Ralph DePalma, the American start, captains the team and has for mates Jules Goux and Jean Chassagne. Another pilot is to be named, and it is not unlikely that Paul Rablot, former Delage star and a Grand Prix winner, will sit behind the wheel of the fourth car. Ballot has more than an even chance to produce the winner.

"Deusy's" Outside Chance.

America's interest, outside of the thousands who would like to see the popular idol, Ralph DePalma, win, will rest with the Deusenberg team. However, in all fairness, the "Deusys" have only an outside chance to win. In the first place the cars were designed for speedway racing and the drivers will find a tortuous hilly road to do their speeding on. Albert Guyot and Louis Inghibert, the two French members of the team, will be somewhat familiar with the race course, but Jimmy Murphy and Joe Boyer will be on strange ground. It will not be impossible for the Yank quartette to produce a winner, but it is an assured fact that the Deusenberg team work will not equal that of Ballot or the Sunbeam-Talbot-Darracq combinations, both on organization and experience.

This is the big factor in winning such a race.

It is not improbable that Joe Boyer will be picked by the Deusenberg camp to set the pace necessary to burn up the field. The Detroiter has the nerve and daring to to turn the trick, if he can get enough practice before the event. However, he will find worthy opponents on every team and an American victory would surprise close students of the game.

UP FROM THE BUSH AND BACK AGAIN

(By CULLEN CAIN in the Philadelphia Ledger)

After fourteen years of pastiming on the green swards of major league ball lots George H. (Dode) Paskert has passed on back to his mother, the bush. Out of the minors they come, sure, swift and strong. Back to the minors they go, after the years, wise, stiff and slow.

The announcement from Cincinnati the other day that Paskert was to be released to Kansas City marked the end of a notable major league career. Paskert broke in at Cincinnati in 1907, played four years on the Ohio shore and then came to the Phillies for a little span of some seven or eight years. From Quaker Town he went to Chicago, and then, last year, back to his first love, Cincinnati.

On a September day fourteen years ago a young man of twenty-six came from Atlanta up to Garry Hermann's ball park in Cincinnati to try his luck in the big league. Fleet on foot as the roebuck, keen of eye, sure of hand, a born ball player, he made good from his first game.

Nothing else in the world mattered to Dode Paskert when he ranged the outfield in that Cincinnati ball park on that autumn day so many years ago. What if the summer had nearly passed and the leaves were already beginning to fall from the trees? He had just begun his career.

Let the leaves fall, and the winter snows come and drift deep over the playing field at the ball park. What did Dode care? Youth was his, and speed and supple arm and shining eye.

It was a great autumn day for the Atlanta recruit. What if the winter was looming near, after it soon would come a returning springtime, and he was all set for the big show. What did he care the seasons? Let 'em roll. He covered as much ground in the outfield as the sunshine, he was a dependable batter and as fast on the bases as a streak.

* * *

Season in and season out, Paskert played in over a hundred games every year except in 1909. The fleeting years meant nothing to Dode. Recruits came to the big league, served their brief turn upon the stage and went away, but he went on forever.

He watched them come out of the bush, even as he had come in his callow youth; watched them come and watched them drift back again into the haze of obscurity that veils the verdant bush.

Every springtime Paskert pranced in centre field, probably as great in that position since the day of Curt Welch as any except Speaker himself. I saw him play in a series at St. Louis in 1910, and, by my soul, I never saw any fielder make such spectacular catches as Dode made in those four games. His speed, judgment and sureness were uncanny.

* * *

What a player the old hoss was, to be sure. He batted .315 in 1912 and stole 36 bases that year. His average for the first eleven years in the National League was better than .280, and his value as a batter was better than .300.

Fourteen years is a long time to go at top speed in big show where the least flow or speck of rust means a shift to the tank circuit.

But still Dode stayed on and played in over 1700 games and his fleet feet raced enough miles in these games to carry him all the way around the earth.

It is June time in Cincinnati now, and June is the fairest time of all the year in the Middle West. Everything that grows is full leaf and bloom. A time of good omen for sure—a time to run and be glad in the sunlight. The summer has just begun.

Where now is the young man who came up from Atlanta rippling with speed? Where is Dode, the demon outfielder of that fall day fourteen years ago? Ah, this big-league leaf falls in June. Dode is packing his bag and preparing to go away back among the minors whence he came.

So long, old top. You stayed a long time and you played a great game through many Junes. Probably ten million fans have cheered great catches you have made from the old Mississippi to Plymouth Rock.

* * *

Come, it was a long, long lap from that bright September day of long ago to this dark June day. You have had your full share of glory and acclaim. And they have reversed the allegory of the seasons on your rise and your fall. You bloomed in September and you wilted in June.

The bush is calling, and shall not all her children, soon or late, heed her call? This son who comes now stayed away far beyond the allotted span. What does it matter who came up from the bush to take his place? Duncan or Bressler—some one had to come.

The main thing is that he gave the game the best of his strength and speed in return for all it gave to him. Fold up the famous uniform that bears the Big-League brand, turn in the locker key, tell the groundkeeper good-by and shuffle on your way, Dode, old top.

You're fair, fine and forty, and you're still good enough to show 'em a thing or two in the bush for many a year to come.

WITH THE BOXERS

After the disappointing Eastern trip, Dempsey returned to his home in Salt Lake City and fought one or two inconsequential battles, of which no notice was taken. He again was noticed, however, when Jim Flynn, one of the best of second-raters among the heavyweights, knocked him out in one round in Salt Lake City.

Discouraged, Dempsey went to San Francisco to pick up what matches he could. Here it was that he met Jack Kearns, a good judge of boxers, who saw in Dempsey certain promise. It was under the guidance of Kearns that the future heavyweight champion fought several battles in and around San Francisco before the end of the year. He defeated Willy Meehan, Bob McAllister, Gunboat Smith, and Carl Morris, all mediocre but crafty heavyweights, in four-round bouts. Meehan, in another engagement, held Dempsey to a draw at the same distance.

These results were satisfactory to Kearns, who sought only to give his charge the proper ring experience before introducing him to the East. Kearns is one of the shrewdest "showmen" in boxing, and he prepared for the invasion of the Middle West and the East with scrupulous care, seeing in this rough and ready Utah product a very satisfactory "meal ticket" for the future.

Carpentier quickly developed in physical strength and weight, as well as in boxing skill, in 1910 and 1911. Descamps kept him busy during 1910, and although he met no opponents of exceptional class, he learned rapidly all the time. Four knockouts, six victories, one by a foul, two draws and two defeats adorned his record during that year. Two youths, Buck Shine and Young Snowball, were credited with victories over him.

By this time, Carpentier was a full-fledged lightweight, and early in 1911 graduated into the welterweight division. His first important battle in this class was with Frank Loughrey, an American, in May, 1911. The contest was fought in Paris as a preliminary to the Dixie Kid-Young "Tommy" Loughrey contest.

Carpentier received the decision over his first American opponent in 15 rounds of torrid boxing. The exhibition of Carpentier was one of the best of his early fighting, and marked only the first of a long series of hot battles the French athlete was to have with American boxers.

Sometime after he defeated Jeffries, Jack Johnson was indicted on charges of violating the Mann Act, but he evaded arrest and finally journeyed to Paris.

When the exchequer shrivled a bit he accepted a challenge from Frank Moran of Pittsburgh, and they faced one another in France on June 27, 1914. The negro warrior scored a victory on points in 20 rounds.

Moran was game and stubbornly stood up to Johnson's assaults, which had not the steam of the champion's earlier attacks. Johnson possessed all of his old-time skill, however.

There was not a single knockdown nor anything that smacked of a finishing blow. Johnson's superior skill and his incessant uppercutting kept Moran in subjection. Moran's attack lacked the power to dispose of his adversary.

The crowd was as cosmopolitan as Paris itself. There were barons and dukes at the ringside, and earls and duchesses, too. Sporting men of many nations, clad in the formal evening garb with which Europe honors its boxers, were part of the throng.

Johnson was proud of his victory, for it was the first time that a champion as old as he had ever defended his title and won. He was then 36 years old, Moran's senior by almost a decade.

The referee of the fight was Georges Carpentier, who now aspires to become heavyweight champion by whipping Dempsey.

CRESSMAN'S WIN FROM KEENE

The big store nine defeated the Keene team on their own lot last night by a score of 14 to 6. It was a swatting bee for Cressman's, who were in the front from the start. Fletcher's one-handed stabb at a drive over second and Burgoine's shoe-string catch of a fast liner to first base were the features of the game.

2,500 CANADIANS TO SEE BIG BOUT.

Many More Canadian Fight Fans May See Dempsey - Carpentier Fight, However.

NEW YORK, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—At least 2,500 Canadian fight fans will witness the Dempsey-Carpentier world's championship battle. Reservations for that number of seats have been received from across the border, according to officials in charge of the seat sale. The total number of Canadians who will attend, it was said, will likely be in excess of that number, many tickets having been purchased by Dominion fight enthusiasts through friends in New York.

The majority of the Canadians who have bought seats are residents of Eastern Canada. A party from Toronto, headed by P. J. Mu[illegible] and including Mayor T. L. Church, will occupy fifteen ringside seats. George Kennedy, well-known Montreal sportsman, has arranged for a party of fifty. Ringside seats have been secured and a special train will bring the sportsmen from Montreal.

Western Canada will be well represented. A party of 100 will start from Winnipeg and, according to information here, will include fight enthusiasts from many western cities.

Arrival of sportsmen from Ontario will be facilitated through the running of two special trains from Buffalo.

Fight officials have announced that among fifteen European newspaper correspondents who will attend the fight are: Jeffrey Farnol, famous writer who will represent The Daily Mail; Tom Webster, Daily Mail cartoonist, and Harvey Preston, Evening News and Weekly Despatch—all of London, England.

AMERICANS WIN THE POLO TROPHY

Defeated British Team in Second Game by 10 to 6.

LONDON, June 22. — (Canadian Press.)— The United States to-day regained possession of the International polo trophy, defeating Great Britain in the second match by ten goals to six and winning the series, two matches to none.

STUDENTS INVITED TO LIVE IN ITALY

Children of Immigrants Will Be Accorded Privilege.

ROME, June 22.—Beginning this year with students from the United States, Italy will inaugurate a system of educational exchange which later will be extended to Brazil, Argentine and other South American countries.

Two different projects will be put into operation this summer both tending to increase educational relations between Italy and foreign countries.

The first of these projects will be a series of visits to Italy of Italian students from the United States, consisting largely of those who have been born here of Italian parents or who went to the United States quite young with their emigrating parents, and who as a consequence know little about their native country.

This project which was worked out by Ambassador Lolandi-Ricci who secured for it the financial support of the leading Italian banks. These institutions have furnished the funds necessary for inaugurating and carrying out the project. A correct speaking and writing knowledge of Italian is required from all student applicants, as one of the objects is to encourage Italian emigrants in foreign countries to instruct their children in their native language. All of the parties will be taken to the leading historical, intellectual, art and industrial centres of Italy.

While for the moment the project applies only to the United States its backers hope eventually to have it extended to all of the South American countries where there are large Italian colonies.

The second project for increasing Italy's educational relations with foreign countries and especially with North and South America, is being carried out under the auspices of the Minister of Education.

It provides for the institution of summer university courses for foreign students, much along the same line as those maintained in France at Grenoble. For the present these will be installed at the University of Naples. They will enable all foreign students during their summer vacations to employ profitably their time in following the best courses that the Italian universities have to offer.

$50,000,000 IS LOST IN WILDCAT FILMS

American Investors Sank This Sum Last Year in Worthless Projects.

NEW YORK, June 22.—More than $50,000,000 was sunk by American investors last year in dishonest motion picture enterprises in 1920, according to a statement yesterday by the Vigilance Committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

In its investigation of more than 100 companies with a paper capitalization of $250,000,000, the committee found a large proportion of them officered by men without experience in the film business and many others carried on by promoters with bad records. The $50,000,000 thrown away by investors refers, the committee says, only to many invested in "wildcat organizations of no experience in the 'movie' field," which have misled their victims by luring accounts of the earnings of film companies. In his report to the association, James R. Quirk, Chairman of the committee, says:

"During the last year the attention of the public has been called to the danger of this sort of investment with such force that very few, if any, new producing companies have attempted to sell stock within the last six months.

"Several of the largest of these venturesome propositions have gone out of business. They have either been forced into bankruptcy or died without any court formalities. For the launching of one of these companies the people of New York City and Washington, D. C., paid more than $500,000. One gigantic motion picture enterprise in a Far Western city had to be abandoned by its promoters after an investigation by the Vigilance Committee had caused the Chamber of Commerce and the leading bank of the city in question to withdraw their support."

GENERAL WAGE REDUCTION.

HEIRS OF DONIZETTI LOSE ROYALTY SUIT.

Composer's Nephews Put in Claim for Millions.

PARIS, June 21. — The heirs of Donizetti, the Italian composer, have lost their suit for many millions in royalties on the composer's operas under a decision of the highest court, holding that the heirs are entitled to to royalties for only ten year's after the composer's death, which occurred in 1848. The suit lasted fifteen years and was brought by two nephews, Giuseppi and Gaetano Donzetti, against the Society of Authors and the theatres that produced the operas.

The plainitffs contended that the present law, granting royalties for fifty years, applied, but the court held that the law of 1798 was effective when the composer died. The plaintiffs also claimed that the royalties applied from the death of the last collaborator on the words of the operas, which occurred in 1875, entitling them to royalties until 1925, but the court held that the rights of the heirs of each collaborator run separately, dating from each death, which is new construction of the law of literary proprietorship.

SEES BIG PROFITS IN PRICE OF SHOES

Federal Trade Commission Reports Dealers' Earnings Greater Than Costs Warrant.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—High prices of footwear which obtained during 1918 and were increased in 1919 resulted from "abnormal conditions of supply and demand, both economical and psychological, arising from the war," the Federal Trade Commission reported to the House of Representatives in response to a resolution.

"Incident to these conditions," the report added, "were large margins of profit taken by tanners, shoe manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers," whose large earnings were declared to be "out of all proportion to the increase in their cost per unit."

The advance in the price of shoes finally was terminated by the so-called 'buyers' strike" in the spring of 1920, according to the report.

Failure of leather and shoe prices to decline as extensively as did hide prices after the "buyers' strike" was attributed by the commission to "a tendency to base selling prices on actual rather than replacement costs" and to the fact that other prices had not declined as much as had raw materials.

"In any event," the report concluded, "the present prices of hides and skins and the conditions existent in these phases of the industry justify an expectation of still further declines in the quoted prices of leather and shoes."

The report claims large profits by the tanners, shoe manufacturers and wholesalers and retailers in 1918 and 1919. Earnings of 361 reporting shoe manufacturers, representing 62 per cent. of the 1919 production, averaged 16.2 per cent. on their total investment, according to the commission's figures.

"These large earnings of tanners and shoe manufacturers," the report says, "were due primarily to the fact that their selling prices increased out of all proportion to the increases in their costs of production.

"Earnings of thirty-two typical shoe wholesalers and jobbers averaged about 22 per cent. of investment in 1918 and about 31 per cent. in 1919. Earnings of forty-six typical shoe retailers averaged about 25 per cent. in 1918 and about 32 per cent. in 1919. These earnings, like those of the tanners and manufacturers, resulted from wide margins of profit taken on each shoe sold."

There was an important decrease in the supply of imported hides in 1918 and 1919, the commission said, but it could not subscribe to that as the reason why prices of shoes soared even after hide stocks were available in quantity and quotations lower.

The commission noted a change in the retail demand to a higher quality of shoes in spite of the greater prices exacted. This was in addition, according to the report, to a marked demand for shoes in 1919, but a slackening followed in 1920, when the "buyers' strike" took on a nation-wide scope.

HARDING COMMENDS FUND.

Feed Starving Children in Central Europe.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22. — The American Friends Service Committee, which is undertaking a campaign to raise $3,000,000 within the next year to feed German children, has received a letter from President Harding commending the humanitarian efforts of the committee. The letter is directed to Ferdinand Thun, of Reading Pa., vice-chairman of the committee organized to conduct the campaign. It reads:

"My sympathy has been aroused in the effort your organization is now making to raise funds for the suffering and unfortunate children of Central Europe. I am impressed that the time has come when the old asperities of the war period may properly be forgotten in the face of such humanitarian efforts. The real ideal of human brotherhood will best and soonest be realized through the encouragement of such works as this."

WAGES IN KINGSTON BUILDING TRADES.

KINGSTON, June 22.—The wages of employees on the construction of the new service building at the General Hospital here have been fixed by the contractors as follows: Carpenters, 60 cents an hour and up; masons, bricklayers, 75 cents an hour and up; laborers, 35 cents an hour and up. As far as possible, only Kingston labor will be employed.

NOTED STAR RELATES CANADIAN RECEPTION

Eva Moore Tells of Love Toward Motherland.

LIVERPOOL, June 21.—The Canadians are a very friendly and hospitable people, they have the art of making their visitors feel at once at home, says Eva Moore, the celebrated actress. As soon as you arrive in a place, about cock-crow, or soon after, you hear a voice at the other end of the telephone saying: "I heard that you were here. What can we do to make you comfortable?" And thenceforward you are feted and entertained and made much of until you steam away to the next halting place amid salvo of good-byes. You have to make speeches, of course, that is part of the game. But in all manner of places, institutions and clubs—the Daughters of the Empire, the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, Women's Canadian Club, the Men's Canadian Club, they tried to make me believe that I was the nicest thing that ever happened. If my innate difference would not allow me to believe it that wasn't their fault.

Audiences Charming

And the audiences were everywhere so charming. Much of what we gave must have been strange to them—the kind of life we portrayed I mean and our English dialect. But they were enthusiastic through it all. Let me say here that I like the Canadian accent very much. There is a burr about it which is very pleasant and homely.

It needed all the kindness and constant care of my Canadian friends to keep me from a collapse. You will know to what I refer. When my husband was taken ill with pneumonia and I had to leave him in Saskatoon, in the midst of the prairies, and go on to do my work alone, you can imagine what my feelings were.

I doubt that I should have survived but for the kindness of my Canadian firends, and —yes; I must say this—the friendliness and unselfish co-operation of our company It was a young company, a company of blithe spirits, eager in their work, and hearty in their play. They were like so many buttresses round my anxious heart.

Still the Homeland.

And for the Canadian these little islands of ours are still the home and I could tell you of many fervent handgrips and burning glances from men and women who have not seen my country, our old country, for years, nay! even from many who were born in Canada and had never left it, and sought to express to one come freshly from the old place how much they loved it. It made me sometimes ashamed of my temperate, though resolute patriotism when I saw it rushing like a flame from those fiery hearts. If we and such as we may be regarded as unofficial ambassadors there is no doubt what message we bring back. But there are maple leaves round the cenotaph in Whitehall. So why need we say more of that?

COUNTESS OF MINTO FETED IN NEW HOME.

Concert was held in the Hall Recently Erected.

EDINBURGH, June 21. — Lord and Lady Minto's activities in their new sphere began when they attended a Warrior's Day entertainment. The concert was given in the public hall, in aid of Earl Haig's fund for disabled former service men. This handsome and commodious hall was erected recently by Lord Minto for public use, and advantage was taken of his presence to convey to him an expression of the indebtedness of the community for his generaus gift.

Lord Minto has been elected honorary president of the Hawick branch of the Scottish Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The Minto ancestral home, where it is expected that Lord and Lady Minto will reside for the greater part of the year, is charmingly situated about six miles from Hawick. From the adjacent Minto hills and crags, one commands a glorious panorama of characteristic border scenery.

HATRED OF FRENCH SHOWN IN DUESSELDORF

People of That and Other Newly Occupied Cities Will Not Even Speak French.

DUSSELDORF, June 22.—The anti-occupation sentiment is much stronger in Dusseldorf, Ruhrort and Duisburg, the cities of Rhenish Prussia, recently occupied by the French, than in Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne, which also have been under foreign occupation for more than two years by the French, Americans and British.

As one crosses from the left bank of the Rhine and enters recently occupied territory the mood of the population becomes more sullen, their behavior more aloof and their hatred much more pronounced. The reason may be that the French are occupying that part of the right bank of the Rhine that they hold near the Ruhr in real military fashion, and the occupation is much more severe than that on the left bank.

The hatred of the population is directed more especially against the French, and children are being brought up in a constant terror of the occupying forces, which gives but little promise that real brotherly love between French and Germans will be achieved within the coming generation.

The refusal to speak French even by persons well acquainted with the language is one of the most common ways in which Germans show their dislike of the French military men. The correspondent walked into a cigar store the other day while a French officer was attempting to make the woman in charge understand the brand of cigarettes he wanted. She seemed absolutely at a loss to understand him, when the correspondent translated the officer's request into English. After the officer had departed she told the correspondent in purest French: 'I understood him the first time, but I would not give him the satisfaction."

Few women in Dusseldorf, Ruhrort or Duisburg will be seen in the company of a uniformed French soldier or officer in the streets. The few who transgress the unwritten law are promptly catologued at the German city headquarters and are marked for reprisals. In some cases the difficulty is avoided by the occupying swain adopting civilian clothes, which seems to be satisfactory all around.

MOTOR LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP NOW NEAR 200

BUT WITH 1,200 CAR-OWNERS IN CITY THE LEAGUERS ARE NOT YET SATISFIED.

WARNING TO RECKLESS

The interest at the Automobile Association meetings is still being sustained, and was demonstrated again at the meeting held last eevning in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with a good attendance, with Mr. R. S. Cotton in the chair.

The membership again showed an increase and is now near the 200 mark, but with the 1200 motorists in the city it is felt that the membership is still small, and the effort will be continued to enlist the co-operation of as many as possible.

Outings.

The President reported that the outings for the various charitable institutions were being carried forward, last Thursday taking the male inmates of the House of Providence, next Thursday the female inmates, and followed each Thursday by the Children's Aid Shelter, Protestant Home and St. Vincent's Orphanage. It was suggested that although a sufficient number of cars could be obtained for these outings, yet it would save a considerable amount of difficulty if motorists wishing to help out in this good work would notify the secretary. The remarks of the inmates taken for a ride around the city last Thursday showed their marked appreciation of the efforts of the Association in giving them a thorough change, and one old man stated that it was so long since he had been around the city that he could not recognize it, and was more impressed than ever by its beauty.

Road Signs.

Owing to the considerable amount of work necessary in alterations and erection of new road and direction signs throughout the district, a Special committee was appointed to attend to this subject, the special committee being E. B. Fowler, A. Blade and J. H. Bertram.

The committee would be pleased if the motorists of the city would notify the secretary at any time when it is found that signs are necessary to designate roads or dangerous corners.

Reception of Tourists.

Coupled with the recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce to the city council for the issuing of formal welcome cards to visiting motorists a resolution was adopted by the Association that signs should be placed at conspicuous corners leading to the city, advertising the city, and also referring them to the headquarters for any information they require. One of these signs will be placed at the corner of Monaghan Road and Charlotte street, the committee having power to draw up the sign and erect the same.

American Tours.

The Secretary reported that reports are being received from time to time from Mr. O. M. Wells, Chief Road Man, of the Automobile Club of America, as to the best roads to be taken on motoring on the other side. These should prove of particular service to local motorists desiring to visit the United States, and it would be advisable for them to secure up-to-date information before commencing the tour.

Change of Name.

The motorists being well acquainted with the Ontario motor leageu and its various activities throughout the province, a resolution was adopted to change the name from the Peterborough Automobile Association to the Ontario Motor League, Peterborouhg Branch, and authorization was given for the erection of a sign designating the headquarters.

Privileges

The President stated that he had received information to the effect that motorists who are members of the League would be charged two dollars on the car ferry at Gananoque, instead of the four dollars which wil be charged to motorists other than members of the League. It was also reported that motorists wishing to stay in the United States longer than the thirty days period already granted, could obtain a further extension of two months by applying to the Court of Entry to the United States.

Reckless Driving

Since the passing of the resolution at the last meeting regarding the notification of cases of misdemeanour on the part of motorists, one case has been reported, and a letter of warning has been forwarded to the offender, pointing out the desirability of cauious driving in his own inerests and also that of the motorists and general public.

Dimming Lights

Owing to the considerable increase in motor traffic to and from the city, the President drew the attention of the motorists to the desirability of dimming lights when passing other motorists, as this was proved to be a direct cause of a number of accidents throughout the Province.

The President informed the meeting that a further supply of badges had been received from the League, and also Road Guides and Road Maps, and would be available from the Secretary on application.

A little learning makes a man dangerous company for himself.

SAYS DIVORCES DOUBLED IN MANITOBA THIS YEAR

WINNIPEG, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—Divorces and mixed dancing received severe condemnation in the report of the Social Service and Evangelical Committee at the Methodist Conference to-day.

"Since the Privy Council decided last year that the Manitoba courts could grant divorces," stated Rev. Andrew Stewart of Wesley College, "I venture to say that divorces in Manitoba have increased tenfold, and even fiftyfold. This is a serious state of affairs."

Rev. Mr. Stewart advocated the establishment of a Court of Domestic Relations rather than a Divorce Court, the extreme of which should be the settlement and resumption of marriage obligations.

You Are A Bundle Of Nerves

The one thing the average person cannot understand is, how adjusting the Vertebrae of the Spine is going to relieve, for instance, a pain in the big toe. Don't mistake the meaning, for understand, the Chiropractor does not heal, treat, or cure; all he does is Adjust the Cause of Disease and lets Nature Cure.

Picture in your mind's eye your own being. It is, as a matter of fact, A BUNDLE OF NERVES. Every tissue cell of your body is supplied by Nerves, and each and every one of these Nerves, from the largest to the most minute, is in direct communication with its source of supply, THE BRAIN. It is the Brain which generates and furnishes the Nerve Energy, which is HEALTH. Prick your toe, your finger, or any part of your body, with a needle, and it registers an impression in your Brain. Your Health is going to be O.K. as long as there is complete and uninterrupted connection between Brain and Tissue Cell. But the situation is this: There are 31 pair of Nerve cables, each containing thousands of Nerves which branch off from the Spinal Cord (the main cable from the Brain), carrying the Nerve energy to every tissue cell of your body. But they must pass out between the Vertebrae of the Spine, and when the Vertebrae are not in alignment, one or more of them, the Nerve cables are subject to pressure and the connection between Brain and Tissue Cell where the impinged Nerves lead to is not complete; the Tissue Cell does not get its full quota of Nerve energy (Health), and the result is Disease.

The Chiropractor knows a normal Spine, and knows which Nerve cables are being pressed upon by displaced Vertebrae. He can tell you the parts affected by analyzing your Spine, and he knows scientifically how to adjust the Vertebrae to proper position, permitting full flow of Nerve energy; opening the way for NATURE to rebuild that which has been torn down.

You don't have to have faith in Chiropractic; allow the Chiropractor to adjust the Cause, and Nature will take care of the rest.

GRAIN ENQUIRY MAY PROVE BOOMERANG TO GOVERNMENT

ALLEGED DISCLOSURES REGARDING THE GRAIN TRADE ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN ACTUATED BY POLITICAL MOTIVES—FARMERS SAID TO BE CONSOLIDATING RATHER THAN DIVIDED AS A RESULT.

MEDICINE HAT A TEST

OTTAWA, June 23.—(Special to the Examiner). — In Government circles here but little hope is entertained of winning the by-election in Medicine Hat. No money is changing hands on the result, and the general impression gained from reports emanating from the Western riding is that the Progressive candidate will pile up a majority in the rural sections sufficient to more than overcome any advantage which the Government candidate may secure in the urban centres.

Apart entirely from the importance to the Government of holding a seat which went Union in 1917, Government supporters looked on the contest as an opportunity to test the effect of the alleged disclosure regarding the grain trade on the Progressive forces. From what can be gathered, however, the enquiry in Fort William particularly is having a boomerang effect, and charges by the Progressive forces that it was actuated purely for political motives, are resulting in the consolidation instead of the disintegration of the Farmer forces.

A Serious Rumor.

Hon. Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, who has just returned from the county, has already prepared something in the nature of an alibi in case of the defeat of the Government candidate. He states that the Crerar candidate is backed by men who were prominent in the Winnipeg strike, and hints broadly at a Farmer, Bolshevik, O. B. U. aliance.

If the Government intends living out its legal lease of power it cannot afford to lose any by-elections, especially in seats formerly held by it. Of the six contests pending, including Medicine Hat, all but that for Maple Creek will take place in counties formerly held by the Government, and every defeat in these means a decrease of two in an already narrow majority.

So far little progress has been made toward nominations, and in certain seats a fight for the convention is threatened which may cause serious dissension in the Government ranks. Writs will not likely be issued for any other by-elections until the return of Premier Meighen from England a month or so hence.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW.

The funeral of the late Charles Rex, aged 66 years, whose death occurred on Wednesday June 22nd, after an illness of two weeks, will take place from his late residence 624 Union street, on Friday, June 24th, to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 3 p.m.

SIMS TELLS DENBY HE WAS MISQUOTED.

WASHINGTON, June 23. — (Canadian Press)—Rear-Admiral William S. Sims reported personally to Secretary Denby today that he had been misquoted in press accounts of remarks made in London touching on Sinn Fein sympathizers in the United States. The officer was recalled from leave of absence to explain these remarks, and today Secretary Denby directed him to make a written statement giving the correct text of what he had said.

Later Admiral Sims handed a written statement to Secretary Denby, who has it under consideration. Meantime the text is being withheld.

PATROL OF CANADIAN SOLDIERS ON NAVY ISLAND IN THE NIAGARA RIVER BELIEVED AN EFFORT TO OVERAWE SMUGGLERS

CHIPPEWA, Ont., June 23. — Special to the Examiner.) — All ordinary efforts having failed, three soldiers have been sent to Navy Island, in the Niagara River above the Falls by the Dominoin Government, to over-awe the bootleggers, is the opinion of many Canadian farmers along the adjacent mainland, who do not deny that they themselves may have "run" a few loads not very long ago.

In the town of Chippawa and as far down the river as Niagara Falls, wherever old inhabitants and neighbors drink ginger beer and swap gossip, this story has been spread as authoritative, for from the December days of 1837, when that fiery rebel against the family compact, William Lyon Mackenzie, gathered the toughs from the streets of Buffalo with a fife and drum band, to Navy Island, for the invasion of Canada, its 400 acres are dotted with the landmarks of the results of booze, and its "wicked concomitants," past the northernmost point of Navy Island to Echota, a little suburb on the American shore.

A professional bootlegger claimed he has rowed "O, altogether about 500 chinks," who under cover of darkness escaped paying the stiff head tax, or being turned back to Canada, sometimes like poor pallid ghosts, they landed on the island, waiting for better luck, and sipping of the elixir of happiness and forgetfulness from the cases of hidden plants.

"Was there much of it for you?" he was inquisitively asked.

"Oh, I don't know. At first we used to get only $50 a head for the Chinks but later on we made it $250. The trouble is that you can't trust anybody these days. There is $700 and odd owing to me for Chinks and $1380 for booze beside. Just at present the mosquitoes are too bad."

Place of Mystery.

The wooded shore of the west side of Navy Island, broken by the two bell tents and the auxiliary shelters of the three soldiers, Corp. V. G. Dean and Privates J. Smith and H. Cordner, of the Company of Royal Canadian Regiment stationed at Toronto, enticed a reporter and photographer, piloted by James Snyder, a lifelong resident in the neighborhood, in his rowboat across the half mile of channel between the island and the mainland, a mile south of Chippewa.

Of the roughly constructed shacks which housed aMckenzie's forces in 1837, not a trace ,of course remains. Except for a white cat, called Snowball, now running wild, some rabbits, two ruins of houses, and a single farm dwelling inhabited by a middle aged farmer named John Miller and his wife and three children, the only inhabitants, with the exception of the soldiers, Navy Island might be called an utterly lonely place, seeming more mysterious and lonely by the echo of the Falls. Navy Island will be deserted when Mr. Miller (as he has been instructed by the Dominion Government) leaves on October 1st .

Whether this historic little island will then become a naval training station is a question widely discussed in the Niagara peninsula.

To the officers and members of Peterborough Lodge No. 111 and Otonabee Lodge No. 13. On Sunday next, June 26, being our annual Decoration service, the members will assemble at 2.00 sharp at the lodge room. All visiting members are invited to attend. Signed, Committee. 3d-21-23-25

Story of Pirates a Fancy

NO MAN RASH ENOUGH TO ATTEMPT PIRACY IN THESE DAYS—STORY OF MISSING AMERICAN SHIPS STIRS UP INTEREST AMONG BRITAIN'S SEAMEN.

OPINION AT LLOYDS

BY EDWARD L. KEEN.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, June 23.—All Britain, as a sea-faring nation, eagerly watched the investigations to-day in the search for America's vanished ships. Along the wharves of the ports and along the sea walls old salts spun tales of vanished ships and of pirates, and speculated on a possible revival of the old days of the Spanish main, the cutlass and the black flag.

As if it were yesterday, the old tars told of the terrible tales of 1899 when many vessels foundered in the heavy seas. Historic storms of other years were recalled and added to the fund of speculation regarding America's fleet. At Lloyds, the centre of shipping information and scientific observations, the idea that twentieth century pirates are threatening shipping was scouted.

"Fantastic," declared men high up in the conern. "The stories are without the slightest foundation. Even with the submarine to hide his activities, no man now is rash enough to attempt that game. A pirate now would go after much larger game than little freighters with cargoes which couldn't be turned into money very readily."

It was pointed out that there was much heavy weather early in the year, comparable to a similar period in 1899 when many ships went down.

"Russian Bolsheviks were unknown then," declared an official.

This despatch refers to the following story:

WASHINGTON, June 22. —The names of three other vessels which have disappeared off the Atlantic coast of the United States in mysterious circumstances were added to the Department of Commerce yesterday to the list of those who failure to appear is attributed by the Government to circumstances more or less related to the supposed kidnapping of the crew of the American schooner Carroll A. Deering off Diamond Shoals, North Carolina, last January. It is not asserted that all the missing vessels were the victims of pirates or possibly Bolshevist sympathizers intending to dispose of ships and cargoes to the Government of Soviet Russia, but the fact remains that all these vessels disappeared at about the same time, and that none of them left a trace is considered significant.

Four of the missing ships disappeared off the Southern Atlantic Coast in February. Three of them sailed from Norfolk about the same time. Ordinarily ships that disappear leave some trace either in the way of boats, wreckage or dead bodies, but it is said that none of the ships added to the list to-day left any trace whatever. They were sunk "spurlos versenkt," as the Germans expressed the effort of their submarines to leave no tell-tale vestige of merchant vessels they sent to the bottom.

Disappearance of Yute and Albyan.

Two of the vessels whose disappearance has made the Government authorities suspicious since they learned recently of the kidnapping of the Deering's crew off Diamond Shoals in January are the Spanish steamer Yute and the Russian bark Albyan.

The Yute sailed from Baltimore for Dunkirk on Nov. 14, 1920. On Nov. 17 she was heard calling for help and gave her position as about 240 miles off the New Jersey coast. Government vessels and other ships put out to her assistance, but never able to get any trace of her.

The Albyan sailed from Norfolk for Gothenberg on Oct. 1. She has never been heard from, and not the slightest trace of any wreckage from her has been found.

ALLIANCE NOT AGAINST U.S.A.

JAPANESE AMBASSADOR AGREES WITH VIEWS OF CONFERENCE.

LONDON, June 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain, in the course of an interview, expressed entire agreement with the views expressed at the Imperial conference concerning the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, adding that he was sure his opinion was shared by the Japanese government. Obviously, said the Ambassador, no Japanese government and no sane Japanese could regard the Alliance as in any way envisaging strife with the United States.

SINN FEIN SEES MILITARY INTENT IN THE PARTITION

QUOTE LETTER ATTRIBUTED TO FIELD MARSHAL WILSON EXPLAINING ABSENCE FROM THE OPENING OF ULSTER PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, July 22.—What purported to be a copy of a letter from Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, Chief of Imperial General Staff, sent to Lloyd George, giving his reasons for not accepting the Premier's invitation to attend yesterday's opening of the Ulster Parliament, was circulated to-day in Sinn Fein quarters here. The Field Marshal's reasons for declining to go to Belfast were given as follows:

"Being the senior officer of the British army, I do not think it right or proper for me to be present. In view of the fact that the Government appears determined to increase its pressure on the south and west of Ireland to bring the Sinn Fein rebellion to an end, and that orders for all troops to go over will emanate from me, I think perhaps, it would bring politics into the army if, as a preliminary to ordering thousands of troops over to crush the rebellion, I was seen to take part in the opening of the northern parliament."

The copy of the letter was printed in the Irish Bulletin, which said, in commenting upon it, that it regarded the letter as "authentic proof of the military and political motives which dictated the partition of Ireland and the establishment of the Ulster parliament."

NEW POTATOES AT 60 CENTS A PECK

AND TOMATOES AT 20 CENTS A POUND-:-EARLY SEASON BRINGS EARLY CROPS.

The strawberry market is beginning to tighten up. It is becoming more difficult to get berries, dealers say and prices are advancing. Cherries are beginning to fill up the fruit store windows. The great output of the Niagara Penninsula is dribbling into Peterboro. Fin black sweet cherries are $2.50 a 6 quart baskett and the red variety jus half that $1.25. "This year cherries are very high" a dealer said. However the season is ahead of other years and prices have always been high for the first picking. California continues to send a big proportion of the fruits that brighten the windows of the shops. Plums are selling at 30 cents a quart or by the dozen from 15 to 50 cents depending on size and quality. Californian canteloupes are retailing at 25 to 35 cents. The peaches come from Georgia say the dealers . They are selling at 25 to 40 cents. There is no indication of lower lemon prices said a dealer today and oranges are firm as well.

Cucumbers are becoming cheaper. At 10 and 15 cents nice sized ones can be had. No local grown potatoes have appeared in the stores yet. The imported ones are selling from 60 to 70 cents a peck. Tomatoes are selling generaly at 20 to 25 cents with a very brisk sale. To lettuce, radishes and small stuff natively grown must be added green peas at 15 cents a quart and cauliflower at 25 to 40 cents the first this summer.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE IS CONTRADICTED.

Mr. H. Smith, 311 McDonnel St., announces that the announcement in yesterday's Examiner of an engagement between his daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Clifford Chapman, is incorrect. There is absolutely no truth in the item, the insertion of which was ordered through the mail above what is to-day asserted to be Mr. Smith's forged signature. The ordering of such false announcements carries with it severe punishment under the law, and the use of another person's name in such a manner spells forgery, even although the signature may have been borrowed by some stupid person to perpetuate what he or she considers to be a huge joke.

7,000 MEN AT CHIPPEWA

(Special to The Examiner.)

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 23 A solitary figure, foot upon the stone fence, gazing meditatively at the Falls from the road that leads down from the Suspension Bridge, was M. M. MacBride, the stormy petrel of the Labour group in the Ontario House, when accidentally met by The Examiner to-day.

"I was just thinking about the Chippawa Power Canal," he said, announcing that he was waiting for a taxi to take him all over the Chippawa works for a thorough inspection of it in every way.

"I don't want to go into the Ontario House next session and not know what I am talking about, and in three weeks' time I'm going to Cochrane and on up to see with my own eyes where that James Bay Railway is going through. There are a lot of fool members who get up in the House, and don't know what they are talking about. I propose to have some kind of a first-hand idea of what is intended and what is being done before I speak.

"I was just thinking—if we hadn't settled that strike," said Mr. MacBride, "where would we have been to-day. Of course, the Commission, of which I was a member and for my work in which I was severely criticised by the Labour Party, didn't really settle the strike. Sir Adam Beck did it, but the result is that 7,000 men are working at good wages, and the job is going to be completed fine. It's wonderful.

"The whole thing was to get the Chippawa business done. It was a public ownership enterprise. It was a proposition like a private ownership thing, and it's up to all of us to dig in and get somewhere with it.

"I'd just like to say this: If this Royal Commission sitting now on the Hydro Radials would finish its work and the Ontario Government would give its guarantee to the Hydro bonds, it would put thousands more men to work. That's about the best cure for Bolshevism —to put men to work and to help them earn their own living—isn't it?"

PRAISES ULSTER ON SELF-GOVERNMENT

LLOYD GEORGE HOPES INFLUENCE OF NORTH WILL BE EXTENDED

BELFAST, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—In his message to Premier Craig, of Ulster, the British Prime Minister, Lloyd George, said:

"The Government, Parliament and people of Northern Ireland have proved their capacity and patriotism by the spirit in which they have discharged the first responsibility of self-government, and they have a great opportunity before them. I hope and believe that their influence and example will assist to set the whole of Ireland ere long upon the path of practical co-operation, which alone can lead to the realization of Irish ideals and the security of Irish interests.

"The Government of Ireland Act has put Ireland's future in the hands of its own people, provided only that Southern Ireland renounces its claim to secession from the Empire."

CENSUS RETURNS IN BY AUGUST 1ST

OTTAWA, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—More than 90 per cent. of the census returns should be in Ottawa by the middle of July, and but few points should remain to be heard from after August 1st. The time allowed in the towns is usually from 2 to 3 weeks for the completion of returns, and from 5 to 6 weeks in country points. Returns from the Yukon are expected to be in as soon as those from outlaying points in various provinces. In the Mackenzie River Basin, Ungava District, and Canadian Labrador, operations are slower owing to transportation difficulties. In the far north ice is still preventing the enumerators venturing forth in canoes on their long journeys. R. H. Coates, Chief Dominion Statistician, reports that his 12,000 enumerators right across the Dominion are experiencing but comparatively little trouble.

COMMITTEES TO FUNCTION THIS SUMMER

BUT NO GENERAL MEETING OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL BE HELD UNTIL SEPTEMBER.

Owng to the presence of the holiday season, it was decided at the Executive Council meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last evening to discontinue the general meetings of the Chamber until September, and the policy of the Chamber during the first two years of re-organisation will be continued, that of continuing the activities through the various committees, namely, Agriculture, City Planning, Civic Education, Fire, Water and Light Industrial Welfare, Kawartha Lake Development, Membership, Publication, Streets, Roads and Highways, Transportation, and Social Welfare.

Following the receipt of a communication from the City Council, representatives were appointed in the persons of the President, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, and Vice-president, Mr. H. R. H. On the suggestion being received from the Local Council of Women on th formation of a branch of the Royal Humane Society in the city, the secretary was instructed to obtain information from the Provincial Branch Headquarters at Hamilton, so that definite action may be taken in the fall to organise for this all-important work in the city.

A cordial invitation was extended by the Trent Waterway Development Association to the members of the Executive Council, and such other interested members of the Chamber so desiring, to attend the annual meeting of that Association to be held in Orillia next Tuesday, 28th June.

The President reported that added interest was being taken by the citizens in the activities of the Chamber, working for the greatest good to the greatest number, and that the following applications had been received, and duly elected as members of the Chamber:

DESTROY THE WEEDS ON VACANT LOTS

Chief of Police Newhall takes this means of issuing a last warning that owners of vacant lots must not permit the growh of noxions weeds on such land. These weeds are a nuisance to adjoining property owners in that this seed is carried by the wind to near-by lawns and gardens where they find root and eventually choke and kill vegetation, plant and grass growth. A city by-law prohibits the maintenance of weed-overrun lots, under a heavy penalty. The weeds must be removed.

EXPLOITING THE WHOLE BODY OF WORKERS IN THIS INDUSTRY IN THE HOPE OF WRECKING THE CAPITALISTIC SYSTEM—FEAR OF VIOLENCE KEEPS MANY MINERS FROM RESUMING WORK.

LABOR'S ADMIRATION

LONDON, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—In all the British coal fields where the miners have returned to work they are being subjected to intimidation by strikers. So far there has ben much actual violence but fear of it is preventing the reopening of many pits in Scotland. Soldiers are protecting the miners working in a few colleries where they have resumed operations. Some recrimination has developed within the miners federation itself. A Nottinghamshire leader declared last night publicly that all the suffering which strike had imposed could be laid at the door of an element among Welsh miners who were out to wreck the capitalist system. This wrecking element he said should produce coal not try to exploit others. The same speakers stated that the Notinghamshire miners had not only exhausted all their funds about quarter million pounds but were a hundred thousand in debt.

INTENSIFIED WARFARE MOCKS KING'S APPEAL TO SOUTHERN IRISH

RELIEF AT HOME OVER SAFE RETURN OF THEIR MAJESTIES BUT PRESS CRITICIZES DECREE OF GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—Relief over the safe return of King George and Queen Mary from Belfast was expressed by this morning's newspaper, which also voiced appreciation of their courage in making the trip to the Irish city to open the Ulster Parliament. Editorials warmly approved the King's address, especially his plea that the Irish "forgive and forget and join in making for the land they love a new era of peace, contentment and goodwill."

The Daily News, however, strongly criticized the Government which framed the speech for "simultaneously making mockery and reproach of these moving words," by its decision to send more troops to the south of Ireland. The Times also denounced the Government for "dashing all hopes by decreeing an intensified warfare in Ireland to the bitter end." It accused the Government of failing to play the game with the King, who was said to have done all he could do.

LABOUR PARTY EXPRESSES ADMIRATION FOR MINERS

BRIGHTON, Eng. June 22.—Resolutions were unamiously passed by Labor Party Conference here today expressing admiration for the spirit in which the coal miners had "faced the attacks launched on them by government and owners." and declaring that the struggle had been one in which the interest of labor as a whole had been fought for and not for the miners interests alone. The conference was asked to provide all possible facilit es to help labor party continue its support to miners and diminish suffering in the miner's districts.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

June 22, 1921.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Replying to a paragraph in the paper on Monday night regarding prices on meat, I would like some ignorant person to learn something.

Meats have dropped more in the retail store than they have on the farmer. Now, the public demands such unreasonable service that produce is bound to be high in price. It costs to run a meat business 20 per cent. I mean, out of every dollar's worth sold it takes 20 cents to pay overhead expenses, such as rent, wages, etc. Take bacon—when it was 60 cents a pound we had a profit of 20 cents on 1 2-3 pounds. Now it is 50 cents, and we have a profit of 20 cents and give you two pounds for a dollar, 1-3 pound more and no extra charge.

When we cut off a steak the fat must be cut out and some of the bone, in fact, this applies to all fresh meat cuts. It used to be we cut off a slice and sold everything—no trimming and fussing like we have to do now. If this person would like to get the Mayor and Council together some evening I will give them my time and show them our books and how the business is run, also the profits we make. If they desire to take up this offer, a reply can be made through the press.

We are considered one of Peterborough's successful meat firms and we can honestly say that we work longer hours than any factory man and receive smaller pay. We get no double time for after hours. If everything was run on double pay for overtime the public would pay one-half the price again for the service they get so cheap.

We had no chance to make money during the war—in fact, most firms made less. Look up and see the stores that have failed in the past seven years. The percentages show that there was more failures than in any other such period in the past century.

I will honestly say and prove it to any person who would like to find out for the public's sake, or for his own, information that we are not making near the profit that other lines of business are. Look around and see what the grocer or butcher has got compared with the other merchants. We are all just poor people who saved a little money and had nerve enough to make a start for ourselves. By working long hours and saving some of what we got we are able to make a little money.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

AUTO TURNS TURTLE DOWN EMBANKMENT.

PORT HOPE, June 22.—V. M. Wesse, salesman for the Canadian Oil Company, narrowly escaped serious injury recently when his car turned turtle.

Construction work on the road just east of Grafton was in progress, and the part of the road open for traffic was very narrow. Mr. Wesse was driving a Ford car, when he met a team with a large waggon loaded with machinery. The rear hub of the car was caught by a part of the machinery and the car was completely overturned and rolled down an embankwent.

Fortunately Mr. Wesse was not injured, but the car was damaged to the extent of $200.00.

Mr. Wesse states that the road there is very dangerous, and the condition should be brought to the attention of the officials.

It is reported that another accident has occurred here since, in which a young lady was severely hurt.

113 MEMBERS OF FAMILY HOLD PICNIC AT STRATFORD

STRATFORD, Ont. —June 21.—he largest number of members of one family seen for a considerable time in Stratford assembled at Queen's Park this afternoon. Approximately 113 members of the Nanckeville family were present for the annual reunion, comprising the members of branches of the family from Chicago, Toronto, Woodstock, Ingersoll, London, Hamilton, Tavistock and West Zorra.

The picnic is an annual event, and is held at cities and towns decided upon by members of the family. This year Stratford was chosen for the event. The oldest couple at the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Nancke ville, of Woodstock, Mrs. John Karn the oldest member of the family, was unable to attend.

WHEN THE CAR WAS NEW.

When the car was new and shiny Pa was careful as could be.
He'd polish up the window glass each evening after tea.
And if there was a finger mark upon the glossy door,
He'd get a piece of underwear and shine it up some more.

He'd sweep the carpets every day and oil each separate part,
He'd always rub and shine a bit before he'd make a start,
And twice a week in rubber boots and overalls of brown
He'd work for hours so he might have the cleanest car in town.

But that was in the long ago, and now the car is old.
There's mud upon the running gears and in the manifold.
The axles now are thick with grease, for Pa declines to soil
His hands or scrape his knuckles bare to give it dope and oil.

The bus has lost the shine it had, its stylish days are done.
Pa doesn't care now how it looks so long as it will run.
And never more he'll wash the gears and shine the body, too.
Pa says he'll leave that work for those who se motor cars are new.

SOVIET RUSSIA MAKES FRIENDS WITH TURKEY

LENINE EXCHANGES PRESENTS WITH RULER, AND SENDS ENVOY TO VISIT SHAH OF PERSIA.

ACCOMPLISHES WHAT OLD GOVT. COULD NOT

RIGA, Latvia, June 23.—(By Associated Press).—Recent arrivals from Moscow declare that the world little realizes how closely Soviet Russia is pushing its friendship with the Near East.

In Moscow now the Turkish legation occupies one of the most sumptuous of the old palaces, and the personnel, garbed in faultless European clothes, present a strange contrast to the poorly garbed Muscovites. The Afghans and other near Eastern delegations also occupy luxurious quarters, give elaborate banquets and otherwise carry on with all the pomp of the old Eastern courts.

Members of Lenine's government are frequently guests at these affairs and entertain the legation personnels equally lavishly in return.

Lenine Gives Presents

Besides this, Lenine has so accommodated himself to the phychology of the East that he now exchanges presents with the rulers of Turkey, Persia, etc., as did the rulers of ancient days.

AMoscow dispatch to-day reads like a paragraph from what might have been an ancient tablet of heiroglyphics describing the visit of a Babylonian envoy to King Cyrus of Persia. It says: "The representative of the Soviet government has made his first official visit to the Shah of Persia, presenting to the Shah on a golden salver an album with photographs of Soviet leaders of the whole of Russia as a personal present to the Shah from Lenine."

A man who recently arrived from Moscow said: "Few persons realize what a close connection now exists between Russia and its old enemy Turkey, and for that matter all of the Near East Lenine is accomplishing here what the old Russian government could not do by playing up to Eastern psychology.

"The so-called Bolshevism in these Eastern countries is nothing at all like the Bolshevism of Moscow, but in each case the Russian agitators have a distinct brand of propaganda designed to dovetail with ancient customs of the country in question. For instance, in regions where the trade in bazaars is a century old custom, no agitation against free trade has been made."

MORE FUEL WANTED WHEN BRAKES DRAG

A sufficient explanation of instances of high fuel consumption, overheated radiators and reduced hill climbing ability, is often found in brake bands so mis-adjusted that they continually drag upon their drums. After an overhauling, which has included brake relining, this condition is especially likely to be met with, but it is also brought about by the repeated tightening of brakes to compensate for wear in service, and whatever the brakes have received attention it is the best for the operator to personally assure himself that the brake bands clear their drums, when in their released positions. This is best done, by jacking up both rear wheels and turning them by hand in both directions to make sure that they rotate perfectly freely and without friction at the braking surface.

Drums Get Hot.

If it is not desired to go to this trouble, serious dragging can be detected by the drums feeling hot to the hand, immediately after the car has been driven several miles. Cars just received from the factory not infrequently have brakes that do not free themselves perfectly and the trouble may be with the internal or the external bands or both. Not only does the dragging of brakes waste power and impair car performance, but it results in the unequal and premature wearing away of the linings. Every brake band is provided with adjustments by the intelligent use of which, it may be set clear of its drum. The low speed and reverse bands of the Ford transmission, if adjusted too tightly also have the effect of dragging brakes, many instances of overheated cooling systems being traceable to the friction developed at these parts.

WAR MEMORIAL TO SOLDIER DEAD OF DUMMER UNVEILED WITH MILITARY HONOURS

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING OF DISTRICT AND COUNTY'S LEADING MEN TAKE PART IN BEAUTIFUL AND TOUCHING CEREMONIES—SCHOOL CHILDREN OF WARSAW OFFER FLORAL TRIBUTES.

WARSAW, June 23. — An ideal Canadian summer day marked the unveiling on Tuesday of Dummer township's tribute to their fallen soldiers, which has been erected at Warsaw.

Several hundred people gathered from all parts of Dummer and from near by villages and towns to do honour to the occasion.

About three o'clock the procession left the town hall, headed by Dr. Munro, chairman of the committee ,and followed by the 57th band of Peterborough, under the direction of Bandmaster Gliddon, Warsaw school children bearing flowers and sprigs of maple, came next, followed by a troop of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, under Colonel T. J. Johnston. Six veterans in uniform brought up the rear, and four of them with fixed bayonets formed the guard of honour at the memorial, under Captain John Dewart. These men were David Miller, David Calder, Lorne McCracken and Harry Payne.

Maple Leaf Forever.

The procession halted in front of the platform while the band led the school children in singing "The Maple Leaf Forever."

The following occupied seats on the platform: Dr. Munro, Col. Johnson, Col. Birdsall, Capt. Rollins, Capt. Dewart, Reeve Darling, of Dummer; Councillors Barr, Kirk, Bell and Hamlin; Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M. P., ex-Councillors J. J. Crowe (the grand old man of Dummer), Mr. Robson, Rev. J. L. Hughes Rev. J. P. Knox, and Rev. Mr. Vose.

Floral Tributes

During the playing of "O Canada," the school children marched around the enclosure dropping the floral tributes under the direction of their teachers, Miss Barrie and Mr. Clark. Rev. J. D. P. Knox then led in prayer, after which Dr. Munro introduced Col. Johnson as the first speaker.

Credit to Council.

Col Johnson, after expressing his pleasure at being present, gave the Dragoons permission to lie down on the grass which they did at once. He then congratulated Dummer on the success of their endeavour to erect a suitable memorial for their fallen heroes. The council had given a cash grant to each man from the township who had enlisted, and for this they deserve the greatest credit. There are those who are ready to criticice the soldiers, he said, but such criticism comes from a want of knowledge; and these critics did not endure the hardships of the trenches; he also paid a tribute to the work of the women during the war and afterwards .

The speaker here advocated the lessening of the gap between the officer and his men and a better understanding. Far too often good service is wasted because of over-discipline.

General McBrien, inspector of the Canadian troops, had expected to be present, but was detained.

History Making.

A band selection followed, after which Captain John Dewart, an old Dummer boy, was the next speaker. A new chapter in the history of Dummer is being written to-day, he asserted, one never written before, and one of which we are all proud. War's lessons are many but an outstanding one is the value of co-operation with the brave soldiers of France, Belgium and Italy, and the work of that mighty organization, the British navy, that won the war. Canadian troops carried the Maple Leaf banner on high and made the names of Ypres, Somme, Vimy Ridge Passchandaele, Amiens, Arras and Cambrai, forever associated with Canada. At Mons, Canadian troops recaptured the city, which had been taken by the Germans in one of the first engagements of the war. The men who sleep beneath the poppies of Belgium and the lilies of France, are at peace, and their sacrifice has not been in vain; and there is the great consolation for those who have lost dear ones, that they laid down their lives for the cause of humanity, just as did the Saviour of Mankind.

The first two verses of "Oh, God, our Help in Ages Past," was then sung, after which Captain Rollins of Peterboro spoke for a few minutes.

The Splendid Dead.

Mr. Rollins said that he considered it an honour to be invited to pay respect to the splendid dead, whom we all honour in our hearts. This memorial will stand as an example from generation to generation. It was an honor and a privilege to be associated with the Canadian soldiers and to see their wonderful comradeship and trustfulness in one another. Their regard for duty and their fearlessness in doing it were splendid, he said, and we must not forget that those men who came back faced the dangers just as bravely as those who fell. Some of us are too ready to brush the returned men aside, and say they are not all they ought to be; but who of us is all that we ought to be? In honouring the dead soldiers do not forget those who are living. It is worth while to make an effort to understand the returned men, and don't be surprised at them making themselves out worse than they are, as that is the soldier's way; but is not that better than making themselves out better than they are? Personally, Captain Rollins values the friendship of the men of the army armost highest of all friendships.

Gift of Dummer.

After another band selection Reve Darling said a few words. The memorial is the gift of Dummer township in recognition of her soldier sons, he explained. $3000 of the cost was raised by a tax levy, and the remainder by subscription.

Col. Birdsall congratulated Dummer on their lasting memorial to those who saved Canada from the Hun.

The Unveiling.

After singing two verses of "Nearer my God to Thee," the memorial was unveiled by Vivian Jackson and Vernon Selkirk, two returned men.

Trumpeter Layfield sounded "The Last Post," and the singing of the "National Anthem" closed the programme.

Nursing sister Mrs. David Miller was present in uniform and deserves with the other members of the committee great credit for the memorial, which stands opposite the post office on the main road through the village.

The Committee.

The committee consisted of Dr. Munro, Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. E. Hamlin, Mrs. George Barr and Mrs. Garfield Crowe.

The monument, which carried out an idea of Dr. Munro, is of red granite with Grecian columns on a base of gray granite. Surmounting it is the life sized figure of a soldier in full uniform, carved by a master hand from grey granite. The figure is absolutely perfect in every detail. Between the columns on the red granite slab are engraved the names of the fallen.

Names of Fallen.

The following names and tests are inscribed on the monument:

More Than Honor.

The memorial is surrounded by a neat iron fence, and, as Dr. Munro truly said, "there is more than honor there."

Needed Fattening

Cardinal Manning was extremely emaciated and thin. His eminence was visiting a convent in Liverpool where an Irishwoman was cook. She was presented to the cardinal, and after receiving his blessing, she looked up at him and said: "May the Lord preserve your eminence, and, oh, may God forgive your cook!"

THE WEATHER

Yesterday's high point was 88 degrees. Last night was also warm, no lower than 63. The thunderstorm gave but .09 of an inch. A good example of the erratic nature of the ordinary thunderstorm was to be seen yesterday. At the north end of the city the rainfall was light, while on Sherbrooke street and farther south it came down quite heavily. In Smith and Douro a few miles north of the city limits, the rainfall was still heavier.—W.P.

PROBABILITIES.

Light, variable winds; a few scattered thunderstorms, but mostly fair, and very warm.

The latest Paris wonder is a woman without a stomach, who, declare the medical men, is in the pink of condition.

BRITISH FOREIGN POLICY PRESENTED IN CONFIDENCE TO PREMIERS OF EMPIRE

LORD CURZON EXPLAINED BRITAIN'S POST BELLUM ATTITUDE TOWARDS FRANCE AND RUSSIA AND ALSO ON THE PACIFIC —HIS ADDRESS NOT FOR THE PUBLIC.

(From Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 23.—A comprehensive but highly confidential review of the principles which have guided the British foreign policy since the end of the war, with a detailed outline of the results of their application, were yesterday given to the Conference of Prime Ministers by Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Owing to the fact that a number of questions of delicate international significance had to be touched upon, the Conference agreed that the address should not be published.

All that can be said, therefore, is that the Foreign Secretary took the Conference completely into his confidence, laying all the cards on the table, and at the same time inviting delegates to interrogate him respecting each and every point upon which they might desire fuller information.

This invitation, it is understood, was freely acted upon, Premier Meighen and the other Premiers subjecting Lord Curzon to what practically amounted to a cross-examination.

The Foreign Secretary, it is known, did not touch upon the Japanese alliance, except in a general way, and neither advocated that it be denounced or renewed. He dealt at great length, however, with the diplomatic conversations which have taken place with France, with the basis of the British Government's attitude with respect to Russia, and with the general lines of the British policy, both in Europe and in the Pacific.

Scores of onlookers scurried to cover from revolver and carbine fire opened by three of the men, who remained in the automobile which drew up in front of the jewelry shop while the two others smashed the windows and gathered up the booty.

The watchman who was guarding the store emptied his revolver at the robbers, but without perceptible effect, and the bandits drove off with their loot, clearing the street meanwhile with renewed firing.

THE PLAYGROUNDS.

The Council's decision to assist the Playgrounds Association will not be criticised harshly even by those who view with alarm the rising tax rate. Supervised playgrounds, regarded on their introduction in Peterborough as a fad by many citizens, have proved their value to the community, and they have come to stay. For hundreds of children, who are not able to go to river or lake during the holidays, they have provided healthful and helpful recreation. To the mothers of such children they have been a splendid boon, for they know the little ones are safe from the perils of the street and that they are being looked after carefully. Municipal assistance for such a splendid movement is amply justified, for while public spirited citizens have been generous in their support of the playgrounds, it is not wisdom to have a community enterprise of this nature dependent upon the free will offerings of the public. The work is for the benefit of the whole community and on that ground municipal aid should be looked for and should be cheerfully given.

GET THE SPEEDERS.

The County authorities would be doing the public a good service if they would devote a little attention to the speed-crazed motorists who are turning the roads around Peterborough into speedways, on which they drive their cars at a rate that makes them a menace to their own safety, and to that of everybody else who has occasion to be on the highways. Particularly is this true of the Chemong Road, which by reason of the carelessness of a number of motorists, is each night converted into the most dangerous six mile stretch of road in the Midland district. That there have been accidents is not to be wondered at; the surprising feature is that there have not been many more mishaps. Along a road thick with dust, their wheels throwing up dust clouds that almost blind the drivers of other machines, big, powerful cars are being sent along at a speed that would not be safe on a much wider and better road, and that is criminally fast under the conditions that prevail along the Chemong Road. An example should be made of the principal offenders, and it should not give the authorities much trouble to learn their identity.

IMMIGRATION.

The information that immigration into Canada is dwindling, would be under normal circumstances rather disappointing tidings, for it is realized that the Dominion's prosperity will eventually depend upon the number of new citizens she is able to attract to her shores. But with conditions as they are at present, the knowledge that there is a slackening in the stream of immigration, will be gratifying to most people, who realize that the problem of looking after the unemployed next winter will be serious enough without being aggravated by the presence of thousands of immigrants for whom there is little prospect of employment in the cities. The farms can of course absorb a large number of men of the right type, but there is at present no room for industrial workers. Later on Canada will want them, as many of them as can be brought, but for the present it is well that the drastic regulations in regard to immigration are having their effect. Canada should readjust herself after the upheaval caused by the world war as speedily as any country in the world, but until conditions are bettered, the bars against an influx of new citizens must be kept up.

BE AN OPTIMIST.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Be an optimist! Anyone can smile and see a great future for Canada when prices are jumping, every one is prosperous and we have a fresh supply of millionaires for breakfast every morning.

It takes a different brand of confidence to smile when prices drop, the dollar looms up as if seen through a magnifying-glass, and the breakfast food has changed from millionaires to bankrupts.

But from all over Canada comes reports that indicates a bumper crop. The starvation that stares some countries in the face gives the Dominion a wide berth. There is work for everyone who is not too proud or too delicate to work on the land.

And all the while Canada's national resources are increasing in value. There is gold in the Northland, oil in the Arctic circle, and billions of tons of coal waiting to be mined in the western Provinces.

It is a period of universal poverty. The world is strewn with bankrupt nations. And Canada looms up among them as one of the few nations—if she is a nation—that can look to the future with a full stomach and satisfied smile.

Be an optimist!

BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

"Friendly co-operation with the United States is for us a cardinal principle dictated by instinct quite as much as by reason and commonsense," said Mr. Lloyd George at the first meeting of the conference of British premiers. The prime minister of Great Britain rejoiced that the United States showed such a desire for the limitation of the growth of armaments, and said that any overtures from that direction would be most willingly met. The British desire, he declared, is to work with the great republic in all parts of the world for stability and peace on the basis of liberty and justice.

There is no doubt that these words of Mr. Lloyd George are in the nature of a premable to the discussion of the disarmament question. No one believes that the people of the United States, taken as a people, have any other desire but that of friendly co-operation with the British in taking steps to safeguard the peace of the world, but mixed with the pure gold of this honest desire there is an alloy which invariably makes it presence known when opportunity offers. This alloy is not an integral part of the American people, and can always be detected as a separate unit which is in no way representative of the country. It is therefore a comparatively easy matter to assess it at its true value.

We do not hesitate to assert that if any proposal for the limitation of armaments were submitted to popular vote in any part of the world, it would receive unanimous approval, for the maintenance of powerful fleets and standing armies places on the shoulders of the people burdens which they could very well do without. The greatest obstacle to be overcome is the jealousy and distrust which one nation bears to another. To eliminate this there is only one remedy and that is the freer intercourse of one country with another. This can only be brought about by the systematic discussion and amicable adjustment of international problems.
